SEGREGATION OF PATIENTS IS URGED

Dr. H. R. Livengood Comments on Increase of Lunacy Cases in County.

Special stress is laid upon the increase in the number of lunacy cases and the need of segregating such patients by Dr. Horace R. Livengood, Union county jail physician, in his report for the year 1915, which was submitted yesterday to Warden Hughson and the jail committee of the Board of Freeholders.

"The management of lunacy cases has become a difficult problem," states the report, "both to the physician and the warden. These cases are nearly all indigent and come from all parts of the county, although the greater number are from Elizabeth. The advisability of segregating these patients in order to have them under proper examination, becomes more urgent every year."

The report shows that the cases treated during the year in the jail numbered 277, the professional visits totaled 134, and that thirty-seven persons were examined for mental derangements.

According to the report, there have been no cases of beri-beri since a new dietary was introduced by Sheriff Otto with the consent of the jail committee.

NEWARK AMUSEMENTS

If you are an enemy of hypocrisy, no matter in what form it may be manifested, you will be keenly interested in "The Eternal Magdalene," the remarkable play written by Robert McLaughlin, which will be seen at the Shubert Theatre, Newark, Monday evening, January 17, for a week's engagement.

Easily one of the most successful plays produced in New York during the past season, "The Eeternal Magdalene," finely acted, beautifully staged, cleverly written, won its greatest praise from all critics for the absolute fearless manner in which it unmasked hypocrisy.

A trained newspaper man, Robert McLaughlin, wrote of people exactly as they were, sparing no one. "The Eternal Magdalene" comes to Newark exactly as it was produced in New York and the excellent cast headed by Julia Arthur insures a superfine presentation. Among those to be seen in the various parts are: Dodson Mitchell, Louise Randolph, Claire Burke and Frank Byrne.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

A beautiful solitaire diamond ring, placed in a bold setting of one of the latest and most fashionable designs, will be one of the presents to be given away at the "Country Store" at the Plainfield Theatre tomorrow night. In addition to this, Manager Shannon has purchased a quartered oak bed and an eighteen carat ladies' wrist watch, both of which will be given away to some lucky patron attending the theatre at either performance tomorrow night. As in previous weeks, there will be numerous other articles of smaller value, but nevertheless desirable and to be highly appreciated when secured for nothing. Everybody has a change to get one of these awards, as the "Country Store" is conducted on absolutely fair and square lines. There is always lots of fun when the presentations are made, comedians from the show injecting spontaneous humor as the tickled recipients start off with their prizes.

The new bill for the last half of the week opened at the theatre this afternoon, and will undoubtedly prove one of the best liked this season. Beside the five specially selected vaudeville numbers, another Will Fox feature play is on the program. It is entitled "Her Mother's Secret," with Ralph Kellard posing in the leading masculine role. The film is in five parts, and is even more intensely thrilling than "Destruction," which set the whole town talking the first part of the week. Manager Shannon has contracted with the Fox Agency for the exclusive showing in this city of all the company's masterpieces, changes being made every Monday and Thursday.

Joe Hurtig's biggest and best offering, the "Social Maids," will be the attraction at the Plainfield Theatre next Tuesday, matinee and night, and that announcement alone should be sufficient to place standing room at a premium. Heading this fine organization are George Stone and Etta Pillard, who are said to be among the very cleverest of the modern exponents of the dancing art. Not only do they present with consummate grace the conceptions of the leading experts of the hour, but they offer with equal and even greater success many of their own original novelties, embracing some of the most refined and daring conceptions the season has seen. They have the leading roles in the new and clever burlesque, "Busy Little Cupid," the book of which was written by Leon Berg and the special music by Will H. Vodery. In the superb company which Mr. Hurtig has engaged to support his stars are such popular artists as Billy Baker, Billy Foster, Jack Pillard, Marty Seamon, Jessie Haitt and the Jewell Sisters.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Starting today and continuing the rest of the week the main Triangle attraction at Proctor's is "The Lily and the Rose." Miss Lillian Gish, made famous by her excellent acting in "The Birth of a Nation," has the leading role, and Roszika Dolly, the international dancer who recently appeared on Broadway in the Winter Garden musical extravaganza, has an important role. The male star is Wilfred Lucas, whose name has been associated with the picture realm for quite some time. In this attraction Miss Gish has plenty of opportunities to display her remarkable versatility. Roszika Dolly has the allure suited to her part. Her dancing, which leads to the entanglement of Lucas as the hero, is that of the sensuous swaying and swift revolutions imported from the Far East. The Keystone comedy presented in conjunction with the above is entitled "The Great Vacuum Robbery." Charles Murray is the principal funmaker and assumes the role of a "Dime Novel" detective. The action is of the swiftest, and lovers of Keystones will find this two reeler one of the most absorbing and thrilling they have ever witnessed. The vaudeville entertainment provided for the latter part of the week was selected with great care, the headline offering being one of the most gorgeous scenic sensations ever staged in this vicinity. It is entitled, "Forty Leagues Under the Sea," and carries a carload of special scenery. The Carre Sisters, musicians of remarkable ability, present a refined musical act, and Mr. and Mrs. John Ellison, all the way from Sweden, keep the spectators amused for fifteen minutes with their up-to-the-minute offering. Silver and Duval are a team of entertainers that go big wherever they perform and their line of patter and song is refreshingly original and refined. Don't forget to attend tomorrow and tell your friends to come also for the second episode of the serial masterpiece, "The Red Circle," will be presented. The management promises a colossal toy matinee on Saturday and are prepared to accommodate an enormous crowd of children. Beside the great number of special presents given from the stage, arrangements have been made to present every child attending a handsome toy. "Bring the kiddies," you will enjoy it as much as they.

Under the auspices of Mrs. J. M. Whiton's Sunday-school class and the Tuckabachee, of the Congregational church, an entertainment will be given in the parish house this afternoon and tomorrow night.

MITTEN AGAIN HEADS COMPANY

Philadelphia, Jan. 13.—T. E. Mitten has entered into another five year agreement with E. T. Stotesbury to remain as president and chairman of the executive committee of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co. at a salary of $100,000 a year.

It Pays to Secure a Tenant Who Pays

The uncertain sort of tenant is easy to find. He is always answering the call of the window sign of "To Let." He is easy to please. Even a rather high rental does not frighten him away.

But the Stay-and-Pay tenant is not so easy to secure. He is surer of what he wants. He does not take the first house, or apartment, or store that he finds. He watches and answers "To Let" Ads.

And to secure him for your tenant is a good day's work—a good week's work.

Property that is advertised adequately in the Plainfield Daily Press is rarely rented injudiciously.

PRAISE M'KINLEY ON HIS BIRTHDAY

All the Nation Honors Memory of Former President.

ERECTING HIS MEMORIAL.

Birthplace In Town of Niles, O., Location of One of the Most Beautiful Buildings in the Country—It Is Rapidly Nearing Completion, Cornerstone Having Been Laid on Nov. 20.

All the nation, and more especially all the state of Ohio, joins on Jan. 29 in honoring the memory of William McKinley, twenty-fifth president of the United States, who was born in the little town of Niles, O., on that day in the year 1843. He died as a result of a wound inflicted by an assassin in Buffalo, N. Y., on Sept. 14, 1901.

In commemorating the memory of his birth Ohio has made the day somewhat of a state holiday, and memorial services are held in many places.

McKinley is remembered as one of the most popular and loved presidents that the United States ever had. The Republican national convention nominated him for president in 1896 and he was elected over William J. Bryan in the November election. During his term the United States engaged in war with Spain and at its close entered on a new era of expansion. In 1900 McKinley was renominated and re-elected, he taking the oath for the second time on March 4, 1901.

Accompanied by Mrs. McKinley and a group of near relatives and friends, President McKinley after spending a vacation at his home in Canton went to Buffalo on Sept. 4 to visit the Pan-American exposition. While holding a public reception in the Temple of Music on Sept. 6 the president was twice shot by Leon Czolgosz, a Polish anarchist. He lingered for a week, retaining consciousness to the last. Advised that the end was near, he responded: "Goodby, all; goodby. It is God's way; his will be done, not ours."

William McKinley was married to Ida Saxton, daughter of James and Katherine Saxton, in Canton on Jan. 25, 1871. They were the parents of two daughters, Katherine and Ida, both of whom died in infancy. Mrs. McKinley died on May 26, 1907.

The McKinley Memorial.

Now in process of construction near his birthplace at Niles there is one of the most magnificent memorials to be found anywhere in the country. The memorial was provided for by an act of congress signed by President Taft March 4, 1909, and was the first act that he signed as president. An association was formed to carry out the work, and Colonel Joseph G. Butler, Jr., of Youngstown, the boyhood friend and companion of Mr. McKinley, was chosen to take active charge as president.

The memorial building when completed will be valued at more than $200,000 and will stand in a beautiful park donated by the town of Niles, valued at $50,000 additional. The personal relics associated with the career of Mr. McKinley will be here assembled. There will be a library, a relic room, a public auditorium and headquarters for the Grand Army of the Republic and Spanish War veterans. The cornerstone of this memorial was laid on Nov. 20, 1915.

Concerning the memorial, former President Taft said:

"William McKinley was a man whom it was a great pleasure and inspiration to know. His high patriotism, his steadfastness of purpose and devotion to duty, his gentleness, his cheering optimism, all endeared him to those who came into personal touch with him as well as to the general public, who acquired their knowledge of him from his long service to the country. He was a man who rose to the exigency and whose capacity and greatness impressed themselves upon every one, even his intimates, as the crisis in the country's welfare developed. The demands of the Spanish war and the enormous responsibilities that followed it called out his innate abilities and seemed to expand them in a marvelous way."

Roosevelt's Sentiments.

Former President Roosevelt said:

"Most cordially I wish to reaffirm what I said at a banquet in Canton, O., on Jan. 27, 1903, which was held in honor of the birthday of the late president: 'It was given to President McKinley to take the foremost place in our political life at a time when our country was brought face to face with problems more momentous than any whose solution we have ever attempted, save only in the Revolution and in the civil war; and it was under his leadership that the nation solved these mighty problems all right. Therefore he shall stand in the eyes of history not merely as the first man of his generation, but as among the greatest figures in our national life, coming second only to the men of the two great crises in which the Union was founded and preserved.'"

President Wilson said:

"I am sure I am expressing only the feeling of the whole country when I say that such a memorial as is being erected to him by your association expresses the deep admiration and affectionate esteem not only of the people of Ohio, but of the whole nation for a president who did his duty with conscientious solicitude and who lost his life in its performance."

TAPS ARE SOUNDED FOR JOHN WAGNER

Civil War Veteran Buried With Honors in Soldiers' Plot at Hillside.

The funeral of John Wagner, the well-known Civil War veteran, who died at the Soldiers' Home, in Kearny, yesterday, took place at 2 o'clock this afternoon, at Hillside cemetery, the burial being in the soldiers' plot. Members of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., met at 1 o'clock, and upon arrival of the body here escorted it to the cemetery, where the veterans conducted a ritualistic service. Captain William Hand, to whom the story was told, relates the following, concerning Mr. Wagner:

"Mr. Wagner belonged to a Pennsylvania battery, but at the battle of Gettysburg, July 1, 2 and 3, 1863, he was detailed as orderly to the general commanding the brigade to which the battery belonged. While the guns were firing westward at the advancing Rebels, under Pickett, the general, from an elevated position, through his field glass discovered groups of Rebels rununing from the town and forming at the base of Cemetery Hill, north of the battery.

"They proved to be the famous Louisiana Tigers, 1,700 strong. Their business was to try and capture the battery. The general immediately sent Mr. Wagner to the battery with an order to change its direction, load with canister and be ready to sweep the hill when the Tigers appeared. He had about a half mile to go, and while on the way the horse was killed and the animal fell on him. He lost some time in extricating himself, but he ran the rest of the way, and arrived in time, so that when the Tigers appeared they were almost entirely destroyed. Only 300 escaped. They never failed before, but after that they were never heard of as th Tigers."

to purchase materials for the vocational training of the boys, for improvements at the local camp and for the hiring of a man competent by training and character to remain at the camp during certain months of the year when it was used by a majority of the Boy Scouts. Mr. Davis explained the purposes and ideals of the movement and gave a history of the local organization.

After the address of Dr. Beal members of local troops gave demonstrations of their skill in the various branches of scoutcraft, especially that pertaining to first aid, or Red Cross work, which was enjoyed by the audience.

ELECT FOUR NEW MEMBERS.

The Brightside Circle of the King's Daughters met yesterday afternoon at the home of the Misses Claypoole, on Mountain avenue, the borough, and after electing four new members, spent the afternoon in making useful articles for a needy widow and her children.

ACTIVITIES OF THE C. O. S. FOR DECEMBER

Trustees' Report Shows That There Were 168 Cases "Under Care" by Society.

The report of the board of trustees of the Charity Organization Society for December presents many interesting facts concerning this important work in Plainfield. It is as follows.

"That December was a busy month for the Charity Organization Society will be readily realized on reading the monthly report, which shows 168 cases 'under care.' What does 'under care' mean? An application is made for assistance, which is followed up by calls at the home of the applicant by the executive secretary, discriminating investigation, and a definite plan for relief and for permanent betterment worked out. In addition to those under care, four cases were investigated for out of town agencies, 14 for local agencies, and 36 cases where a letter or an interview only was necessary. There were 93 families of the 168 to whom material relief was given at a cost of $977.28. In 19 of these the male head of the family was dead, 29 incapacitated, in most cases permanently, owing to loss of arm or leg, or in many instances from tuberculosis, and 2 were non-supporting. In this last class figure the deserting husband and the man who would rather go to jail than work. There were 14 families where the male head was earning an income insufficient for the needs of his family, and four were out of work.

"At Christmas 145 dinners were given out; 36 with funds contributed for this purpose to the society, and the remaining number by individuals churches, circles and schools, to persons known and recommended by the society.

"While the general conditions in Plainfield are better this winter than last, the demands for help are constant, and cannot be denied. It is hoped by the board of trustees that the people of Plainfield will not forget this, and will continue their assistance which has been generous in the past, in order that the work of the society may not be retarded for the current year.

"The board of trustees has been able to make arrangements with the Orpheus Singers, of New York, a male chorus of sixteen voices, to give a concert on March 21. All those who attended the concert given by the Musergia chorus two years ago will remember that evening with pleasure, and the concert on March 21 promises to be of equal enjoyment and interest."

ANOTHER AMERICAN KILLED IN MEXICO

Consul Reports Villa Was Near the Scene of Wholesale Murder.

Washington, Jan. 13.—The State Department received confirmation today of the report of the murder of Bert Cramer by Mexican bandits on his ranch near Geirra, about 50 miles west of San Ysobel. There were about 30 Mexicans in the firing squad that took the Americans off the train in Chihuahua and murdered them. The State Department was informed today that troops have been sent in pursuit of the bandits from Juarez and Chihuahua.

Villa In Touch With Bandits.

Collector of Customs Cobb at El Paso wired the State Department that General Villa was recently seen near Chihuahua and close to the scene of the recent massacre of seventeen Americans. Mr. Cobb did not state who saw the rebel leader. Officials here took this news to indicate that Villa, himself, is in close touch with the operations of the bandits.

Want Armed Intervention.

Another stormy debate on the Mexican question took place in the Senate today, when Senator Lewis, of Illinois, introduced a resolution authorizing President Wilson to employ the full strength of the army and navy in Mexico to restore order. The authority extended would be similar to that given in the cases of Vera Cruz, Haiti and Nicaragua. The resolution was laid on the table, Senator Lewis announcing he would discuss it at length later.

Gen. Huerta Is Dying.

El Paso, Texas, Jan. 13.—General Huerta, former dictator of Mexico, was reported this morning to be sinking rapidly. At 5:30 o'clock the attending physicians announced that General Huerta had sunk into a state of coma and that they believed death was a matter of only a few hours.

MRS. ALDRICH'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Aldrich was held this afternoon at the home of former Mayor Charles Place, 62 Grove street, and was attended by a large gathering of friends. Rev. Frank Fletcher conducted the service. Interment will take place tomorrow morning in Vinegrove Cemetery, Manchester, N. H.

The housewife is the "official buyer" for the home—in almost all families. She is, consequently, the official "ad reader" for the home.

Don't you think, judging by the interesting store advertisements printed today, that a visit to some of the stores just now might be interesting as well as profitable to you?

The spot-light of full publicity, turned on a store, reveals and places in that full light a store's defects—if it have defects. For example: If high prices prevail, or lines of goods are not kept up to date, the reader of the store advertisements knows it. It follows that advertising "pays" the store that renders real service—and would not pay the other kind of a store.

Britain's Experience to Teach the World if Volunteer System Is Adequate in Case of War.

Colonel Roosevelt Favors Compulsory Service in This Country, but Secretary Garrison Is Dubious.

WITH England badly split over the question of conscription and the leading men of America discussing the best means of raising an army in case of war the question of compulsory military service is arousing keen interest all over the world.

England has demonstrated that the volunteer system in vogue in that country for so many years has been a failure in the present case. Every possible effort to avoid the drafting of men for service in the army was made before the question came before the cabinet in a formal resolution. Lord Derby, one of the most able men in the empire, asked that his plan be given a trial, which covered several months. It was well known that unless the results of the Derby campaign were satisfactory conscription would be the next step. For the period between Oct. 23 and Dec. 15 1,150,000 unmarried men and 1,679,263 married men presented themselves for service. Of the grand total of 2,829,263 married and single men 103,000 unmarried and 112,431 married men enlisted immediately.

Eight hundred and forty thousand single men and 1,344,979 married men were attested for future service.

Of the single men 207,000 were rejected, while 221,853 married men were not accepted by the recruiting officers.

2,182,178 Did Not Respond.

The Earl of Derby's report shows that the total men of military age in LORD DERBY.

England, Scotland and Wales who were not enlisted when the canvass began were: Single men, 2,179,231, and married men, 2,832,210, a total of 5,011,441.

The total of attested, enlisted and rejected men having been 2,829,263 and the available men aggregating 5,011,441, shows that there are 2,182,178 men who did not offer their services.

Of the single men who failed to enroll 378,071 are exempted from military service because they hold "preferred" positions in government service or in other duties, making it inadvisable that they join the army. This leaves 651,000 single men available.

These figures were disappointing and Premier Asquith introduced a resolution calling for limited conscription. Ireland was not to be included. The various labor organizations of England set up a mighty protest and brought the question of compulsory service vividly before the public eye.

Through the operation of the bill the army will get first the 527,933 single men who volunteered under the Derby plan, the 651,100 single men who declined to volunteer and finally the 895,[illegible] married men who offered their services under the voluntary enlistment scheme. This makes a total of 2,071,264 men who will be called to the colors. The measure will become operative fourteen days after the royal assent is given.

Roosevelt's Views on America.

While England is thus struggling with her internal questions and the United States government on the verge of making tremendous improvements in her standing army former President Roosevelt came to the front by agitating a plan for compulsory service in this country. He said:

"Suffrage means the obligation to defend one's country. If we can get Vincent Astor and a man from Mulberry street—or one from Roosevelt street, for that is the worst street in New York—in a dog tent together in training it will be good for both of them. Military training means greater cohesion, and each of the men would learn something from the other and be the better for it."

Colonel Roosevelt next pointed out the fallacy of depending upon volunteers for the defense of the country. He was represented as saying:

"In England they say, 'Be a sport and join the army.' You'd laugh at such a pronunciamento as 'Be a sport and pay your taxes.' A man simply must pay his taxes, and that's all there is to it.

"No volunteer soldier is worth anything until he is trained. I was in the national guard three years and was no better than anybody else, and if I had been in a fight I would not have made a better fight than any of the members of the national guard at Santiago.

No More Money For Militia.

"We can't have a real national guard except under federal control. It must be made what its name implies—a national and not a state force."

Colonel Roosevelt added, according to report, that the government should appropriate no more money for the national guard until it was brought under federal control.

Speaking next of the Continental army advocated by Secretary Garrison, Colonel Roosevelt, according to the reports, said:

"It is a fallacy, a makeshift and a useless rival of the national guard."

The colonel was then quoted as stressing the importance of the American Defense society's emphasizing "service opinion" in its policy and program. It was a pity, he was represented as saying, "to put a gag on experts of the army and navy who had received education qualifying them to give the public advice."

Concluding, Colonel Roosevelt spoke of the necessity for having "a unified America," saying that every one in this country should be a true American and should have left everything un-American behind him if he came from a foreign land.

Secretary Garrison's Plan.

The other day Secretary of War Garrison laid before the house military affairs committee the government's preparedness plans, providing for a great mobile army for the United States to reach a total of 1,000,000 men in six years.

"The plans also provide for the gathering together of huge stores of ammunition and army equipment and a well defined extension and elaboration of the existing coast defenses. The whole preparedness project will call for an increased expenditure of $600,000,000, with a successive war department budget of $200,000,000. Recent budgets have averaged $100,000,000.

"The integrity of the nation and its very existence," the secretary said, reading from a lengthy statement he had prepared, "may depend upon what is done in this matter at this time. This great opportunity will be lost unless a wise, sensible and practical policy is the result of the consideration and action of this congress."

Must Make Promises Good.

Referring to the far spread military responsibility of the nation, reaching into the insular possessions—the Philippines—Alaska and the Panama canal zone, Mr. Garrison added:

"We have determined and announced that the sovereignty of the other republics on this hemisphere shall remain inviolable and must therefore at all times stand ready to make good our position in this connection.

"It will of necessity be conceded by any one who admits that military force is requisite at all that our present military force is totally inadequate to meet our responsibilities.

"The chaos, which a crisis always produces where preparations in advance have not been made, makes it certain that several months of necessity would intervene after the outbreak of war before any considerable number of volunteers would be ready to take their training, and months of training must then ensue before they could be ready to be sent into battle."

A similar delay would meet the effort to assemble arms, equipment and ammunition, Mr. Garrison said, and he insisted that if it accomplished nothing more the plan now proposed would obviate much of this loss of time.

"There is a disposition upon the part of some," he continued, "to assume that we are facing a crisis. The only way to meet any emergency is by adopting emergency measures. The personnel and material needed for military purposes should be immediately mobilized. Every nerve should be strained and every resource drawn upon and nothing overlooked necessary to preserve and defend us, regardless of cost and other considerations.

Calls For Permanent Policy.

"In my view the occasion calls for the adoption of a wise, sensible, adequate military policy on permanent lines and for definite ends.

"There is common agreement among those who have studied the subject intelligently that we should have a force in the continental United States of 500,000 men subject to instant call."

Turning to the national guard, Mr. Garrison said:

"At the present time this force consists of approximately 129,000 men and officers, and it would therefore be necessary if it is to be expanded to 400,000 to add 271,000 men and officers."

Because of constitutional obstacles Mr. Garrison doubts the power of congress to enforce recruiting in the militia in the several states.

"Assuming that congress has the power," the secretary continued, "I do not see how it could make it effective. In any event there would have to be not only acts of congress, but likewise contemporaneous legislation in the forty-eight states, to make effective such acts of congress. It seems to me that a mere statement of this situation indicates how utterly futile it is to attempt this solution."

Declaring that there must be unity of responsibility and authority and control in any successful military system Mr. Garrison made it plain to the committee that he favors a complete federalization of the militia if that force is to be an effective arm of the national defense. The secretary said that in the past states have prevented their troops from responding to the call of the national government; they have even ordered their disbandment to thwart the federal government.

Finally, however, the secretary declared, "if congress prefers the method of direct federal pay it is not a matter in which I have any individual judgment upon which I care to insist."

SECRETARY GARRISON.

Swiss System Unadaptable.

Dismissing the so called Swiss and Australian systems of national military service as not adapted for this country in the absence of national control of the public school system, Mr. Garrison said main reliance must be placed upon a standing army, augmented by a Continental army reserve of civilian volunteers, and finally of the national militia. Mr. Garrison then detailed to the committee his plans for the organization of these several units which already have been made public.

"A small, highly trained, highly effective regular army, expansible in character; federal volunteers, raised officered and trained in time of peace and the national guard for state uses is the best solution," the secretary said in conclusion.

Of course the German system of recruiting men for the army is well known. Every citizen of that country must serve in the regular army for a term of years and in case of war is absolutely under the orders of his government. The same is true in France and all men of military age in those two countries are now in the service of their countries. China also started the year 1916 by ordering compulsory military service. It will first be put into effect in Chili province, in which Peking is located, and Shantung province, which adjoins Chili province.

KEEP OYSTERS BY FREEZING.

Experiments Show Fish Alive After Six Weeks.

Preserving shell oysters in cold storage has been successfully tried by Captain Frederick Ockers of West Sayville, N. J.

"I am convinced that frozen oysters will live for a great length of time," he says. "They will practically be in a state of suspended animation and can be kept until wanted. Then they may be gradually thawed back to life."

Captain Ockers' idea is that during suspended animation their condition will be similar to that of the frog frozen in a cake of ice. Captain Ockers believes that oysters can be put into the freezer in April or any other time when they are in prime condition and held for a favorable market. He has made successful experiments up to six weeks and believes that if an oyster can be frozen for six weeks and still live the process may be extended indefinitely.

LOCAL MERCHANT'S SON DIES IN RUSH

William Lifson Killed in Bowl Fight at University of Penn.

William Lifson, seventeen-year-old son of Arthur Lifson, of Elizabeth, a furniture dealer, with a store in this city, was killed in the annual "bowl fight" between the freshmen and sophomore classes of the University of Pennsylvania yesterday.

Seven hundred young men took part in the rush, and it was not until the contest was over that Lifson's body was found underneath the pile of struggling humanity. Lifson's brother, Edward, watched the fight from the side-lines, and did not know of the tragedy until after the fight was over.

Twenty other students were injured in the fight. The university is considering abolishing the annual rush, which has been held annually for many years.

HERE TO COLLECT WAR TAX DUE U. S.

Local Merchants Must Pay Special Levy of the Government.

James P. McNamara, deputy collector for this district, is in Plainfield today collecting war taxes. He is at the Waldorf, on Front street, and local merchants must call there to make a settlement for the next six months. If they fail to pay today they must go to Elizabeth or some other city in the district to settle with the government for the special tax imposed in October, 1914. The tax must be paid before the close of the present month. It is imposed on theatres, bowling alleys, billiard tables, basketball courts, and other places of amusement, also on commission merchants and all dealers in liquors and tobacco.

ARE WE SELFISH?

In an address at the Plainfield High School last night Dr. Howard W. Beal, who is engaged in Red Cross work in England, declared that Americans, as a people, were wasteful, pleasure-seeking and selfish. Dr. Beal has been in England just long enough to get the English point of view and he has permitted the horrors of war to warp his judgment of his own people, if he is an American citizen. We are wasteful, it is true, and we are a pleasure loving people, but we are not selfish. Who has given more to the relief of the unfortunates of Belgium, Poland, Galicia, Serbia and even to France and England than the American people. England, he will say, and France. Of course. They are directly interested. They are partially responsible for all of the European horror and should be the first and the last to give aid to all its suffering. This American who has become English forgets that Americans are maintaining a Red Cross hospital in England. He says only one, and we accept his statement. How many did England maintain here during the Civil War? It is true that the American people do not realize the horrors of the struggle now raging in Europe. This is evidenced by the lack of preparedness in this country, but Dr. Beal, like others who have visited England, has adopted the English point of view, which is that the United States should plunge into the conflict on the side of the Allies, and he calls us selfish because we refuse to share her sorrow. America is helping England and every other country, and is doing a bigger and better work than has ever been done before, and it is scant appreciation for an Englishman or an English sympathizer to ridicule this country. Dr. Beal was right in lauding Boy Scout work across the ocean and urging the advancement of Boy Scout work in America. The Boy Scout movement means better men, better citizen, but it does not mean war, because preparedness stands for peace and the slogan of the Boy Scout movement is "Be Prepared!"

GERMAN SUCCESS.

War is destruction. It has but one purpose—to conquer, to ruin, to kill. Then those who destroy the greatest number of beautiful and valuable things must win, and if this is true the German army is already successful. Even though it is years before the final bullet is fired, how can the warriors of England, France or even Russia hope to equal the accomplishments of Teutons in Belgium and Sebia? And as if they were not enough the Austro-German armies are entering poor little Montenegro to destroy its buildings, its homes, its business houses and its churches, and to kill its soldiers and starve its people. We who know not war shudder when we are brought face to face with death, even though it comes but to a friend. Two nations have been murdered before our eyes and a third is weakly trying to ward off the assassin for a few more days, and yet we laugh when a dreamer from our midst dares do his best to stop the mad slaughter. He was foolish, it is true, but it must be good to dream dreams like that.

Nero fiddling as Rome burned has been held up to the world for centuries as the personification as bestial cruelty. It is to his credit that he fiddled instead of using the light from the fires of her churches to plan another and more horrible crime.

The Kaiser is said to be sick to the point of death. No wonder. A million widows and orphans, with hunger-drawn faces, emaciated forms and eyes that haunt, march past him in endless stream, hundreds of thousands of souls whisper "murderer" in his ears. He alone is not to blame, but his part in it is enough. May God have mercy on his soul.

SLIGHTING UNION.

An intelligent perusal of the committee appointments of Speaker Pilgrim of the lower house of the General Assembly shows a studied attempt to slight representatives from Union county. This is a bad start for Mr. Pilgrim, although he is probably not to be censored for the act so much as for weakly sitting by while others made up his committee lists. The reason for this is obvious. Union county Assemblymen, headed by Judge Runyon, are too big to wear an Essex county yoke, and the Dalrymple leaders seek to humiliate them by lack of recognition in committee work. Most everyone understands the act and its motive, and Union county is more proud of her representatives than ever, as Essex should be more ashamed of hers.

ALL BUT WILSON.

Certain Pan-Germans have shown the tendency to rewrite American history much as they have rewritten European history, says the World's Work. Just as certain Germans have "discovered" that Michael Angelo and Titian were not Italians but Germans, and that Shakespeare "improves" by being translated into German, so other Pan-Germans on this side have discovered that Abraham Lincoln was a German—his real name, they say, was Linkhorn—and that Germans really started the anti-slavery movement. Not Garrison, according to these German writers, but Karl Follen—a name probably unfamiliar to most Americans—was the original abolitionist.

And now they are claiming that T. R. is a hyphenated citizen.

Members of the Common Council and Mayor Calkins have already begun preliminary work on the new City Hall. They are evidently determined to get the boys off Front street before next Christmas, and in this they have the good wishes of every citizen of the municipality.

Austria denies that she sank the Persia. This is evidence that the attitude of the United States has had a moral effect, at least, for she formerly boasted of such deeds.

Keep barking, barking,

Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Home Remedies For Sick Headache

MIGRAINE or sick headache, which is much more common in women than in men and usually begins at puberty and continues until middle life, is probably a hereditary toxemic neurosis—or, in more humane language, a nervous disease inherited from one or the other parent, characterized by periodic seizures, like epilepsy, which are produced by some poison retained in the blood, by fatigue, by excesses, or by mental excitement.

But causes aside, what should be done for migraine?

Since attacks recur with more or less frequency it is obvious that the patient must beware of drug habits. Practically all of the popular migraine or headache tablets contain, as the pain-killer, either acetanilide, phenacetin or an analogous coal-tar derivative, which, while it certainly knocks out any kind of neuralgic pain, also knocks out the heart and breaks down red-blood corpuscles. The acetanilide habit is more destructive than the morphine habit. It sends many a victim direct to the insane hospital. And this notwithstanding the fact that the tablets are "Guaranteed Under the Pure Food and Drugs Act," or "perfectly harmless."

Persons overweight who have attacks of sick headache ought to join the Bread and Milk Club—no dues, but members struggle along somehow on a plain fare of bread and milk or crackers and milk one day in each week, to give the stomach a rest and sort of catch up with their toxins.

A diet containing little or no meat, but plenty of bread and butter, vegetables, fruit and sweets, has done much good for migraine. If there is a tendency to constipation in spite of such a diet, then either a mineral water laxative or any of the undoctored saline laxatives, like Epsom salts, or phosphate of soda, or Seidlitz powders, may be taken every few days, to favor the elimination of toxic matter.

Rest in bed, bathing the head with cologne water containing a few grains of menthol, or rubbing it gently for ten minutes with coryfin (a menthol derivative), and a topid pack will give relief. Instead of resorting to the pain-killers, it sometimes suffices to take a little strong tea or coffee, hot, unsweetened, without milk, in sips; or in lieu of that the stimulating principle of coffee, caffeine, may be taken, a grain or two, with or without ten grains of sodium bromide in solution.

Certain cases of migraine respond well to prolonged and frequent use of our most hated domestic remedy, castor oil. About an ounce a day as a regular ration is advised by those who believe in it.

The cause for some periodic headaches is found in the nose.

Albumin Not From Food

When albumin is found in the urine, must meat, eggs, white bread and salt be omitted from one's diet? Please give me a diet.

Answer—Not without particular directions from the doctor. Albumin in the urine doesn't signify any special kidney disease in itself. A diet cannot be determined upon such meager information. The albumin does not necessarily come from albuminous foods. There should be a microscopical examination also, and a blood pressure and heart examination.

VERMONT

VERMONT is one of our most popular pocket edition states. It is one-half of a philopena—New Hampshire being the other—and is slightly smaller than Nye county, Nevada, though considerably more prominent, socially.

Vermont has the best foundation of any state. It is solid marble and the humble Vermont farmer could go out back of his barn and blast the ingredients for a royal palace out of his cow lot if he had time. Agriculture in Vermont is conducted with dynamite, pickaxes and channeling machines, and the farmer has to treat his farm as if it were a parlor carpet in order to keep from wearing all the soil off of its beautiful stone subsurface. Vermont has some of the thinnest skinned farms in the world and some of the thickest skinned politicians.

The population of Vermont is about 36,000 people, most of whom were born there. The state is not annoyed by immigration. On the other hand, almost every day the population of some Vermont town goes down to the train to bid good-bye to some citizen who is going West to buy a farm large enough to balance a calf on without sacrificing the potato patch. Vermont has supplied the ancestors for hundreds of thousands of Western people, and is regarded with great affection everywhere west of New York. Tombstones and ancestors are in fact its greatest exports. The soil of Vermont when properly cut and polished makes beautiful tombstones, and the Vermont boy if caught young enough and transported to some western state becomes a Congressman with scarcely any effort.

Vermont is located on about twenty-four branch line railroads and Lake Champlain and has a skyline composed of the Green Mountains which beats New York City's famous hand-made skyline all hollow. Lake Memphremagog, its largest body of water, was discovered and named by three strong men many hundreds of years ago. The capital of the state is Montpelier, a small town cleverly concealed on a branch of the Boston & Maine. Vermont has a full-sized legislature composed of two separate houses, and when it is in session the women of the state have to help out in the chores.

Vermont has had a glorious history and has insurged three times—once against the Indians, one against the British and once against Massachusetts, which attempted to swallow it. The state has been very meek and mild during the present century, however, and has not as yet claimed the privilege of electing its own senators.

Views Of The Press

The Almoner Of The Nations

THIS YOUNG REPUBLIC has risen to a place of unique distinction among the nations of the earth—a distinction without precedent or parallel in the annals of history.

It is a far cry back to the day when the bold Italian explorer first looked upon this new continent, but from that time till there was established here that new republic which was a radical departure from all known forms of government, and was the first great experiment in government of the people, by the people and for the people, seed were being sown from which there was destined to be reaped a harvest of blessings for humanity.

It is but to restate accepted history to say that the declaration of American independence was received with ridicule and pessimistic predictions of the speedy collapse of the proposed republic by all the monarchical nations of the world, and it required seven years of heroic battle, and the direst privation and suffering, to make good the declaration that the people of America had the right and ought to be free and independent. Even after independence had been achieved, the government established was looked upon with ill-disguised contempt by all the nations beyond the seas. And 132 years has not been long enough time to convince the believers in the divine right to rule that a government based on the consent of the governed can endure.

It has endured, and not only endured, but, holding to the basic principle that all just government derives its power from the consent of the governed and that the people are the repository of all power, has risen to a commanding position of unchallenged pre-eminence among the nations of the earth. The capacity of the people for self-government has been demonstrated for a century and a third.

The man obsessed with the idea that power flows downward to the people from those having an inherited right to rule may be unwilling to concede that the position and power of this nation is the logical outcome of popular government, but the fact remains that here peace prevails and the despised republic has become the almoner of the nations.

The stone which the builder rejected has become the headstone of the corner. The star of the once despised young republic casts athwart the seas its rays of comfort and hope for the war-cursed nations whose fields are reddened with human blood and whose people sup with poverty and sit by desolate hearthstones, while the wail of bruised hearts rises above the din of human habitations.

A Big Man

Senator Thomas of Colorado, is a person who has never been needlessly hampered by too strict adherence to convention. He does things in his own way. For instance, he wears a neat, gray wig in the winter time, but lays it off with the coming of the first spring days, along with his high shoes and winter underwear. When he came to the Senate he made a long speech, almost as soon as he had been assigned to a seat—regardless of custom to the contrary. Always he goes ahead by whatever route occurs to him. Others can go some other way if they wish to. It was the same way when he was a criminal lawyer, out in Colorado years ago.

Thomas was one of the most resourceful criminal lawyers in the West. If he couldn't get a fellow out of jail by alibi, habeas corpus, or some other such conventional means, he would think up some other way. This made him a mighty desirable attorney for murderers and such people. Many a bright young murderer had his career spoiled and died suddenly from hanging, simply because he lacked the foresight to employ Thomas for his attorney.

In one case Thomas appeared for a man accused of murdering a prominent citizen, who had received a bullet wound under the shoulder blade. The question was whether the man had been murdered or committed suicide. Thomas took an optimistic view of the situation and advanced many theories to show the jury that it was a case of suicide.

But, the prosecuting attorney asked: "How could it have been suicide when it is physically impossible for a man to point a gun at such an angle against his own back? Men aren't built with long enough arms."

"Ah, shucks!" declared Thomas at that point, and he picked up the revolver, which comprised Exhibit A, and with his long right arm, pointed the barrel in the very manner the prosecutor had said couldn't be done.

That won the case for Thomas, and the murderer went his way rejoicing.

"But," suggested one of Thomas's friends after it was all over, "the murdered man had short arms and you have unusually long arms. I doubt if he could have pointed the gun the way you did."

"I doubt it myself," said Thomas.

Pepper Talks

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Obligations

Everyone of us has his Obligations. We have our Obligations first to what we have within us that may be of benefit to the world at large. Then we have Obligations of Citizenship, of Friendship, of Business, of Honor—of Responsibility for having been made a Human Being.

To be true to your highest Obligations is to make every man your Debtor.

You may think that to "let up" on some one of your high Obligations at times is not going to make much difference. But the keen eye of opportune Perfection, that ever watches over the progress of every individual, is sure to detect and record it against you, and your bigness and greatness is going to lose from that hour just that much—how much, no man may know.

For every Obligation that is slighted or abandoned, there appears an added Obligation that must be paid for at its own price.

Honor your Obligations and keep them. Be glad that you have Obligations off of which you may Grow. For no one is worth his Salt or his Dust that has not at some time or other placed worthily, some other person as highly Obligated to him. Every time you render a good Service, you fulfill an Obligation. Every time you do what you feel you ought to do, you wipe an Obligation from your list of happy Tasks.

Grow rich off of your Obligations by compelling them to increase your Usefulness and Happiness instead of adding to your life unhappy Burdens and nerve-wrenching Worries.

Current Poetry

The Lesson

When Tommy went to bed at night
he used to lark and play,
Instead of folding up his clothes and putting them away.
He'd leave his stockings on the stairs; he never cared at all
If jacket, shoes and waist and tie were scattered through the hall.
And after he was fast asleep there lay along the floor
A slovenly, untidy trail of everything he wore.
Of course his mother picked them up and laid them on a chair,
And when he woke at breakfast time he always found them there.

But just last week he had a dream—
a goblin all in white Stood leering at him through the gloom; a truly horrid sight.
And savagely the goblin said: "At last, I think, I've found
The very foolish little boy that throws his clothes around.
Now find those clothes, sir, right away; for we are going to go Down yonder by the frozen creek and frolic in the snow.
I'll give you just two minutes, just two minutes, sir, from now,
And if you are not dressed by then
I'll take you, anyhow."

Well, Tommy hunted breathlessly, but all that he could do
Within the time allowed to him was just to find one shoe.
And with one shoe and nothing else,
although he begged and cried,
He had to trudge through frozen drifts beside the goblin's side;
To slide across the glittering ice, while that malignant sprite
Stood pelting him with snowballs through that long and awful night.
He woke next morning shivering and when night came—poor kid—
He threw his clothes around the room the way he always did.

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

To make your white hydrangea blue instead of pink, pot it in a small zinc tub and put nails or old iron close to the roots.

Wash cut glass in warm water with a little pure alcohol added (one tablespoon alcohol to one quart of water).

Leaving the pan turned over the cake when it is taken from the oven keeps it moist by steaming and leaves no hard crust on top of the layers. Let the pan stay on until ready to frost the cake.

Polishing Silver—Never put a particle of soap about your silver. When it needs polishing take a piece of soft leather and whiting and rub hard. The proprietor of a large silver establishment said: "Housekeepers ruin their silver by washing it in soapsuds; it makes it look like pewter." Potato parings or boiled potatoes are good to clean silver.

RABBIT DINNER.

Celery Soup.
Pickles.
Rabbits, Baked or Fricasseed,
Baked Sweet Potatoes or Mashed White Potatoes.
Creamed Onions. Cranberry Sauce.
Lettuce Salad with Pimento and Cottage Cheese Balls.
Mince Pie with Apple Meringue.
Any Tart Cheese and Water Crackers.
Fruit. Coffee. Nuts.

Baked Rabbit—Clean rabbits well, cut up each in five or six pieces, season with salt and pepper, stick a few pieces of bacon through flesh, add dots of butter and add a little water after rabbits are in roasting pan. When brown add sweet cream or sour, pouring over the rabbits little by little, until done. When tender add a little cornstarch in gravy until thick enough.

Fricasseed Rabbit—Cut up and disjoint rabbits, put in stew pan, season with salt, cayenne pepper and chopped parsley. Add pint of warm water, stew over slow fire till quite tender, adding, when nearly done, some bits of butter rolled in flour. Before taking from fire add a gill of rich cream with grated nutmeg in it. This is a good old Nova Scotia recipe.

False Rabbits—For five in family, one pound ground beef and quarter pound pork, one egg; season with salt and pepper, one onion. Grate white bread, mix and put enough grated bread in loaf to keep loaf together. Stick about four pieces of bacon here and there. Take deep frying pan and brown on both sides, then add a little water, vinegar and sugar to taste. Stew until done. Make a rich gravy to go with this.

Cranberry Sauce—Clean one quart berries in hot water, add two quarts boiling water, to which add a heaping teaspoon baking soda; let come to a boil; drain, clean again in warm water; darin, then add water. Cut up two or three apples, add to berries, boil, put through colander, add two cups sugar, boil a few minutes. No bitter taste to this.

Mince Pie with Apple Meringue—Bake a mince pie in the usual manner, having the upper crust of flaky pastry and rolled rather thin. Shortly before serving spread over the pie an apple meringue and set the pie into a moderate oven to cook the meringue. Brown the meringue a delicate color.

Apple Meringue—Peel and grate one tart apple, adding to the pulp a tablespoon of lemon juice and a cup of sugar. Beat whites of two eggs dry, then gradually beat in the sugar and apple and use as indicated above.

FOR LUNCHEONS

Fig Sandwiches—Six ounces chopped figs, half wineglass water, one tablespoon sherry wine, some stiffly whipped cream, some candied violets and angelica. Stew the figs slowly till water is absorbed, then add the wine, allow to cool and spread on some lady fingers. Decorate the top with the whipped cream, the violets and small piece of angelica.

Parisian Chicken Sandwiches — Breast of one chicken, six tablespoons powdered gelatine, three tablespoons water, salt and red pepper. Chop the chicken fine and pound to a paste. Add salt and pepper. Dissolve the gelatine in water and add the cream. Add gradually the chicken. Set aside until cool. Then cut into squares and put away to harden. Slice very thin and place between thin slices of buttered bread.

Work for Parent-Teacher Associations

A number of surveys have recently been made in different cities throughout the country of why boys and girls drop out of school between the ages of twelve and sixteen. It has been found that while the cause is most often laid to economic pressure, the real cause is that the boys and girls do not like school; that they couldn't see that school work was leading into anything they could use to advantage in their own life; that they wanted to do something—to work, and that any further education was for the person who did not have to make his own living. The alarming falling away from school at this age has been the main factor which has aroused educators to the seriousness of the problem and to the necessity of finding the child's interests and making a vital connection between his activities in and out of school.

The work of this organization is to make public sentiment on these questions. This is a holy purpose which is worth the best effort of each of us. It is worth while because it means finding the individual capacities of the child. School work has been largely mechanical, a factory turning out a uniform product with the power of initiative almost if not entirely destroyed. The tendency in our best schools today is to put the stamp of approval upon the inventive, ingenious, original work of children. Activities based upon the child's interest make for freedom. It is an easy thing to work under guidance, where someone else does your thinking for you. Large numbers can be trained by routine work to do a given work efficiently. Slaves are trained in this way. Autocratic and monarchical governments have their efficiency in the excellency of such training. But in a democratic country such as ours, too much attention cannot be given to unfolding the individual, his originality, his resourcefulness, his capacity for independent activity. Let us give our loving service to this end.

MEMPHIS SOCIETY WEDDING.

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 13.—Mrs. Evelyn Peters Estes, a prominent clubwoman of this city, will become the bride of Charles N. Burch, chief counsel of the Illinois Central R. R., today. Both are well known here and in Louisville, and many prominent guests will attend.

COLLECTORS MUST COLLECT.

Boston, Jan. 19.—Three Massachusetts towns, Milton, Deerfield and Hardwick, have brought suits against their tax collectors for the amounts assessed which they failed to collect. Some of the unpaid taxes are for the years 1910 and 1911.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Cincinnati—The interesting will contest before the British courts to decide the fortunes of American women claimants to the estate of the late Thomas A. Snider, wealthy preserve manufacturer, of this city and New York, has had an interesting ending. Mrs. Mabel Snider Carleton, of New York, niece of Snider, has been given until next week to decide whether she will accept a bequest of $20,000 or claim an interest in the estate. A Cincinnati woman, Miss Ethel E. Staunton, will receive about $100,000 from the estate, for the Privy Council of Great Britain, sitting at London, has reversed the finding of the lower courts of Canada, and allowed her claims as the rightful heiress. Miss Saunton is the daughter of Snider's fourth wife, who was killed with Snider on her honeymoon. The evidence of the rescuers was presented to show that her mother lived after Snider had died, and the court has therefore ruled that the fortune settled by Snider on his wife reverts to the daughter, and that she is the legatee of his estate.

Boston—To celebrate the foundation of the Young Women's Christian Association in Boston, the present members of the association here plan to present a big pageant on its fiftieth anniversary, which occurs next month. The pageant will depict the development of the association all over the country and throughout the world, since its small beginning here a half century ago. College girls will join in the pageant, and 400 young women will take part.

London—Lady Haig, wife of General Sir Douglas Haig, who has taken over the command of the British forces in France, is credited with having exerted great influence toward her husband's advancement in the army. She was the Hon. Maud Vivian, one of the "Vivian twins," who were famous as maids of honor to Queen Victoria and Queen Alexandra. Lady Haig and Sir Douglas have not taken any particular pains to assume any leadership in London society since their marriage. They have two children, daughters, named after the two queens whom Lady Haig has served.

Washington—Mrs. Nicholas Longworth has had a royal welcome back to the Capital, where she had many triumphs in her girlhood days, when her father was in the White House. She is entertaining with her old popularity, and there is a liveliness about her affairs that is attractive and exhilarating. She still adheres to her favorite blue, known as "Alice blue," and is radiant and dashing as usual.

Chicago—The "high cost of voting" in Chicago has been materially increased since the women were given the franchise. In the estimates made up for the year 1915 the election commissioners predict it will cost the city just $791,929 to permit feminine voters to express their preferences. There are at present on the registration books 284,533 names of qualified woman voters.

New York—Mrs. Leo M. Frank, widow of the famous Georgia mob victim, is still searching for the men responsible for her husband's murder. Although the public interest in the affair has died down, Mrs. Frank is determined to uncover the mob leaders, and she is doing her own detective work. During a visit north for rest during the holidays, she is reported to have said that there were only four men in the mob who, at the last, demanded that Frank be killed.

Philadelphia—The women of Pennsylvania will be addressed today by Major General Leonard Wood on the need of organizing the women of the nation for preparedness. So that they may render effective service in case of war or other national calamity, the Philadelphia women, under the leadership of Mrs. George W. Childs Drexel, are organizing the State. Already thousands have joined, and separate units will be formed in each city and town in the State. These women volunteer to serve, and will immediately begin taking instruction in the work they will do when fire, earthquake, explosion, war or any other local or widespread disaster shall make such work needed. The women are offering the services of their motor cars and their homes, in case of need, and some of the less wealthy are willing to "do their bit" by making bandages.

Washington—A new form of shopping guide for women that will enable them to select the things that are made in America is being prepared in Washington by prominent women. This new book takes much time to write, but it is expected to be published before the next Christmas season. The purpose of the book is to eliminate the idea that foreign goods are best. Miss Elizabeth Ellicott Poe, whose headquarters are in Washington, is enthusiastic over the venture and she is leading in the movement to make American women realize that their home products are superior to foreign goods.

Minneapolis—One of the most interesting events in musical circles in this city was the return to the scene of her girlhood efforts of Olive Fremstad, who sang last week with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra. In her girlhood days here, when her great voice was yet undiscovered, she played a violin in a little mission orchestra. Her struggles for a musical education make a romantic story. The young woman was encouraged by friends back in 1886 to cultivate her voice. Then they aided her to go to New York to study. From that time her rise was rapid, and Minneapolis gave her a rousing reception last week.

Washington—Leading women from many States are gathered for the meeting of the National Council of Women, which opened here yesterday. The council includes in its membership practically every organization in the United States devoted to the advancement of the interests of women and the public welfare in general. From its first meeting in 1888, called by Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Susan B. Anthony, Rachel G. Foster, Anna Wright Sewall and other prominent women of that time, the council has increased in scope and influence until it has devoloped the International Council of Women, with members in all parts of the world. Lady Aberdenn, who is president of the International Council, presided at the opening session yesterday. The officers of the National Council include Mrs. Kate Waller Barrett, of Alexandria, Va.; Emma E. Bower, of Port Huron, Mich.; Miss Sadie American of New York; Mrs. Dexter Rumsey of Buffalo; Mrs. Flo Jamison Miller of Monticello, Ill.; Mrs. Josie Nelson of Union City, Ind., and Mrs. Amasa M. Eaton, of Providence, R. I.

Chicago—Miss Ida May Swift, known as one of the prettiest girls of the Middle West, will be married on Saturday to Count James Minotto, of New York, the son of Count and Countess Minotto, of Venice. Miss Swift is a striking beauty, and stands nearly six feet in height. Her blue eyes and raven black hair have attracted the eye of artists, and her head and shoulders were reproduced by a noted sculptor. The love affair between the Count and Miss Swift was a surprise in Chicago. They had met only a few weeks before their engagement was announced. It had been rumored that Miss Swift would wed a prominent Chicagoan. The Count will take his bride to South America, where he will be financial representative of a New York trust company. The Count came to America to study banking, and is quite taken up with American ways. The ceremony will take place at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis F. Swift.

"All a Lot of Brags," Cried the Brazil Nut.

Daddy's Bedtime Story— What Happened To the Proud Quarrelsome Nuts.

"ONCE upon a time some nuts lived all together in a glass bowl," daddy began as soon as the two children snuggled down beside him, "but they did not live happily, because each nut was sure he came of a nobler family than the others and was rude enough to talk about his breeding all the while, till the other inhabitants of the bowl hated him.

"'There is still dirt on your shell. Please don't soil mine!' said the almond to the peanut, giving him a good jab with her sharp elbow. 'If I did grow in the ground, children like me best of all!' the poddy peanut assured her, crowding her back into her corner. 'You grew in the ground, while my parent tree grows on the shore of the beautiful Blue Mediterranean. There is never a smart dinner given that they don't serve me in a cut glass dish!' The almond scornfully turned her back on the peanut.

"'You both bore me to death!' cried the walnut. 'As a matter of fact, you are both very common, but I—now, I come of one of the very oldest families. One branch of us lives in the United States, while another comes from England, and we originally hailed from ancient Persia.'

"'Talk about being common when you spring from three corners of the earth!' the almond sniggered. And she scornfully turned her back on the walnut. 'My wood is used to make beautiful furniture,' proudly the walnut went on, although the peanut was already arguing with the Brazil nut about the advantages of coming from the soil, and no one paid any attention to him. 'My oil is also valuable, and personally I like the cut of my shell better than any here.' And he admired himself vainly in the mirror that hung over the sideboard where the glass bowl sat. 'Listen to the clod!' murmured the almond, still closing her eyes in disgust. 'You're all a lot of brags!' cried the Brazil nut, waddling across the bowl. 'You all come from very humble beginnings, but people had to send way to Brazil for me. You, walnut, may be used for furniture, but the whole world has to depend upon my bark for color and my wood for oils.' 'Will you stop rubbing your rough coat against my cheek!' yelled the peanut, who hadn't stayed snubbed where the almond left him. 'Uh! How I hate a bore!' 'I'm not a bore!' snapped the Brazil nut. 'You are so!' shouted the peanut. 'You're both rude,' the walnut broke in. Just then the door opened and a little boy and his sister, hungry as two bears, grabbed the nut bowl. Crunch, crunch went the nut cracker, and soon nothing remained of the quarrelsome, proud nuts but a pile of shucks. 'Which is the nicest?' asked the little boy. 'They are all good,' said his sister."

Married Life on $80 a Month

BY MRS. DUA LEONARD

Molly Sutner Tells Some Rather Good News to Mr. Crane.

The Tyler trial had attracted a great deal of attention and the court room was full when the Fairport contingent entered. They were seated up in front. Molly was evidently looking for someone; she kept turning her head. Finally she settled down to watch. John turned and saw young Crane listlessly watching the proceedings. Just then Julia Osgood was called to the witness stand. All apathy vanished. Crane looked at her without moving his eyes all the while she was giving her testimony. When she left the witness stand he relapsed into his former apathy.

"John, I want you to get this note to Mr. Crane. You will want to speak to him anyway. Wait till he reads it and bring me an answer," whispered Molly.

"So you have decided to do it," he replied. "I am afraid you will make matters worse."

"How can I?" she asked. "That was the one thing that decided me to go on with the scheme. Things cannot be made any worse, and there is a chance of making them better. They never see each other as it is. They will always be perfect strangers as things are going now."

During the next intermission of court John went over to speak to Crane. After they had chatted a few minutes together, John said:

"My wife wants to speak with you; can you spare her a little time?"

"I should be delighted," murmured Crane, wondering what on earth she could want.

When Julia saw both John and Molly headed for Mr. Crane at the noon recess she started off alone for the hotel. She was glad they went over to speak to him; it was the natural thing to do.

Molly felt her heart pounding and wondered if he could not hear it beat. With a great effort she finally said:

"Mr. Crane, I wish we could have a little talk. I have something to tell you."

John came to her aid. "I'll walk up and down here a few turns while you have your confab." And he walked away.

"As you know," began Molly, "I am quite intimate with Miss Osgood. She has told me quite a little about your—misunderstanding," fumbled Molly.

"I do not understand," said Crane coldly.

"Look here, I cannot stand this; I have an idea that if you could know what she really thinks it would make a difference. It makes me miserable to know that she is unhappy. I thought perhaps——"

"Does Miss Osgood know you are telling me this?" he asked, looking at her keenly.

"Oh, no! And she must never know that we have mentioned her name."

"Is this quite fair, telling things she would not want told?" he continued.

"I would not do it only I feel sure that you love her more than I do and will not misunderstand. She told me that she broke the engagement because she felt that you would be making too great a sacrifice if you married her; that you would regret a marriage that cost you so much."

"What is this?" asked Crane excitedly. "Do you mean that she cares for me still?"

"Yes. I wanted you to know. She thinks she has done the best thing for your happiness and can bear all the pain herself. As if your happiness could be separated when you love each other.

"I must go now. My husband is waiting for me." Molly turned and left him rooted to the spot.

BARRINGER FINDS TARTAR IN P. H. S.

Nine Red and Blue Warriors Get in Melee Against Newark Five.

PLAY BEST OF THE YEAR

Ninth Streeters Show More Than They Have Any Previous Games and Their Stock for City Title Gets a Boost.

Plainfield High School's basketball boys showed yesterday afternoon that they are ready to give N. P. H. S. a battle in the city championship game Saturday afternoon by taking Barringer High School into camp in a fast and exciting fracas. The score was 26 to 19. The Red and Blue basketeers showed their fastest game of the year and did better in shooting than in their former contests.

Werner did yeoman service for the Newarkers, but his point tally was not enough to down the locals, despite good help from his teammates. He made a pretty shot from the middle of the court after Coudray and Dunham had chalked up six points between them, and kept piling in more until at the end of the first period, three counters separated the two scores. Both aggregations did fast work during the last few minutes of the half, and much teamwork cropped out.

After Coudray had increased the Red and Blue lead with two free shots and a basket, Coach Patch sent in the second string men, and with the two teams on a more even footing, the play was so fast for the remainder of the game that the ball seemed all over the court.

Coudray had his eye on the basket every minute, and at the blow of the whistle had more than half of the score hanging to his belt, while Werner led him by two points. McDowell showed up well for the few minutes he was in, as did Duncan, a Barringer relief man.

Arrangements are being made to hold two big games in Saengerbund Hall two weeks from tomorrow night. The Alumnae girls will play the Alumni boys, while the boys' varsity will meet the faculty for the first time in the history of the school.

JOE HARTER THIRD IN THE BUSHWICK NINE'S AVERAGES

Joe Harter batted .258 and fielded .970 in 32 games with the Bushwick nine last year, according to official averages just announced. The former Central New Jersey League star made 31 hits, and one less run, in 120 times to bat, poling out a trio of doubles and five triples. The speedy Harter was easily the star base runner of the club. He swiped 16 bases, the next highest man having 6 stolen bassocks to his credit. The team's batting average was .234, and its fielding mark, .964. Harter was third among the regulars in both batting and fielding. In the latter department, playing center field and second base, he made two errors out of 85 chances.

Boroughites Lead Until Near End of Game, When Home Players go in Van.

The Plainfield High School Sophomores, playing on their own court, took the North Plainfield High School Freshmen into camp yesterday afternoon after a fast and well played game. The score was 29 to 23. The P. H. S. second year men were outweighed, and when the first half ended with the Canadian five one point in the lead it looked as if it would be increased in the next period

The Sophomores drew first blood on a basket by O'Donnell, but several pretty shots by Force put the N. P. H. S. boys in the lead, and they kept ahead until the middle of the last period. Adeptness at making free shots count always made the Freshmen dangerous, every man on the team making at least one point from the foul line.

U. S. GOLF ASSOCIATION MAY BE REORGANIZED

Chicago, Jan. 13.—Delegates from many golf centers have already arrived in town for the opening session tomorrow of the annual meeting of the United States Golf Association. The future of the organization is in the balance, for an attempt will be made to give the allied clubs a voice in the control of the association, thus breaking the small ring which has controlled the sport in America. The association is now twenty-two years old, and the growth of the sport in all sections has been phenomenal. The original governing board system is still in force, but the radicals are out in force to bring about changes that will give the smaller clubs of all sections a voice in the association.

The nine courses which will be submitted to the delegates as candidates for the three national championships have already been announced. For the national amateur meet, the Merion Cricket Club, of Philadelphia, is conceded to be the best bet; but the Nassau Country Club and the Piping Rock Club are also candidates for this tournament.

There are two Western courses out for the national open and one Eastern club. The Minnekahhda Country Club, of Minneapolis, and the Country Club, of Detroit, are the Western rivals, and the Englewood Country Club, of New Jersey, is the third hopeful contestant for the big event.

The Women's championship is sure to go to New England, either to the New Haven Country Club, the Greenwich Country Club, or the Belmont Springs Club, at Waverly, Mass.

The amending of the constitution to give the allied clubs greater voice in golf matters will be the main issue at the annual meeting. Under the present classification there are two divisions—active clubs and allied clubs. It is proposed to give the allied clubs one vote each on all matters in which the active mambers have heretofore exercised absolute control. To offset this in some measure, the active club will be entitled to two votes each. There are nearly 300 allied clubs, while the double allowance to active clubs will not furnish a voting strength of over 200. If this particular amendment is carried, it will mean a revolutionary change in the character of the association; it is predicted that the policies which the old active members have used, urged and upheld as tending toward the betterment of the game, will continue as the guiding spirit.

Those who will lead the attack in favor of the amendments have drawn up series of arguments to show that their cause is right and must prevail. The opposition is expected to center in the older members of the association, who point with pride to the growth of the game under the present system.

Girls' Tenth Straight Victory is 47-4 Verdict Over N. B. H. S.

Another team, New Brunswick High School, was swamped in Saengerbund Hall, yesterday afternoon, by the girls' team of North Plainfield High School. The score was 47 to 4, the New Brunswick combination being held basketless, their total being four fouls.

The local girls played all around their opponents, who stood in awe watching the fast passing and shooting of the North Plainfielders.

The boroughites have not been interrupted in their march to victory, the contest yesterday marking the tenth consecutive triumph of the season. The playing of Theresa McCullough, whose services were missed in the P. H. S. game, was greatly in evidence, she being the main cog of the N. P. H. S. teamwork, while she also tallied two long field goals.

Captain Lillian Spencer, who was only in the game a short period, tallied four field goals, and three fouls. Marjorie Burtis could not be repelled, and shot continuously, rolling up fourteen field goals and three fouls.

A notable victory was recorded by the Plainfield Recreation Five in the Plainfield High School gymnasium last night, the St. Stephen's church team, of Elizabeth, being vanquished, 33 to 26.

The game was fast, the work of one of the visiting guards, Houston, being a feature. Houston, a former Armory player, dropped in six baskets, and held Harry Moulton to a single field goal.

Both sides put up strong defensive games. In the second half Allegar and Dallas, the Westfield duo, replaced Ricketts and Moulton, and Poole subbed for Naylor.

Local Private School Basketball Team Never Has a Look-in.

Leal's School's inexperienced basketeers drew the short end of a 37-8 score in a tussle with Springfield High School in the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. gymnasium yesterday afternoon. The victors were older, better and rougher than the private school representatives.

The homesters accounted for two field goals in each half, the Springfielders caging ten baskets in the first period and seven in the second. Clark, playing center for the winners, tossed in a quartet of double-deckers in each session.

TWO COLLEGE TEAMS PLAY HERE TONIGHT

Fordham College and Newark Normal Girls Appear at the Columbus Club.

The big basketball attraction in this city tonight will be in Columbus Hall, where the visiting teams will be from Fordham College and Newark Normal School. The New York college boys will play against the Columbus Club men, while the Newark girls will meet the Plainfield Five.

The first game tonight will be the boys' game, and will be started at 8:15 o'clock. The Columbians will have their regular line-up, composed of Bill Coyle, George Linke, Dan McAfee, Joe Carty and Al Brynjarski, but it is likely that Brynjarski will be able to play only half a game, because he is going out of town on an early train.

Several of the Plainfield Five regulars will be out of the line-up, and their places will be taken by N. P. H. S girls. The team will probably use the Misses Helen Hummel, Marjorie Burtis, Lillian Spencer, Theresa McMullough, Mildred McAuliffe, Bertha Kellar and Clara Smith.

There will be dancing after the games.

Finish Five Points Behind Queen City Quintet—Taylor, Burner and Conroy Play on Saurer Factory Combination.

The T. A. B. S. basketballists journeyed down to the Y. M. C. A. last night and played one of their best games of the season with the Saurer Factory team, the final score being a tie, 25 to 25. Because someone in charge extinguished the lights when the second half was only half over, the players were unable to finish the fray, and will play off the tie on the T. A. B. S. court a week from Friday night.

Bill Taylor, Ash Burner and Russ Conroy put up great games for the Saurer boys, while Art Kyle, was high man for the T. A. B. S., his efforts resulting in seven field goals and three fouls.

ROSELLE H. S. MAIDENS AT P. H. S. TOMORROW

The Plainfield High School girls' basketball team will get in action tomorrow afternoon, when the Roselle High School girls appear on the local court for the annual game between the two schools. A repetition of last year's victory is looked for, but reports from the Elizabeth suburb give indications of an excellent team. The Red and Blue quintet is getting better with every start, and with the regular line-up on the floor a close game is sure to result.

DRISCOLL WON'T BE COACH.

Dave Driscoll will not coach the Rutgers baseball team, according to the Rutgers manager. The man who will succeed former Coach Walter Brodie will be appointed next Monday evening. It is said that Driscoll has had his eye on the berth, but that the board of managers have another man in view.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.—Adv.

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get this famous old recipe which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and abundant.—Adv.

DRINK HOT TEA FOR A BAD COLD

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Thee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.—Adv.

TURN VEREIN HAD PROSPEROUS YEAR

Reports at Annual Meeting Show Gain in Finances and Membership.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

"Three Pals" Plan Reception and Ball for March 17 and Society's Yearly Masquerade Set for February 21.

According to reports submitted by officers and committees at the annual meeting last night, it was shown that during 1915 the Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein had one of the most successful years of its career. Forty-five new members were admitted, while only seventeen were dropped for various causes, making a gain of twenty-eight and giving the society a total membership of 178 active and 12 honorary. The showing far exceeds that of any similar organization of the city or borough and was a source of much satisfaction to those who have been the strongest workers since the Gesang and Turn Verein has reached its present success.

The annual election of officers held during the meeting resulted as follows: President, Adolph W. Hauck; vice president, Eugene Rentz; financial secretary, August Wolfe; recording secretary, A. Hermges; treasurer, Henry Haurand; financial committee Carl Felber, Louis Moraller and John Retzer; steward, Adam Muff. The executive officers act as trustees with the standing committee to be named by the president within the coming week.

One of the most interesting reports presented last night was that of the entertainment committee, composed of Jacob Schick, Leonard Schlick and Herman Theis. These three have been particularly active during the past year and beside providing gratis affairs for the society as a whole showed an excellent financial balance cleared from paid entertainments. Because of their good work, the society voted the use of Saengerbund Hall to this committee on St. Patrick's night, March 17, when they will conduct a social and ball for their personal benefit under the name of "The Three Pals." Music will be furnished by Halbforster's orchestra from Elizabeth and special decorations will be put in place by John Schroppe. Although the new entertainment committee for 1916 was not appointed last night, it was decided to hold the Gesang and Turn Verein's annual masquerade ball on Washington's Birthday Eve, February 22. Several new ideas have already been suggested and the society believes that it will eclipse all previous efforts.

The report of the singing section was another interesting one. It announced a gain in membership for the year of 13, making a total of 38. Thirteen new concert numbers were learned during the year and with the twenty-two previously in its repertoire, the section now has thirty-five excellent numbers in readiness for any concert, aside from its individual solos. The house committee recorded that the alterations which have been underway in the basement are practically finished. The lower rooms are now finished in mission style and new furniture to harmonize has been ordered.

At the conclusion of last night's meeting, the new steward, Adam Muff, served refreshments and a general social time was held. Mr. Muff succeeds Lubner Kuntz, who has held the position of steward and janitor for the past year, but who resigned to take up farming on a place near Sebring's Mills. Mr. Muff has had a wide experience as a caterer and his initial effort last night verified the statement that he is some "kuchenmeister."

FIGHTS TO HOLD JOB WITHOUT PAY

Millstone Board of Education Split Appealed to State Board.

Somerville, Jan. 14.—A warm fight over an unpaid job as a member of the Board of Education of the Borough of Millstone has found its way to the State Department of Education through the appeal of William Leeking, who was recently dismissed by the other two members of the board for non-attendance. George V. N. Geghte, who is also district clerk at Millstone, and Peter N. Williamson, are the other members of the Millstone Board of Education and they are made defendants in the appeal of Mr. Leeking. Sometime ago they declared the membership held by Mr. Leeking vacant, basing their action on his absence from board meetings. The third member refused to be dismissed in this manner. He took his appeal to Mayor William D. Bainbridge, and members of the Common Council. Mr. Geghte and Mr. Williamson were ordered to appear before the Mayor and Council and explain their action, but they refused to do so, denying the authority of the Council in the matter.

Attorney George Case has been engaged by Leekin, who is agent for the Standard Oil Company at Millstone, and the other two members of the board are represented by former Judge Clarence E. Case. The fight has created much interest in that section.

"GET IN THE GAME" SUBJECT OF ADDRESS

Rev. S. Zane Battin Talks to the Men's Brotherhood of Park Ave. Church.

"Get in the Game" was the subject of a stirring talk given by Rev. S. Zane Battin, secretary of the American Baptist Publication Society, before the Men's Brotherhood, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, last night. Despite the weather there was a good attendance of men. G. W. V. Moy presided and introduced the speaker of the evening after making a few remarks.

Mr. Battin offered some timely suggestions as to how a church can "get in the game," among which was the organization of a gospel team to carry on religious work in sections where people cannot get to church. He also suggested a general distribution of tracts through a public rack, such as is used for time-tables.

The speaker urged that the church give its attention to work for boys and do everything possible to hold their interest, for they will be needed to take up the church work after the older members are gone.

The music, which was a feature of the gathering, was in charge of Assemblyman William N. Runyon. This added much to the interest of the meeting.

'COL.' VS. WILSON FOR PRESIDENCY

Former Governor Fort Thinks That They Will Be the Opposing Candidates.

HITS AT UNFAIR CRITICS

Likens Attacks Upon Chief Executive's Methods to Abuse of Lincoln and Says Fault-finders Should Suggest Something Better.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Is it to be Wilson versus Roosevelt? John Franklin Fort, of New Jersey, one of President Wilson's predecessors in the office of Governor of that State, after a study in Washington of the political situation covering the past four days, has about come to the conclusion that he has hit upon the two men who will lead the opposing hosts in November. Of Wilson he feels assured. About Roosevelt he is not so certain, but he leans heavily toward him.

Governor Fort's study here led him to consult members of all parties and of all wings thereof. He has talked with Progressives, Progressive Republicans and old guard stalwart stand-patters in making his Republican investigation, while on the Democratic side he consulted both preparedness men and antis. Of course, he found the Democratic side more simple and easy to get at than the Republican, but he seems to feel fairly sure of his ground in both camps.

"I did not come to Washington for any business, political or otherwise," said Governor Fort, "but just to rest and see my friends. I have done both. I have been trying to get a line on the opinions of prominent men in both political parties as to future possibilities. All the Demo-

TALENTED PUPILS WILL GIVE RECITAL

Interesting Musical Program Announced for Tomorrow Afternoon at Franklin.

One of the most commendable activities which the Public Recreation Committee has fostered is a course in music in the schools where a well grounded musical education may be had at small cost. The work is receiving the sympathy and support not only of the interested parents but the music teachers and musicians generally. Music is a part of a well rounded education and aside from the talent the possibility of early instruction may unfold, the modern methods of teaching make for character, poise, sympathy and soul development.

Tomorrow afternoon at the Franklin School Auditorium a musicale is to be given by three pupils of the Music Settlement in New York, where piano and violin lessons are put within the reach of nine hundred children of the East Side who would have otherwise been denied their right to cultivate natural gifts and prepare themselves adequately for the struggle in life in later years. The secretary of the Music Settlement will make a short address about the wonderful work done in New York, enthusing and encouraging us to do what we can here along the same line. Whatever can be done to make for better citizenship and better preparation for the life work of the children should be of interest to all. The program will be intensely interesting and entertaining and the cleverness of the children themselves will be a marvel to all. There is to be no charge for admission and it is expected that there will be a large attendance of parents and teachers to view the work and enjoy the program.

BIG RAISE FOR THE MEN.

Duluth, Minn., Jan. 14.—All the larger mining companies operating in the Minnesota and Michigan iron ranges have anncunced an increase of approximately 10 per cent in wages of all miners, effective February 1. The raise will affect about 2,000 employes of the U. S. Steel Corporation. The Great Northern Ore Company, the Republican Iron and Steel Company, and the Pickands & Mather Co. have followed the Steel Corporation's example, and from 8,000 to 10,000 men will be benefited.

COMMUNITY CENTER TONIGHT.

A "Community Center" entertainment will be held in the Harrison Avenue School, North Plainfield, tonight. There will be speaking and singing, with many children taking part. Prominent borough officials are expected to be present.

BUSINESS MEN CLOSE CAMPAIGN

Re-organization Work of Association Brought to An End Today.

THIRTY NEW MEMBERS

Plans Made to Demonstrate to the Buying Community the Triteness of the Slogan "Try Plainfield First."

The reorganization campaign of the Plainfield Business Men's Association was brought to an end today. Anyone becoming affiliated with the association hereafter will do so through the solicitation of individual members or personal application.

As a result of the work of the reorganization committee and Harry B. Salter, twenty-nine new members were added. This was not the only work done, however, as the reorganization extended to the matter of increased dues and plural membership, and those business men who held membership previous to the campaign also had to be seen and consent to the new arrangement.

Previous to this year the annual dues were $5, and this has now increased to $15, while plural memberships have been taken out by a number of the largest merchants. But four former members failed to accept the new arrangement. The new rate will realize a larger income for the association and enable them to carry on more trade days and look after the interest of their members along lines of charity contribution and advertisements better than heretofore. Hereafter the association will make bulk contributions, and these will represent those merchants holding membership in the association, and the citizens can recognize them by the

Y. M. C. A. PLANS FOR CAMPAIGN

Week of November 12 Fixed as the Time to Raise Funds for New Building.

DETAILS ARE APPROVED

Encouraging Reports Presented at Meeting of Board of Directors—Association to Be Headquarters for "Biederwolf Campaign."

The board of directors of the Young Men's Christian Association, at a meeting last night, fixed the week of November 12 next as the time for conducting the building campaign, the purpose of which will be to raise a sufficient fund to erect a commodious new home for the association on its property at East Fifth and Sycamore streets.

The board will now work out the details for the campaign, the announcement of which will be made in due time. It will be conducted upon similar lines to that of the hospital campaign, and the association officers feel assured that it will be equally successful.

It was reported to the board that the auditorium had been changed to an auxiliary gymnasium and new apparatus has been installed. Classes on boxing, wrestling and fencing will be formed at once under an instructor, and this promises to be an attractive feature of association work. The reports showed that during December there was an attendance of 1,573 at the building, and the weekly attendance in the boys' department was about 300. There are 135 enrolled in Bible classes.

The association building will be the headquarters for the evangelistic campaign to be held here in April under the direction of Rev. W. E. Biederwolf, and there will be some one at the building all the time throughout the campaign to give any desired information in reference to the services.

There will be a meeting of all the chairmen of the sub-committees in charge of the arrangements for the revival at the Y. M. C. A. tonight.

It was also stated last night that the teacher training class, of which William D. Murray is the teacher, now has an average attendance of thirty-eight.

WILLIAM NEWCORN ILL.

In the absence of William A. Newcorn, who is detained at his home with a severe attack of grip, Samuel Rothberg will have charge of the service at Temple Sholem tonight at 8 o'clock. His sermon topic will be "Friendship." All interested are cordially invited to attend.

RALPH RUNYAN IS LOOSED BY COURT

Man Who Struck Frank Mason Given Suspended Sentence.

Somerville, Jan. 14.—Ralph Runyan, who struck Frank Mason in the head with a piece of lead pipe at the Mason home in North Plainfield in December, was this morning turned loose by Judge Daniel H. Beekman in Somerset county court. Runyan was given a suspended sentence. He was represented by Judge William De Meza, of Plainfield.

The case of Runyan was continued a short time ago that an investigation be made into his sanity. Prosecutor A. M. Beekman stated in court that morning that the man had been examined by County Physician W. H. Long, but that the physician refused to say whether or not he was insane, having made but a hasty examination. Judge Beekman told Runyan that he had received several letters from prominent residents of North Plainfield asking for the release of the defendant and he dismissed the case with a suspended sentence.

WILL BE NO CHANGE IN MEXICAN POLICY

United States to Give Carranza Chance to Punish Murderers.

Washington, Jan. 14.—It was definitely determined at the cabinet meeting today that no change would be made in the present Mexican policy until it was apparent that Gen. Carranza was unable to comply with the demand of the United States that he apprehend and punish the murderers of the Americans at Chichuahua. The decision of President Wilson and Secretary of State Lansing was given unanimous support by the colleagues. Senator Stone, who conferred with the President, was given substantially the same message to carry to the Senate.

PLEASING RECITAL AT THE HIGH SCHOOL

Miss Mackey and Miss Emerson Present Program of Classical Selections.

The High School pupils enjoyed a treat this morning, when Miss Ethel Lyman Mackey, accompanied by Miss Mary Hopkins Emerson, gave a recital in which folk songs predominated.

Miss Mackey has a rich soprano voice, and suited it exactly to the mood of each song. Miss Emerson's accompaniments left nothing to be desired either in sympathetic following of the voice or in technique.

The program consisted of three parts, the first composed of folk songs from the Italian, French and German, two each. The second part was made up of Scotch and Irish folk songs, and the third part of more general selections.

Miss Mackey added greatly to the appreciation of her selections and of her singing of them, by giving, in the case of the foreign songs, a translation of the words of each before it was sung. Before each of the Scotch and Irish folk songs she gave a general explanation of its meaning and setting.

One of the features of the recital was the rendition of a weirdly beautiful Indian melody, "The Moon Drops Low," by Cadman.

Miss Mackey and Miss Emerson have a studio in Brooklyn. The program follows: "Deh Vieni Non Tardar," Mozart; "La Columba," Kurt Schindler; "Le Baiser," A. Goring Thomas; "Chanson de Florian," Godrd; "Lindenlaub," folk song; "Zigeunerlied," Brahms; "Loch Lomond," folk song; "My Laddie," W. A. Thayer; "Leezie Lindsay," traditional air; "Low Back'd Car," Lover; "The Moon Drops Low," Cadman; "Fairy Pipers," Brewer; "The Years at the Spring," Beach.

DEATH SUMMONS JAMES A. WOTTEN

Passes Away at Home of Cousin, Mrs. Louis VanZandt, in This City.

PROMINENT CLUBMAN

Was Brother-in-law of Late Lieut. George W. DeLong Who Met His Death on a Polar Expedition—Funeral to be at Sister's Home.

James A. Wotton, the eldest son of the late Captain James A. Wotton, and brother-in-law to the late Lieutenant George W. De Long, who lost his life in the Arctic regions in 1879 at the head of the ill-fated James Gordon Bennett Polar expedition, died yesterday at the home of his cousin, Mrs. Louis Van Zandt, of 60 Sandford avenue. He had been an invalid for a number of years through an attack of locomotor ataxia, and on Wednesday suffered a hemorrhage of the brain. He became unconscious and remained that way until the end.

Mr. Wotton came to this city with his wife nine months ago, but was previously quite well known through local visits, and the fact that James A. Wotton, of West Sixth street, is a nephew. Because of his illness he was unable to mingle in fraternal or social organizations, but because of his experience as a traveler and finished education, his company was much sought after. He was born in New York about seventy years ago, and after studying in this country, was graduated from a French university. Much of his time in after years was spent in either England, France, Germany or other European countries. He became acquainted with the import trade through his father's dealings as master of trading vessels, and entered that business in New York when still young. He built up a large establishment, and eventually retired in the possession of considerable wealth. For a time he was prominent in New York's leading clubs and business organizations, but had been in retirement for many years because of his physical disability.

Mr. Wotton's brother-in-law, Lieutenant De Long, will be readily recalled by many Plainfielders because of his prominence at the time the Bennett expedition started out for the North Pole. Lieutenant De Long was in the United States naval service, and was placed in charge of the exploration steamer, "Jeannette." After numerous hardships had been encountered by the party the "Jeannette" was pounded to pieces by ice floes, and had to be abandoned. The exploring party and crew divided into three small boats, one of which was never seen again. The one bearing Lieutenant De Long finally beached, but its passengers were all frozen to death soon after landing. The third boat was in charge of the engineer of the "Jeannette," George Melville. This party reached safety and after securing aid from Esquimaux, the body of Mr. De Long and his companions were found buried in the snow. The searchers would have passed over them but for the fact that Melville tripped over De Long's arm, which was close to the surface of a drift. The lieutenant's body was eventually gotten back to New York, and lay in state in the Brooklyn Navy Yard for several days previous to burial. Accounts of the unfortunate expedition were contained in several New York newspapers two weeks ago through one of the survivors getting into prominence in Canada.

Beside his wife and cousin, Mrs. Van Zandt, James A. Wotton, of this city, Mrs. De Long, Mr. Wotton is survived by one other sister, Mrs. Edwin Wallis, and two brothers, Alfred C. Wotton, of New York, and William C. Wotton, of Arlington. The body was sent to New York last night, and the funeral will be held at Mrs. De Long's home, 324 West Eighty-ninth street, tomorrow night, at 8 o'clock. Burial will be at the convenience of the family at Troy, N. Y.

DUNELLEN

All the Happenings of the Day in Plainfield's Hustling Suburb.

Robert Bogardus, of New Market road, correspondent for two Plainfield papers, is detained at his home with an attack of the grip.

Edward Pennock is spending a few days in Philadelphia visiting relatives.

George Doyle, who was laid up with an attack of the grip a few days ago, has developed pneumonia.

Charles Vliet has recovered from his recent illness, and has now resumed his work.

C. Harry Doddwell, who found it necessary to go to Muhlenberg Hospital for the second time to undergo medical treatment, is reported as being greatly improved. It now appears that a second operation may not be necessary.

The local camp of the P. O. S. of A. held its regular meeting last evening and discussed plans for a turkey supper to be given on a date to be announced later.

Mrs. Frances Backus has sold her property, including a house and lot, to Louis C. Meeker, of Red Bank. The sale was made through Charles E. Tinsman.

Mrs. G. Elston Lowrie, who has been spending some time past visiting relatives at New London, Conn., has returned home.

The Dunellen and New Market Equal Suffrage League is holding its regular meeting this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Hattie Apgar.

The Dunellen organization of the P. O. of A. meets this evening at Holton Hall.

John H. Pierson and family, who have been residents of the borough for a number of years past, will move to the Far West the first of next week.

Plains & Fanwood.

Anthony Hophan, who recently removed from the borough, after a residence of several years, has sold his property on Farley avenue, which he bought from the H. C. Lockwood Co., back to that realty concern. Another realty transaction reported is that of Halfdon Brynildson to Martin Brynildson of lots 25 to 29, block F.

Peter Greenfield, of Martine avenue, is detained from his position at Sheelen Brothers' grocery store by illness.

A gorgeous response from the majority of women responded to the first call of the Misses Kyte for a meeting of the Belgian Relief Society held yesterday afternoon. Plans were discussed as to the kind of work the women would do toward helping the Belgians and at the next meeting, to be held at the Misses Kyte's home, active work will be begun.

Bruller's orchestra, of Berkeley Heights, will furnish the music for the next dance to be held in the Parish House of the Stony Hill church and the committee in charge is making arrangements for several other features. The affair will be held on Wednesday, January 19.

The annual reception and banquet of the local branch of the World-Wide Guild was held in the Memorial Parish House last night and attracted about seventy-five women and girls of the community. During the reception a general social time was enjoyed and the yearly reports of the various officers were read, after which a supper was served. During the dinner Miss Ruth I. Tapping, connected with the Newark branch of the Y. W. C. A., and Mrs. Kennelly, of Cranford, who is an ardent worker in the World-Wide field, spoke to those present and in an interesting address described the splendid work that is being done in various parts of the world by the World-Wide Guild.

A great deal of interest has been shown in the two nights' bazaar of the Entre Nous Club that starts in the Park avenue hall tonight, and the affair is likely to prove a financial as well as social success.

The Rev. Raymond E. Marshal will discuss the last chapter of John at the prayer meeting in the Methodist church tonight.

Mrs. Henry Schrenier has returned from Muhlenberg Hospital to her home on Mountain avenue, and she is now rapidly recovering from an operation performed at that institution several weeks ago.

—Until you have canvassed the readers of this newspaper on the matter, do not decide whether or not this may be a "poor time to sell" that property

PRIVATE FUNERAL FOR MRS. FRANK PUTNAM

The funeral of Mrs. Ida C. Putnam, wife of Frank Putnam, whose death Tuesday night caused a great shock to the community, was held at the late home on East Second street, this afternoon. Although the service was of a private nature it was attended by a gathering of relatives and friends, many of those present having attended the funeral of Mrs. Putnam's son, Frank A. Putnam, last Sunday afternoon. The service was in charge of Rev. Dr. Mulford of Long Island, former rector of All Saints' church, Scotch Plains, of which Mrs. Putnam was a member. The service was very simple. There were many handsome floral tributes, several of them coming from fraternal organizations of which Mr. Putnam is a member.

Burial will be made in the family plot in the Scotch Plains cemetery, at the convenience of the family. The body of Frank A. Putnam, through whose death his mother's fatal illness resulted, was buried in the same plot Tuesday noon, just six hours previous to the mother's demise.

NEW WEST END APPARATUS ANSWERS ITS FIRST ALARM

The new automobile apparatus in the West End fire house answered its first alarm last night. The call came in by telephone at 10 o'clock for a chimney blaze in the building at 921 West Third street, owned and occupied by S. Mann. One extinguisher was used and the flames were quelled without any damage occurring.

The vehicle was handled by Driver William Jaeger and carried a full complement of men. Owing to the fact that the wheels carried heavy skid chains the trip to the fire was not made at the high speed at which the apparatus is capable, but the run was satisfactory to Councilman Charles C. Graves and others who were in the vicinity.

DEFIED THE AUDIENCE.

Then the Audience Forced Adelaide Neilson to Surrender.

In "Forty Years On the Stage" the author, John H. Barnes, an old time actor, has this to say of Adelaide Neilson, the once famous star:

"One quite extraordinary gift she had—namely, that of tears. At any given moment or cue she could make the tears mount to her eyes and even run down her cheeks irrespective of anything she was feeling at the time. It almost resembled the turning on of a tap. Undoubtedly she had great beauty—wonderful eyes and an expressive mouth, fine coloring of complexion and hair and a rather spare figure.

"Her appearance suggested a woman of Spanish or Italian type. As a matter of fact she was born of humble parents in a village in Yorkshire in 1848, and her real name was Elizabeth Ann Brown. In her youth she was by turns a mill hand at Guiseley (Yorks), a nursemaid and a barmaid, so the strenuous life she must have led to raise herself to the position she eventually attained may be imagined."

An example of the temper that sometimes flared from behind the Neilson beauty is included in this passage:

"A curious incident occurred in Baltimore. The play was 'As You Like It,' Milnes Levick played Jacques and had spoken the 'Seven Ages' speech very finely, gaining tremendous applause at the end. Miss Neilson (as far as I know without intent) said, 'Go on, go on,' and the scene was taken up before the applause died down.

"The audience got annoyed and seemed to feel that it was being treated scurvily and kept up the applause in a manner which stopped the play. Miss Neilson ordered the curtain to be rung down, and then the storm burst out. It became a battle royal between her and the audience, who simply declined to listen to a word until Mr. Levick had repeated the speech. A silly scene, which might have been avoided, but became an absolute deadlock, out of which there was only one way. The audience was master of the situation."

Rules of the Game.

Industrial success is personal, not social. Society is not holding a man down; the existing social system is not keeping men at the bottom; it is their own personal deficiencies that keep them there. Industrial success can be won at a price, and the price is observance of the inevitable rules of the game—namely, sobriety, industry, saving, avoidance of speculation, knowledge of human nature, good judgment, common sense, persistence, intelligence and integrity. No social system ever keeps a man down who has these qualities. Is it not the best thing for the world to find out that industrial success can be won only by the display of these qualities?—J. Laurence Laughlin in Atlantic Monthly.

Channel Island Currencies.

The currency system of the channel islands is complex. Both Jersey and Guernsey have a coinage of their own and in addition permit the free circulation of the coins of England and France. Guernsey's coins of copper, which include a half farthing, do not go higher in value than a penny, but pound notes are also issued. And if you take in Guernsey on the way back from a holiday in France you can have a mathematical morning calculating how to pay your bill, stated in English, in the coins of France and Guernsey, for which you will have no use in England.—London Spectator.

Tripoli's Scottish Admiral.

Tripoli has long had a bad reputation, but reached the zenith of offensiveness a century ago, when its private fleet was organized by a renegade Scotchman, Peter Lyste. Deserting the English ship on which he was mate, Lyste turned Moslem, married a near relation to the reigning pasha and soon rose to the position of lord high admiral of the fleet. He did a deal of mischief, but came to a bad end.—London Standard.

A Turkish Custom.

Upon the graves of the dead in the Turkish cemeteries little vessels of water are placed for the benefit of the birds, and some of the marble tombs have basins chiseled out for the same purpose, the superstition being that birds carry messages about the living to the dead and, like everything else in Turkey, are suspected of being spiteful unless something is done to curry their favor.

He Had Labored.

"I dare say you haven't worked in years," remarked the hard featured housewife.

"You do me a great injustice, mum," said the tattered tourist. "I'm recuperatin' right now from a sentence of six months at hard labor."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

In the Dumps.

There was once upon a time an Egyptian king, so it is said, who built a pyramid and died of melancholy. His name was Dumops. The memory of his tragic history is perpetuated every time we say we are "in the dumps."

Her Rule.

Newcomer—I suppose you first ask a boarder what he is accustomed to pay?

Landlady (grimly and very pointedly)—No: "when?"—Boston Journal.

The highest exercise of charity is charity toward the uncharitable.—Buckminster.

MAYOR SMALLEY CONFERS OVER STREET CAR SERVICE

Mayor "Bill" Smalley, of the borough of North Plainfield, had a conference with Superintendent Luhrer, of the Public Service Corporation, this morning in regard to the street car service in the borough. He is confident that the conference will result in an improvement of service there, and that the Public Service Corporation will do its part in bringing this about.

You Touch a Magic Button When You Become a "Want Advertiser."

Our day is the day of "touching buttons."

A President presses a button in Washington, and a titanic explosion, thousands of miles away, weds the two great seas.

We are fond, nowadays, of accomplishing big effects with simple processes,

And so the "button-pressing" magic applies to the "little things" of life, as well as to the big episodes.

When you become a "want advertiser" you press a MAGIC BUTTON —and the influence is felt in the homes and business places of the city.

Your quest becomes of interest to the people who are able to help you accomplish it.

If you seek work, and "press the button" of Plainfield Daily Press want advertising publicity, your quest becomes one of personal interest to the people who need you. The same law operates in the working out of every "want ad task."

For classified advertising makes the whole city your market; makes the right people your audience; delivers your message to all people to whom it could have any interest or importance.

TRIED TO SMUGGLE RUBBER INTO GERMANY

New York, Jan. 14.—The Federal Grand Jury today returned an indictment against five persons on a charge of conspiracy to ship rubber out of the United States without declaring it in a manifest as required by the customs law. Those indicted are Mrs. Dekkers, Max Jaeger, a manufacturer; Edward Weber and Paul Schmidt, partners in the Rubber Guayule Agency, of 108 Water street, and Richard Ohlberg, a manufacturer of rubber goods in the Bronx. The matter was discovered when Mrs. Dekkers, a Dutch woman, was about to sail on the Ryndam for Holland some weeks ago with a number of trunks which were found to contain rubber.

WISE IS BANK INVESTIGATOR.

Albany, Jan. 14.—Governor Whitman has designated John J. Wise, of N. Y., to continue the investigation of complaints against the State Banking Department, which were inaugurated by Fred J. Groehl, recently chosen city magistrate by Mayor Mitchell.

Editorial

GENUINE BARGAINS —AND OTHERS.

It is not always a wise thing to judge a bargain by the value quoted. It is a regretable fact that many stores are not particularly scrupulous on the values they place on the goods they sell. Therefore it is well to investigate, and to rely on much upon your own judgment of the value of goods, as upon the store's assertions.

This month our store abounds with genuine bargains. Seasonable, desirable merchandise of all kinds is reduced in price in order to effect a clearance. And please remember that the bargains we offer are not overestimated a single penny. The actual savings allowed are sufficiently remarkable.

OSCAR HARRISON DIES AT DUNELLEN

Well Known Resident Succumbs to Tuberculosis After 11 Months.

Oscar Harrison, aged 47 years, and one of the best known residents of Dunellen, died at 6 o'clock last night at his residence, 515 Fronut street, Dunellen. He had been ill for eleven months of tuberculosis that started from a cold contracted during last winter.

Mr. Harrison has been at his home since January 1, when he returned from Bonnie Burn sanitarium. It was not noted that he was growing worse, but last night he called to his wife, asking her to raise him in the bed. While her arms were around him performing his last request he died.

Harrison spent sometime in a sanitarium in Whitehaven, Pa., last summer but did not improve and came home. Last fall, through assistance of the Board of Freeholders and a committee from the Dunellen Common Council, he was sent to Bonnie Burn, but stayed only a short time. He said that he could not improve there and that he lost seven pounds in the short time he was a patient. He returned home New Year's Eve and admitted then that he had come back to his family to die.

He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Harrison, and was born in Hunterdon county. Thirty years ago he married Miss Elizabeth Rutledge, the daughter of Thomas Rutlege, of 83 Franklin place, Plainfield. They came to Dunellen to live nine years ago. Mr. Harrison was formerly a foreman of a crew of iron workers on the Pennsylvania Railroad, late a fireman at Young's Greenhouse, and then a watchman at Lincoln. He gave up the last named position when his failing health made it impossible for him to work.

He is survived by a wife and three small children, Irma, Walter and Margaret; two brothers, Firman, of Easton, Pa., and Frank, of Finchville. Funeral services will be held from the residence at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, the Rev. Ramsey, pastor of the First M. E. church, officiating. Mr. Harrison was a member of the P. O. S. of A.

DINE PRESIDENT AND BRIDE IN SIMPLE STYLE

Washington, Jan. 14.—The dinner to be tendered tonight to President and Mrs. Wilson by Vice-President and Mrs. Thomas H. Marshall will set the pace of simplicity which will characterize the dinners to Mr. Wilson and his bride. Like President Roosevelt, Mr. Wilson is fond only of small dinner parties, and with but few exceptions the eleven dinner parties to be given in honor of himself and bride by members of his executive family will be limited, numbering scarcely more than a round dozen guests. The decorations will be simple, in deference to the President's taste.

Secretary and Mrs. Lansing will entertain President and Mrs. Wilson next Tuesday evening. Then follow in order the dinners of Secretary and Mrs. McAdoo, Secretary and Mrs. Garrison, Attorney-General and Mrs. Gregory, Postmaster-General and Mrs. Burleson, Secretary and Mrs. Daniels, Secretary and Mrs. Redfield and Secretary and Mrs. William B. Wilson.

SERVICES AT WATCHUNG.

Special services will be held in the Wilson Memorial church, Watchung, Sunday night, when a Y. M. C. A. gospel team from Princeton Seminary will be in charge. There will be a song service at 7:45 o'clock. Mr. Hardy, an evangelistic singer, will have charge of the music.

FOREIGN DEVILS.

The Answer a Chinese Official Gave a British Consul.

In his book "Home Life In China" Isaac Taylor Headland gives an account of the Chinese superstitions regarding the foreigner, one of which has resulted in their calling him Kueitzu, or "devil." A very amusing story, says he, is told of a red haired, red whiskered, blue eyed British consul at Canton who was, as are most of the British officials, of an investigative disposition and was anxious to know why it was that the Chinese call us of the west "foreign devils." Now be it understood that the Chinese idea of a demon is that he is a red haired, red bearded, blue eyed being who quails at nothing that comes in his way. One day when a Chinese official was calling on the consul the latter asked him:

"Why is it that the Chinese call us devils?"

The official at first hesitated, but, being pressed, he finally said, "I do not care to tell you."

"But I should take it as a great favor if you would tell me. I am very anxious to know."

"I cannot tell you," said the official.

"Why not?" asked the consul.

"Because you would be angry if I told you."

"By no means. I would not be so unreasonable as to ask you a question and then be offended because you answered it. On the other hand, I should be greatly obliged to you."

Being thus pressed until he was unable to refuse, the official finally eyed the consul from head to foot and said slowly and reluctantly, "Well, it is because you look like devils."

This natural superstition of the people was taken hold of by the Boxers in 1900 and circulated still more widely by all kinds of placards, both in prose and verse. I have one before me in verse, a part of which, translated, read as follows:

The devils are not human beings like you.
If you doubt what I say
You may see any day
That the eyes of the [illegible] color are blue.

WEIGH THEIR HATS.

A Fad of Fussy Men Who Are Cranks In the Matter of Headwear.

In the back part of a Broadway hatter's store there is a pair of scales that are used only in the case of particular demands by particular customers. As a general thing you don't look for scales in a hatter's, and the proprietor explained his reason for having them in this way:

"You will often find very fussy men when it comes to buying a hat. With them the weight of headgear is of prime importance. An ounce more or less gives them the fidgets when they have made a rule of life to wear only such and such weights on their heads. So I keep the scales to convince them. It is well that I do. It has settled many an argument with a grouch and sold me many a hat.

"You may call them queer for wanting the exact weight they call for or within and not over that weight; but, come to think it over, they are not any queerer than the men who rush in here at the beginning of summer demanding summer headgear because they simply can't endure their heavy winter hats any longer.

"Well, they buy a straw and go away perfectly satisfied they are prepared for summer heat. And the hat they buy? Why, by actual weight on these very scales it often weighs two to four ounces more than the winter hat they have been wearing. One of our good customers has regularly shifted from a twelve ounce winter slouch to a fifteen ounce summer straw and has been happy in the change."

It is a fact, however, that thousands of men know the truth of what the Broadway hatter says, but still buy heavy straws.—New York Sun.

Babies In Samoa.

Samoan babies can give points to Europeans apparently. According to A. S. Middleton in "Sailor and Beachcomber," they are much prettier and very intelligent. Moreover:

They can swim at three months old, talk, run and sing at a year old, and if a Samoan had a child that sucked a dummy (presumably a comforter) at six years old and wailed driveling along in its pram at an advanced age, as the children of the wealthy class of England do, they would look upon it as a great curio and smother it for shame on the first starless night.

John Bull.

The nickname John Bull is said to have appeared first in a satire by Dr. John Arbuthnot called "Law Is a Bottomless Pit; or, the History of John Bull," published in 1721. Washington Irving mentions the typical figure as a "sturdy, corpulent, old fellow with a red waistcoat, leather breeches and short, oaken cudgel. Many Napoleonic caricatures show John Bull represented in this way Mother Love.

"Mother machree," he said, "'tis worn and torn your heart is for love of us all."

"Jerome aviek," I said to that, "'tis worn and torn the hearts of mothers were before me and will be again. God help their children if they're not."—From "Mother Machree," by James B. Connolly, in Scribner's.

Height of Annoyance.

"I'm mad at my wife. To anger her I shall flirt with some other woman."

PRESIDENT'S WAR POLICY APPROVED

Miss Richards Praises Chief Executive in Keeping Nation Out of Conflict.

"WATCHFUL WAITING"

Speaker Believes the People Will Be Grateful to Those Who Are Preventing Country from Going to War—The Mexican Situation.

"We throw all right to the winds if we become belligerents," declared Miss Janet E. Richards in the first of her 1916 "Current Events" lectures given in the Hartridge Auditorium yesterday afternoon. The large hall held a capacity audience of women who heartily applauded the speaker when she warmly congratulated President Wilson on his policy of keeping America out of war just as long as it was w[illegible] able to do so. "We have more rights as neutrals than we ever would were we embroiled in the present conflict." During her talk she dwelt briefly on the recent splendid speech delivered by Ex-Senator Root, of New York, in Washington, when he contended that at the conclusion of this war some definite policy must be arrived at whereby countries the world over will first and foremost safe-guard mutual civilization and the rights of non-combatants and oppose the barbarity of war.

"Although there are many Americans today who most strenuously condemn the 'Watchful Policy' of President Wilson," said Miss Richards, "and declare the present administration a spineless one, there will be many in days to come who will look back with intense gratitude to the people who patiently waited and watched and prevented us from being thrown into a war which would mean a blight on our country."

Continuing her talk, Miss Richards dwelt in turn on the present troublesome outlook in Mexico, where, it is said, that some actually welcome interference from the United States in order to over-throw the Carranza government; the sinking of the Ancona, the Persia and the recent conscription bill in England.

NEW U. S. COAST GUNS TO BE MOUNTED ON MOBILE PLATFORMS

Sixteen Inch Cannon Will Sink Dreadnaught Fleet at the Horizon.

Can Be Hurried From Point to Point In Case of Attack by Foreign Foe.

A PLAN to revolutionize the coast defense fortifications of the United States is now being considered by government experts in a series of conferences. The discussion includes a plan to abolish concrete emplacements for the huge defense guns. It is proposed to mount these upon mobile platforms.

Only guns of the largest caliber—sixteen inch—of the highest velocity, are being considered.

The use of caterpillar wheels for moving these great guns within limited areas is but a minor part of the general plan.

The experts are now working out details by which these guns may be moved from point to point along the entire seacoast. It is provided that they be assembled in batteries of six at the most likely point of attack at the time of alarm. Under the plans suggested the guns can be moved from their fort stations to points where needed with amazing speed.

The discussion has proceeded to the stage of drafting plans for sectional railways to be laid down within a few hours to transport these monsters across country, from one trunk railway to another.

The plan calls for co-operation by all of the principal railroads along the Atlantic seaboard. These corporations are to be asked for data at the earliest moment to show what reconstruction and strengthening of bridges are necessary to make safe and sure the safe and rapid movement of these great cannon.

The twelve and fourteen inch batteries which now defend the coast harbors will not be disturbed. They are relied upon in this discussion as the support for the huge traveling batteries.

Power of Big Guns.

The sixteen inch gun now at Sandy Hook proving grounds, the only one owned by the United States, is fifteen years old. It is obsolete and has no further consideration in this story.

The sixteen inch guns which it is proposed to mount as movable batteries are to be new and modern guns. They are not "sixteen inch" guns to the army. Artillery officers call them "thirty-fives."

They propel a charge which, if squarely placed, will sink the largest dreadnaught at the edge of the horizon. The shell will strike the dreadnaught while traveling at nearly 3,000 feet per second. The charge, weighing 2,500 pounds, is guaranteed by the experts to be a much higher explosive than guncotton.

The fourteen inch guns along our coast fire a 1,600 pound projectile at the rate of 2,250 feet per second. They have a maximum range of 18,000 yards—ten miles—and, theoretically, will pierce 11.2 armor plate at 15,000 yards.

The maximum range of the new "thirty-fives" could only be reached by firing the gun at an angle of forty-five degrees. In actual service the gun is rarely elevated over twenty degrees. The lower the elevation the greater the velocity, and the area of damage increases in ratio.

Ordnance experts have argued that the most effective firing of the new "thirty-fives" is at that range which will keep the enemy navy where his observation of his own fire is impossible. The maximum range will not be considered as material in such firing. The limit of the horizon, governed by the conditions of each occasion, will determine.

For purposes of perforation of armor of the enemy the range will be much increased over the firing for "racking" explosive effect. The twelve inch gun will perforate armor plate at 9,000 yards, the modern fourteen inch gun at 15,000 yards and the sixteen inch gun at 18,000 yards.

To Hold Off Dreadnaughts.

The council has produced advocates of both methods of defensive firing. The new "35's" are to be equipped for both armor piercing and contact shells. If conditions do not warrant the continuation of one defense the other may be alternated or entirely substituted.

The discussion now in progress has developed the fact that man has not built and cannot build a rigid land fortification that will withstand rapid fire broadsides of an enemy fleet using ten six-inch guns at a broadside at a range of 6,000 to 7,000 yards.

Once the enemy gets "in underneath" the big caliber guns the fortification is doomed.

This developed the idea for the movable "35's." It is proved by calculations that an enemy squadron of superdreadnaughts armed with 15.5 guns of the Queen Elizabeth class could be held at bay by batteries of "35's."

The ordnance experts show to a certainty that the enemy must sacrifice at least one superdreadnaught before it can arrive within effective range of a fortification protected by "35's." The moment that an enemy ship shows on the horizon it can be "plotted" as a target by the "35's." And the sole effectiveness of the reply by the enemy must be based upon locating and disabling the concealed monster.

It has been revealed that the United States government has little official data of the results achieved by the European armies now in conflict. United States observers came home almost empty handed. A few were allowed to mingle with the German and Austrian troops for a few months, but they were kept away from all that was worth while.

Information Withheld.

Only on the western front were they received with even simulated welcome by the allies. They met a lot of officers. But they did not learn anything. Information which they considered pertinent was withheld.

For instance, the United States army has not been able to ascertain many facts about the results of the fire between the allied navy and the Turkish forts at the Dardanelles. The accomplishments of the 15.5 inch guns on the Queen Elizabeth in her attempt to silence the straits fortification are in England's sealed book.

The United States experts were not even able to get an accurate line upon the North sea battle between the British Lion and Tiger and German cruisers in which the Bluecher was sunk.

The Lion and Tiger used 15.5 inch guns. That the United States knows. The British reports, if true, show that hits were registered when the ships were fighting 17,000 yards apart, or below the horizon.

United States authorities do not believe hits were registered at that distance. They learned "somewhere in France" that wireless communication between the seaplanes and the British battleships in that engagement proved impracticable. The seaplanes established a perfunctory communication by use of smoke bombs and other signals only.

The United States army experts marveled at the quick destruction of the fortifications at Namur and Liege. They knew that the Germans were taking credit from the Austrians, for it was the Austrian Skoda howitzers that did the work.

But the marveling of our experts turned to astonishment when they found that these same howitzers failed to accomplish in six weeks on the Russian front what had been done in two days in Belgium. Marshal von Hindenburg reported one battery as "destroyed" seventeen times.

By expensive and diligent inquiry the United States army officers finally found the answer in a sand pile.

Sand Proves a Defense.

The forts of Belgium, originally built to give battle to six inch guns, quickly learned that rock and concrete would not withstand high explosives fired from beyond their range.

The Russians, profiting by the lesson, built parapets of sand bags high in front of their batteries. Then hundreds of men shoveled loose sand squarely in front of the parapet.

The United States learned that the battery which von Hindenburg sixteen times "destroyed" was actually buried in sand that number of times. But it was always dug out and moved to another place, where a similar sand pile had been prepared.

The 42 centimeter shells would not explode in a sand pile. Many sand piles are now sheltering our coast defenses.

The United States has learned from the European war that the turret is a protection needed only against indirect fire. It is now being utilized in an entirely new manner by our coast defenders. But the secret is buried and will not come out unless we are engaged by an enemy. Whether it has reached its new perfection in our continental or insular defenses is a closely guarded secret.

Where the enemy's artillery is successfully concealed, the United States arbiters have determined that turret protection is absolutely required. It may be decided, as the result of the conferences now proceeding, to protect several of our largest batteries in this manner.

The insular coast defenses of the United States are declared to be in very good condition. Equipped with the most modern ideas, the Panama canal may be considered adequately protected. The work in the Philippines and at Honolulu is progressing satisfactorily to the ordnance experts.

The construction of the proposed movable "35's" is extremely costly. The details are being worked out in shape that can be presented to the American public. The carriage costs half as much as the gun itself. But the wide radius of operation thus provided is regarded as amply justifying the expense.

AERIAL ROUTE TO LINK AMERICAS

Dumont Says Flying Machines Are Real Doves of Peace.

$10,000 PRIZE IS OFFERED

Aviator Would Have Express Service Between Two Continents—United States Flier Breaks Record by Attaining Height of 7,000 Feet Under Adverse Conditions.

Alberto Santos-Dumont, the Brazilian aeronaut, enlivened the proceedings of the Pan-American scientific congress the other day by predicting that the aeroplane would be the instrument by which the goal of internationalism would be achieved in the western hemisphere.

The aeroplane would serve as a means of defense for coast patrol, would promote communication and commercial interchange and overcome existing problems of time and space, in his opinion.

"I believe that the aeroplane," he said, "will knit the various states of the hemisphere into an integrally united, co-operating and friendly combination, allied for their own well being in trade and commerce as well as for strength in times of possible war."

In support of the prophecy the Aero Club of America offered a $10,000 pan-American aviation trophy to be competed for annually by representatives of the nations of the western hemisphere.

"All European countries," said Mr. Santos-Dumont, "are old enemies. Here in the new world we should all be friends. We should be able in case of trouble to intimidate any European power contemplating war against any one of us, not by guns—of which we have so few—but by the strength of our union.

Would Annihilate Distance.

"With time and distance annihilated the commercial relations so long deferred will spontaneously develop. We shall have facilities for prompt communication. We shall get into closer contact. We shall become stronger in the bonds of understanding and friendship."

In connection with the offer of the aviation trophy a letter from Alan R. Hawley, president of the Aero Club of America, to the Brazilian ambassador was made public, in which he says:

"We believe with Mr. Santos-Dumont that these aeroplanes of today, which already make it possible to carry a dozen passengers and a ton of useful load at a speed of eighty-five miles an hour, can solve most difficult problems of transportation and that if applied for this purpose as well as for sport in and between the nations of the western hemisphere they will become one of the most effective factors in bringing these nations into closer and most friendly alliance.

"Dispatches from Europe make us realize daily that whereas air craft are the deciding factor and the most effective weapon against submarines, if the nations of the western hemisphere had 10,000 aeroplanes in use for sporting and commercial purposes this continent could be well protected against unpleasant contingencies."

Altitude Record Broken.

Interesting details connected with the recent feat of Lieutenant Saufley, U. S. N., in breaking the altitude record for passenger carrying hydroaeroplanes have also been made public.

Exceptionally bad atmospheric conditions were encountered during the flight, and the wind at times blew at the velocity of seventy miles an hour. At an altitude of 3,500 feet the gusts were so severe that the machine was stalled several times and attacked by downward gusts "sufficient to make the aviator feel light in his seat."

When Lieutenant Saufley," the report says, "had about decided to make a landing the aeroplane suddenly emerged from the disturbed atmosphere into very smooth air. At an altitude of 7,000 feet Lieutenant Saufley maintained a position directly over the battleship North Carolina, which was lying at the dock at the aeronautic station, without changing his course for ten minutes while climbing at a rate of 200 feet a minute.

"While still climbing he began to go astern. It is estimated that he was in a steady wind of about seventy miles per hour. The temperature registered in the aeroplane was 26° F. and at the flying school beach 50 degrees. When the aeroplane returned to the beach after making the altitude there was ice on the carbureter a quarter of an inch thick."

AERO AMBULANCES NOW.

France Has Six Aeroplanes to Care For Wounded Men.

Aeroplanes were used for ambulance work for the first time during the retreat from Servia by the French military mission, says Henri Barbey, war correspondent of the Paris Journal.

The Balkan mission was at Prisrend. There were many helpless persons. It was impossible to carry them on stretchers, but it was determined not to abandon them. The French had six aeroplanes. They had been exposed to rain and snow for two months, but were in working order.

Colonel Fournier placed on these aeroplanes the persons whose condition was most grave and sent them by air to Scutari.

When you awake at 4 a. m., with whiskers on your tongue,
And fancy an apartment house is sitting on each lung,
When you continuously sneeze, excepting when you cough,
And at your throat you feel a clutch that you cannot shake off,
When grinning germs sit around in squads to wait their turn to swat you,
It's got you.

You may have taken ice cold baths what time the lark arises,
You may have done quite everything Woods Hutchinson advises;
You may have cut out drinks and smokes, plum pudding and mince pie,
And walked a good eight miles a day beneath the open sky,
But your hygiene was all in vain, all your preparedness failed you.
It nailed you.

Cheer up, it only lasts a week; you really shouldn't mind it.
'Twill pass in time and probably leave something worse behind it.
But in this curious old world that we are living in Man's greatest need, outside of cash, is mental discipline.
So lie there, while each hour the pain that racks your soul grows rougher,
And suffer.

—James J. Montague in New York American.

HOW A LITTLE CHILD WAS SAVED BY GRENADIER GUARDS

Carried Miles and Miles on Backs of Retreating Troops.

During the retreat of the British army after the battle of Mons many heartrending scenes were witnessed along the roads in the endeavor of the civilian population, mostly women and children, to keep up with and remain under the protection of the British columns.

The aged, the infirm, invalids and toddling children—all were on the roads. Driven by fear, famished and without food, their feet blistered and swollen, they tramped onward, ever onward, until in many cases human endurance could stand the strain no longer, and they sank exhausted by the roadside.

Many are the stories of lifts given on baggage wagons and of rations being sacrificed by generous soldiers to the starving refugees. Among these the story of the Grenadier guards' reservist is one of the prettiest. A little tot of six, adrift in the welter of this human tide of suffering, had been bravely plodding along beside the regiment. Though her shoes were worn through, her feet cut and bleeding, she toddled on until she, too, came to the end of her strength and could do no more. In the words of the sergeant:

"I couldn't bear to think of the little lass being left behind; she just reminded me of one of my own over yonder."

Despite the ninety pounds of kit and the days and nights of marching, the grenadier lifted the little maid on his arm and carried her along. After six miles the extra burden was too much even for his endurance, and, as he said, he "had either to put her down or fall out." Unwilling to leave the little one behind, he passed her over to his chum, who also carried her a few miles, in turn passing her on to another. By these means the entire company carried the little girl to the limits of the march south, almost to the gates of Paris. When the tide was at ebb and the British forces, with their French comrades, were about to turn and close at last upon their antagonists she was relinquished to the care of some good nuns.

One would like to know what became of this little piece of flotsam saved from the maelstrom of war—whether she was restored to her parents or if there were any parents to welcome her. In any case she will probably always retain a deep and lasting impression of the heroic kindliness of the British grenadiers.

BLINDNESS NO AFFLICTION.

"A Handicap Which Can Be Overcome," Says British Soldier.

Visitors to the Blinded Soldiers and Sailors' hotel, St. Dunstan's, Regent's park, see squads of sturdy men in spotless white ducks and vests leading the new life. They may be giving an exhibition of physical drill before an amazed audience of their relations and friends interested in the work of the hotel.

Blinded in battle, these late soldiers—many of them youths of nineteen and twenty—have been taught to be the cheeriest men in the kingdom instead of being cast adrift in helplessness and misery, a burden to themselves and their kindred.

"I used to think blindness was an affliction," said one of the men. "Take it from me, that's all nonsense. Blindness is just a handicap which can be overcome. A blind soldier comes here, and in a few weeks the handicap is removed and he can give points to the sighted. St. Dunstan's is an eye opener!"

BUY 1,500 MILES OF PIPE.

Allies to Use It to Bring Water to Camps In Egypt.

Fifteen hundred miles of iron piping to be used by the allies for water distribution to their camps in Egypt has left Baltimore for Alexandria. The British steamers Shadwell and Oceana carry the shipment, which is said to be the largest of its kind ever sent out of the United States.

Outside the three mile limit the two steamers were met by a convoy of allied warships big enough, it was said, to put beyond possibility any disaster to the cargo.

The shipment is said to be worth $750,000.

The Commuters, who are looming as strong contenders for the senior basketball championship of the Y. M. C. A., scored an easy 257 victory over the First Baptist team last night. The losers had only two regulars in their line-up, and although they recorded the first basket, they were never in the running after that.

FIRST DEFEAT FOR LOCAL COLUMBIANS

Team From Fordham Completely Outclasses Front St. Combination, 23-12.

The Columbus Club basketball team was handed its first defeat of the season last night, a quintet of Fordham University players administering a 23 to 12 drubbing to the locals. The Columbians led by one point at the end of the first half, but with their best player, Al Bryniarski, missing in the second period, were completely outplayed.

The guarding was close, the home side annexing only one field goal. In the second half the New Yorkers passed and shot all around the Knights, who played their men more than the ball. The many fouls committed by the home side gave the visitors plenty of opportunity to tally from the 15-foot line, Densmore missing only two free tosses.

Bryniarski's foul shooting kept the homesters in the running in the first half. He made good on seven attempts out of 11. In the second session the Plainfielders missed nine out of twelve throws.

The game was the first played under the management of John T. Caulfield, the new manager of the club outfit. The score:

The Inner-Triangle Athletic Club, of the Netherwood Reformed church, opened its basketball schedule last night at the Tabs' Hall by defeating the fast-going Plainfield Juniors in an exciting game by the score of 14 to 13.

The score was a tie at the end of the second half. An extra five minutes was to be played, and Paterson, the star of the Grace church choir team last year, dropped in a foul, winning the game. Hansen, for the winners, and McAfee, for the losers, were high score men.

PLAINFIELD FIVE SCORES SIXTH WIN

Newark Normal School Girls Lose Game on Columbus Club Court.

The "State Six," from the Newark Normal School, suffered their second defeat this year in this city when the strong Plainfield Five ran up a score of 31 to 12 over the visitors. Several weeks ago the Newarkers were defeated by a narrow margin in the Plainfield High School gymnasium, their opponents at that time being the Pegs. Last night's victory is the sixth consecutive one for the homesters, and was probably the best of any of the games scheduled thus far on the West Front street court. Both quintets were about evenly matched, but the slippery condition of the floor handicapped the visitors somewhat.

The feature of the game was the splendid guarding tactics exhibited by the Plainfield Five, the Misses Clara Smith and Bertha Keller allowing the State Six but three goals throughout the thirty minutes of play. The centers had things practically their own way, Miss Theresa McCullough outjumping her opponent nearly every time. Miss Marjorie Burtis, the diminutive forward, drafted from the North Plainfield High School to fill the vacancy of Miss Ida Hummel, played a spectacular all-round game. Beside being a valuable feeder to Miss Helen Hummel, she tallied four goals herself. Miss Helen Hummel was the highest individual scorer of the evening, caging eight field goals and seven fouls. The Misses L. Vernet and A. Petry did the scoring for Newark.

P. H. S. AND N. P. H. S. GRAPPLE TOMORROW

First Game for Local Court Championship Will Be Started at 2:30.

Spirit is running high at the Plainfield and North Plainfield High Schools on the eve of the first game of the annual series between the two institutions for the basketball championship of the city, and a contest worthy of the name is expected to result in the game at the Plainfield High School. The game will start at 2:30 o'clock.

The referee for tomorrow's contest is practically unknown in local sporting circles. The tenth man on the floor will be Joe Byrnes, of Orange.

The Canadian basketeers had the use of the P. H. S. court for an hour yesterday afternoon, while the Red and Blue quintet is working out on it this afternoon. Townley and Wheelan, the leaders of the teams that will face off when the whistle blows tomorrow, are the only ones that have gone through a championship game before, and with the rest of the men of a really untried calibre in such a game, the outcome is rather hard to predict. Plainfield has the lightest team that has represented the school on the court in years, but that is offset by the speed that has been shown. North Plainfield's five is not very heavy either.

The Red and Blue will vie with the Red and Black tomorrow on the side lines, too, and Monroe O'Donnell, who will lead Plainfield's cheering, and Vincent Lafferty, who will do the same for North Plainfield, have imported some [illegible] for the occasion to make [illegible] time away before the game [illegible] doors will be opened at [illegible] o'clock.

Imperals Lose Rubber, 1012 to 1043—Skinner Sets Record of 267.

BIG SCORES APLENTY

George Rohrs Hits 224, 211 and 247 for 227 Average; Skinner Averages 221; Boroughites Take Second Game by Single Pin.

Totals of 1043 and 1012, and individual counts of 267 and 265 featured a great bowling match on the Tabs' alleys last night, between the Abstainers and the Imperials. Bill Skinner, anchor on the Tabs, set a new record for the alleys with a mark of 267 in the second game, and John Connolly stopped only two pins short of that figure in the rubber, which was won by the Tabs, whose only defeat was by a one-pin margin.

George Rohrs rolled 224, 211 and 247 for an average of 227. Skinner averaged 221. The winners averaged 947 and the losers 931.

Seventeen pins separated the two teams in the first game, in which the Tabs rolled 904. Despite Skinner's string of strikes in the second game, the Imperials won by the smallest margin possible. The odd was a real battle, the temperance men, with 1043, finishing 31 sticks to the good. In this game, O'Keefe rolled 208, Scott 205 and Skinner 204, in addition to Rohr's 247, while on the other side Voorhees hit 202, Conover 203, and Connolly hit 265. The last-named had an excellent chance to better the new alley record of 267 made by Skinner in the previous game, but his last ball just whisked past the head-pin.

emblem displayed upon the show windows.

Every member has been furnished with emblems, which are used for purposes of identification. The members of the Plainfield Business Men's Association and the leading and progressive merchants of the city, who realize that it is as essential to have a live working and effective commercial organization in a city as it is to have a city government.

Every merchant has been appealed to personally or by letter, and those who represent the quality-giving, reliable and energetic dealers have responded. From now on the people of Plainfield and vicinity will be afforded a fine opportunity to judge of the truth of this statement. Plans have been made for many events for the purpose of demonstrating to the buying community the triteness of the slogan, "Try Plainfield First."

And it is not alone for purely business betterment that the association will work, but also for the advancement of the city of Plainfield in every walk of life. The association is the largest organization of business men in Plainfield, and its various committees will study civic affairs with the end in view of assisting in any movement advanced for the betterment of the civic life of the community. Plainfield is to be congratulated upon booming an organization of this character, composed of men big enough to realize that it is only by co-operation that real results are obtained. If one will but look at the list of members of the Plainfield Business Men's Association they will no longer feel in doubt as to the future. It is up to the citizens to show their appreciation of this public-spirited movement by their patronage. It is urged to let the dollars you earn in Plainfield stay here. If you buy out of Plainfield, and we buy out of Plainfield, and the other fellow buys out of Plainfield, what is to become of Plainfield?

The membership list in this association is still open, and any of the officers will be pleased to accept applications from anyone who feels they would like to become part of the new movement for a bigger, better and brighter Plainfield.

The officers elected at the recent annual meeting are Herman Schwed, president; M. C. Van Arsdale, vice president; J. J. Varley, treasurer; J. H. DeMott, secretary.

BUYING A HAT IN HAWAII.

It Cost More to Find the Article Than It Did to Purchase It.

In his eagerness to see a whale during the voyage between Honolulu and the island of Hawaii, Homer Croy, who tells about his adventure in Travel, leaned too far over the rail and lost his hat.

After arriving at the island he climbed into a taxicab and told the driver to take him to a hat store. "Do you understand?" he asked. "A hat store."

"Yes, for sure, all right," the Japanese chauffeur answered.

They went bumping up the street, swung wildly round a corner and finally, at the far side of the town, drew up to the curbing. In the window of the store was a bedstead, on which hung the sign, "This Week Cheap."

"What do you mean by taking me to a furniture store?" Mr. Croy demanded.

"Dis Hata store," replied the Japanese driver, and he pointed to the name of the proprietor, "K. Hata."

"I want a hat, not a bed," Mr. Croy said, with feeling. "I want it for this," pointing to his bare head.

"Yes, for sure, all right."

With that the cab whirled down the street and away to the other side of the town, while the taxi bill was merrily running up. This time it stopped before a barber shop.

"No; I don't want anything taken off my head. I want something put on it," declared Mr. Croy, who was now quite irritated.

"Yes, for sure. I understand all right," replied the chauffeur, with a grin.

They went clattering just as far to the other side of the town as they could and drew up before a store that as an afterthought apparently carried a line of hats. Mr. Croy had to pay twice the price of a hat on the way to buy it, but this did not seem to worry the driver, who, after the manner of automobile drivers, stood up under it bravely.

SILK HATTED CROOKS.

The Bad, Bold, Debonnair Criminals Are a Class of the Past.

The silk hatted, bewhiskered, high class crook has shaken the New York dust off his spats and disappeared. He is absolutely extinct. A modern criminal who can boast a good suit of clothes now is termed "Raffles," or if he is suspected of wearing what some call a dress suit he is a "gentleman burglar." Usually he "Raffleses" a couple of times, making a few small cleanups, and is netted, arraigned and sent away to a place where he gets his hair cutting and clothes pressing done free.

There are plenty of free lances of crime circulating around where legal tender or other valuables can be annexed by a little exertion at some risk, but the old time bands of bold, bad, debonair knights of dark deeds have faded away. There are plenty of men who skulk through what is vaguely termed "the underworld" and who take a desperate chance at impromptu crimes, robberies, holdups or sneak thief jobs, which suddenly come under their attention.

These men are not the same caliber as the big criminals of thirty years ago, although occasionally one of the modern specimens stumbles upon a rich haul. The police say up to date methods have driven them from the game. The green goods men and gold brick canvassers have followed the bison and the Indian over the last frontier as an organized criminal industry. The "wireless" wiretappers have been hunted down and out. The band has been dispersed to various iron barred havens of rest, leaving the country capitalist safe to wander through Manhattan without being tempted to play the races on some inexcepted tip.—New York Cor. Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Tale of Two Rivers.

The divide between the Hudson bay and Mississippi river drainage basins shows the poor drainage of the glaciated prairies and the delicate balance between drainage systems. Though Sheyenne and James rivers, the two principal streams of this region, flow in nearly parallel sources for 180 miles and the relief of the land between them is generally not more than twenty feet, yet the Sheyenne ultimately discharges into Hudson bay and the James into the gulf of Mexico.

The Battle of a Week.

The battle of a week was the great conflict at Tours in which Charles Martel overthrew the Saracens, A. D. 732. The members of the Saracen army are variously estimated at from 400,000 to 700,000, and the historians say that 375,000 were killed on the field. It is suspected that these figures are a gross exaggeration, but it is certain that few battles of history have been either so bloody or so decisive.

A Sickly Diary.

"Look here, old chap; I'll give you a valuable tip," said the experienced married man to the prospective bridegroom. "Don't let your wife keep a diary on the honeymoon. My wife did that, and now whenever we quarrel she brings it out and reads some of the idiotic things I said to her then."

Different.

"They say marriage is a lottery," remarked the morose young man.

"It isn't," replied Miss Cayenne. "In a lottery you can go on buying tickets."—Washington Star.

Easy Living.

A tribe called the Tungus, living 700 miles from civilization in Siberia, is said to have but one article in its creed: "Eat much and laugh much."

She has a very large following in Plainfield and it is safe to predict that all her admirers will turn out to see her on the Astor Theatre screen Monday and Tuesday "Sweet Alyssum," with Kathryn Williams and Tyrone Power, a Selig production, will be the principal feature.

NEGROES ON PROBATION FOR THEFT OF MONEY

Somerville, Jan. 14.—Raymond Levius, John Vandervoort and John Beekman, all negroes, were arraigned in county court here this morning on a charge of having stolen $37 from a local merchant. They were arrested by Marshals Hanlon and Holmes, who prosecuted them. Levius entered a plea of guilty but the other two negroes denied liability for punishment on the technical grounds that they knew nothing of the crime until after it had been committeed. Levius was fined $25 and put on two years' probation, and the other two negroes were put on probation for one year.

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Wash the poisons and toxins from system before putting more food into stomach.

Says inside-bathing makes anyone look and feel clean, sweet and refreshed.

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing illness, while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food and drink taken into the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste material is not eliminated day by day it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream, through the lymph ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast each day, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons, gases and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside-bathing. Men and women who are accustomed to wake up with a dull, aching head or have furred tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, sallow complexion, others who have bilious attacks, acid stomach or constipation are assured of pronounced improvement in both health and appearance shortly.—Adv.

MEXICAN TROUBLES.

There is nothing to be gained by a vicious criticism of the policy of President Wilson toward Mexico as a result of the recent murder of American citizens there. The crime, however dastardly and uncalled for, is not one chargeable to the country, the people as a whole, or even to the present government. It might have happened in any of the mountainous districts of the United States. The seventeen Americans were killed by a band of outlaws. If Gen. Villa was at the head of this bandit band, as is charged, his motive was to embarass the Carranza administration and to force American intervention. Give Carranza an opportunity to punish the murderers. No one doubts his willingness to execute Villa if he can ever get his hands on the insurgent leader, and his troops who know the country can be more effective in such a warfare than American soldiers who would soon become lost in the barren mountains. In demanding of Carranza that those who murdered American citizens be caught and punished for the crime President Wilson is doing all that America can do, for the present at least, and the people should patiently await the result of this policy.

WHEN IS MURDER?

American blood boils when a foolhardy citizen who has taken passage on a belligerent boat that attempts to ram its way through a school of torpedoes goes down with the contraband of war. We whet our swords and see red because a bullet from the gun of an uncivilized Mexican bandit happens to cross an imaginary boundary line and strike a curious sightseer whose head is poked far out into the known territory of danger. This we call murder and we demand satisfaction, or revenge. Wednesday a schoolboy, with all the promise of youth, was killed in one of the greatest colleges of the country in the annual bowl fight, and we have not heard that others in this mixup were reprimanded even by their instructors. The American idea is rapidly growing to be one of protection for the reckless adventurer in foreign climes while those at home take care of themselves.

Republican leaders may be willing to nominate Hughes, as they say, but everyone of them could name a better man if he was not too modest.

$100,000,000 FOR CLAM SHELL BUCKETS."

A ludicrous illustration of how river and harbor lobbies are run to "help business" came out in last year's debate on the Rivers and Harbors Bill in Congress, remarks the World's Work. Ohio Congressmen and Senators received a letter from a supply house in Cleveland, demanding that they secure the immediate passage of the bill. The delay, said this house, was "hurting business;" in particular it was stopping the sale of "clam shell buckets." That is, this concern demanded that Congress pass a $100,000,000 bill in order that it might sell a few clam shell buckets.

WORTH REPRINTING.

Instead of gently writing them
And saying, "Stop it, now!"
We might as well be fighting them—
They kill us, anyhow.
—Newark Evening News.

The announcement that Judge Robert Carey, of Jersey City, is a possible candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, gives those independent citizens whose necks do not fit an Essex yoke something to rejoice over.

Officials in charge of the New York armory have prohibited fighting there, even scientific boxing contests, and are encouraging distance running. Good and loyal soldiers of the Wilson administration.

As some blue skies I've seen;
Were one to paint the trees the hue

The critics all would say:
"That artist sure was on a tear,
To smear things up that way!"

Were one to tint the soil as red
As in the South I've viewed it;

The critics would arise and shout:

His things are daubs—we'll throw them out!
For him, Art's doors are shut."

A Rib In The Neck

To Every Person who has suffered for many months with neuritis of one arm we would put this seemingly irrelevant query, Have you a little rib in your neck?

Practically every case of "cervical rib" is treated as a case of "brachial neuritis" for a long time before the real nature of the trouble is discovered, if it ever is discovered.

There shouldn't be any ribs in one's neck. The place for ribs is farther down the spinal column. But now and then one is discovered with a rib or usually a pair of ribs in the neck, and the symptoms, if any, are very much the same as those of neuritis. There is pain of a most persistent kind, although it is not continuous. The patient notices blueness of the hand, numbness and at times cramps of the fingers. There is remarkable sensitiveness to cold—an attack of pain will come on at night if the arm becomes uncovered. Perhaps the patient finds temporary relief from pain by elevating the arm above the head—a symptom which in itself speaks against the diagnosis of neuritis. But pain from the pressure of a cervical rib on the nerve plexus of the arm and the great vessels in the neck is not accompanied with much atrophy or wasting of muscles, as is the case in neuritis.

There is but one way to diagnose cervical rib. An X-ray photograph, or rather two or three X-ray photographs of the neck taken from different planes will show the superfluous rib. It usually can't be felt by the physician. As a rule a cervical rib is only an inch or two or at most three in length—but that is long enough to keep one miserable for years.

The symptoms generally do not appear until early adult age, often not until nearly middle age.

Any victim of an old neuritis of the arm which has not responded to medical treatment inside of a year will do well to consider the investment of a small wager on an X-ray photograph, especially if some slight symptoms are occasionally noted in the well arm.

The neck is a bad place to have a rib.

A pulsating mass just above the collar bone is pretty sure to be caused by cervical rib.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

"Foety" Pills

A year ago I read that pills of asafoetida are a tonic for weak nerves. I have been taking them ever since with good results. Is there any harm from their prolonged use?

Answer—No harm. They are mildly sedative, and are also taken for "gas." Old-fashioned people used to call them "foety" pills.

From Calomel to Salol

After reading what you said about calomel I stopped taking it for my liver. Some friends advised me to try salol and nux vomica. Are these medicines good for liver trouble?

Answer—Salol is a combination of carbolic acid and salicylic acid. Nux vomica consists of strychnine and other less important things. How either can affect the liver is more than we can understand. Salol is used as an intestinal antiseptic and in elimination it probably affects the urine. You had better consult some physician who will try to determine why your liver troubles you—if it is the liver.

TRAINS

Trains are used to transport freight and passengers, mentioned in the order of their importance, from hither to yon. At this particular minute let us consider passenger trains.

A passenger train consists of an engine, a baggage car, a conductor, a peanut salesman, a brakeman with throat trouble and several passenger coaches. It is operated on what is known as a schedule, which is America's most popular work of fiction. The schedule shows the time at which the prospective passenger should arrive at the station in order to get a good seat near the stove in the waiting room.

Passenger trains are divided into three classes—limited, local and accommodation trains. Limited trains are very fast and only stop for crossings, semaphores, side tracks, cows on the track, hot boxes, orders and coal. They are very luxurious, and are supposed to get you to your destination on time, for which you pay from $5 to $10 extra. This explains the "limited" part. You have to ante before you get on, and there is a $10 limit.

Local trains stop at all stations and elsewhere, and are very careless, losing ten minutes here and thirty minutes there with the utmost unconcern, like a messenger boy. They are patronized by the plain people, and are afflicted with prehistoric coaches and newsboys who prey on the passengers and sell them peanuts, figs and Elinor Glynn's latest works in a hoarse whisper at the end of the car. Local trains run from "Aoughwow to Sstreech," according to the brakeman, and the next station is "Arglouuuuu." If a man is stubborn about it he can reach almost any town in the country on a local train. A man once traveled from New York to San Francisco on a local train, but it took so much time that he had to walk back.

Accommodation trains are composed of freight cars and a caboose, in which passengers ride on the floor and the ceiling alternately. Accommodation trains are so named because they frequently wait on a side track while a farmer's hogs get fat enough for him to ship with profit. Waiting for an accommodation train and waiting for a new comet are two operations requiring more misguided patience than anything else on record.

Passenger trains transport their patrons to terrestrial points for from two to three cents a mile, and to the Great Beyond occasionally without extra charge. In the middle west the rate is two cents a mile, but in the sparsely settled east the poverty-stricken lines manage to get three cents a mile in most instances.

Views Of The Press

Strength And Weakness Of Submarines

The Chief Advantages which may be claimed for the submarine include comparative invisibility when submerged, coupled with immunity from gunfire while in that condition. It carries a weapon against which no adequate protection has been found. It presents a small and difficult target when itself assailed by torpedo attack. Other elements in its favor are low cost, handiness, seaworthiness in rough weather, comparative immunity from floating mines, as well as those laid in very deep water, and the possibilities of use as a mine layer.

On the other hand, the submarine is handicapped by many disadvantages and limitations. Its radius of action is small. Its speed is low, about 14 knots on the surface and 10 knots submerged.

The periscope is useless during darkness, and to operate at that time the vessels must therefore come to the surface, thus rendering themselves very vulnerable to the attacks of surface craft. Once the submarine's hull is damaged by gunfire, ramming, or otherwise, it is no longer able to submerge, and its usefulness as a war vessel is ended until repairs can be made.

When flying at an elevation of less than 1,000 feet, air craft can usually see submarines operating near the surface.

Considering all their limitations it is hardly likely that submarines will ever play the dominant rôle in naval warfare. They are an auxiliary means of conducting war at sea, a valuable but nevertheless a secondary asset to a fleet, and not much more likely to replace the battleship, merely because they are capable under special circumstances of inflicting serious damage upon the latter, than is the destroyer likely to replace the battleship because it is able under special circumstances to place the battleship at a disadvantage.—World's Work.

Digging Up The Corpse

Q. Would I have the right to sell for publication stories printed in an old magazine, in 1869?

A. If the stories were protected by copyright, and the copyright has been renewed, you would have no such right. You should in any event, even if the copyright has expired, give credit for the stories when offering them for sale.

The Same Old Gag

Q. About a year and a half ago, a friend of mine and I became acquainted with some people in our city, and, as they were smooth talkers, we were induced to invest our savings in some stock in a new corporation. These people did not go through with the proposition and left us penniless. Is there any law that can deal out punishment for this failure to refund our money?

A. It would be advisable for you to give the facts, in detail, to your prosecuting attorney. He will inform you whether, in his opinion, there is good cause for a criminal proceeding.

The Trusting Signature

Q. A salesman came to my house, selling a certain brand of flour. He asked me if I used this particular brand. I replied that I did not. He then went on to tell of the good qualities of the flour and wanted to know if I would need any flour in three or four weeks. I said I thought I would need some in a few weeks. He asked me my grocer's name and my name and address and wrote something on a slip of paper and handed it to me. He said: "Sign your name." I signed my name, but didn't know what was on the paper, thinking I would get the flour from the grocer instead. He gave me a slip of paper with an order for a sack of flour, the price being ninety-five cents, delivery to be made the latter part of the month, on a certain date. Can I refuse to take this flour, or what can I do if there should be extra charges?

A. Whatever paper you signed should have been read by you before attaching your signature. If the agreement was in other respects valid, and no fraud or imposition was resorted to by the salesman, your act in signing the agreement evidenced your assent thereto. In view of the doubtful character of the circumstances, as you have given them, it is impossible to advise you positively.

A Ward—With Money

Q. I have a niece who has no father or mother. She has several aunts and uncles. One of the aunts wanted to adopt her, but the other was appointed guardian. The child had some money. Why didn't the guardian let the other aunt adopt the girl? Can she make the rest of the relatives pay for the child's expenses?

A. If you are dissatisfied with the plan now being carried out with reference to the child's custody, or if you believe her welfare is not duly cared for, it would be advisable for you to consult your lawyer, in order that the proper legal steps may be taken.

Mr. Branson will be glad to answer all questions. If your question is of general interest it will be answered through these columns; if not, it will be answered personally if stamped, addressed envelope is enclosed. Address all letters to E. R. Branson, care of this newspaper.

Trappings

Trappings include the unnecessary little doodads and fancy here-and-theres that add weight and worry to Worth While business. Most of us carry Trappings, at that. They fall heir to us—we scarcely know how or from whom. But we know we wake to the daily knowledge that we have them with us.

Trappings are Valueless—drop them.

The greatest accumulations of Trappings are Idleness and Don't-careness. They overburden and load to back-breaking, brilliant Brains and big Bodies. The Producer wants no excess Trappings about him—he demands his track clear and clean in front of him and insists on Light Equipment. And he who Cares is not going to allow impediments to hold him from his purpose.

Trappings are Valueless—drop them.

Anything that takes from your Efficiency is a Trapping of some sort. Even another man or woman who insists on taking from you Time that belongs to you and in which you are engaged in some useful manner, becomes a dangerous Trapping that should be dropped and fled from. For Trappings are Trippers. No one is entirely safe and free to do his best if loaded with a lot of Trappings.

Trappings are Valueless—drop them.

Current Poetry

Ode To Our Neighbors

When I was sick with grip and chills
And half a dozen other ills,
The neighbors called each day to tell,
When they were sick how they got well.
And each one had a remedy
For ailments that afflicted me.
They pumped me full of nasty dope
Until I finally gave up hope.

"Good morning—how're you feel?
"You ought to try some of this junk;
It fixed my uncle when he had
The same as you but twice as bad."
"You can't go wrong," another said.
"With a Swiss cheese poultice on your head."
Or "Dr. Perkins' Peanut Pills
You'll find will cure all human ills."

The undertaker called each day
To be there when I passed away,
Afraid, the mercenary slob,
Somebody else might get the job.
The parson asked my fav'rite hymn;
And while the lights were low and dim
Another hung around for hours
To ask about my choice of flowers.

At last when I was nearly dead
I called my family in and said,
"If I must die then I'll agree;
But please don't let 'em poison me."
So now as long as I shall live,
To others nasty cures I'll give.
To give, the Good Book says, I b'lieve,
Is far more bless'd than to receive.

Snap Shots

By Jay E. House

A few of the avenues to wealth are closed every year. The easy times during which a worthless man could acquire a lot of land by marrying an Indian lady are about over.

Do not confuse habit and character. Some very fine women chew tobacco.

The women in a small town look pretty well. But the men often need the kindly ministrations of both the barber and the tailor.

In playing the love scenes a woman has no set formula.

A man often is reluctant to whip his own wife, but he always enjoys watching another man whip his.

When a girl first makes up her mind to marry she is looking for a man with money or an army officer.

Another difficult thing to understand is a father's pride in the thought that his baby resembles him.

As soon as the men manage to free a church of debt the women go out and contract another obligation.

329-335 PLANE STREET, NEWARK

crats are for the re-election of President Wilson, and I am almost as fully convinced that the strong undercurrent in the Republican party is for Theodore Roosevelt. There does not appear to be any one of sufficient prominence in the West to be seriously talked about, to make him even a possibility, to say nothing of a probability, for the Republican nomination.

"The most remarkable thing is that not one man has suggested the 'third term' bogie as to Roosevelt. That question seems to be dead. And, of course, with it has gone the one-term plank in the Democratic national platform of 1912. I believe that sentiment here on this question represents the view of the country. If the people want a man to be re-elected, it is their right and in view of the present outlook as to candidates, it does not seem that there are so many statesmen whom the people think fitted for President that the one, two or three-term proposition is of much matter.

"The one remarkable thing in the situation is the way men talk as to the President—both going and coming, so to speak. This will illustrate what I mean: Yesterday I was talking with two prominent gentlemen at the same time. One said: 'If Roosevelt is nominated by the Republicans I will vote for him; if anybody else is I will vote for Wilson.' The other said: 'If any other than Roosevelt is nomiated by the Republicans I will vote for the nominee; but if Roosevelt is nominated I will vote for Wilson.' President Wilson seems to be the residuary legatee both ways, and that is the one remarkable political phenomenon of the hour.

"Another curious condition is that you hear much criticism of the President's Mexican and foreign policy but no one seems to have anything to suggest. I have not talked with one person who thinks that there has been a single thing happening on land or sea that would justify Congress in declaring war on the part of the United States. It does not seem very effective to criticise without suggesting any other course that the critic thinks better than that the President is now following.

"Yes, I inquired about preparedness, and that word seems to have as many meanings down here as there are minds. Every one seems to have a plan of his own, but practically all agree that the country is not agreeable to any radical or very large scheme of increase in the army. One distinguished Congressman said to me that he was only in favor of an increase in the navy and of providing for the training of a body of young men for officers of the army in case of need. I think it is perfectly safe to say there is serious doubt of getting as much as the Secretary of War has recommended for the army.

"It looks to me as if the National Guard might be built up by federal assistance. So many talk that way. If Congress were to provide funds for this, naturally it would be popular at home and these gentlemen are looking back home all the time.

"The Chicago meeting of the Progressive national committee has demonstrated that that party is not dead, and that it must be reckoned with this fall. With a Progressive candidate in the field against any nomination that the Republicans might make, this would mean defeat. There were 2,100,000 Progressive votes polled in the several States in 1914 and with a non-progressive platform and a re-actionary Republican candidate that vote would be much enlarged in 1916. Unless the Republican party prefers suicide to victory it must make a fairly progressive platform and put upon it a man in sympathy with progressive ideas and ideals.

"Another political danger the Republicans face is their personal attacks upon the President. The American people do not like personal attacks, even as to official actions. Some Republicans, largely reckless old liners, are over-doing the abuse business. President Wilson is going through today what Lincoln went through in 1864, nine months before his renomination. Criticism when just and when intended to be helpful is all right and should be welcomed by every public man, but that which is malevolent and founded upon a distortion of facts, perversion of motives, and hope of political advantage, does not deceive the people. In fact, they resent it. They did in Lincoln's case and they will in Wilson's.

"These gentlemen who are doing this should read what is said by William Roscoe Thayer in his life of John Hay touching the Lincoln abuse in 1864. Lincoln bore it quietly. So does Wilson. I hold no brief for the President and have never supported him politically in any way, but I believe that there never has been in the White House a man more loyal, patriotic and devoted to America than Woodrow Wilson, and I am quite convinced that the people believe that; and also that they are asking his critics to stop abuse and tell what they would have done differently if they had been in his place.

"I never did believe in that sort of political warfare, and I do not think it ever does anything except harm to employ it. It is much the better way to give credit for that which is done well and suggest a wiser course where you think something has been done wrong. It pays to be fair in politics as well as in business."

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

What Happened to Odysseus on the Island of Corfu.

"BEFORE I tell you what fate overtook the brave Greek leader, Odysseus, when almost dead from shipwreck the winds blew him onto the island of Corfu," daddy began the bedtime story, "I want you to remember that the people who lived there used to be near neighbors of the Cyclops. Because these giants were cruel to them they moved away to Corfu and, free from wars, lived a happy life under their wise, good king, Alcinous. Now, Alcinous had a beautiful daughter, Nausicaa, a half goddess, who was about to be married. The very night poor Odysseus lay half dead asleep in some leaves on the seashore the great goddess, Minerva, sent a dream to Nausicaa, reminding her that as her wedding day was near the family washing should be done.

"Did she do her own washing, daddy?" asked Evelyn.

"Now, laundry in the family of a king is no small work. Dozens of slave girls had to go all over the palace and collect the garments of the lazy princes and princesses. Careful maids had to be chosen to wash the beautiful hand embroidered tunics and shirts. The queen herself spent a whole day ordering baskets of food and wine for the dozens of slave girls, and grooms had to curry and harness splendid little ponies to a cart that carried all the baskets down to the seashore. But finally when all this fuss was over Princess Nausicaa jumped up on to her chariot, took the reins and whip, and off the long procession started, with her maids running after the chariot on foot."

"Didn't they have any tubs, daddy?" asked Jack.

"No washtubs and runboards in those days, my son. Slaves knelt in the sand and scrubbed out dirt spots with their own hands in the sea water.

"Just like we used to wash our bathing suits!" Jack imagined.

"Well, when the princess arrived at the beach her slaves turned out the royal mules to get what salt grass they liked. More slaves unloaded the baskets of soiled clothes and carried them down to the water. Soon the whole shore swarmed with busy, splashing, cheerful workers. When all garments were clean and spread out on the sands to dry, when the slaves themselves had all enjoyed a good plunge in the sea, they sat down in the sunshine to eat the good luncheon the queen gave them and play ball while the princess Nausicaa sang to them. Just as they had the dried clothes all gathered, folded ready to go home, Nausicaa threw the ball into the water, the slave girls all screamed with joy, and Odysseus woke from his long sleep," daddy finished.

"Oh, daddy, don't stop!" cried the children.

But daddy gave them a big hug and pointed upstairs.

Married Life on $80 a Month

BY MRS. DA. LEONARD

Julia Osgood and Fred Crane Decide to Get Married Right Away.

"Julia," said Fred Crane, "I must see you; must speak with you a moment. Come for a walk with me along the river bank." Julia Osgood hesitated. "I'll wait while you get your hat," he continued.

They walked in silence to the stream and sat down under a great elm on a bench facing the river.

"Julia, I have broken off all relations with my mother. I have left home." He looked steadily at her as she gazed off over the river.

"Oh, why?" she asked. "I thought I could save you from that sorrow."

"Now that it has come; now that I am all alone, will you not marry me? I am very lonely. We would be poor. I have only what I can earn to offer you, but I can make a comfortable living, and—could you not be happy on a small income?"

Julia looked up at his eager face and laughed.

"Did you think it was the money? Oh, Fred, you surely did not think that, did you?"

"I did not know what to think, dear. I went up to Fairport full of trouble because my position was so entirely changed from what it was when you accepted me for your husband; and as soon as you knew about my mother's objection you were changed, you were so cold and distant I could not help thinking the loss of the money had something to do with it." Julia's eyes slowly filled with tears as she listened.

"How could you think such a thing? I thought you knew me."

"How cuuld you think that my mother's objections would alter my plans in the least?" he interrupted.

"You spoke of postponing the wedding yourself. I thought perhaps it was done as a hint that you wanted your freedom."

"And you claimed to know me. Could you want to marry a man who would have such a craven spirit?" asked Fred.

"You notice I was not very anxious about it. I broke the engagement," laughed Julia. "I can see that it was all a morbid fear that you would give up so much that you would come sometime to feel that your wife had cost you too much; that the sacrifice had been too great."

"As if any sacrifice could be too great." He smiled into her eyes. "Will you marry me on the day originally set?"

"That is only three weeks off. I am not ready. That is, my clothes are not," she corrected, blushing.

"You can get them ready afterward," he suggested.

"What a funny plan. Well, clothes mean less to me than some other things. I will try and be ready. What will Mr. Jaynes say at a second resignation?"

"I imagine he is a man that will get the humor of the situation." Crane seemed to be taking a very cheerful view of life himself.

"We must tell the Sutners right away. They will be so glad. Molly's grief over the broken engagement was very genuine."

"Yes, they will be glad, both of them. They are true friends." Fred Crane spoke with conviction.

They walked off down the river bank and hope grew in Molly's breast with every minute that passed, for she had watched them go away from behind a window blind. When she saw them coming slowly back in the twilight she gave John a convulsive hug, exclaiming:

"It is all right. Oh, I am so glad. Mow happy Mrs. Morton will be, too."

AND THE WORST IS YET TO CO ME--

"I've been sorry ever since I bought it" is not the plaint of the student of the "ads"—but you've heard women say it, probably a great many times.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Replete with song and grace, dancing, frivolity and jest, the Social Maids will appear at the Plainfield Theatre next Tuesday, matinee and night. Joe Hurtig, who is responsible for the magnificent production, has fairly outdone himself, so all who avail themselves of the opportunity to enjoy the show will testify. Crowded with novel features, finished in detail, artistic in its completeness, the offering takes rank in the very forefront of burlesque's blue-ribbon attractions. Heading the sterling company are George Stone and Etta Pillard, whose consummate grace as dancers and skill as funmakers place them among artists of the highest rank. Mr. Hurtig has provided a brand-new vehicle for the stars and their splendid support, and he has been extravagant to the point of lavishness in his stage equipment, electrical devices and gorgeous costuming.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

As an added feature at Proctor's today, in addition to the usual show, the management will present the second episode of "The Red Circle," the latest and greatest of the Pathe's serials, in which Ruth Roland and Frank Mayo assume the leading roles. This serial was adapted from the stories by Albert Payson Terhune, one of the greatest fiction writers in the world. An added attraction tomorrow afternoon will be a big toy bazaar for the benefit of the children, and beside the wagon load of gifts presented to the lucky ones from the stage, assurance is given that every child attending will receive a present. Send the "kiddies" and come yourselves, for there will be lots of fun. The Triangle offerings presented today and tomorrow are "The Lily and the Rose," in which Lillian Gish, world famous for her excellent acting in "The Birth of a Nation," is starred, together with Roszika Dolly, recently of the New York Winter Garden and Ziegfeld's Follies. The Keystone comedy is entitled "The Great Vacuum Robbery," in which Charles Murray dispenses most of the comedy, which will tend to keep the spectators in a continual uproar. This mirth-provoking farce is the best yet. Among the attractions booked for the first of the week are Frank Campeau, Dorothy Gish (Lillian's sister), and Owen Moore, in "Jordan is a Hard Road," a David W. Griffith production, and "Fatty and the Broadway Stars," in which "Fatty" Arbuckle assumes the lead and is ably assisted in the funmaking by the following famous Broadway favorites: William Collier, Joe Weber, Lew Fields, Sam Bernard, Mack Sennett, Ford Sterling, Polly Moran and Mae Busch.

LITERARY

"His Mither's Hairt," a short story by L. Allen Harker and F. R. Pryor in the February Scribner, is the story of a dear old Scotch mother and her son Jamie who had gone to the war.

"Ye'll just hae to stay deid while we think what's tae be done," Jess said decidedly. "Whit way did ye no let us ken sooner, Jamie?"

"First I was wounded," said Jamie, still munching scones, "and a prisoner; then I escaped and was wounded again; and for a whiley I was deeved-like in a hospital wi' bits o' shrapnel all over me—an' I couldna' write wi' ma left hand * * * and I'm no the only James Macintosh in the British army. * * * Oh, it's a long, long story."

NOSE CLOGGED FROM A COLD OR CATARRH

Apply Cream in Nostrils To Open Up Air Passages.

Ah! What relief! Your clogged nostrils open right up, the air passages of your head are clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffing, mucous discharge, headache, dryness—no struggling for breath at night, your cold or catarrh is gone.

Don't stay stuffed up! Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Ely's Cream Balm is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer has been seeking. It's just splendid. —Adv.

ACID IN STOMACH SOURS THE FOOD

Says Excess of Hydrochloric Acid is Cause of Indigestion.

A well-known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion is nearly always due to acidity—acid stomach—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation, then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acrid fluids and gases, which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we eructate sour food, belch gas, or have heartburn, flatulence, water brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids, and instead get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast while it is effervescing, and, furthermore, to continue this for one week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

The "buyer for the home" who does not read the ads is as unprogressive as the merchant who does not advertise.

If you are a student of the "ads" you KNOW WHAT IT OUGHT TO COST.

If values and prices ruled about alike in all stores at all times, there would not be any such thing as store competition. And, as finding desirable values would require no especial knowledge or insight, store advertising would be superfluous

The store's advertisement is the store's daily message to you—and there is not often a day in which there is not something new and interesting in that message.

Before you have followed the plan of reading the ads for very long you become an EDUCATED judge of values. This education must be kept up to the hour.

at the highest standard of quality. The VALUE must never vary. For a maker to "cheapen" such an article would be to throw away the prestige he had fought so hard, and advertised so effectinvely, to gain.

"Trade-marked" articles—things sold by NAME or DISTINGUISHING and IDENTIFYING BRAND—must be kept

REALTY EXPERTS TO SPEAK AT BANQUET

First Annual Gathering of State Real Estate Board to Be Held January 24.

Arrangements have been completed for the first annual meeting and banquet of the New Jersey Real Estate Board to be held at the "Washington" in Newark, Monday evening January 24. The list of speakers will include the following:

Arthur Brisbane, editor New York Evening Journal; Thomas N. McCarter, president Public Service Corporation of New Jersey; Henry Crofut White, of North Plainfield, chairman of the special committee on Conservation and Development of the New Jersey State Commission, and J. Thompson Baker, president Wildwood Title and Trust Company.

In speaking today of the work of the New Jersey Real Estate Board, Director Charles F. H. Johnson, of Jersey City, said:

"For over eight years the idea has been growing in the minds of New Jersey real estate men who have awaited only until a very definite program of development could be arranged which would attract the co-operation of real estate men throughout the entire State.

"The movement began just before the Manhattan tube was opened," said Mr. Johnson. "That seemed to solve the problem of transportation which had long been a detriment to New Jersey, and in that respect placed New Jersey on a competitive basis with the other suburbs of New York city. And while today the transportation facilities and charges for same are still the heaviest handicap to be overcome, new ways have been suggested to meet the situation which promise ultimate success.

"The principal thing at the present time is to effect a permanent organization of real estate men and the fact that a great number of acceptances to the dinner have been received would indicate that this result will be satisfactorily accomplished.

"Mr. Brisbane has long been a believer in New Jersey real estate and, as well as any man, knows the commercial value of organization. With real estate men united they can work in closer harmony with the State Commission, whose plans Mr. White will outline. In a recent letter from Mr. White, he said, 'I think it highly desirable that the State Department should be in closer touch with the New Jersey Real Estate Board so as not to be working along duplicate lines as both bodies are anxious for the same thing, that is, the development of New Jersey.'

"Mr. Baker will speak with regard to the utilizing of the acres of southern New Jersey for the scope of the Board will be State-wide, and this fact will also be brought out by Mr. McCarter."

THE WALKER'S DREAM.

I'd count this life
a blissful one
As o'er the way
I thud.
If just one detour
I could make That wasn't
mud.

MAKE TAXES DUE TWICE EACH YEAR

West End Civic Association to Father a New Law.

PLAN IS APPROVED

Senator Pierce Will Be Asked to Introduce Measure—Local People Believe It Would Relieve Property Owners of Holiday Burden.

A bill providing for the payment of all city, county and State taxes semi-annually will be presented to the Legislature now in session in Trenton, as a result of action by members of the West End Civic Association at a meeting of that body held last night.

F. A. Weeks brought the plan before the West End Association. It has been thoroughly studied by members, and a greater portion of the time spent last night was given over to a discussion of its merits. Before adjournment a resolution was passed calling up the law and finance committee to communicate with the Hon. Carlton B. Pierce, State Senator from Union county, and urge him to introduce the bill. It will be drawn so as to amend the laws now operative, and to make payment for taxes come due on April 1 and November 1. In case of overdue semi-annual payment, the individual will pay the penalty and interest, as is now the case.

No conference has been held with Senator Pierce or with Assemblymen Runyon, Morgan or Pierson, who represent this county in the State Legislature, but it is believed by those of the West End Civic Association that they will introduce the bill, if only on request, and that lawmakers of the State will have an opportunity to vote for or against it during the present session.

The main object of the change is to relieve and divide the burden of paying taxes which falls at present at a season of the year when men are taxed with holiday disbursements, insurance policies and various other payments. Members of the association who stood heartily in favor of the bill, and who spoke in favor of the proposed bill, were: Mr. Weeks, J. J. Carroll, the chairman of the law and finance committee; J. Sachar, W. W. Robison, president; T. C. Vail, W. J. Boyd, F. S. Power, D. L. Coleman, F. G. Wikoff and F. A. Cook. Should the bill pass it will not only affect the county, but the entire State.

During the meeting the secretary was instructed to invite Mayor Calkins, members of the Common Council, and also the officers of other civic organizations in the city to a smoker, which is to be held in Coward Hall on Thursday evening, January 27. The next meeting of the executive committee of the association will be held at the residence of J. J. Carroll, on West Fifth street, Friday evening, January 28.

BRICKLAYER WITHOUT A HOME LOOSED BY JUDGE

John Martin, a bracklayer without a home, was arraigned in police court this morning on a charge of being drunk and disorderly and panhandling. He was stranded here, he told Judge De Meza, and wanted to move on to a warmer climate. The judge gave him a suspended sentence so as to allow the move as soon as Martin can raise the money.

REV. BODMAN TO PREACH.

Rev. Frederick H. Bodman, of Battle Creek, Michigan, will preach at the morning service at the Congregational church tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock. His sermon theme will be "The Time Factor in Progress, or a Word For the Discouraged." This theme is based on the general attitude and thought of Christian people at the beginning of the World War now going on in Europe, viz.: that it was impossible for such a condition as exists today.

SERVICES WELL ATTENDED.

The revival services during the week at Grace M. E. church have been well attended. The pastor, Rev. Charles S. Gillespie, preached at all services. Robert Boyd led the singing with an enlarged chorus. The pastor's sermons for tomorrow are as follows: Morning, "Two View Points;" evening, "God's Balance." Revival services will continue every night next week with the exception of Saturday night.

TO MAKE ANNOUNCEMENT.

Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, at the morning service tomorrow will make an announcement which will be of vital interest and every member of the chapel is urged to be present.

The seventh annual banquet of the Dutch Arms, of Trinity Reformed church, will be heldl on March 16.

FIRST CONVENTION OF STATE LEAGUE

Representatives of Municipalities Will Meet in Jersey City Wednesday.

The New Jersey State League of Municipalities will hold its first annual convention Wednesday, January 19, in the Commission Chamber, City Hall building, in Trenton. The morning session will convene at 11 o'clock and will include the following program: Roll call; invocation, Rev. Henry Collin Minton; address of welcome and president's report, Hon. Frederick W. Donnelly, mayor of Trenton and president of the league; report of secretary-treasurer, Clinton J. Swartz; report of executive committee, Hon. Leighton Calkins, mayor of Plainfield; re-election of officers and executive committee, and selection of place of next annual convention.

Governor James F. Fielder will open the afternoon session at 2 o'clock with an address, followed by an address on "Home Rule for Cities," by Henry Bruere, city chamberlain of New York city; talk by Hon. Roslyn M. Cox, mayor of Middletown, N. Y., and president of the N. Y. State Conference of Mayors, on "Practical Activities and Accomplishments of the New York State Conference of Mayors," and one by Clinton Rogers Woodruff, secretary of the National Municipal League, on "What Can Be Accomplished By Municipality Organization."

There were 1,964 absences reported from the public schools of Plainfield during the last fiscal year, according to the annual report of the Board of Education, which has just been made public. Placed on probation, 8; placed in care of parents, 21; parents fined and sentences suspended, 6; held for juvenile court, 11; placed in Children's Home, 3; placed with relatives by order of court, 1.

MEN'S ASSOCIATION GIVE A "LADIES' NIGHT" AFFAIR

The Men's Association, of Warren chapel, gave a "ladies' night" affair at the chapel last night, when a pleasing program was presented. R. R. Pentecost gave an amusing talk about well-known people, and illustrated it with stereopticon views. A feature was the showing of a series of pictures of Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of the chapel, from early life to the present day.

There was also an informal musical program, which included vocal selection by a male quartet, comprising Messrs. Tallamy, Paterson, Sprowl and Martin, and instrumental numbers by a trio, comprising Dyckman Winckler, violin; Charles Moak, piano, and Elmer E. Wheeler, flute. This was followed by a supper served in the basement. The rest of the evening was spent in a social way. George Zimmer, as president of the association, was in charge.

NEW OFFICERS NAMED BY BUILDING TRADES COUNCIL

At the regular monthly meeting of the Building Trades Council held last night officers for the new year were elected as follows: President, H. H. Casey; vice-president, Fred Eckhardt; recording secretary, John Cordova; financial secretary, Russell Hann; treasurer, H. S. Derflinger; trustees, E. A. Reid, Thomas O'Brien and George Fosbre.

COUNCIL TO ACT ON AUTO ENGINE

Will Accept That for West Fourth Street House—May Buy More.

When members of the Council meet next Monday night in adjourned session there will be a resolution before the Board to accept the new combination hose and chemical truck recently purchased for the West Fourth street company, and the apparatus will be accepted, having met with the approval of Chief Doane and members of the fire committee. There is also a possibility that Council will announce that it is in the market for an automobile engine for the Netherwood section.

In his annual report Chief Doane called attention to the fact that the engine purchased for that station had been rejected, and one was badly needed. All members of the Common Council and Mayor Calkins are heartily in favor of equipping the Plainfield department with motor apparatus as soon as possible, and it is probable that by the end of the year there will not be a horse-drawn vehicle in service here.

P. H. S. STUDENTS TO DEBATE SOON

Much Interest Shown in Contests of the Next Few Months.

Now that Plainfield High School has entered the State Debating League, fostered by Rutgers College, a new brand of school spirit has developed among the local students, over thirty of whom have signified their intention of trying out for the red and blue team. Only three regular berths and that of alternates are open.

The red and blue team encounters the South Side High School triumvirate of Newark on March 3. However, before that date the local representatives will have to be picked and for that reason the presidents of the two literary societies, the Alpha and the Omega, have listed the names of those who are eligible and who have consented to try out for, first, the society team and, secondly, for the school team.

Should P. H. S. be successful in the debate with South Side, the winner of the Hackensack-Passaic match will be taken on. The Prohibition question is to be discussed in the first debate, but as yet, what stand the locals will take has not been decided. By virtue of the toss of a coin the locals earned the right to choose either their stand or the place. Those in charge are expected to announce the verdict soon.

It is understood that North Plainfield High School is also entered in the league, being a contender in the other division of the schools. As the winners in each division will clash in New Brunswick at Rutgers College, local optimists are hoping to see both local teams as the finalists.

The Alpha candidates are Leroy Apgar, William Backer, Clinton Berrien, Richard Borden, Holmes Clawson, Townsend Dickenson, Clarence Eder, Joseph A. Gallagher, Joseph Mutnick, Warren Mumford, Harold Neeley, Olive Lawrence, Horace Bunker and Elizabeth Marchant.

The Omega list follows:

Harold Seal, Calvin Tildon, Richmond Ritterbusch, Miner Trowbridge, Dick Williams, Wm. Victorson, Jack Richards, A. Terry, Francis Petit, Percy Stelle, Louis Starckweather, Leon Weintrob, Irving Wiltsie, Clifford Tildon and the Misses Charlotte Taylor, Florence Nielson, Ruth Voorhees, Katherine Stevens, Marjorie Thiers, Helen Weseman, Mildred Weintrob.

WILL OBSERVE THE TENTH ANNIVERSARY OF NURSERY

The tenth anniversary of the King's Daughters' Day Nursery will be fittingly celebrated on Wednesday afternoon, January 19, with a reception and tea at the West Front street nursery. It is expected that every King's Daughter in Plainfield will be present and also extend an invitation to her friends and to anyone interested in the work. No donations are expected and no silver offering will be taken but a pleasant and social time is anticipated to celebrate the event. The Day nursery is located at 502 West Front street, opposite Liberty street. The Loyal Daughters' Circle, of Netherwood, and the Silver Cross Circle will have charge of the tea table, but members of all circles are asked to do their share in the entertaining of guests.

ON TRUE VALUE OF FRIENDSHIP

Samuel Rothberg Delivers a Sermon at Temple Sholem.

GOOD CROWD ATTENDS

Relationship is a Noble One, Though Oft Abused, Says Speaker in Appeal for Kindness to all Men—Should Not Violate Given Right.

What "friendship" really means, and what a great good can be established for the benefit of all mankind by its exercise at the proper moment, was told of in a decidedly original and interesting manner at the Temple Sholem last night by Samuel Rothberg, acting as master of ceremonies during the regular service in the absence of William Newcorn, acting rabbi since the congregation has been without a pastor. Mr. Newcorn had selected "Friendship" as his theme for last night's discussion, and though having but little time for preparation, when it became known that illness would prevent Mr. Newcorn's presence, Mr. Rothberg retained the same subject, discussing it in a manner that elicited genuine commendation from all his listeners.

At the beginning of his address the young speaker first reminded his congregation of great friendships of Biblical and mythological days, known the world over and kept vivid in memories of one generation to another. He cited the instance of David and Jonathan, the iinseparable companionship, which stands foremost in civilized history, and also related the beautiful story handed down by the Greeks of the adamantine fraternal bond between Damon and Pythias. These two, he said, would be examples of what real friendship meant, and would forever stand as monuments to man's unselfish devotion to man.

Continuing his discourse, Mr. Rothberg pointed out the difference between friendship and acquaintanceship, and the difference between exercising friendship to someone because they ask for it and doing it voluntarily. One good friend was to be more desired than a thousand acquaintances, he said. Friendship really means the possession of brotherly instincts with the desire to render assistance for the sake of rendering, while acquaintance is only the knowledge of someone's name and the right to speak to him. The latter is meaningless in connection with the world's betterment or the exercise of the Lord's injunction to aid our fellow men.

"There are more ways than one of showing friendship," said Mr. Rothberg, "and there is hardly an hour of the day but what we have the opportunity to display it. A friend of ours should not come to us for material help simply because we are friendly, and violate the God-given right; neither should we lend aid to someone who needs it with the idea that some day it is to be returned with interest. The kind of friendship that really counts is the kind that is handed out unexpectedly and is given purely from the motive that inspired Pythias to risk his life for Damon, or is given without any idea of paving the way for a future favor. A friend who appears out of the blackness of gloom and despondency does more for a human soul than the thousands who fawn about one with offerings of aid flattering talk. The world is filled with foolish friends, business friends, friends pro tem, and friends who are seeking friends, but the kind of friendship that will never die is the kind that springs from noble motives and exemplifiles the injunction to 'so live that when ye come to the river that marks the unknown shore, your hands will be filled with deeds of charity, the golden keys that open the palace of eternity.'"

ADDRESSES FEATURE MEETING OF GUILD

Rev. C. H. Mallery and Miss Marie Halin Speak on Topic of Interest.

Joseph M. Harper, as president, was in charge of the monthly meeting of the Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild held at the Friends' meeting-house last night. The program opened with a selection by the guild orchestra led by Mrs. John C. Evans, after which the Christian Endeavor Society, of Trinity Reformed church, conducted the devotional exercises, Miss Marie Hahn being the leader. Her message was on the topic of "Love Is the Fulfillment of the Law."

Miss Hahn showed in a few well chosen remarks that if one really loved God they would not have any other god before Him and that they would want to strictly observe the Sabbath and keep it holy, and if one loved their neighbor they would not want to steal from him, while if one loved the other nations they would not want to shoot them down.

Rev. Henry Mesler, rector of St. Stephen's church, was expected to speak, but was detained on account of illness. Rev. C. H. Mallery, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, took his place. He spoke of his pleasure in attending the meetings in the old meeting-house and he admired the faithfulness of the Friends. He wished the other churches were as faithful. Mr. Mallery said that he hoped that when the war is over there will be everlasting peace that was sung by the angels when Christ was born.

Miss Kathleen L. C. Phillips sang the "Winter Lullaby" after the addresses. Reports were read by the treasurer, Mrs. Winter, the chairman of the distributing committee, Mrs. L. M. Case, and chairman of the visiting committee, Mrs. Hillman. The meeting then closed with the benediction by Mr. Mallery.

FORMER JUDGE FOSTER NEW VICE CHANCELLOR

Will Succeed John R. Emery, Who Retired From Office Two Weeks Ago.

Trenton, Jan. 15.—Former Judge John E. Foster, of Atlantic Highlands, Monmouth county, was today appointed by Cancellor Edwin R. Walker as Vice Chancellor to succeed Vice Chancellor John A. Emery, who was retired two weeks ago at his own request by the Chancellor. The new Vice Chancellor will take the oath of office at the State House next Tuesday and will immediately take up his duties. The term of his office is seven years and the salary $12,000 a year.

Vice Chancellor Foster is a Republican, as is former Vice Chancellor Emery, so that in this appointment Chancellor Walker has followed the long established practice in selecting a Vice Chancellor of the same politics as the one who retires, thus preserving the court on a non-partisan basis.

Vice Chancellor Foster will maintain chambers either at Long Branch or Asbury Park. He will also sit in Newark for the trial of causes as Vice Chancellor Emery did. Chancellor Walker in speaking of his selection said that he had decided to go to another part of the State for a new Vice Chancellor inasmuch as both Vice Chancellors Emery and Stevens live in Morristown.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Miss Lillian Gish, the star of "The Birth of a Nation," and appearing at Proctor's today and tomorrow in "The Lily and the Rose," scores a decided hit in this feature, and is ably assisted by Roszika Dolly, the world famous dancer, and Wilfred Lucas. "The Lily and the Rose" taken all in all is a well rounded, artistic and intensely interesting play. The Keystone comedy offered in conjunction with the above is entitled, "The Great Vacuum Robbery," and is one of the best laugh producers presented at Proctor's this season. The vaudeville bill contains one of the most gorgeous productions presented on any local stage. It is "Forty Leagues Under the Sea," and carries a whole carload of special scenery. Others who help entertain are the Carre Sisters, two brilliant musicians; Mr. and Mrs. John Ellison, who entertain for fifteen minutes and score a decided hit, and Silver and Duval, who are a versatile pair. Don't forget the big bazaar today. Bring the kiddies, they will all receive presents. Among the Triangle plays booked for the first half of next week are Frank Campeau, Dorothy Gish and Owen Moore in "Jordan Is a Hard Road;" Roscoe Arbuckle in "Fatty and the Broadway Stars," an extremely novel and original Keystone comedy in which such Broadway favorites as the following appear, William Collier, Lew Fields, Joe Weber, Sam Bernard, Mack Sennett, Ford Sterling, and a host of others. Among the vaudeville offerings booked for the first of the week are Mayo and Welsh, two charming entertainers who offer a delightful singing, comedy and dancing act, Brosius and Brown, billed as the 20th century comedians; Edgar Berger, an agile youth, who performs the most difficult stunts, and a big surprise act that the management has booked, and which even promises to out-rival the mammoth scenic sensation presented the latter half of this week.

NOTED CANTOR TO GIVE SONG SERVICE

Rev. A. A. Rosenbloom Will Appear at Jewish Synagogue Tomorrow Night.

The noted Hebrew chason or cantor, Rev. A. A. Rosenbloom, will give a religious song service of "Mariff," also a sacred concert, in the Jewish synagogue on New street, tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock. The coming of this famous divine has been announced throughout this vicinity, and a large crowd is expected. Cantor Rosenbloom is widely known among the Jewish people of America, and has a large following. He has filled pulpits in Russia, London, Paris, and this country. He holds high rank as a composer and operatic cantor. His singing here will be a treat, not alone to the Jewish people, but to all those who enjoy hearing a cantor of exceptional ability.

The program arranged is a noteworthy one, and will include sacred songs held dear by the Hebrews, Zionistic, historic and national songs, also selections in Hebrew and Yiddish of the traditional Hebrew hymns. The Mariff is a beautiful sacred-song service that is rarely heard. An extra memorial service for the dead of all the nations of the war will be prayed at the conclusion of the musical program. Mr. Rosenbloom will deliver a sermon on "The Actions of the World." The Hebrew cantor has a wonderfully trained voice and this is the first time the Jewish people of Plainfield will have the ooportunity of hearing the famous cantor.

A WOMAN'S BACK

The Advice of This Plainfield Woman Is of Certain Value.

Many a woman's back has many aches and pains.

Ofttimes 'tis the kidneys' fault.

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills are so effective.

Many Plainfield women know this.

Read what one has to say about it:

Mrs. O. C. Moore, 57 Manning avenue, Plainfield, says: "I endured much misery from backache, caused by my kidneys. Many nights I was unable to rest at all and in the morning my limbs were so stiff and sore that I could hardly get out of bed. Whenever I caught the least cold, it settled on my kidneys and any strain on my back made the aches and pains worse. I was treated by physicians, but their medicine didn't help me and it was not until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's drug store that I had any hope of getting rid of the trouble. They made me feel like a different person and I have never had any serious trouble since."

Price 50 cents, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Moore had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

NATIONAL GUARD NOTES

The new olive drab overcoats for which the guardsmen have been looking for several years were received this week.

The issue of the coats came as the result of the criticism made on those worn by the new Jersey regiments which attended the inauguration of President Wilson in Washington. At that time the men were compelled to wear the old blue overcoats, some of which had capes, with red lining.

Preparations are being made by the First Field Hospital Company for the annual banquet, which will be held on Monday night, January 31, in Achtel-Stetter's restaurant, Newark. At this time there will also be a reunion of all the former members of the organization. It is expected to have several regular army officers present.

The committee on arrangements consists of: Chairman, R. F. Harris; Sergeant H. Doran and Corporal L. D. Knowles.

PREPAREDNESS NOW STANDS OUT AS MOST VITAL ISSUE

National preparedness has become the nation's most vital issue. Congressmen, at their homes during the holidays, learned how ardent is the sentiment of their constituents in this direction.

Many plans have been proposed, and the debates in congress will be heated. The most radical view is tha held by Roosevelt, who apparently believes that the United States should be constantly on a war basis equal to the most powerful nations of Europe.

The program proposed by President Wilson, who insists on action without delay, is a compromise between the various departments of the government, and is thus not wholly acceptable to many who made recommendations. It was not accepted by the war staff or the war college on the ground that it falls short of requirements. The plan for a continental army has been criticized by those who believe in more efficient militia.

Cong. Gardner, of Massachusetts, is considered the author of the preparedness movement, but his detailed program is declared by many of the military experts to be unscientific.

General Wood has given particular attention to the technical questions involved. The American people have never been instinctively a military class, but he insists that they should at least know the salient features of the military art.

Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the senate committee on military affairs, will have charge of administration measures in the senate. Senator Chamberlain is essentially militant and believes in maintaining our position regardless of developments.

One of the most notable advocates of a rational system of preparedness is Theodore Burton, former senator from Ohio, who advocates a constructive policy, perhaps typical of average sentiment, midway between the extreme tendencies of those who would place us on a war footing and advocates of peace at any price. He believes in such a degree of preparedness as is essential to defense, but opposes militarism. He advocates enlargement of the regular army, with reorganization and development of the national guard as an adjunct. He also lays stress upon the need for available officers, thoroughly trained in enlarged academies at Annapolis and West Point, extension of which is opposed by many.

Burton's attitude is of particular interest, because he is president of the American peace society, and while he ardently advocates a proper system of preparedness, he has not lost sight of the ultimate ideal in the settlement of international disputes by tribunal.

PARALYSIS FATAL TO MRS. ANN G. DUNHAM

Passes Away at Her Home on East Sixth Street This Afternoon.

Mrs. Anna G. Dunham, widow of James Vail Dunham, and a resident of this city for the past twelve years, died at 12:55 this afternoon at her home, 327 East Sixth street. Death resulted from a stroke of paralysis which she suffered Wednesday morning. She had had several strokes within the past four years, but had recovered from each one and up until Wednesday was able to be about in her usual state of health.

Mrs. Dunham was the daughter of the late John D. Field, a prominent resident of the River road, between Bound Brook and New Brunswick for many years. Mrs. Dunham was born at the homestead eighty-three years ago and after her marriage located on a farm between Bound Brook and Dunellen. At the death of her husband on January 13, 1891 she removed to Dunellen, residing in that borough until she purchased the home where she died. She was a woman who made and kept friends devoted to her family and possessed of one of the sweetest disposition ever bestowed, meeting her death as sweetly and calmly as she had lived her life. She was a member of Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church where she attended regularly as long as she was able.

Mrs. Dunham is survived by three daughters and one son. These are the Misses Ella F. and Elizabeth G. Dunham, who lived with her, and Mrs. Philip S. Suffern, of Kensington avenue, and C. I. Dunham, of Selma, Ala. There are also two sisters, the Misses C. D. and Jennie R. Field, of New Brunswick. There are six grand children living also, three in this city and three in Selma. No arrangements have been made for the funeral as yet.

MR. AND MRS. COLLINS OBSERVE "PAPER" WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Collins, of 301 Leland avenue, entertained twenty-five friends at their home last night in celebration of the second anniversary of their wedding, "Paper" being the designation. Pink and white paper streamers formed the principal decorations throughout the dining room and hall, but flowers were also used to good effect. During the evening piano and vocal solos were rendered by Miss Nan Beattie and Arthur Keinzle, while Clifford Cole also sang several songs. A supper served at midnight was one of the features.

Mr. and Mrs. Collins were married in the Netherwood Reformed church two years ago by Rev. Dr. C. W. F. Atlee, the latter occupying the church pulpit in the absence of the regular pastor. Mrs. Collins was formerly Miss Sadie Peacock, of this city. Both she and Mr. Collins received numerous appropriate gifts from the guests at last night's affair.

Visitors from Elizabeth, Garwood, Somerville, New Brunswick and New York attended.

Experience of an American Tourist Who Made a Bluff at Appearing to Know All the Ropes—A Patient Conductor and an Interested Cargo.

Writing of his adventures in the Chinese city of Shanghai, Homer Croy, in Leslie's Weekly, tells of the experience he had there in taking a ride on a street car:

The car was full of Chinamen, with not another white soul aboard, all sitting there in their skirts, their faces as expressionless as the heads of drums, but as soon as I came in their faces began to fill with interest, one nudging another until the whole car was looking at me.

I felt that something was wrong, but I could not figure out just what. I knew that it shouldn't create that much of a sensation for a white person to get on a car in Shanghai, but still they were looking at me as if I could be signed by a circus. I struggled to look unconcerned, but I knew that my cheeks were backfiring.

The conductor, in his suit of blue jeans, with a satchel over his shoulder, came up and said something to me, while I nodded with earnest carelessness and handed him a twenty cent piece, knowing that he could get enough out of it to satisfy his wants.

"Mun stau chong du?" he asked.

I nodded again and held out my hand for the change, plainly showing that I made the trip on the line twice a day.

"Mun stau chong du t'aing kaing shon da?" he asked with more feeling, pointing down the street with one hand.

"I didn't catch the drift of his remarks, but I wasn't going to show him that I wasn't an old citizen and taxpayer, so I shook my head this time and nestled back in the seat as if it were all settled. But the conductor became more excited than ever, drafted the other hand and gurgled:

"Mun stau chong du t'aing kaing shon da feah da tsu sz whoo peh quong?"

So I waved in the other direction and tried to nestle again, but the conductor came back with another round of monosyllabic re-enforcements. With that his fellow men in the car came to his help with an artesian of words, each one thinking that he could make it plain by raising his voice just a bit higher than any one else.

Reaching in his satchel, the conductor offered me a slip of paper spoiled with Chinese writing. I took it and started to stuff it nonchalantly into my pocket, but he became more excited than ever and came back with another string of empties, while I put the slip back into his hand as if it made not the slightest bit of difference in the world to me whether I kept it or whether he had it—I would leave the details of the trip to him.

The conductor used his hands some more and then turned and signaled for somebody from the car ahead. Another man in blue jeans with a satchel over his shoulder came and listened for a few blocks while my conductor explained. A Chinaman can never explain anything in a sentence or two; he has to go into details and go through his whole selling talk before he feels that the other has grasped the general drift of thought.

The other man bent over. He was evidently a master of English. "How muchee far you goee, mister? You payee how far you lidee."

Then I understood. When you get on you have to tell the conductor how far you are going, and he charges you for just that distance. But even after my fare was settled the natives on the car kept looking at me and pointing with their chins, as is their custom.

When I went to get off I saw several other white people piling off, but they were all from the front end of the first car. Then I looked at the markings on the car and saw what was the matter—I had been riding in the third class section with the coolies!

All the Shanghai street cars are divided up into classes—first, second and third. The white people all ride first class, the better to do Chinese second, while no one ever ventures third except the coolies.

Nature and Poetry.

Environment aids poetry, but does not create it. Nature is the grand agent in making poetry, and poetry is present wherever nature is. It sparkles on the sea, glows in the rainbow, flashes from the lightning and the star, peals in thunder, roars in the cataract and sings in the winds. Poetry is God's image reflected in nature, as in a mirror, and nature is present wherever man is.—Selected.

His Weak Point.

A man who takes a business view of things when recently asked his opinion of a person of quite a poetic temperament replied:

"Oh, he's one of those men who have soarings after the infinite and divings after the unfathomable, but who never pay cash!"

Something Else.

"Is loving a verb?"

"No; it's just plain nonsense."

Having made this reply to his daughter's question, Mr. Grouch looked a few daggers.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

BUSINESS ASSOCIATES AT THOMAS SYKES' FUNERAL

The funeral of Thomas F. Sykes, whose death occurred Thursday, following an attack of pneumonia, was held at his late home, 202 East Ninth street, this afternoon. Although the service was of a private nature, it was attended by relatives and friends from Plainfield and numerous business associates from New York. Rev. Dr. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church, was the officiating clergyman, assisted by Rev. Oscar Michael, of All Saints' church, Scotch Plains. The choir boys of Grace church sang two selections, "Ten Thousand Times Ten Thousand" and "Lead, Kindly Light."

There were many handsome floral tributes, a number of set pieces coming from the New York brokerage firm of Robinson & Co., with which Mr. Sykes was connected, and a number of his business associates in the financial district of New York. Burial was made in the family plot in the Scotch Plains cemetery.

CHIMNEY FIRE IN BOROUGH.

The borough fire department was called out at 7:15 o'clock last night by a chimney fire in the kitchen of the home of Donald McGee, at 103 Sycamore avenue. The fire was caused by an overheated range igniting an accumulation of soot in the chimney. The contents of one chemical extinguisher was sufficient to conquer the fire. No damage was done.

ANDREW McCARDELL IMPROVED

In response to a telephone inquiry this afternoon, the condition of Andrew McCardell, who is detained at his home on West Front street, was reported to be improved. Dr. A. H. Pittis, who is in charge of the case said Mr. McCardell had passed the worst of the attack and is on the road to recovery.

A BATTLE OF THE WINDS.

When Boreas and Notus Rage at Each Other on the Bosporus.

By a strange phenomenon, if the south wind prevails the superficial current of the Bosporus is reversed, though the inferior current continues its accustomed course. Then the waters on the surface are piled tumultuously back upon one another, and the quays, which are several feet above the ordinary Bosporus level, are flooded and perhaps made impassable. At such times caiques and smaller boats do not dare to venture upon the tempestuous surface.

Sometimes a strong wind blows northward from the Marmora, and another wind as strong blows with equal violence southward from the Black sea. Then, as one gazes from some central point like Roumeli Hissar, he beholds ships under full sail majestically approaching each other from both directions till at last they are only two or three miles apart. Between them lies a belt of moveless sea, into which they are forced and on which they drift helplessly about and perhaps crash into each other's sides.

This is a duel royal between Boreas and Notus and may continue for hours. Gradually the zone of calm is forced north or south. At last one wind withdraws like a defeated champion from the arena. The ships which it has brought thus far drop their anchors and wait or else hire one of the numerous steam tugs which are paddling expectantly about. The ships which have come with the victorious wind triumphantly resume their course, and meanwhile their sailors mock and jeer their fellow mariners whose breeze has failed them.—From "Constantinople," by Dr. Edwin A. Grosvenor.

Clothes In Colonial Days.

When Salem was settled the Massachusetts Bay company furnished clothes for all the men who immigrated and settled in that town. Every man had four pairs of shoes, four pairs of stockings, a pair of Norwich garters, four shirts, two suits of doublets, a pair of hose of leather lined with oilskin, a woolen suit lined with leather, four bands, two handkerchiefs, a green cotton waistcoat, a leather belt, a woolen cap, a black hat, two red knit caps, two pairs of gloves, a cloak lined with cotton and an extra pair of breeches.

Wills In Argentina.

In Argentina the laws provide that a father must leave his children four-fifths of his fortune, and a husband, if he has no children, has to leave half of his property to his wife. An unmarried son is compelled to leave his parents two-thirds of his property, and only unmarried persons without parents or descendants can make wills disposing of their possessions as they see fit.

AMERICANS FLEE FROM OUTLAWS IN MEXICO

El Paso, Jan. 15.—More than 2,000 Americans, men, women and children, in the Mexican State of Chihuahua, are in danger of their lives today from Villistas. To protect them there are only 250 Carranzista soldiers, scattered in small detachments. That this force is entirely inadequate is realized here, and frantic efforts are being made to rescue the endangered persons.

These 2,000 Americans must be brought out of Mexico within the next five days if their lives are to be saved. Steps already have been taken to rescue them by a committee of representative Americans in El Paso, and the first lot, 150, including many women and children, are expected to arrive here tomorrow.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

Blanche Sweet, the celebrated young Paramount star, will be seen for the last two times today at the U. S. Astor Theatre in the engrossing film version of the drama, "The Case of Becky," in which Miss Charlotte Walker appeared two seasons ago in Manhattan. Miss Sweet gave a splendid performance in the role of Becky, who has a dual personality, some of the photographic tricks with which the play abounds being truly wonderful. The dramatic feature Monday and Tuesday, will be "Sweet Alyssum," featuring Kathlyn Williams and Tyrone Power. It is a Selig production in six engrossing parts. Tyrone Power, who has appeared in many stage successes, is a splendid film actor, and should attract to the Astor next Monday and Tuesday many who have seen him on the stage. Wednesday and Thursday the discriminating folk of Plainfield will have an opportunity to see a comedy that is rich in subtle humor. On those days "Peer Gynt" will be exhibited, with Cyril Maude, the noted British comedian, in the leading character of "Peer."

FIRE IN WOMAN'S EXCHANGE.

The Woman's Exchange on Park avenue was the scene of a slight fire at 11:35 this morning caused by an over-heated chimney starting a blaze in a baseboard. The flames communicated to a show case filled with fancy goods and for the time being a dangerous fire was threatened. A telephone alarm was sent into headquarters and No. 2 hose company responded. The blaze was put out with chemicals and the damage amounted to only a few dollars.

Plainfield Construction-Realty News

ARCHITECTS' DRAWING OF NEW EAST END SCHOOL TO BE ERECTED AT MIDWAY, SUMNER AND EMERSON AVENUES.

DETAILS OF NEW EAST END SCHOOL

Structure Will Be Second to None of its Kind in the City Except in Size.

READY IN THE FALL

Original Portion Will Be So Constructed as to Permit of Additions From Time to Time as Necessity Demands.

The Plainfield Board of Education, which has been working for some time on plans for a new school in the vicinity of Leland and Netherwood avenues, announced yesterday that rapid progress is being made and that the building would be ready for the new school year next September and, with the exception of size, would be equal to any educational department structure in the city.

The site selected for this building by the Board of Education is an ideal one for school purposes—it being about two hundred and fifty feet square with a frontage on Midway avenue, Sumner avenue and Emerson avenue. It is but a block from the main trolley line and is centrally located for the community which it will serve. Its size will permit of ample play grounds not only at present, but in later years as the building may be increased in capacity.

On account of the proximity of the trolley line, the building to be erected next year will be located at the northerly end of the block with the entrance toward Midway avenue. This building will be the first unit of a structure that will eventually have its main entrance on Emerson avenue.

In addition to satisfying the immediate needs of this section of the city, the Board of Education has looked well into the future, with the result that the first portion of the building to be erected can, with a minimum of disturbance, be increased to provide two additional class rooms and ultimately be made into a twelve, sixteen or twenty-four room building with a suitable auditorium as future needs develop.

The plans adopted contemplate a structure containing six class rooms, four on the first floor and two on the second—two of the class rooms on the first floor being so arranged as to permit of their being thrown together to form an assembly room accommodating three hundred people. Five of the class rooms will seat forty pupils and each will have its separate cloak room with sanitary steel lockers. The kindergarten will accommodate about fifty pupils. The basement floor, as in the new Evergreen avenue building, will be but a few feet below grade and the basement itself will have a twelve foot ceiling. This, together with a sufficient amount of glass area at the windows, will permit of its use for future class rooms at a very slight cost. In the basement at present there will be large, well lighted play rooms and toilets for both boys and girls, a manual training room and the heating and ventilating apparatus. Provision will be made on one of the upper floors for a teachers' room.

In the exterior of the building as shown in the illustration, the architects, Messrs. Wilder and White, have given a distinct individuality to its design by a frank acceptance of the structural conditions. While the addition to the Plainfield High School was naturally designed to accord as nearly as possible to the original structure, and the Evergreen Avenue School, now nearing completion, was adapted in design to the reinforced concrete type of construction, the design of the new East End school is an expression of the "wall bearing" construction which is generally more economical in smaller buildings.

Owing to the large amount of glass area required for the class rooms, these bearing walls of necessity have to be strengthened on each side of the window openings. It will be noted that this structural requirement has been expressed by the use of pilasters or piers at this point. In addition, therefore, to serving a structural purpose, these piers, together with simple brick belt courses and a careful proportion of openings, will relieve the building of a severity too often found in buildings of this type and will give it an appearance at once distinctive and pleasing.

The new East End school, like the Evergreen avenue building and the addition to the High School, will be of fireproof construction throughout, even the roof being of reinforced concrete. In addition to this the stairs from the basement to the roof will be fireproof and entirely enclosed in brick walls with fireproof doors at all openings, thus affording every possible protection to the occupants of the building.

The plans for the building are now nearing completion and it is the purpose of the Board of Education to advertise for bids at no distant date so that the work may be started early in the spring, with the idea of having the new school ready for occupancy in September.

POWDER COMPANY ADDS TO HOLDINGS

Du Pont Concern Purchases 49 Acre Tract Near Pompton —To Build Homes.

The E. I. du Pont de Nemours Powder Company, which has plants at Haskell, Wayne and Pompton, extending over an area of about eight square miles, Thursday added a large tract to the many stretches of undeveloped lands which it has purchased during the last few months. The latest transaction involves the purchase of forty-nine acres at Pompton from Judge Walter C. Cabell, of the District Court, at Passaic.

Since November 1 the Du Pont Company has added about two thousand acres to its holdings of ground adjoining its extensive plant. While announcement was made by the company about a month ago that much of the property would be used for the erection of home for its employes, many of whom are boarding in the vicinity of the works until they can obtain homes for their families now living in other cities, some as far West as Chicago, it is the general belief in Pompton and Haskell that the opening of the spring season will witness the erection of another large plant for the manufacture of powder, caps and shells.

At the present time about thirty-five hundred men are employed twenty-four hours a day filling orders, and it is said these will keep the works running at full capacity three or four years.

CONTRACT FILED.

The following contract has been filed at the office of the county clerk: Frank L. Holt, with Alexander Milne, entire work new building, Kensington avenue, Plainfield. $6,859.

1916 PROMISES TO BE BIG YEAR

Contractors and Realty Men Optimistic Over Building Outlook in Plainfield.

LOTS OF NEW WORK

More Sanguine Building Men Believe That One Million Dollar Mark May Be Reached in Contracts for New Structures.

Although the value of Plainfield's building operations during 1915, as told in last Saturday's Daily Press, approximated $600,000, indications for the coming twelve months point to a far higher figure. Indeed, it is not improbable that the total of new work and alterations will not fall far short of the $1,000,000 mark. Contractors and real estate men agree that 1916 should be a banner year owing to the prosperous condition of manufactories and the fact that money has not been so tight since the time that war orders began to be received in this country. With the local factories working full time and paying better wages than ever before it can readily be seen that more homes, more stores, and more improvements will be a natural result.

The opening two weeks of the year have commenced rather slowly in the form of applications through the building inspector, but by the time the regular spring building boom is on a lot of new work may be expected. Plans are already under way for the new home of the State Trust company to be erected at North and Park avenues, the new business and apartment structure to go up on the former Cousson property on West Second street, the new East End school, the new Y. M. C. A. building, the new Marshall building on Watchung avenue, the proposed City Hall at Watchung avenue and Sixth street, and the proposed new Kenney structure on North avenue. The aggregate cost of these structures will run into several hundreds of thousands, and will do much toward pushing Plainfield's 1916 building operations to the million dollar mark mentioned above. Beside the buildings designated, several other investors are working under cover at the present time, and will probably have something of interest to say within the next few months.

The erection of a City Hall on Watchung avenue will do much to promote new work on that thoroughfare, as well as bring about numerous alterations and improvements. Property owners in that especial vicinity are unusually sanguine. A perusal of 1915 figures show that about five hundred new families came to Plainfield within the year, mostly as a result of increased factory operation, and local building concerns have been quick to appreciate what it means to them. As a result, numerous new dwellings may be looked for in both the East and the West Ends. The removal of the State Trust Company to a new home, the transfer of the Daily Press' printing house further up North avenue, and the completion of the Federal postoffice are all factors that will do much to give impetus to the buildings operations in the business district.

The same optimistic outlook is held with regard to North Plainfield and Dunellen, because of the installation of sewers. The lack of this modern sanitary equipment has always been pointed out as retarding the growth of the two places, and with this obstacle removed, much is expected of 1916. Plainfield contractors and workmen naturally benefit by operations in either place, so what is good for North Plainfield and Dunellen is good for this city. Reports from Scotch Plains, Fanwood, South Plainfield, New Market and other suburbs are all encouraging, each one stating that the coming spring and summer will see a lot of new work. Warrenville is another place that will be heard from through the plans of Mr. Hoffheimer to put a handsome new home on the former Hauser tract, and if recent property purchases are any criterion, there will be considerable building work along the Warrenville and Washington Valley roads in the near future. Altogether 1916 at the present time looks good for contractors and building men in general.

SEEK TO PREVENT INCREASED PRICES

Sentiment of Building Material Dealers is Against Ascending Movement.

WAGES ARE INCREASED

Boss Plasterers and Journeymen of Locals 30 and 60 Adopt a New Working Schedule as to Hours and Holidays—Building Affected.

New York, Jan. 15.—At the annual banquet of the Building Material Dealers' Exchange held this week at the McAlpin there was an unqualified sentiment expressed in favor of arresting, if possible, the rapidly ascending movement of building material prices in the metropolitan district. This sentiment centered mainly in sections where construction this spring will be of speculative character. The agreement just approved to advance wages of plasterers to $6 a day after April was also a matter of informal discussion. The two factors combined to give considerable potency to the tendency on the part of manufacturers to advance prices still further.

On the very next day there were well-defined rumors to the effect that a five-cent advance was due to be announced at any time on Portland cement. The price of common Hudson brick also held firm.

Under the plan just completed between the employing plasterers and the journeymen of Locals 30 and 60, there shall be no work done under any circumstances between the hours of 7 and 8 o'clock in the morning on Saturday, or between noon and 6 o'clock. All overtime shall be done on Sundays rather than on holidays, and no work under any circumstances shall be done by any union plasterer on Election Day or Christmas. St. Patrick's Day is classed as a national holiday with Washington's Birthday, Lincoln's Birthday, Decoration Day, July 4, Columbus Day, Election Day, Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's.

All overtime hereafter shall be permitted only by due notice having been given in advance by the builder to the arbitration board, which shall appoint a special committee to determine whether overtime work is actually necessary.

This provision eliminates all possibility of owners crowding contractors to unprofitable extremes in forcing jobs to completion within a certain specified time. Heretofore it has been possible for a contractor to take a low bid and get his men to work, only to find the owner insisting upon night work and holiday overtime to the extent that all his profit is wiped out by paying extra wages to his men. It protects the contractor against vindictiveness.

Building material interests in the district professed at the banquet to believe that this condition, in the light of higher building material, will have a tendency to scare off moderate-sized building operations in various parts of the district, and the bear movement that is developing has taken on a form that promises to make skyrocketing of prices early this spring almost impossible.

Manufacturers, on the other hand, say that there is a pressure for building materials that bodes well for early spring construction. There are some mills that are behind in their orders. The common brick situation here is low, but demand during the last half of the week fell off considerably, thereby easing the pressure. The cold snap at the opening of the week threw prices back to $8.50, but as the week wore on there was a range quoted of from $8.50 to $9 for good open cargo brick, while reserve covered barges were quietly listed at $10.

Lumber is still in a firm market. There is a heavy call for Douglas fir, on which prices have sharply advanced since August. In July 1x4, No. 1, VG fir flooring was $19.50 F. O. B. mill. In August the price was $20; in September, $21; October, $21; November, $21.50; December, $22.50, making a $2 advance since July. There are excellent reasons for believing that this commodity will continue to advance. Heavy timbering work in New York city and the extra demand for accommodation by reason of the closing of the Panama Canal are said to be two causes for the advance. There is also a big demand for this material on both seaboards from shipbuilders. The rise in this kind of lumber has been reflected in others, although the price advance in this department of building material cannot now be said to be general.

Structural steel is holding firm at 2.169 cents a pound, and there are no assurances that even this level is the maximum. Steel orders for buildings are from six to eight weeks behind schedule. Linseed oil also had an upward movement this week, when the prices were quoted in this market as high as 70 and 72 cents a gallon.

WEEK'S PERMITS REACH $3,250 TOTAL

Applications at Building Inspector's Office Best Recorded During Month.

After a previous two weeks of depression, building operations in Inspector Doane's office since Monday have taken an upward turn. Three permits were granted up to this morning, one of them for a new structure and the other two for additions. The total amount involved is $3,250, the best that has been recorded for a month. The applications and permits were as follows:

Nicholas Guiccianic, of Scotch Plains, plans to erect a two-story frame dwelling on McCrea place, the structure measuring 28 by 32 feet. The estimated cost has been placed at $2,000. The owner will care for the carpenter work but the contract for the mason work has been let to Frank Ciricufulo.

Strule Goldstein has applied for a permit to erect a 19 by 24 foot, one story frame addition to the dwelling at 412-414 Liberty street, at a cost of $250. Theodore J. Zeller has the general contract for the work.

Winifred and Elmer R. Mills are to erect a 20 by 36 foot hollow terra cotta block structure at 1217 West Front street, to be used for the manufacture of ice cream. The cost will amount to $1,000. Joseph Mills, of East Fourth street, has the general contract.

WESTFIELD'S NEW SCHOOL DEDICATED

Handsome Structure Costing $130,000 is One of the Most Complete in New Jersey.

The dedicatory program for the new Westfield High School, one of the finest buildings of the kind in the State, began Thursday afternoon, and was concluded last night with elaborate exercises. State Commissioner of Education Calvin N. Kendall was one of the speakers.

Work on the new school commenced on July 2, 1914. The structure cost $130,000. A few statistics are:

Length of building on Elm street front, 118 feet. Length of building on Walnut street front, 118 feet. Ground area, 12,500 square feet. Capacity—Classrooms, 350 pupils; lunch room, 130 pupils; laboratory lecture room, 72 pupils; other special rooms, about 280 pupils; auditorium, 830 persons.

The new High School has four floors and a sub-basement. The sub-basement contains the boiler room and cold storage. The basement contains, on the Elm street side, the domestic science lunch room, pantry and demonstration room and a model dining room, together with closets and pantries. On the Walnut street side are a wood-working room, lathes, storage room and finishing room for mechanical drawing. In the center of the basement are the boys' general locker room and the girls' general locker room, the boys' athletic room ad showers, girls' athletic room and showers, girls' athnasium balcony. The gyynasium is 20x60 feet, with ceiling 18 feet high, and has a capacity for attendance at games of 250. The capacity of the locker rooms is 500. On this floor will be found [illegible] the main switchboard.

On the first floor is the music room, cook storage room, principal's office, Board of Education room, one recitation room, district clerk's office and the bookkeeping, typewriting and dictation rooms. The commercial department is connected directly with the district clerk's room, so that classes in business practice may be able to get practical experience from the study of business conditions in the Westfield school system. The auditorium is also on this floor, and has a seating capacity of 515. On the second floor is the auditorium balcony, seating 315; six recitation rooms and the library. At the rear of the balcony in the auditorium there is a fireproof booth for a moving picture lantern.

On the third floor are five recitation rooms, sewing room, drawing room, biological laboratory, physical laboratory, chemistry laboratory and science laboratory. In connection with the science department there is a dark room for the development of prints, and there are hoods in both laboratories. In the physical laboratory there is a smaller workroom for the instructor.

The Westfield High School is a fireproof building, made of red brick with concrete foundations. All rooms in the building, except two will have direct sunlight. The ventilating system is on the plan of making each classroom a unit, the air being drawn in by motor and sent over the radiator into the room. The building is furnished with standard electric time clocks and bells in every room, and with a vacuum cleaning system.

NEW HOME AT DUNELLEN.

The contract for erecting the proposed new house of Joseph Fromeyer on his land on Second street, adjoining the property of J. Z. Kelly, has been awarded to Contractor Edward Daniels. It is to be a fine modern house with eight rooms and bath. Work will start at an early date.

A Galley o' Fun!

A RIFT IN THE LUTE.

I love to see the sunshine
A-playing on the wall;
I love to see the little kids
That do not care at all;
I love to see the green, green grass
And vegetables grow,
And watch the birds and buds and things
And think of all I know.
Then when the husky sun is high,
Enflamed its brutal breath,
I love to grasp the graceful birch,
And beat a rug to death!

Brother Lobstock—How did yo' all got yo' nose busted?

Brother Tump—I done slipped down an' plumb lit on my back.

Brother Lobstock—But, name o' goodness, sah—yo' nose isn't located on yo' back!

Brother Tump—No, sah; an' needer was Brudder Wack.

PROTECTED BY ART.

Mrs. Horse—I can see that we are losing prestige daily.

Mr. Horse—Nonsense! What would an equestrian statue on an automobile look like?

RAISED HIS IDEALS.

Joshua—Sile has awful high ideals of wimmen. Won't pay no attention to any of the girls round here.

Abner—I know it. The blamed gilley'll set an' admire the pictures of girls in the corset advertisements fer hours at a time.

A LEAD PIPE CINCH.

Mistress—So you are to be married, Bridget? May you be very, very happy!

Cook—Shure, Mum, it's a cinch! He gits twinty darlers a wake and weighs forty pounds less 'n I do!

THE MERMAID.

"Goodness!" exclaimed the mermaid petulently. "I can't so much as look out of the water without my hair coming out straight!"

STUCK FAST.

"Come off!" we shouted to the man again and again, but to no avail. We afterward discovered that he was stuck on himself.

FIND THE MORAL.

A dog, so the Modern Fable goes, carrying a large, juicy bone in his mouth, was walking along a narrow plank which spanned a brooklet. Happening to glance downward, the canine was surprised to see his luncheon reflected in the clear waters.

"Well, well," he thought to himself, cross-eyeing the real bone; "this is certainly food for reflection!"

Saying which, he proceeded to bore his friends for the next three weeks with his brilliant sally.

R-R-REVENGE.

Doctor—I knew cod-liver oil tastes pretty bad at first but you will get used to it in time and get to like it.

Patient—Get to like it? Well, if ever do I'll punish a lot of it just to get even.

REINFORCEMENTS EXPECTED.

"Hully gee! A snake! An' dere'll be eleven more of dem here in a minute! I never see less dan a dozen at a time!"

NOT ADMITTED.

Isaacs—I suppose a man can have horse-sense mitout making a lot of money, ain'dt it?

Cohenstein—Vell, I don't know. If he's got horse-sense he ought to have somedings to show for it.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, JANUARY 15, 1916.

On Saturdays the editorial columns of the Daily Press are conducted by citizens who are free to express their own views. The contributing editor for today is William D. Murray, Chairman of Committee in Charge of "Biederwolf Evangelistic Campaign.

EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN.

From evey quarter for a long time news has been coming of the increasing interest in religion and we hear constantly of great revivals in various parts of this and other countries. The special meetings held during the recent Week of Prayer in Plainfield show that the same interest exists here. No doubt the fearful events in Europe are responsible in part for this condition, for men are seeking things eternal as they see so much which seemed to be permanent passing away.

Realizing the good a revival of religion would do our city, our pastors at one of their meetings last July issued a call for a conference of pastors and laymen to see what could be done at this opportune time to take advantage of the religious trend of the times. As a result of this meeting an Executive Committee was appointed consisting of the pastors of the city and one or more laymen from each church. A call was extended to the Rev. William E. Biederwolf, D. D., and he has consented to conduct a six weeks' campaign in our city beginning about the middle of April next.

Dr. Biederwolf is a well known evangelist and has been engaged in this form of service since 1900. He is a graduate of Wabash College and obtained his A. B. at Princeton in 1892 and his A. M. from the same institution two years later. In 1895 he was graduated from the Princeton Theological Seminary, obtaining a fellowship in Greek, on which he had two years study in the Universities of Germany. He was ordained a Presbyterian minister in 1897 and was a pastor in Logansport, Indiana, until he took up the evangelistic work, except for one year when he was a chaplain in the Spanish American War, spending six months in the United States and six months in Cuba. Dr. Biederwolf is president of the Interdenominational Association of Evangelists and is secretary of the Evangelistic Commisssion of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

His work as an evangelist has been remarkably successful and those who know him personally are congratulating us on securing a man so well educated and so sane and spiritual minded.

Dr. Biederwolf brings with him a company of nearly a dozen people, including one of the best male quartets that has ever visited our city. A chorus choir of two hundred or more voices will be organized from among our own people. The other members of the party are those who work in various departments of the campaign, such as young people's meetings, Bible classes, shop meetings, etc. The salaries of these assistants are fixed by agreement and the Executive Committee has obligated itself for about sixteen hundred dollars for this item.

The meetings will be conducted in a Tabernacle to be built just behind the row of houses on the west side of Front street, nearly opposite Plainfield avenue, the entrance being from Gerard avenue which runs into Front street. The size of this building will be approximately 120 by 250 feet and it will seat six thousand people. The evangelist has his own Tabernacle builder who will supervise the construction of the building. The net cost of the Tabernacle is difficult to fix, but it will, with the rental of the lot, approximate fifteen hundred dollars.

It is estimated that the total cost of the campaign will be approximately six thousand dollars, and this is the sum which the finance committee is now asking individuals to underwrite, so that cash will be avaliable until the offerings are received at the meetings. This sum is the maximum of estimated expenses, and may not be reached. In addition to the above items it includes advertising, printing and stationery, lighting, heating (if needed), entertainment of evangelist and party for six weeks and incidentals. The experience in all cities where these campaigns have been held has been that the offerings at the meetings more than cover expenses. The evangelist himself receives as his compensation, not a fixed sum, but a public offering at each of the three services on the last Sunday and also on Monday evening, if necessary. This is a free-will gift of the people to Dr. Biederwolf for his work.

While the campaign itself will begin about the middle of April preliminary meetings will be held during the preceding month. These will consist of special meetings in the churches and cottage prayer meetings in different parts of the city, in charge of the devotional committee, the city having been districted for this purpose.

The organization is now practically complete, the Executive Committee being in control, with headquarters at the Y. M. C. A. Building. The officers of this committee are as follows: William D. Murray, chairman; Joseph W. Gavett and George M. Rittenhouse, vice-chairmen; A. V. Heely, treasurer; DeWitt Hubbell, assistant treasurer, and J. H. Manning, secretary.

The following gentlemen have accepted the chairmanships of the various committees: Usher, Rev. B. S. Hudson, D. D.; finance, George E. Hall; advertising, Allen E. Beals; press, Alfred C. Estes; music, S. T. Carter, Jr.; devotional, Rev. C. M. Anderson, D. D.; canvassing, Rev. E. C. Conover; building, F. R. Stevens, and entertainment, Rev. John S. Zelie, D. D.

Those who remember the Mills meetings are looking forward with great faith to the repetition in our city of the wonderful work done by that evangelist, the results of which still abide. A great blessing is undoubtedly in store for Plainfield and the way in which the people are entering into the work of preparation promises well. We need above all else, from now on, the prayers of Christian people individually and in churches for this great Evangelistic Movement.

WILLIAM D. MURRAY.

A muttess, perhaps, we should say.
Each drifted on in an aeon-old rut

Their mating was one of those marital crimes

Have You An Open Air School In Your District?

THE OPEN AIR SCHOOL habit is getting better every year. People in general are letting a little common sense trickle into their cerebral hemispheres, and the school children, especially the physically defective ones, are reaping the benefits of open air life.

New York City has some 250 open window schoolrooms, and the children fortunate enough to be in those rooms make just a little better progress in their schoolwork than do children in closed window schoolrooms, as one would naturally expect. If fresh air is good for the body it is good for the mind.

Open window schoolrooms are all right for merely anemic children, or those with catarrhal tendencies or those threatening to undergo operations for enlarged tonsils or adenoids. But open windows are not enough for children of families or households where tuberculosis exists or has recently existed. Open windows bring in some fresh air—and fresh air is nothing but cool, moving air—but there is still something to be gained in a real open air schoolroom that can't be had in an open window schoolroom. We are unable to define what this something is, but we know it is. We know there is something the porch bedroom adds to health that the open bedroom window does not add. And there is something the open air shack brings to the victim of tuberculosis that open windows will not bring. Perhaps it is light, or some chemical influence. We can't define it, but it is there in the open air.

In every school there are at least some children whose health demands the open air schoolroom, saying nothing of the anemic, nervous, run-down teacher herself.

Have you an open air room in your school building? Or do the people in your district feel that the less fresh air a schoolchild has the better for the tax-rate?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Antitoxin

Is there any danger of untoward action from a dose of diphtheria antitoxin administered to a person who has been previously injected with lockjaw antitoxin (about a year previously)?

Answer—Yes. Once injected with horse serum the individual may be "sensitized," and suffer severely from hives or erythema or asthmatic symptoms (called anaphylactic shock) if given more horse serum weeks or months later. But in such a case the doctor may inject a few drops as a test, and if no unpleasant reaction follows, inside of two hours a full dose may be safely administered.

A Cough Medicine

If not asking too much, will you please repeat the formula you printed some time ago for an old-fashioned cough medicine?

Answer—It was something like this:

Citrate of soda	1 ounce
Licorice powder	½ ounce
Flaxseed meal	2 ounces
Glycerin	4 ounces
Chloroform	⅛ ounce
Water....enough to make one quart

First boil the flaxseed in the water, stirring it in gradually. While it is cooling add the citrate, then the licorice and glycerin. After it is cold add the chloroform. Shake occasionally through the day. Keep tightly covered. Next day strain through muslin. The two-hour dose is, teaspoonful for child, teaspoonful for adult.

HOTELS

A HOTEL is a place where hospitality is dispensed at meter rates. There are in the United States over 100,000 hotels, some of which are good.

Hotels vary greatly in size and severity. In New York and Chicago, one may find hotels containing 1,500 rooms apiece, in some of which rooms an awkward guest could not turn around without knocking over $1,100 worth of bric-a-brac. In Arkansas, on the other hand, there are hotels in which a guest has to pay extra if he doesn't want to sleep with the family and which use the Mississippi river for a bath tub.

An ordinary hotel consists of a desk, with a register on it, a collection of rooms furnished luxuriously with windows, doors and beds with sheets on them, a dining room, gorgeously decorated with straw-colored pompadours and a writing room with a last year's time-table in it. The United States is full of such hotels. They only vary in the badness of the meals served. Some of these hotels change cooks every day, while others retain the same cook year after year, by allowing her to eat somewhere else.

There are also in this country a fairly large number of old-fashioned hotels where the family does the cooking and eats it too, right out in public in the dining room. These hotels have old-fashioned heating stoves, and when the guest rises in winter he has to whittle the water out of the pitcher before he can wash his face. But they are eagerly sought by travelers for all that, because of the ease and fluency with which the bill of fare can be consumed, and the comfortable feeling which they leave in the vest and pants pocket regions.

Besides these two varieties, there are also modern hotels. These consist of a lobby upholstered in marble, onyx, gold and flunkeys and decorated at the rear with a member of some royal family behind a register. The lobby is surmounted by about twenty layers of rooms, each of which rents for the price of a pair of shoes per night, while scattered about on the ground floor are restaurants, in which one may secure a large, well-cooked meal with plenty of side dishes for the price of an acre of land in Texas. In fact, it is perfectly easy for a small man with a fair appetite to eat up a whole Texas farm in a week in a New York hotel, especially if he washes it down liberally.

He has to whittle the water out of the pitcher before he can wash his face

The legislatures of some states are regulating the length of the sheets used by hotels. This gives rise to the hope that the clerk may be regulated a little in due time, though no one has had the nerve to tackle the job as yet.

Views Of The Press

After The War—Hate Or Friendship

SOME GENTLEMEN of prominence have been rather busy talking about how much the United States is now hated by all the warring countries in Europe because here we are trying to attend strictly to our own business and not mix in their fight, watching and guarding our neutrality and keeping within the terms of international law, and some are talking about the hate that will be stored up against us for the day of peace, hate that will last for years to come. One man of nation-wide reputation says that the victors will say that they won in spite of the United States, while the vanquished will charge that they lost because of the attitude of this country.

The fact is that there's respect for the United States among the warring nations of Europe, and there's evidence that when the war is over there will be friendly relations, for trade with this country is even now being looked forward to in countries now at war. When the war is over the attitude of the United States through this most trying period in the world's history will be better understood, and there will be for it quite as much commendation as hate, if indeed after all is over and peace is once more established there is not a show of genuine gratitude that the United States alone of all the great nations remained neutral and kept its friendship for all at war.

Just now it is the part of wisdom for all here to be careful of their utterances, quite as careful of them as of their acts, that strict neutrality is preserved and that friendships may be promoted. Harsh things are being said and printed in the different warring countries because the United States has not done this to the liking of one side or the other or has done this and that in upholding its neutrality which has aroused the enmity of one or the other side, but that does not call for harsh words in reply. It's the soft answer that turns away wrath. The dawn of peace should be looked forward to with a determination to do everything possible here to promote the cause of peace, the comity of nations and that international friendship that means so much for civilization, for its commerce, its arts and ideals. —Youngstown Vindicator.

When The Instalment Is Due

Q. If one makes a contract with another individual for the payment of money in instalments or by way of interest on loans, isn't it true that, in case the instalment payments are not met, the entire sum becomes due and payable?

A. It is common to make provision for a contingency of this character. If a provision is inserted in the contract which renders the whole sum due and payable in the event of default as to an instalment, the provision will be perfectly legal.

A Photograph As Evidence

Q. Please tell me whether a photograph will be admitted in evidence in a court for the purpose of proving the identity of a person or a thing?

A. Photographs are admissible in evidence. They do not always constitute the best evidence, however, and in such cases will be admitted only in the event that the best evidence is not obtainable.

"Touched" By A "Live Wire"

Q. May one get damages from an electric light company if he is injured by coming in contact with a "live" wire?

A. Your question is too broad and general to be answered specifically. It may be said, however, that if the company's negligence was the proximate or efficient cause of the injury, and if the injury was not caused proximately by the individual's own contributory negligence, he may recover damages.

That Boy, Again!

Q. My boy, fifteen years old, left home and remained away, although he did not have my consent. While in another town, he bought some articles, but did not pay for them. Am I liable? A. You are not liable.

Defective Stock Cars

Q. Where livestock is shipped from one point to another, isn't the railroad company liable if its cars are in a bad condition?

A. The railroad company should provide cars that are reasonably safe and suitable.

Homestead Laws Vary

Q. Is the homestead exemption law the same all over the country? A. No.

A Railroad Company's Duty

Q. Isn't it the duty of a railroad company to protect its passengers from insult? A. Yes.

The Believe Ins

The Salt of this Earth are those who Believe In—You. Your life is strangely Important, you are a Figure worth considering, you are a grand Human Possibility, if scattered here and there, are those whose Silent Confidence and Trust will find you though the shadow of Failure shut you totally away from Yourself and the Crowd. For it's The Believe Ins that are responsible for all Success.

So long as you have The Believe Ins, your Immortal Success is Safe.

Genuineness is greater than Genius. The most stupendous Fortune is cheap beside a real Believe In. No matter where you go nor what you do, if your worth deserves it, your Believe Ins are sure to follow you and cast a spell of Magic Power about you, like unto "Troops of beautiful tall Angels." You are secure. For—

So long as you have The Believe Ins, your Immortal Success is safe.

Who are The Believe Ins? Why! You know. They are the Mothers, the Wives, the Brothers, the Sisters, the Employers, ofttimes the uncrowned Kings and Queens that reign everywhere—those who tell you you have Won when you feel that you have Failed, those who whisper Cheer to you when you think all Cheer is gone, those who Smile into your very Heart and stream it with Sunlight, after you have drawn every blind. The Believe Ins! They are the Inspirers of your solid Faith.

Also, one's Believe Ins are the Inspirers of this unpretending little talk.

Her trousseau may be very fine—imported from across the seas,
Or it may be (a homely sign!) home-made—to earn the patriot's fees.
But why should all my hours of ease
Be spoiled by correspondents' snares?
For though she's sweetest of sweet Shes
I don't care what the lady wears!

It is no business of mine! I have no yearnings to appease
Concerning garments that combine the grace and beauty that may tease
Aesthetic souls who love to squeeze
Delight from gussets, tucks and shirrs.
I gently swear with fervent D's
I don't care what the lady wears!

On war and peace I'm forced to dine in "lead" or paragrapher's wheeze.
With grape juice served instead of wine I take each course from soup to cheese.
Preparedness, all the world agrees,
Is right for weddings as for scares;
But I declare upon my knees
I don't care what the lady wears!

Oh, Princess! 'Ware the cough and sneeze! His victims Winter never spares!
But, barring that—forgive me, please!—I don't care what the lady wears!

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How Odysseus Got a Princess To Help Him

Minerva Came to Guide Him.

"IF two children I know want it, I can tell the story of Odysseus when he awoke on the shore where the princess' slave girls were playing ball," said daddy. The children clapped their hands joyfully, and daddy went on. "He peeked through the bushes, saw the fifty beautiful slave girls playing ball and even saw the princess herself. You can imagine how embarrassed he was when you remember that the cruel waves that almost killed him had also washed away his clothes. But he sadly needed the princess' help, so he held a leafy branch before him and stepped out to beg her gracious aid. When the slave girls saw the stranger they screamed and ran off. But the goddess Minerva, who had watched over Odysseus through all his perils, caused Nausicaa to see aright that this brave Greek was a gentleman. Standing with bowed head, Odysseus begged the lovely maiden, whether goddess or princess he knew not, to take pity on his foodless, clothesless, homeless state. He spoke so well and manly that Nausicaa had no fear. She told him her father was near and would gladly help him. Then she called all her runaway maidens and bade them bring some of her brother's clothes which happened to be in the wash. What was left of the luncheon they gave Odysseus, and after he had a nice dip in the sea and had put on the young prince's tunic he looked so handsome that Nausicaa almost fell in love with him.

"The next plan was to get Odysseus back to the city without the people wondering where so fine a gentleman had come from. The princess knew she could never take him back with her without folks saying rude things. Princesses have to be very careful of their behavior, you see. So she sent a slave to show Odysseus the way to a farmhouse which her father owned, and let him stay there until she and her maidens had time to reach home. Then he was to start for the palace himself.

"Now, on the way Odysseus met a young woman carrying a pitcher of water. It was Minerva, who had come again to guide him. Odysseus, not knowing who it was, asked her the way to the palace, and the water girl offered to lead him. She sent a cloud to shield him from the sight of all people, and as he passed along the busy streets of Corfu you must please try to imagine how much he admired the beautiful harbor, the ships and the palaces till he came to the princess' home. Then Minerva gave him advice about the country, the king and the people he was to meet and vanished," said daddy with a good night kiss.

"Where did she go?" asked Jack.

"Back to her home among the Greek gods," daddy explained.

Married Life on $80 a Month

BY MRS. BA LEONARD

Julia Osgood Resigns Again and John Sutner Hears Good News.

"So you want to resign." Mr. Jaynes looked whimsically down at Julia Osgood. "Is resigning going to become chronic with you? Hadn't we better make it a leave of absence?" His eyes twinkled merrily as he spoke.

"You have a perfect right to make fun of me, and I hope you'll enjoy it." Julia was perfectly calm under his amused smile. "As I am to be married in three weeks, I believe you will be safe in accepting my resignation."

"So soon as that?" he asked. "Why, you must have most of your toggery ready."

"It is not going to be a question of much 'toggery,' as you call it. Not moving in society, my wants will be very simple."

"Well, here's wishing you well." He gave her a hearty handshake. "Crane is a lucky dog and I'll tell him so when I see him again. I suppose you will be married at home," he added.

"Yes, but it will be a very quiet wedding. No one outside the family." Julia turned after she had started for the door and said: "I want to thank you for all your kindness to me. I have appreciated it, I assure you. I could not have had a more considerate employer." He bowed his thanks and she was gone.

"Well, that is over with." Julia stopped at John Sutner's desk. "Now I will once more clear out my table. This is positively my last appearance." She grinned as she opened the table drawer.

"I hope you will at least come in sometime in the capacity of caller," said John. "I had a taste of this office without you, and I must say it lacked spice."

Julia made him an exaggerated bow.

"Tell Molly I am coming over with my work one of these days, so we can get some visiting done as well as sewing." Julia gave this commission on the way out.

"All right. That will please her. She will miss you when you're gone," called John.

"I should hate to think no one would miss me." She smiled and passed on out.

As John was locking up his desk to go home a boy appeared at the door and said, "Mr. Jaynes wants Mr. Sutner to come to the office."

John gathered his papers and taking his hat followed the boy out.

"Sit down, Sutner." Jaynes motioned to a chair.

"First, you will probably be interested to know that the jury found Tyler guilty on the first ballot. The judge sentenced him to a year in prison. But that isn't what I called you in here for. I have been thinking ever since Tyler left us that I would give you a promotion. I have watched you pretty closely and I am satisfied that you are making honest efforts to clear yourself of debt, and all I ever had against you was your debts. I have not filled Tyler's place, as you know, and now I am going to let you try it."

"Tyler's place! Make me cashier?" asked John, hardly able to speak from surprise.

"That's it. Make you cashier."

"Oh, thank you, Mr. Jaynes. I surely will do my best to give you satisfaction."

"Your salary will be increased to one hundred dollars a month," added Jaynes rising and extending his hand.

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME--

You can make your task of "buying for the home" either a very irksome one or a very interesting and pleasant one. A habit of ad-study will make it ALWAYS INTERESTING and always full of ECONOMY POSSIBILITIES.

The Girl's Room

Above all things, emphasis should be placed on the fact that a girl's room reflects her personality, and the characteristic note, therefore, on entering it should be sweetness and freshness.

She should be allowed to express her individuality, with some assistance from her mother who, with a little tact, can show her that an overcrowded room is not restful or pleasing to the eye. This does not mean that she should not be allowed to have in sight dance programmes, favors, photographs and all such things which are so dear to every girl's heart, but if she is taught to keep her own room in order she will soon dispense with those things which serve only as dust catchers.

Furnishings.

Whether the room is sunny or shady makes a difference in selecting the color of paper and furnishings. Blue is a cold color, and for that reason makes a good color for a room with a southern exposure. A plain paper will fade easily and if pictures are changed at any time will show the marks, so it is an economy to get a striped or flowered paper. Rag rugs are inexpensive and are made in many excellent combinations.

Plain scrim curtains with flowered borders are also inexpensive, are easily made, and launder well. Bird's-eye maple will be found to be a very satisfactory furniture for a girl's room. It will stand the general wear and tear of years, and may be washed, when necessary, with soap and warm water.

A room papered in light blue, with a blue and white rag rug and furnished with the maple, will appeal to most girls. If possible have the woodwork of white paint or white enamel, and the border may be stained any color. If just a dresser is used, a princess dresser is more desirable as well, and the long mirror may be used to advantage. A desk, a small rocker or a big wicker chair, a straight back chair, a brass bed and brass clothes tree will complete the furnishings. Ruffled muslin curtains looped back with tasseled cord look well with such a room.

Pink and white is also a pretty and girlish color scheme and is preferred by many girls to blue. The furnishings suggested above would look equally attractive with the pink. For two girls sharing the same room twin beds are much more satisfactory than one full sized bed.

Other Details.

Inside curtains of cretonne are decidedly pretty, with cushions to match on the chairs. Very good looking counterpanes may be made by making a plain scrim cover, with a border of flowered cretonne about five inches wide. This should be so placed that when the counterpane is in position the border will extend the full length of the bed on both sides and across the head and foot. All this material may be had by the yard.

The toilet sets of ivory, which come in blue, pink, lavender or white, are very satisfactory, and make lovely gifts for a girl. Sometimes white, with her monogram in colors, is used. These articles are so easily taken care of that they are gradually taking the place of silver.

KNITTED COAT.

If a piece of elastic, slightly smaller than neck, is sewn inside a knitted coat it will be found to fit much closer.

A SEWING-DAY HINT.

When a sewing macrine will not work smoothly, instead of oiling it again, try this. Place it in front of the fire so that the works are exposed to the heat. This will melt the oil which has probably congealed with the cold. Then wipe all parts of the machine with an old cloth, and it will work quite easily.

No. 1—One-piece serge coat-dress, copy of a Brandt model, undersleeve, vestee and high standing collar, black satin. Fluted cape effect collar of serge, contrasting colored rows of stitching around skirt, sleeves, and down front and back, caught in at waist with double belt of self material, inside rolling collar of white organdie. Navy and black, $29.50.

Good Teeth an Aid to Beauty

A famous old Frenchman was once heard to say that a woman with really good teeth could never be plain. Although this may be rather a sweeping statement, there is no doubt that an otherwise plain appearance is often redeemed by a perfect set of teeth, and the effect of many a pretty face marred by bad teeth.

Perfectly formed, even white teeth are a natural gift, but much can be done to improve the color and keep them in good condition, chief among these little attentions being careful brushing night and morning. Now, while everyone cleans his or her teeth in the morning, very many people, unfortunately for their teeth, neglect to do so at night, and this is a very grave mistake. During the night particles of food which have lodged between the teeth during the day do incalculable damage, and if but two or three minutes be given to brushing them at night much of the decay would be arrested.

The presence of tartar upon the teeth is a source of worry to many, as it is not only unsightly, but causes the teeth to ache. This can be removed quite easily without the aid of a dentist. Procure a small quantity of magnesia from any chemist, wet the tooth-brush in warm water, dip into the magnesia, and rub the teeth upon which the tartar has collected. If one application does not entirely remove it, give a second treatment the next day.

The brush for cleaning the teeth should be fairly stiff, but not hard enough to injure the gums.

Children's Teeth.

At the first sign of decay a dentist should be consulted and the cavity filled, for neglect to do this must result in the loss of the tooth eventually; and although the modern art of dentistry is now so perfect that false teeth can be procured to look exactly like one's own, they can never be really quite the same.

Once mature years have been reached nothing can be done for the shape of the teeth or toward regulating their position, but those who have care of children should see that these matters are promptly attended to by the dentist, for much of the pain and discomfort which so many people experience through them could have been prevented by a little attention in their childhood.

WHEN MAKING A CAKE.

Have the butter sweet and not too salty if the best results are looked for. Use the best pastry flour, cool. The sugar should be fine granulated or powdered. The eggs fresh and of the same temperature as the butter. Beat well and in one direction.

Saving For a Home

A young woman artist passed a week-end with a teacher friend of hers lately in a bungalow she had erected on her own pretty lot. The artist was anxious to know how her teacher friend was able to own such a pretty home.

In answer to her inquiries, the teacher said:

"There isn't any school teacher who couldn't do what I have done if she chose," was the reply. "We get a regular salary on which we can count definitely. Our lives are not apt to be spent emulating fluffy and expensive folk. We are not expected to dress extravagantly. And we get a long vacation.

"Systematic saving all the time, and a careful eye out for profitable investment, not of the get-rich-quick variety, but safe mortgages, or those chances which your banker will advise you to take and which will pay you for taking your money out of the savings bank. The trouble with most teachers is that, knowing their salary is on the increase for a long period, they do not think it necessary to save from the first. Then they never get the habit. We ought all of us, whether we are teachers or business women, whether we are married or single, to plan to own our home some day.

"Things are made easy for the prospective home owner to-day. If he sees to it that he gets into the right hands. Small initial payments and the rest in sums little more than your rent—which leaves you with nothing at the end of the year, or ten or twenty years—these will give you a place of your own. My advice to every woman is to save for a home. It can be done, unless, of course, she is too heavily burdened with responsibilities to save anything."

It sounded good, and many of us who are wage earners could do the same if we begin now.

GUARDING THE MOUTH.

Remember the disgust which overspread the faces in a railroad car when a woman was seen to give her poodle a drink from the public drinking glass. No one else touched it during that trip, but it is more dangerous and not less disgusting to drink after human beings than a dog.

Fortunately most disease germs die easily, and it is chiefly by the quite direct means of contact just suggested that the contagious disease pass from one to another. If we put nothing into the mouth except what belongs there, we might ride in a car with a diphtheria patient and run no chance of catching the disease.

Disease germs do not fly about seeking whom they may devour. The matter of protection is largely in our own hands.

The FASHION Exhibition in the Bakst Spirit will continue on Monday with posings of superb evening gowns and simple clothes for Southern wear, at 11 in the morning and 3 in the afternoon.

It may seem a far cry from the fantastic Russian ballet costumes, to wearable Summer suits and wraps.

But that is the beauty of a Bakst inspiration. It may translate itself into a costume for any occasion, a fan, a pair of slippers, a scarf, almost anything.

Even a Table

The Bakst table with its Nijinsky harlequins holding up the fruit, its silken napkins, its original candlesticks, its charming favors of such fans and cigarette holders as never were before, is a charming conceit.

The Windows of the Gray Salons mysteriously blue lighted show scarfs where color runs riot in a subdued kind of way, negligees which are mere fluttering bits of silks, gorgeous decorative fans, a beautiful soft wide suede belt indescribably colored flower pots bags and sunshades—all very Bakst in spirit

The Gowns Themselves

Picture to yourself an evening gown of striped black and silver with a yellow jacket heavily embroidered in silver; —or a dress of gold and flame.

—or a gown which has a train which is just a wonderful Bakst ribbon.

Southern suits or silk, capes to wear over a light dress, or over the bathing suit; marvelous coats to slip over a light summer evening gown, coats of chiffon, gold embroidery and color. Color—above all else color—subdued, blended, harmonized—color as Leon Bakst sees it.

You are cordially invited to see all these new things.

RED MEN AGAIN FAIL TO APPEAR; MEETING TONIGHT

The Red Men, of the Westfield Bowling League, again failed to appear for a scheduled match on the Westfield Theatre alleys last night, the Clinks getting three games by default. A meeting of the league will be held this evening.

WANT BASEBALL LEAGUE OF PENNSY AND JERSEY TOWNS

Baseball men interested in forming a league composed of New Jersey and Pennsylvania towns met in Philadelphia yesterday. Al Lawson is the organizer. He plans to invade Jersey City, which may not have any other league team this year; Paterson, Perth Amboy, and one or two cities in the southern part of this State, as well as Reading, Easton, Allentown, and the other Pennsylvania cities that were in the old Tri-State League.

PLANNING NEW JERSEY STATE BASEBALL LOOP

It is likely that in the near future a movement will be made for the purpose of organizing a New Jersey State baseball league. A professional league of this kind has been proposed by F. G. Somers, of Atlantic City, who is a professional baseball player, having performed in the International, Central and Tri-State Leagues. Up to the present time the matter of organizing has been given little thought, but judging from the enthusiasm shown among baseball fans of this State a league of this kind would be a great success during the coming season.

Sporting writers in the following cities have agreed to co-operate with Mr. Somers in this movement: Bayonne, Elizabeth, Camden, Passaic, Atlantic City, Trenton, Cape May, Burlington, Bloomfield, Paterson, Newark and Perth Amboy. The coming season will undoubtedly prove a year of new life in baseball circles throughout the United States and the national pastime will be given the reins of supremacy in athletic events.

The above cities, from which will be selected the teams to take part in the league, are all within 120 miles of each other and some of the best A class baseball players in the State could be selected from them. Definite plans for the launching of the league will be laid in a few weeks' time.

The T. A. B. S. Seconds, after losing games with great regularity for the past few weeks, came to life last night and defeated the Mohawks, of Netherwood, 26 to 23.

The game was close throughout. The Tab Seconds had been a few points in the rear for the better part of the second half, when "Dutch" Blimm, a new addition to Capt. Deskin's forces, was put in, replacing Deskin. Blimm showed up well, helping the cause by dropping in four nice field goals, which really put the game on ice.

Deskin, the erratic forward, returned to good form last night, shooting five goals and one foul. King and Mowen were head men for the Mohawks. The series between the two teams is now even.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

Members of the association who recently attended the conference held in New York will make addresses at the home hour service, which will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

There will be no classes at the association on Monday, owing to the annual meeting of the association, which will be held at that time.

Rehearsals of the jubilee pageant, "Girls of Yesterday and Today," will begin Tuesday night. There will be about seventy members in the production.

It Pays to Secure a Tenant Who Pays.

The uncertain sort of tenant is easy to find. He is always answering the call of the window sign of "To Let." He is easy to please. Even a rather high rental does not frighten him away.

But the Stay-and-Pay tenant is not so easy to secure. He is surer of what he wants. He does not take the first house, or apartment, or store that he finds. He watches and answers "To Let" Ads.

And to secure him for your tenant is a good day's work—a good week's work.

Property that is advertised adequately in the Plainfield Daily Press is rarely rented injudiciously.

WILSON CALLS ON W. L. SAUNDERS

Plainfield Man is Asked to Direct An Industrial Census.

A PATRIOTIC WORK

New Jersey Alone Has 800 Factories That Make Articles Which Would Be Needed in Case of War—Part of Preparedness Policy.

The Hon. William L. Saunders, of Plainfield, has been selected by President Wilson for the important duty of marshalling American industries for preparedness. Mr. Saunders, who is president of the American Institute of Mining Engineers, recently directed a census of New Jersey industries in order to test his idea of a commercial census which would give the government accurate information on plants making articles that would be needed in case of war, and the result was so satisfactory that President Wilson has asked him to co-operate in a national census.

President Wilson's letter to Mr. Saunders on the subject follows:

"The White House,
"Washington, Jan. 13, 1916.

"My Dear Sir:

"The work which the American Institute of Mining Engineers has done through its members on the Naval Consulting Board is a patriotic service which is deeply appreciated. It has been so valuable that I am tempted to ask that you will request the institute to enlarge its usefulness to the Government still further by nominating for the approval of the Secretary of the Navy a representative from its membership for each State in the Union, to act in conjunction with representatives from the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the American Society of Civil Engineers, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and the American Chemical Society for the purpose of assisting the Naval Consulting Board in the work of collecting data for use in organizing the manufacturing resources of the country for the public service in case of emergency. I am sure that I may count upon your cordial co-operation.

"With sincere regard,
"Cordially yours,
"WOODROW WILSON.

"Mr. W. L. Saunders, President, American Institute of Mining Engineers, New York City."

The board of engineers suggested by the President will comprise a representative member of each of the five societies in each of the forty-eight States of the Union, which means a new board whose activities and energies will be devoted to the work of aiding in the creation of an adequate system of national defense of 240 of the leading engineers of the country. Behind these men will be the combined membership of the societies, which totals more than 38,000 mining, electrical, mechanical, civil, and chemical engineers.

"This work that has been undertaken by the engineers of the country means," said Mr. Saunders, "the organization of all industries whose operation or output the country would need in the event of a national crisis. We shall cover every State in the Union in the most thorough fashion, and in those States we expect to go into and inspect every factory, every shop, every mill, and every other place which, in the opinion of the President, would constitute a cog in the great national defense machine that is contemplated. The data which will be supplied to the Government for the purpose of effecting the organization will show exactly what these various factories, mills, etc., can be expected to do in the event of war, how quickly they can do it, the number of specialists and other employes on their rolls whose services might be needed by the Government, and all other data pertinent to the purpose in view.

"As a sort of test preparatory to the nation-wide job we recently made a census of the industries of New Jersey. In that State we went into every factory and plant, big ones and little ones, and following a careful process of elimination we found that in New Jersey alone there are 800 factories, etc., which produce things that would be needed by the Government in the event of war.

"Let it be understood that this organization of our industries does not contemplate the plants manufacturing ordnance, ammunition, and other war munitions alone. It takes in the whole field covered by the expression of 'the sinews of war,' as, for instance, factories that make blankets, factories that make uniform cloths, leather products, food supplies, transportation, (rail, ocean, and river,) and other industries. When we realize that in New Jersey alone there are 800 plants ready to respond to the call of the Government we are able to appreciate the thousands of such plants that are scattered throughout the rest of the Union."

TWO BOYS ARE HELD FOR THE GRAND JURY

Third Who Broke Into Store Turned Over to Somerset County.

George Barrotillo, George Marshall and Clarence Garthwaite, three boys, were arrangned in policecourt this morning on a charge of having broken into the store of Olson & Givens last week and stolen some cigars and tobacco. It was shown that Garthwaite was on probation in Somerset county, and Judge DeMeza ordered him turned over to the probation officer of that county. The other two boys were held to await the action of the grand jury on bonds of $300. The arrest of the boys was brought about by Captain Flynn, of the Plainfield police department, and Patrolman Wise. Captain Flynn suspected Garthwaite because of his bad record and of the fact that he had worked in the store until a few weeks ago. He watched the home of the boy and learned that he went to New York on the day after the robbery. Upon his return Garthwaite was arrested. There was no evidence at that time to substantiate a charge of robbery, and Captain Flyn accused him of vagrancy, but when locked up in the station and questioned the boy confessed his guilt and implicated the others.

LOCAL FIREMEN DO MUCH REPAIR WORK

False Impression Prevails That Motor Apparatus Entails Large Expense.

Through a clause in Mayor Leighton Calkins annual message to the Common Council advocating a municipal garage, many citizens have gained the erroneous idea that all the repair work on the fire departments motor vehicles is not done by the men. As a matter of fact, everything needed in the way of fixing parts, pulling down or setting up working parts, is taken care of entirely by members of the department. The only time that outside assistance is required is when absolutely new parts are needed or machine work is required, the department having no facilities for this just at present.

Mayor Calkins suggestion for a municipal garage would undoubtedly aid in the fire department's work, through better equipment, but at the present time the interests of the citizens are being looked after to excellent advantage. More than half of the present firemen are well versed in automobile work, several of them being experts, and it is highly regrettable that any one should gain the impression that the men entrusted to run the vehicles are not capable of caring for them. When it comes down to fine points, there is not a department in the State better fitted with mechanics in this respect and there is hardly a day but what one of the machines is undergoing an overhauling or general fixing without garage expense. One day last week No. 2 engine at headquarters, was out of commission from 5:30 a. m. until nearly 6 p. m. during which time it was completely pulled apart and put together again, eight men being on the job all day.

PHYSICIANS ARE PLACED IN UNENVIABLE POSITION

Are the people of Plainfield aware of the fact that certain prominent physicians of the city, because of unintentional or thoughtless neglect on the part of a certain group of men, have been placed in a most unenviable position?

The exact situation will be set forth in a cartoon by one of New York's most prominent cartoonists in The Daily Press on Wednesday. Don't fail to look for the cartoon !

If you are thin, you will laugh and grow fat when you see it, and if you are fat, you will lough to think how your lean friend is going to get stout, too.

If you are well, you will laugh when you think "That is one on the doctor," and if you are ill, and wondering why that doctor does not come, you will rejoice to think how the doctor won't be able to say any longer—"Very sorry, but I was detained."

Remember the date, Wednesday.

OLD-FASHIONED SOCIAL.

An old-fashioned social will be given by the Y. P. S. C. E. of Trinity Reformed church in the Sunday-school rooms, Thursday evening, January 20. All members are asked to come attired in old-time costumes in order to carry out the idea of the social.

BANDIT VICTIM KNOWN LOCALLY

Charles A. Pringle, One of Seventeen Americans Massacred, Lived Here.

SISTER IS A RESIDENT

Mrs. W. M. Houghton, of Park Place, Netherwood, One of Bereaved Relatives—Brothers Call on President Wilson for Action.

The regretable massacre of seventeen Americans by Mexican outlaws near Chihuahua last week is brought directly home to many Plainfielders through the fact that Charles A. Pringle, one of the murdered men, was a brother to Mrs. William M. Houghton, of Park place, Netherwood, and had a wide local acquaintance. He left Plainfield two years ago after spending a full year here as the guest of his closest friend, A. W. Ransome, of Woodland avenue. He always stopped at Plainfield whenever he was in the East on business, which was quite frequently, and his local friends were numbered by scores. Mrs. Houghton was severely shocked when news of the massacre of her brother was conveyed by telephone and it has also had a profound effect on Mr. Ransome and the members of his family.

Mr. Pringle was thirty-six years old and was graduated from the University of California as a mining engineer. He was captain of the varsity football team there about fifteen years ago. From the time that he was a boy in Oakland, his closest chum was Mr. Ransome, and the friendship was maintained through college days and business up to the time of the unfortunate man's death. His mother, Mrs. Cornelia Pringle, still resides in San Francisco, and only a few days before the terrible affair she received a letter from him saying that he had been offered the superintendency of a mine in Chihuahua, which he had accepted. He had a mine of his own and when he left Plainfield it was with the idea of resuming operations suspended at the time the Mexican troubles were at their height three years ago. It was at that time that he came to Plainfield, getting away from Mexico only with the greatest difficulty. He fully realized the danger that existed in northern Mexico, but was of that type of American which knows no fear and is undaunted when business opportunities are presented. Beside his mother and Mrs. Houghton, he is survived by one other sister, Miss Nina Pringle, of San Francisco, and four brothers, all living in California and engaged in business in San Francisco.

The brothers have sent the following message to President Wilson:

"In the name of humanity in order to prevent others from suffering a like bereavement, we, the brothers of Charles A. Pringle, just killed by an armed force in Mexico, are impelled to demand that our government take immediate steps to secure the safety of those of our citizens as the citizens of other nations, who are pursuing their legitimate business in Mexico, with all the vigor there is in us, and we ask that these Mexicans who took part in the massacre be apprehended and executed."

HOLY NAME SOCIETY ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

The Holy Name Society, of St. Joseph's church, at its annual meeting, yesterday, elected these officers for the coming year: President, Robert McCormick; vice president, John Whalen; treasurer, Thomas Meaney, financial secretary, William Daly; recording secretary, William McCullough. The sick committee is as follows: Chairman, John Whalen; James Tobin and John Cunniff.

The annual statement of the society was presented showing it to be in excellent condition. The society has been paying benefits for the past fifteen years and at present has a substantial sum in the treasury.

ADDRESSED C. E. SOCIETY.

Miss Marie Hahn addressed the Young People's Society for Christian Endeavor at their meeting in the Sunday-school rooms of Trinity Reformed church, last night. The speaker took as her subject, "How to Work With Others," and expounded her topic in a most interesting and educating manner. The Scripture lesson for the evening was read by Alfred Willett.

SOCIAL POSTPONED.

The lunch box social, which was to have been given Wednesday night in St. Joseph's Hall, has been postponed for one week and will be given instead on Wednesday night, January 26. Holders of tickets for the nineteenth will be admitted on the following Wednesday.

GRAND JURY FINDS 32 INDICTMENTS

Completes Its Labors and Fixes January 27 as Time For Dinner.

Elizabeth, Jan. 17.—The January term of the grand jury completed its work this morning at Elizabeth, when thirty-two indictments were handed to Judge Connolly by the foreman, Ernest R. Ackerman, of Plainfield. The jury has adjourned, subject to a call by the court at any time between now and the opening of the May term of court.

AGED MAN STRUCK BY SCOTT'S AUTO

Newmarket Laborer May Die From Accidental Injuries Received Saturday.

Leo Cherchioro, an aged laborer of New Market, was run over and possibly fatally injured by the automobile of Walter Scott, of Plainfield, Saturday evening. The accident occurred at New Market, near the Lakeside Hotel. Mr. Scott was driving along the street at a moderate speed when the aged man stepped suddenly from the sidewalk in front of the machine. The pedestrian was unaware of the closenness of the automobile, because his view of the street was cut off by a building. He was knocked down by the front wheels and they ran over him, but Mr. Scott was able to stop his car before the rear wheels ran over Cerchioro. Mr. Scott brought the man to Muhlenberg Hospital in Plainfield, where he was given medical attention. It was said this morning that he had a good chance to live, having shown improvement during the night. His body is badly crushed. Cerchioro is sixty-two years of age and lives in New Market.

MAYOR SMALLEY'S CONFIDENCE ABUSED

Aaron Reed, on "Blacklist," Buys Whiskey With Money Given Him for Food.

Aaron Reed, of Fritz place, North Plainfield, approached Mayor "Bill" Smalley on Saturday and asked for a dollar with which he desired to purchase some coal and food for the house. Although the Mayor doubted the man's story, he said that he would be willing to give him the money if he really thought he wanted it for the purpose mentioned.

Reed was persistent and the good-hearted Mayor finally gave him a dollar. Mr. Smalley, anxious to see what the man would do, got someone to follow him. Reed was seen "beating it" straight for a local saloon, where it is said he purchased a drink of whiskey and a half-pint flask of the spirits for future use.

Mayor Smalley was informed as to what took place and he instructed Chief Marshal Weiss to arrest Reed when he appeared in the borough. He was finally apprehended and was arraigned before Recorder Fred Hand this morning. Reed, it was said is on the "blacklist" furnished to the saloons and hotels, and upon his promise to make a statement as to where he purchased the liquor he was allowed to go after being severely lectured. The borough authorities intend to investigate the case further.

PLAINFIELD TO AID WAR VICTIMS

Mass Meeting for All People Called for Thursday, January 27.

$3,000 NEEDED AT ONCE

Day Will Be Observed Over all of U. S. Following Proclamation of President—Money to Buy Bread for Living and Shrouds for Dead.

In accordance with the proclamation of President Wilson, setting aside January 27 as a day for the giving by Americans of a little of their bountiful store to the starving and dying war sufferers in Europe, a mass meeting will be held in this city on that date under the auspices of the Jewish War Sufferers' Relief Association.

The mass meeting is to be held in the Knights of Columbus Auditorium Thursday evening, January 27. While the relief is for Jewish sufferers in all of Europe, as they are suffering most, all classes of people in Plainfield are to have a part in the giving. It is promised that at least $2,000 will be raised for the fund in Plainfield, and those who are behind the soliciting here are working with this in view.

Senator James E. Martine, who introduced a resolution in the Senate setting aside the day for a general mourning for war sufferers, will be one of the speakers. Others will be the Rev. John Y. Brock, the Rev. C. M. Anderson, Mayor Leighton Calkins, Mayor William L. Smalley, Dr. David de Sola Pool, pastor of the Portugese church in New York city, and Judge William N. Newcorn, of Plainfield.

A meeting of the committee in charge of arrangements for the mass meeting was held in Temple Sholem last night. Mr. Newcorn, who has been ill for some time, left a sick bed to preside over the meeting, demonstrating the interest that is being shown in the movement in this city. Dr. R. Yood, who is chairman of the committee for the arrangement of a program, reported acceptances from the speakers named above.

Chairman Newcorn appointed the following members of a committee on solicitation: Jacob Sachar, Herman Schwed, Benjamin Cline, Dr. R. Yood, Dr. Ellis Campus, Henry Rosenbaum, Harry Dreier, Kalman Rothberg, Bernard Mann, Thomas Canter, Morris Abrams, Hyman Adelberg and Marcus Silbert.

Samuel Rothberg was appointed chairman of the publicity committee, and he selected the following to serve with him: Abe Schwartz and Henry Rosenbaum.

The committee of fifty urges a general attendance at the meeting, and is confident that the people of Plainfield will respond generously to the appeal from war ravaged Europe, and guarantees that all money donated will be used either in buying food for the starving or shrouds for the dead. None will be spent for anything but bread or other necessities, and as each worker in the movement is giving his or her time, not one cent will be paid out in salaries or expenses for collecting.

WM. CAMPBELL CANDIDATE FOR ROAD SUPERVISOR

William Campbell, of North Plainfield, is being boomed by his friends for the position of road supervisor of Somerset county in view of the fact that there is a deadlock in the Board of Freeholders over the selection of that official. Former Freeholder Gibson and Mr. DeHart are both candidates for the appointment, but thus far the Board has been unable to elect either one because of a tie vote.

This fact brought Mr. Campbell into the race, and he is said to have considerable backing not only in North Plainfield, but in other sections of the county. Mr. Campbell is said to be well qualified for the position, and many of his friends in the borough are also of the opinion that this end of the county is entitled to the appointment.

START WORK ON NEW HOME FOR DAILY PRESS

Contractors Making Extensive Alterations to Galbraith Building.

Work was started this morning converting the Galbraith building, at 193 North avenue, into a new home for the Plainfield Daily Press, which will move on February 12. The entire first floor and basement of the building will be remodeled, including a new and attractive front being placed to the level of the second floor. A feature will be the erection of a glass enclosed well next to the sidewalk, in which a new 16-page Scott press will be placed, where it will run in full view of passers-by. The front of the first floor will be given to the business office, and the composing room will be in the rear, while the new stereotyping plant will be put in the basement.

William C. Smith has the mason contract, Charles L. Force the carpenter work, Arthur E. Smith the iron work, and the Zouri Metal Company will erect a copper finished front. Den. J. Galbraith, owner of the building, is doing the plumbing, and the painting and electrical contracts have not been let as yet.

The second floor now used as an apartment will be used for the editorial rooms and private offices, while the third floor will be turned into a separate job printing establishment.

The first work to be completed will be the erection of a pit, so that Walter Scott & Co. can start work on erecting the new press before this week is over. This will make it possible to move the plant over Sunday, February 13, in such a way as not to interfere with the publication of the paper in any way.

VISIT TO SISTER SAVES HIS LIFE

D. Humphreys Just Missed Being on Submarine That Exploded.

By accepting an invitation to dinner extended by his sister in Plainfield, Deloss Humphreys, chief electrician on U. S. submarine D-1, probably dogged death in the explosion that destroyed the E-2 last Saturday afternoon.

The boat of Mr. Humphreys is next to the E-2 in drydock number 2 at the Brooklyn Navy Yard and the two crews intermingle. All men in the service, especially the chief electricians, were very much interested in the installation of the new Edison batteries, which were to be tested on the E-2 and Saturday morning Chief Electrician Miles, of that boat, invited Chief Electrician Humphreys, of the D-1, to be present that afternoon when the batteries were charged for the first time. Humphreys accepted, and had made arrangements to attend. A short time before noon Miss Ethel Humphreys, of 20 Sycamore avenue, Plainfield, called him and invited him here for dinner. He accepted the invitation and stopped by the E-2 shortly after 1 o'clock to tell Chief Electrician Miles that he could not watch the interesting work of charging the new batteries.

Less than a half-hour after Humphreys left the E-2 she was blown up by a terrific exposition that killed four men and seriously if not fatally injured ten more. Because of his knowledge of such work Humphreys would probably have been close to the batteries and would have received the full force of the explosion. He is therefore doubly thankful for the kind invitation of his sister.

Mr. Humphreys did not know of the accident to his friends until he walked into the Daily Press office about 2:30 Saturday afternoon. After reading the first brief flash over the wires he explained that it was due to the generation of a perfect explosive mixture of gases in the air in charging the batteries, which happened when all submarine batteries were charged, and did not mean that the Edison batteries were defective. He expressed the fear that the accident would be charged against the new batteries and they would not be given a real test in submarines.

The feature of the evening was a turkey supper, including all the usual trimmings and some that were unusual but none the less palatable, was provided by a committee composed of A. B. Dunham, chairman; Frank Legge, George L. Apgar and William Summers. This committee was showered with genuine compliments for the manner in which it not only prepared the excellent meal but served it. It was remarked more than once through the evening that if any one of the four quit Uncle Sam's service at any time he could make a fortune as a hotel chef.

Following the last course in the supper, J. W. A. Bauersachs, a past president of the local branch, assumed the toastmaster's seat and introduced the following speakers: A. E. Hoagland, William Sharp, Inspector Larrabee, George Keen, James Bailey and George L. Apgar. W. W. CHAPIN BUYS EAGLE AND STAR

Newark's Two Newspapers Sold to Former Western Publisher for $235,000.

Newark, Jan. 17.—Walter W. Chapin, a former Western newspaper publisher, today purchased the entire assets of both the Morning Eagle and the Evening Star, published by the Newark Daily Advertising Company for $235,000. The two newspapers were sold by the Fidelity Trust Company, of Newark, as the receiver in charge of the property.

Mr. Chapin, it is said, has unlimited backing, and immediately upon purchasing the two newspapers he gave his check for $235,000. Samuel P. Weston, formerly of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, who was present at the sale, and who, in fact, was instrumental in getting Mr. Chapin interested in it, will be associated with the latter in his new enterprise.

The sale attracted a large number of interested newspapermen from the East and West, and the bidding was quite lively. A little hitch occurred during the sale, which necessitated the reopening of it for bids. Andrew M. Lawrence, formerly of the San Francisco Examiner, made a bid of $155,000, and was about to get the two newspapers, when it developed that he was not in a position to make a payment of even one-tenth of the purchase price to bind the bargain. The sale was then reopened, and Mr. Chapin's bid of $235,000 was accepted.

There seems to be an impression that the Morning Eagle may be discontinued and all the effort be put into the Evening Star, which has been a paying proposition.

MANY ATTEND SERVICES.

An interesting service was held at Grace M. E. church last evening. Over three hundred people were present, every seat down stairs being taken and half of the gallery filled. The pastor, the Rev. E. At tonight's meeting the pastor's subject will be the "Gift of Slaves."

SHORT AND TRAGIC

Career of the First Submarine Used In Real War.

SHE WAS BUILT IN MOBILE.

Constructed of Boiler Iron and Crude In Design, She Was Operated Against the Federal Ship Housatanic With Disastrous Results.

It is a fact that a submersible boat did actual service in the war between the states and was perhaps the first practical submarine used in actual warfare.

The boat was built in Mobile in 1864 by two men named Hundley and McClintock. It was of boiler iron, sharp at both ends and was about thirty feet long, five or six feet in beam and five or six feet deep. It was propelled by a screw, the shaft of which ran horizontally along the hold, almost from stem to stern and was turned by eight men, who sat four on each side of the shaft.

The only hatchway, placed well forward, was two feet in diameter, and it was closed by an iron cap that worked on a hinge and was airtight. In the forward part of the cap there was a clear glass bullseye, through which the pilot could see. The boat had water tight compartments, by filling or emptying which it could sink or rise. A ballast of iron rails was placed outside the hull, and by means of keys they could be detached so that the boat could rise instantly if necessary.

Besides a rudder, the boat had side paddles, or fins, which could be used to guide it up or down through the water.

The boat could go perhaps four knots an hour. It could remain submerged for half an hour or an hour without serious inconvenience to its crew, and once it remained as long as two hours under water without actual injury to them.

A floating torpedo was fastened to the boat by a line 100 feet long, and the inventor proposed that the boat should dive beneath the keel of the enemy's vessel and haul the torpedo after her. The triggers or sensitive primers of the torpedo would press against the ship's bottom, explode the torpedo and sink the vessel.

The boat was sent to Charleston to operate against the blockading fleet. General Beauregard had the torpedo fastened to the bow. It terminated in front with a sharp lance head, so that when the boat was driven against a ship the lance head would be forced into the ship below the water line and the torpedo fastened against the side. The boat was then to back off and explode the torpedo by a lanyard.

General Beauregard called on the Confederate fleet for volunteers, and Lieutenant Payne, a Virginian, and eight sailors volunteered. On the evening fixed for the expedition the crew had embarked, and the boat was submerged until only the combings of her hatch were above water. Lieutenant Payne was standing in the hatchway when the swell of a passing steamer rolled over the boat, and it sank instantly with her eight men. Lieutenant Payne sprang out of the hatchway as the boat sank, and he alone was saved.

In a few days she was raised, and again Payne volunteered and with him eight more men. The embarkation for the second attempt was made at Fort Sumter, and, as before, all being made ready, Payne, standing at his post in the hatchway, gave orders to cast off, when the boat careened and sank instantly. Payne sprang out, two of the men followed him, and the other six went down with the boat and perished.

Again the boat was raised, and her owner, Captain Hundley, took her for an experimental trip to Stone river, where, after going through her usual evolutions, she dived into deep water and disappeared. After a week's search she was found at an angle of forty degrees, her nose driven into the deep, soft mud of the bottom.

Her crew of nine men were standing, sitting or lying about in her hold, asphyxiated. Hundley had died at his post with a candle in one hand, while with the other he had been vainly trying to jump the hatch. The angle at which the boat had gone down had jammed the keys so that the men could not cast off the iron ballast that held them down.

Again the ill fated vessel was prepared for action, and volunteers were called for. Lieutenant Dixon of the Twenty-first Alabama volunteered and eight men with him.

The ship Housatonic was selected for attack and on a quiet night the brave crew set out from Charleston. Lieutenant Dixon guided the boat straight to the Housatonic, and the explosion tore open the ship's side, so that she went down with all her crew in two minutes.

The torpedo vessel never returned, and whether she went down with her enemy or drifted out to sea was long unknown. Many years after, in the work of deepening the bar off Charleston harbor, divers in submarine armor visited the wreck of the Housatonic and found the little torpedo vessel lying by the huge victim, and within her the bones of as devoted and daring men as ever went to sea.

In the history of the submarine certainly the Hundley is entitled to honorable mention.—Youth's Companion.

Peace would be universal if there were neither thine nor mine.—Italian Proverb.

HER SIN.

[illegible] watch her, churchward speeding,
A sight for gods and men,
[illegible]th heathens, and hence needing
The more such faith to ken;
[illegible]rely no anguish harries
Her soul—no crime, no wrong!
[illegible] yes—one sin she carries
That makes her join the throng!

[illegible]ore than mere fault or error
And yet—she loves it so—
[illegible]e flaunts this thing of terror
That all may see and know.
[illegible]e can but gaze and shiver,
And, as we breathe our prayers,
[illegible]e plead: "May heaven forgive her
The sort of hat she wears!"

AN UNFRIENDLY ACT.

Cholly—I feel wathah hurt at Percy [illegible] wecommended his tailor to me.

Algy—But what's the harm in that?

Cholley—"Well, it seems like a we[illegible]ection on mine.

THE CENSUS AT BASSWOOD

From the Basswood Corners Hustler:

The result of the federal census of the town of Basswood Corners, which was taken in June, has just been announced from Washington. The Hustler is proud to inform its readers that our enterprising village contains the grand total of 637 inhabitants.

Think of it! Six hundred and thirty seven inhabitants! Ten years ago our population was but four hundred, the increase during the last decade being more that fifty per cent. If this ratio keeps up, and there is no reason to doubt that it will, it is plain to be seen that our hustling berg has a glorious future before it. At this rate of increase, as anyone can compute, by 1950 we will have a population of 1,800; in the year 2,000 we will have 6,000; and in the year 2090 Basswood Corners will roll up the mighty total of 1,400,000 citizens, a population exceeded by that of but seven cities in the world today! Hurrah for Basswood Corners!

THE LAW.

After the hypothetical question had been asked for forty-five days and nights the lawyer for the defense sat down.

"You have prejudiced the court against me," whispered the prisoner hoarsely.

"What does that matter?" chuckled the triumphant attorney. "If you look you'll see that one juror is dead already, and that they're dashing wild over five others!"

Absent Minded Professor—By Jove, I remember now what that string on my finger for! To remind me to go to the dentist!

ROSES

Once, walking down a shady street,
Sweet Cecily I chanced to meet,
A knot of crimson roses pressed
Just where the lace crossed on her breast.
A charming hat she wore, a-tilt,
With other roses on it spilt.

Red roses, tell me true, I prayed,
Does she love me, this little maid?
Mutely they drooped, nor seemed to hear;
When Cupid whispered in my ear
And shyly pointed to her cheek,
And there I found a rose could speak!

WHERE THE LEAP CAME IN.

The Landlord (of Meadowbrook Farm, showing latest arrival around)—This here spot is known as "Lover's Leap."

The Fair Arrival (astounded)—But an unpicturesque old spot beneath the branches of a willow! How in the world did you come to give it such a romantic name?

The Landlord—'Cause ye can't live five minutes before a caterpillar drops down yer neck!

A DEFINITION.

Little Elmer—Papa, what is hope?

Professor Broadhead—Hope, my son, is what we have left.

EXHIBITION OF THE TEXTILE INDUSTRIES

Will Be Held Under Auspices of Newark Museum Ass'n From Feb. 1 to Mar. 18.

The Newark Museum Association will hold an exhibition of the textile industries of New Jersey from February 1 to March 18. This exhibition is to include cloth making, knitting, embroidery, rug weaving and felt hat making. It will be primarily commercial, but so carefully arranged and classified as to be also of educational and artistic value. Processes as well as products will be shown, pamphlets telling the story of weaving will be prepared, and museum instructors will explain to classes of school children, club women and other groups, the several aspects of the industry here to be illustrated.

The exhibition will trace the development of weaving in New Jersey. The American Museum of Natural History will lend for this their collection of bark mats and bags and a primitive loom, showing how the Delaware Indians spun and wove before the white man came.

The women's clubs and historical societies of the State will collect hand-woven coverlets, home-spun stuffs, samplers, embroideries and other textiles of Colonial days, and spinning wheels and hand-looms will be operated by women in Colonial costume. It is hoped that all who have interesting historic textiles made in this State will lend them to the museum for this occasion.

The Edgewater Tapestry Company, one of the foremost tapestry makers in this country, will display hand-woven tapestries and show the loom at work. There will also be a demonstration of a small craft-loom, which can be used in the home, and some of the things that can be woven on it.

The leading textile manufacturers of the State have promised representative commercial exhibits of modern fabrics. Paterson is the centre of the silk industry of the State, and Passaic of wool industry. The processes and products of weaving will be shown, and probably a machine loom in operation. About 60 per cent. of the machine embroidery produced in this country is made in New Jersey. Newark and Orange hat makers will show how felt hats are made from rabbits' fur to the finished articles, and knitting of all kinds will be exhibited.

The Newark school children are interested in collecting what might be called immigrants to the New Jersey textile world. They are bringing from their homes woven things made in the countries from which they or their parents came. Already Russia, Germany, Italy, Roumania and a number of other countries are well represented in this home lands' exhibit.

Aside from the home lands' exhibit, the exhibition will be limited entirely to New Jersey products; but the story of weaving in this State simply retells the history of weaving of all times, from the earliest bark mats to the richest silks and tapestries.

The State-wide, one-industry exhibit is unique in the exhibition field. The New Jersey products' exhibit, which last year attracted wide attention from press and public was, so far as can be learned, the first display of the manufacture of a whole State in a single field.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Seemingly canceling all of his previous successes, Joe Hurtig comes forward this season with the Social Maids, comprising one of teh cleverest companies and most magnificent productions that the field of burlesque has yet seen. This spectacularly beautiful offering will be seen at the Plainfield Theatre tomorrow, matinee and night, and patrons of that amusement house will freely acknowledge that never before have they been entertained with so many mirthful, clever and artistic features on one program. As stars of his superb organization, Mr. Hurtig presents George Stone and Etta Pillard whose work as exponents of modern Terpsichore's rarest and most dazzling offerings has brought them fame of the lasting and substantial kind. The principals and their excellent support have been provided with an entirely new vehicle called "Busy Little Cupid," and Mr. Hurtig has shown even more than his usual lavishness in equipping the production with all special, gorgeous scenery, the latest innovations in electrical devices and rich, elaborate costuming.

Owing to the booking of "The Social Maids" tomorrow night, the change of vaudeville which comes to the Plainfield Theatre this afteroon will be omitted after tonight's performances until Wednesday afternoon. The new program includes Hardt and Hardt, the original burlesque strong men; the fascinating playlet, "What Happened to Ruth;" Charles Wilson, "the nuttiest of all nuts;" Crook and Stevens, presenting their own original conception, "The Chinaman and the Coon;" and "The Love and Hate Revue," a unique offering presented by two talented singers and dancers.

The new Will Fox feature photoplay for Monday and Wednesday will be "The Green-Eyed Monster," with Robert Manteil in the principal role. Plainfielders are well acquainted with Mr. Mantell through his appearances here in "Macbeth" and other Shakespearian productions, and may look forward to him at even greater advantage as a film artist. "The Green-Eyed Monster" is said to be one of the strongest pictures ever put out from the Fox agency, embodying scenes never before photographed.

Wednesday night at the theatre will be observed as "Japanese night," and as in previous weeks, many costly gifts from the Flowery Kingdom will be distributed absolutely free. These include sets of china, silver ware and include set of china, silverware and Oriental curios. This has no connection with the "Country Store," which is held every Friday night.

UNION GRIP CASES FILL ELIZABETH HOSPITAL BEDS

Elizabeth, Jan. 17.—Because of the heavy demands from Elizabeth, Cranford, the Roselles, Westfield, Linden and Rahway for accommodations for grip cases, beds are at a premium at both the Alexian Brothers' and Elizabeth General hospitals.

At the former institution it has been found necessary to discharge convalescents as soon as possible.

EASTER SUNDAY FALLS THIS YEAR ON APRIL 23

Easter Sunday falls this year on April 23, which is within two days of as late as possible. It fell upon the same date in 1905 and will not again until the year 2000. But once during the present century, in 1943, will Easter come upon the last day possible, April 25, and not once upon April 24. In the last century it fell upon April 23 in 1848; on April 24, in 1859, and on April 25, in 1886. Since Easter falls upon the first Sunday following the fourteenth day of the calendar moon, which falls upon or next after March 21, it follows that March 22 is the earliest date possible. Not once in the present century will this happen. It did occur in 1818, but has not since nor will it until after the year 2000. It came on March 23 in 1913 and will fall on March 24 in 1940, but neither of these dates will be repeated during the century.

A description of the factory is given, and the reasons why Metuchen was selected as the location; in addition, the facilities offered by the town to manufacturers and others contemplating building new plants are set forth.

Prizes Awarded to the Best Speakers in Local Association.

The second annual speaking contest of the Plainfield Young Men's Hebrew Association was held last night in the Y. M. H. A. Hall. There were eight participants and a good crowd evidenced an interest in their work by attending. Those who spoke and their subjects were: Miss Saidel, on "The Torah;" Walter Bronston, on "The Giant Killer;" Violet Berger, on "My King;" Ruth Schwartz on "A Servant of God;" Pauline Fass on "God Whom Shall I Compare to Thee;" Hannah Nathanson, on "The Legend of Rabbi Ben Levy," and Eva Davidson on 'Hannakah, the Feast of the Dedication;" and Morton Kline on "The Wisdom of Silence."

Victor L. Delich and Miss Lillian Steger, of Plainfield, and M. H. Winfield, of New Brunswick Y. M. H. A., acted as judges. They awarded prizes as follows: First prize, Miss Violet Berger, a silver medal donated by the State Y. M. H. A. and Y. W. H. A.; second prize, Morton Kline, silver medal donated by A. H. Richards; third prize, Miss Ida Saidel, a book, "The Star of Love," donated by Abe Schwartz.

Samuel Rothberg presented the prizes to the winners and in a short address mentioned the State contest to be held in Jersey City in March when winners of all contests held over the State will compete. Mr Rothberg also urged a full attendance at the mass meeting for war sufferers to be held January 27, and a liberal giving toward the fund.

Miss Clara Nathanson played a violin solo and was accompanied on the piano by Miss Hannah Nathanson. Miss Ida Canton rendered a vocal solo.

Abe Schwartz acted as chairman of the meeting and in concluding the program he expressed the thanks of the local organizations for the work of Miss Rose Siedal and Misses Anna and Lena Miledezy, who acted as coaches to all of the participants in the contest.

MUSIC LOVERS ENJOY ATTRACTIVE PROGRAM

Interesting Affair Given at Franklin School by Recreation Committee.

Franklin School Auditorium held a capacity audience of music lovers, Saturday afternoon, when a trio of young people from the Music Settlement of New York city came here, under the auspices of the Recreation Committee, to show to the people of Plainfield, the remarkable development of musical talent among the children of a city at a small sum who would otherwise be unable to follow the study of some instrument that they loved. Prior to the recital Miss Smith, the secretary of the New York Settlement, gave a short address on "What the Children of the City are Doing, and What the Settlement is Doing for Them."

Following her talk, the young people accompanying her were the center of attraction with their splendid manipulation of the musical instruments. They won much applause from the spectators and responded with several encores. Their program consisted of the following numbers: Trio, "Minuet," Beethoven; 'cello, "Allegro Appassionata,' by Saint-Saens, rendered by Master Milton Prinz; trio, "Hungarian Dance," by Brahms; piano, "Two iKnderscenen" and "Ende von Leid," by Schuman, by Miss Evelyn Finn; violin, "Gavotte" from Gossee, and "The Swan," from Saint-Saens, by Master Hyman Fuchs.

The Public Recreation Committee of Plainfield has been providing a piano course for the children of the city in both the Franklin and the Washington schools, both classes being supervised by competent teachers and furnished at nominal figures. The feature is growing in popularity, and it is not unlikely that other instruments will be taken up in time.

EXCEEDED SPEED LAWS.

The soliciting agent of the Maybaum Packing Company, of 14 Ward street, Newark, will appear before Recorder Hand in the borough court at 1:30 tomorrow afternoon on a charge of exceeding the speed limit of the borough. Chief Weiss was proceeding along Somerset street Saturday afternoon, when an automobile passed him at a rate of about 35 miles an hour, he says. All the chief was able to obtain was the license number of the machine. He got busy at once and learned that it was owned by the Maybaum concern.

MRS. DUNHAM'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Mrs. Anne G. Dunham, widow of James Val Dunham, whose death occurred at her home at 227 East Sixth street, Saturday afternoon, will be held at the late residence, tomorrow afternoon at 2:15. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, will be in charge and interment will be in the Bound Brook cemetery.

HE THRUST GRIEF ASIDE.

Because He Was a Journalist, With a Duty to Perform.

Apropos of journalistic enthusiasm, Mr. Arnold Bennett furnishes a humorous illustration. He was twenty and a reporter for a small paper. An election had taken place in which his paper's candidate had been defeated and a brewer had won. His editor had given him instructions that if they lost he was to make fun of the brewer, and in any case to deliver his copy by 11 o'clock next morning. Mr. Bennett says:

"I attended the declaration of the poll, and as the elated brewer made his speech of ceremony in front of the town hall I observed that his hat was stove in and askew. I fastened on that detail and went to bed in meditation upon the facetious notes which I was to write early on the morrow. In the middle of the night I was wakened up. My venerable grandfather, who lived at the other end of the town, had been taken ill and was dying. As his eldest grandson, my presence at the final scene was indispensable. I went and talked in low tones with my elders.

"Nothing domestic could be permitted to interfere with my duty as a journalist.

"'I must write those facetious comments while my grandfather is dying!' This thought filled my brain. It seemed to me to be fine, splendid. I was intensely proud of being laid under a compulsion so startlingly dramatic. Could I manufacture jokes while my grandfather expired? Certainly. I was a journalist. And never since have I been so ardently a journalist as I was that night and morning. With a sense of the theatrical, I wrote my notes at dawn. They delicately excoriated the brewer.

"The curious thing is that my grandfather survived not only that, but several other fatal attacks."

WHAT IS STYLE?

It Is Difficult to Define Because It Is So Intangible.

What makes a woman stylish? Applied to dress, style is a curiously elusive quality, either to define or to acquire.

"A stylish garment!" we say of one made in the fashion of the day. But when we ask, "What is the style of the garment?" we are inquiring for a description that may be of this year's style, or last year's, or of the last century's. A dress may be "in style" so far as its material, cut and trimming go and yet not look stylish when worn either because it is worn by the wrong person or in the wrong way.

"A stylish woman," we say of one dressed à la mode, and yet in the next breath we describe another woman as "good style," although she is not wearing the latest fabrics or newest cut and often is not herself beautiful.

Style is not a simple quality, but a compound one. "We say style," says an old writer, "of everything in which form or matter is conceived to be, in however slight degree, expressive of taste and sentiment." And it is taste and sentiment more than a specific mode that go to the making of style in dress—that intangible something so hard to define, so seldom acquired and so much desired because it is so widely admired.

The French word chic expresses, as Americans and English use it today, a good deal of what we have in mind when we say "stylish." It implies a certain knack in the selection and manner of wearing clothes. The meaning in French includes the idea of subtlety and finesse, and it is these qualities more than the ejatant (striking) effect that are suggested by the best dressed women, so often lacking in those of expensively dressed Americans.—Good Health.

Entirely Stopped.

It was at a big boxing show in Brooklyn that at the time for beginning the third round of one of the bouts the official master of ceremonies climbed through the ropes and from the center of the ring made this statement:

"Gentlemen, I wish to announce that in the last round Harry Pierce broke his hand and is compelled to stop. He is therefore unable to continue. And so he will not fight any more tonight."—Saturday Evening Post.

The First Oyster Eater.

The gluttonous Vitellius is reported to have eaten 1,000 oysters at a sitting. "He was a very valiant man who first ventured on eating of oysters," King James was wont to declare, a sentiment echoed by the poet Gay:

The man had sure a palate covered o'er
With brass or steel that on the rocky shore
First broke the oozy oyster's pearly coat
And risked the living morsel down his throat

BOY SCOUTS PLAN FOR ACTIVE SEASON

"First Steps in Aeroplaning" and Construction of Swimming Pool the Features.

"First Steps in Aeroplaning" is the title of a schedule prepared for tomorrow night's meeting of the Boy Scouts of this city who were formerly members of Troop 5. The meeting will be held at the First Presbyterian chapel beginning sharp at 7:30 and closing at 9. Scout Executive Allen E. Beals will be in charge of the meeting, with Commissioner A. V. Arrangements are being made whereby Troop 5 will begin the construction of a portable combination pontoon barge and bridge.

Plans are underway for the construction at the Boy Scout Camp next spring of a swimming pool that will be lined with concrete for the use of the boys, the work to be done entirely by scouts. The pool will be large enough to use the new pontoon equipment, together with the suspension bridge already built.

Scoutmasters of various other troops are invited to attend tomorrow night's meeting as well as other scouts. Scouts attending tomorrow night's meeting are urged to bring their fifes and drums, scout flags and other equipment.

MILLSTONE DIVIDED OVER LEEKING CASE

Wrangle Over Job on Education Board Grows Warm.

Somerville, Jan. 17.—As a result of the outsing of William Leeking, a member of the Millstone Board of Education, the citizens of that village are about divided over the situation. The Board is comprised of three members, who are, George V. N. Veghte, Peter N. Williamson, and the deposed member. The last mentioned men dropped Leeking because he failed to attend the meetings of the Board in the past three months. Leeking has engaged George Pace, an attorney of Millstone, and the Board has employed former Judge Clarence E. Case to look after its interest, because Mr. Leeking is to appeal to the State Commissioner of Education in this matter.

Shortly after Leeking was out, Veghte and Williamson were notified by the Borough Council to appear before it in the matter of ousting Leeking. Mayor William B. Bainbridge who issued the call, received word that the Board does not have to come before the Council, as that body has no power over the Board.

Several citizens take the stand that the meetings of the Board were held in the day time when Mr. Leeking could not attend. Leeking is appealing his case to the State Board of Education on the ground that he was not properly notified of the meetings

FORMER PASTORS WILL ASSIST IN ANNIVERSARY

Three anniversaries will be celebrated simultaneously by the congregation of the Centenary Methodist Episcopal church, of Newark, next month. At that time special exercises and services will be held marking the 250th anniversary of Newark; the 150th year of American Methodism, and the semi-centennial of the church of which Rev. Dr. Ralph Brainerd Urmy is the pastor. The program will be instituted on Tuesday night, February 1, and will continue on each Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday throughout the entire month.

A reunion of former pastors and members of the church will be held on Tuesday night. It is then expected that most of the eleven living former ministers of the church will make short addresses. Among the latter who are well known in Plainfield are Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, pastor of the Monroe Avenue church, who held the pastorate of the Newark church from 1884 to 1887; Rev. Dr. C. R. Barnes, of Hoboken, who had charge from 1875 to 1880, and Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea, of Jersey City, having charge from 1909 to 1910. The last two named were former pastors here.

WEEPING SINEWS.

Various Methods by Which Ganglions May Be Cured.

Physicians use the word ganglion to describe a swelling of the sheath of a tendon, which contains fluid, and which usually occurs about the wrist. A weeping sinew is the same thing. A little swelling forms, and the fluid distends it more and more as it collects. The swelling is elastic and soft. Sometimes it is small and does not cause any trouble, and occasionally it passes away without any treatment. It may yield to long continued gentle pressure, like that which a ribbon band exerts. A well placed ribbon bandage also helps to relieve the feeling of weakness that almost always accompanies a ganglion.

In a few cases the fluid that the ganglion contains is tuberculous, but in most cases the ganglionic swelling is entirely harmless. In tuberculous cases it is best to remove the sheath and its contents completely.

Ganglions are usually seen on the back of the wrist, but sometimes one comes on the front and increases in size. It is then likely to spread down the sinews into the palm of the hand. That naturally cripples the victim more or less, especially since the swelling often gives pain in cold and damp weather.

There are various ways of breaking a weeping sinew. Sometimes it can be dispersed by sudden pressure applied by the thumbs, which bursts the ganglion without breaking the skin. It is best then to bandage the part very tightly in order to prevent the little sac from filling up again. The bandage should contain some thin, hard substance, such as a large coin, directly over the site of the sac. Sometimes a ganglion refuses to burst, but yields to tight bandaging combined with treatment by a blister or by painting with iodine. The cure in such cases is effected by gradual absorption. If other means fail, there is nothing to do but to open the ganglion and scrape out its contents.—Youth's Companion.

SAVED THEIR HONOR.

A Diplomatic Crisis That Required Careful Handling.

Your true diplomatist is nothing if not touchy concerning his own dignity and that of the nation that he represents. The lengths to which they have carried their sensitiveness in the past is shown by an amusing episode that occurred when the peace of Karlowitz was negotiated in 1699.

The war between Austria and Turkey, which led to the siege of Vienna by the Turks, had just been brought to an end by the battle of Zenta, in which Austria was victorious. Prince Eugene at once gathered the diplomats at Karlowitz, in Croatia, to dictate the terms of peace, but for weeks the congress made no progress because the representatives could not agree as to their proper positions in the council hall. That the representative of Emperor Leopold should have the seat of honor was taken for granted, but the other parties to the congress—the Turks, Russians, English, Dutch, Poles, Venetians—all clamored for the next highest seat.

Finally the situation became so critical that it was feared that the peace would never be negotiated. So drastic measures had to be taken. As the diplomats could not be coerced, Eugene immediately employed a number of workmen and had them build a new council chamber. It was a round building, with a special entrance built for each representative. In the middle was a circular table surrounded by chairs all the same size and finish. The diplomats now came willingly to their private entrances, and at the sound of a trumpet they entered, each standing beside his appointed seat. At a given sign they all sat down, and every one's pride was satisfied.

Thus at length, says Das Buch Für Alle, was the peace of Karlowitz signed after several weeks' delay because of the foolish caprices of the diplomats.

Constitution Island.

Constitution island is in the Hudson river opposite West Point. The island comprises 300 acres densely wooded. During the Revolution it formed part of the defenses of the Hudson river. Upon it are the remains of ten breastworks. These were completed by Kosciusko. Washington's life guard was mustered out on this island in 1783. Miss Anna Bartlett Warner, its owner, and Mrs. Russell Sage in 1908 made a gift of the island to the government of the United States, and it is now a part of the military reservation.

Roundabout Bribery.

At one old time British election a candidate won by means of an umbrella. Sheer absence of mind caused him to leave the gamp behind at every house at which he called to canvass, and of course when it was returned by the voter a sovereign was only a suitable reward for honesty.

THE SECRET WORD

Our War Department Has About the Best Code In Existence.

SIMPLE, FLEXIBLE AND RAPID.

The Navy Has a Cipher of Its Own, as Has Also the Department of State. One of the Codes Used by England For Unimportant Messages.

The United States government employs probably more different kinds of codes than any other power. The state department has one of its own. The war department has one. And the navy uses a separate and distinct system. The code book or key of the navy cipher is kept always in a canvas bag, which is lined with zinc and heavily weighted. The bag is in the personal custody of the commanding officer of the ship, who has orders never to let it get away from him, but to throw it overboard in the event of capture by an enemy. The advent of wireless telegraphy has made this precaution doubly necessary, for the solution of an enemy's cipher in time of war might easily turn the scales of victory.

The only naval code book ever captured by an enemy was the one carried by the Chesapeake in the war of 1812. The commander of the Chesapeake, Captain Lawrence, was wounded early in the battle, and no one else knew where the code book was kept. When the frigate surrendered the British found the code behind a sliding panel, and the book is now in the British museum.

The cipher of the war department is very simple in its nature and by virtue of this simplicity, ease of operation, inscrutability and rapidity with which a new key can be substituted is said to hold first place among the military ciphers of the world. Army officers who have used other codes say that none of them compares to this one.

This cipher may in a general way be described as an ingenious method of distorting the order of words in a message and further obscuring the meaning by the systematic introduction of irrelevant words and meaningless names. The variety of distortions is great, and whenever a copy of the cipher is captured another cipher can be communicated in a very short time to all those who should have it.

A simple and ingenious naval cipher was invented by Captain Charles Morris for the use of the American navy during the war of 1812 and has been utilized by the navy department, with modifications, ever since. The principle is applicable alike to flag ciphers or numerical ciphers transmitted by telegraph or wireless.

Captain Merris in a hand written signal book bound by him in 1811 stated:

A circumstance may sometimes render it desirable to change the signification of the flags or the numbers expressed by them. The following method should therefore be adopted:

Let each day of the week be inserted in the signal book opposite a number. To each of those days affix a certain number, which is always to be communicated orally under charge of secrecy, that no enemy or improper person can become acquainted with it. The following list is an example:

Sunday	(add)	3
Monday		5
Tuesday		7
Wednesday		8
Thursday		6
Friday		4
Saturday		2

Before commencing your communication insert the number corresponding to the day you wish to use. This will signify to the person who is to read the signal that he is to add the number corresponding to that day to all signals that may be made. The person sending the signal will subtract the same number from all signals. By this means an enemy's knowledge of your ordinary signals might really be converted to his disadvantage instead of the benefit which he might promise himself from them.

While nobody could tell you today the code used by any power in transmitting important and vital news and instructions, some of the more ordinary ciphers have been discovered. For instance, one of the simplest of all official ciphers is that used by the British foreign office for the transmission of comparatively unimportant messages, the cipher being too well known to risk detection when there is much at stake.

The letters of the alphabet are arranged in the form of a square:

f	g	h	i	j	2
k	l	m	n	o	3
p	q	r	s	t	4
u	v	w	x	y	5

Each letter is then represented by two numerals. Thus A would be 11, D would be 41, R would be 34, and so on. The letter Z, which has to be omitted from the cipher because of the fact that there are twenty-six letters in the alphabet, is represented by 0, while the same symbol is used to separate words.

Thus in "Rush arms to Zanzibar" the cipher would be:

34154432011343344054530011430421211134.

This cipher has the advantage of almost infinite variety, as by changing the arrangement of the numerals one may easily baffle a chance recipient of the message, while the person for whom the cipher is intended would have no trouble in reading it.—James Hay, Jr., in Every Week.

CHANGE DATES AT MEETING OF COLUMBIANS' BOWLERS

New dates were set for a number of postponed games, at a meeting of the Knights of Columbus League in Newark, yesterday afternoon. The two changes of dates of the Plainfield team was shifting the game scheduled with Newark for March 5 to February 12, and setting January 29 as the date for the Olive Branch series postponed from December 8. The Newark tilt will be rolled here on Lincoln's Birthday.

All the March dates were brought forward, so the schedule can be finished in February, so that the prizes can be distributed at the league ball to be held just before Lent opens. The date for the ball was changed from March 6 to March 3, in order to avoid a confliction with the annual Charity Ball of the Knights of Columbus on March 6.

WELSH AND WILLIAMS IN DANGER OF LOSING TITLES BEFORE ANOTHER YEAR

Viewing the fistic champions in apparent security it would seem that few of them are in danger of losing their crowns during the present year. Two of them [illegible] are tottering on their pedestals, and might possibly tumble. Freddie Welsh can escape impending disaster by sidestepping everybody with a chance to whip him in twenty rounds, and Kid Williams's bantamweight crown seems to be hanging by a thread.

McLAUGHLIN AND BUNDY MAY LOSE STATUS AS AMATEUR TENNISERS

Thomas C. Bundy (left) and Maurice E. McLaughlin.

Lawn tennis officials declare that Maurice E. McLaughlin and Thomas C. Bundy have unquestionably jeopardized their amateur status by embarking in the sporting goods business in San Francisco. There is a belief among tennis men that it should be impossible for an amateur to capitalize his athletic fame without incurring the penalty of being immediately classed as a professional

SEMI-ANNUAL TAXES.

The proposed bill for semi-annual payment of taxes in the State of New Jersey that originated with the West End Civic Association in this city, is one that would prove immensely popular with property owners of all classes, although it would probably necessitate more work on the part of municipal officials and others who handle the public moneys. As pointed out by those who suggest the reform, taxes now come due and must be paid immediately before Christmas, or at a time when the humble workingman, and he pays a big percentage of the tax total, is trying to save enough from his weekly wage to provide the happiness that should be attendant upon a child's Christmas. There is no season of the year that calls for such heavy expenditures as Christmas and it was decidedly bad judgment to provide that taxes must be paid just at that time. While the payment of taxes is one of the few duties of citizenship that must be performed in part payment for the many privileges enjoyed, the small home earner oft-times finds this a burden. This is particularly true where taxes come due at the Christmas season and as the city, county and State must be satisfied, there is usually little left for the buying of gifts for relatives and friends. That is the fault of the citizen who does not save, it is true, but if there must be a burden why not let the paid official carry it, rather than put it upon the shoulders of thousands of individuals. The suggestion is not one that should be adopted by the present Assembly without proper investigation, but if Senator Pierce introduces the bill, as he will be requested by the West End Civic Association, a committee of experts should be appointed to make a report on its possibilities.

REVIVAL OF SKATING.

We are advised that skating is to be revived in many parts of the country. Not roller skating; that was revived some time ago. But real skating—skating out in the open, upon the ice, where health is, where joy lurks, where time ceases to run against a fellow nor leaves a lot of wrinkles, says the Paterson Call. Skating has never ceased to be popular with the youngsters. It will need no revival so far as they are concerned. But older people—it is with them that a revival is needed, for, from some reason that has never been printed, the older people ceased indulging in the sport many years ago, greatly to the detriment of the race.

Older people do not play enough. They do not take enough interest in sports. They seem to feel or to think that such sport as skating is for the young, whereas it is as much for the older as for the younger. There is no reason why "Dad" should not find as much fun upon the ice as the children, and if "Mam" were taken for a slide occcasionally, she would find the burden of the home much lighter. Where a field of ice is available, in such a community as this, skating ought to attract nine-tenths of the population. It ought to be a family affair. It is a sane amusement, a health-giving exercise, a germ destroying pleasure that ought to be indulged in more than it is. So we are glad to read that skating is to be revived; we trust also that we shall have a good, old-fashioned winter, with plenty of ice.

THE E-2 EXPLOSION.

The fact that a U. S. submarine blew up while it was being fitted with the new Edison bateries has no bearing on the worth of the batteries. Such accidents have occurred before and may occur again on the submersibles of this type. Mr. Edison remains the wizard of electricity and he has yet to give to the public an invention that is not useful and practicable. Naval experts admit that his batteries are better than the old ones and as safe, and they will probably be put into service as though the accident of Saturday never happened.

Those who were killed in the explosion of the E-2 are entitled to burial with all the honors of war. They are heroes and their heroism is as great as that of the "six hundred." They were of the little army of "Prepared" upon which all our hopes of national safety lie, and a nation of men who refuse to prepare should honor them.

Errant Fancy

This is about the time of year when Fancy (fatuous fool!)
Goes straying 'round the edges of some minnow-muddied pool;
One hears the frogs go "Gulli-wump!" or tell you it's "knee-deep"—
This vision will grow stronger as the seasons onward creep.
But when tis spring and we have had a heated day or two,
That same fool Fancy will bring back a snowy day to view!

I love the summer, when 'tis cold;
in spring I like the fall;
The summer, in the winter time, I love the most of all.
I love to snowball folks in June,
and coast through warm July.
In January, o'er the stream I'd cast the tempting fly.
In 'mid December I'd go forth and pluck the daisied dell—
I strongly hope that heaven won't give me a yearn for the other place!

A Preparedness Thought

This preparedness and anti-preparedness dope reminds one forcibly of the ancient wheeze of the dog-owner who asked the man who had killed said mut with a pitchfork, why he hadn't taken the other end of the fork to the dog, and the pitch-forker retorted with a query as to why the dog hadn't come at him with the other end. If European nations come at us with the Christian end, we can answer them with soft words and Bryanesque gentleness. Otherwise, we shall have to go back at them with the same sort of stuff they hand us.

Consolation

Mrs. N. Peck—Huh! You ought to be glad that the grindstone don't bust on you, as grindstones do, sometimes.

How They Voted

"How did you two vote in the late election?"

"Well, Brown here knew Smith, so he voted for Jones. I knew Jones, so I voted for Smith."

"Who dares," the ranting speaker cried, "dispute the things I say to-night?"

Can't Always Tell

"But do you think that cadaverous fellow will be any good to look after a gang of workmen in the winter time?"

"Well, the jewelers tell me that some of those thin models make the best time-keepers."

'Snothin'!

Recently one of the greatest painters of poultry was operated on at a St. Louis hospital. Poultry painting, perhaps, does not require great ability. We know a butcher who never had an art lesson in his life who can draw a chicken in a minute, so skilfully that the most careful cook has only to wash it a little and put it in to roast.

Where It Belongs

"Well," said Offenstung, "I find that I have again bought a quarter section of bright blue sky."

The Passing Of Twilight Sleep

NOW THAT the far-famed Dämmerschlaf, or "twilight sleep" has been introduced into the movies, we feel that we are safe in venturing to speak of it.

Twilight sleep is the strange name given to a method o. producing forgetfulness and partial loss of pain sense in childbirth. The effect is produced by the injection into the skin of a mixture of morphine or a derivative thereof and scopolamine, the latter a narcotic which makes the patient forget her experience.

Authorities differ. That is one grand thing about competent authorities. Haven't you noticed how cordially they differ about everything, even the constitution and the law? Medical authorities differ because what is one patient's food happens to be another patient's poison, and the authorities will differ just as hard as they can without considering how different people are in that respect. But then, it is fortunate for the world in general that authorities do differ about everything. Wouldn't this be a dreary, cut-and-dried existence if authorities always agreed?

Now twilight sleep is a fine thing if you can afford the prolonged attendance it requires on the part of the doctor. Twilight sleep is a fine thing for some patients even if they can't afford it—and a great many patients who can't afford a doctor, saying nothing of a nurse, are receiving it in various hospitals. Yes, even in some of those hospitals managed by lay boards—but kept going by the charity of the medical staff.

The fact is that twilight sleep, like salvarsan, tuberculin, the X-ray, radium, and nearly all new medical discoveries, is only about thirty per cent. as valuable as the first headlines regarding it would lead one to think.

And by the way, hyoscine and morphine have been used as an anesthetic in childbirth and surgical work in this country for at least fifteen years, and hyoscine, some authorities declare, is identical in chemical character and therapeutic effect with scopolamine.

Certainly no woman should go through childbirth without the aid of an anesthetic. Chloroform, in our experience, has seemed absolutely satisfactory for routine use—enough to take off the "edge," yet not to produce complete surgical anesthesia or unconsciousness.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Breathing Exercise

Can you suggest anything to relieve painful functional trouble in the case of a young woman?

Answer—We have a monograph describing a simple breathing exercise which helps many such cases. You are welcome to a copy if you send stamped, addressed envelope.

Blood Pressure Too High

Is 150 too high blood-pressure for a man of thirty-nine?

Answer—Yes, about thirty points too high.

Chickens And Health Departments

Will you please tell me why people are allowed to keep chickens right under one's windows, near the house? I have reported it to the Health Department, but thus far my complaint seems to have received no attention.

Answer—If there is an ordinance against it, why don't you bring suit for damages? If there isn't, it doesn't interest the Health Department. You should call in person and find out what's what. But if your complaint was anonymous, as is your letter, the Health Department could scarcely be expected to give it any attention.

Dr. Brady will answer all questions pertaining to Health. If your question is of general interest it will be answered through these columns; if not it will be answered personally if stamped, addressed envelope is enclosed. Dr. Brady will not prescribe for individual cases or make diagnoses. Address all letters to Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.

BULLDOGS

THE bulldog is the Dreadnaught of the canine tribe. He was constructed by Nature in a belligerent mood, and is admirably fitted for anarchy and rebellion.

The bulldog is not as large as the mastiff, which is something for which to be thankful. He has a round, tapering body, a foreshortened tail, front legs shaped like the two sides of a lyre and a chest which is so broad that you have to get around on one side to see the rest of him. The most distinguishing feature of the bulldog is his head. This is round, finished off at the top with small round ears, and for the rest is composed almost entirely of jaw.

The bulldog's jaw is capacious, and is very substantially made, so as to enable him to grab an automobile by the hind wheel and shake the engine out of it if necessary. Both upper and lower jaws are profusely decorated with a menacing and unsociable look which prevents strangers from picking him up and taking him home to play with.

Nature heartlessly gave the bulldog only the rudiments of a nose which looks as if it had been kicked by a mule. It has defective flues and gives the owner a painful exhaust. The bulldog also has a retreating forehead, which is only natural, however. No one can blame the forehead for wanting to get away from that face.

Tenacity and determination are the keynotes of the bulldog's nature, and these have made him famous. His jaws have a timelock attachment, and when he closes them upon an intruder they cannot be opened until the full of the moon. A United States Senator holding on to his vested interests is a vacillating and fickle creature compared with a bulldog which has closed his face upon some hostile object. Many a marauder who has attempted to rob a farmhouse equipped with a pink-eyed bulldog is now mournfully engaged in trying to wear the creature off of his person with very poor success.

Grab an automobile by the hind wheel and shake the engine out of it

Because of their faithful and well-directed ferocity, bulldogs are greatly beloved by their owners exclusively. Moreover, they are highly prized for their ugliness, just as impressionist pictures are. An abnormally bow-legged bulldog, with a five-gallon chest and a face which looks like an old rubber shoe in a fit, will frequently bring $1,000 to his designer.

In spite of their appearance and their talents, bulldogs are affectionate and kind with those to whom they have been properly introduced. For this reason we should strive at all times to enlarge our social acquaintance with bulldogs, especially when traveling in a strange country.

Real People of the War

BY ROBERT MOUNTSIER

Hassan The Goatherd Bathes His Feet And Talks Of War

AUTHOR'S NOTE—These are authentic interviews with real people from the masses—the class upon whom the real burden of War falls always. I have faithfully recorded their thought and pass it on to you, without prejudice, without feeling. Mine has been simply the work of the chronicler. R. M.

IF HASSAN THE GOATHERD has not been killed by British artillery or Turkish surgeons—one is almost as deadly as the other—he is still my self-appointed friend. For, when I gave him two packages of tobacco and cigarette papers sufficient for several days' needs and meditations, did he not wish me all the joys of Paradise and the blessing of Allah, shükür Allah!

When I met Hassan through the informal introduction of the tobacco, he was sitting on his small iron bed, one of 1,500 in Galata Serai hospital in Constantinople. Hassan's left arm was in a sling and his bare feet in a basin of water. At this point it should be recorded that even a hole made in a Mohammedan arm by a dog of an infidel cannot keep the true believer from performing his pedal ablutions, although not a single drop of su may touch the remaining surface of his body for weeks.

"I hope your wound will soon be healed," I said to Hassan, ignoring the fact that I was interrupting his daily foot bath. "Then perhaps you can go back home."

"No, effendi, I must soon again go back and fight the Ingiliz (English). It is the will of Allah."

Since I am not a Mohammedan, I might have told Hassan that it was the will not of Allah—no, not even of his representative here on earth, Sultan Mohammed V.—but of the Sultan of the Allemans, Emperor William, who prays to his God for a Holy War. But Hassan is a simple-minded fellow who believes that American bullets, dum-dummed by the English, will kill his wife and children and goats if he does not kill the infidels. He believes it because the Germans have told him so, and to strengthen his belief they have distributed pictures throughout the Turkish Empire, showing how all Christians—the Germans supposedly do not include themselves in this category—mutilate and kill those who revere the name of Allah.

"Do you like Gallipoli as well as your home in Anatolia?" I asked Hassan, with the hope of loosening his Turkish tongue.

"No, effendi," he began, "you must know that Anatolia is very beautiful. There I watch my goats and sleep and eat. In our country we have big birds that are very, very bad. They sometimes catch the kids and lambs and chickens. Once I killed one of these bad birds. But where we are fighting in Gallipoli there is another kind of bird. It is so queer, not like those where I live at all. This bird is very big, but it never catches anything. It always flies very high, and I do not like it.

"Every time it comes," he frankly explained, "I am very much afraid, for it drops things like big bullets on us, and they make a great noise and kill some of us. When I see this bird I fall on my knees and cry, 'Aman, Allah, I am finished!' But it never did finish me.

"When we shoot with our cannon," Hassan continued, after I had made certain that he had no idea that aeroplanes were anything but enormous birds, "the balls are so very little, like coffee grains, but the English balls, aman, Allah! they are as big as watermelons."

"Yes," interrupted a fellow soldier lying in the next bed—his left leg had been smashed by a piece of shell and had been amputated—"yes, it is like that. I remember well. The English have 35's. Dayshetli, dayshetli! (Terrible, terrible.) I am glad that I will not have to go back."

"I was wounded in a different way, not like that," resumed Hassan, as he pointed to his neighbor's leg. "One day came a shrapnel when I was sitting in a trench. When I saw this big thing coming I said to myself, 'It is not worth while to go out,' but the trench went. Everywhere was sand. It was all over me. I tried to ask Allah to save me, but the sand got into my mouth. Then they came with shovels and dug me out. I am glad to be here. There is no noise here, and there are no Germans to make me work."

By this time Hassan had finished his foot bath. A cigarette had been rolled for him and lighted with the contrivance of flint, steel and rope that is a part of every Turk's equipment. Hassan had a quiet, un-Germanized spot and a cigarette, and he became silent.

"Is there anything more that you wish, now?" I asked.

At first Hassan the Goatherd made no answer. Then came this reply, "Home and my goats."

Going To

Going To is the name of a place most of us at some time or other set out for but never get to—never reach. In fact, many an entire lifetime often is given over to journeying toward Going To.

Going To is Failure's favorite Town.

Mark the man who says he is Going to. He rarely, if ever, Does. Going To does not mean to Do—it means to Forget and not to Do.

Going To is the Sugar that the Devil puts over his bitterest Pills.

Look about you. The very Faces of scores of those with whom you mix during the day, are stamped as though chiseled, with the indeterminate—Going To. For Going To puts the Soul atrembling and excites a Fear in otherwise fine Characters. Going To robs and cheats and deceives.

"I am Going To." No—never stop there. "I am Going To—Do." That's your cue. But be sure you Do At Once and On the Spot.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How Johnnie of the Northland Spends His Time.

Cook Bakes the Nicest Cookies For Him.

"TRUE story night!" shouted Evelyn as soon as daddy sat down.

"Way up in the far northland called Labrador," daddy began, "is a little boy by the name of Johnnie. But he doesn't live with his parents and many brothers and sisters, for his poor back is bent, and he lives in a hospital. Years ago, when he was a baby, if his papa had done as the doctor said and sent Johnnie to the hospital then, his back could have been straightened. Now nobody quite knows whether all the doctors in Labrador can make Johnnie a well boy, but his papa did not mean to make a cripple of him. He was only neglectful."

"Who does take care of Johnnie?" asked Jack.

"The kind nurses and doctors in the hospital and the teachers who go to Labrador each summer to teach the people how to learn trades. It is in the summer, you see, that Johnnie has the best time, for there kind people pet him a lot, and their cook bakes the nicest cookies for him while he stands all bent over by the kitchen table. Johnnie is just learning to write letters home. While his friend, the cook, makes fruit buns on one end of the table, Johnnie at the other end writes to his father, 'Dear pop, I am having a nice time.'

"Sometimes, especially Sundays, the teachers let Johnnie play in their trunks, which hold toys for the little Eskimo children who have to stay frozen in all the long, dreary winters."

"Oh, there are flags of many nations for the boys in the trade school and whistles and pictures of rabbits and bears and chickadees and flower gardens and Bible pictures. But Johnnie likes best to whistle. 'I likes d' whistle so well, miss,' he tells his teacher, 'that I can't keep it out of me mouth.' Then he also passes lots of time visiting with the folks in the hospital who are almost well enough to go home. One day what do you think he did?"

The children guessed and guessed, so daddy told them. "He got the fire extinguisher that the doctors keep in case the hospital ever gets blazing, and he squirted it right on some of his friends who were sick in bed."

"What did the lady nurse do?" grinned Evelyn.

"Johnnie had to stay in bed two whole days—until he promised to be good," said daddy. "So poor Johnnie of the bent back passes his days sampling the cook's buns, writing letters to his papa and hugging his papa's letters to him, waiting for the doctor's operation that shall make him straight and strong and crying after he goes to bed nights when the little ship Prospero comes each autumn to take his kind friends back to a United States winter," daddy finished, with two big hugs.

Married Life on $80 a Month

BY MRS. IVA LEONARD

The Story Ends With Everybody, Especially the Sutners, Very Happy.

"Oh, Olive!" exclaimed Molly Sutner in breathless eagerness. "Such a wonderful thing has happened." Olive rose and put her hands on Molly's shoulders.

"It must be good news, I am sure, from your eyes."

"Good news! I should say it was. Mr. Jaynes has given John that Tyler's place; has made him cashier." Molly was fairly bursting with the news.

"Good! How glad I am." Olive's face showed that she spoke the truth.

"He will get a hundred dollars a month. John is delighted of course, but he said that the thing that pleased him more even than the money was what Mr. Jaynes said when he told him about the promotion." Molly paused for breath.

"Go on," urged Olive. "I am so eager to hear."

"He said that he had been watching that debt business and he was very much pleased to see the way we were going at it and clearing it off. He told John that he would never have thought of promoting him if that had not been the case." Molly's eyes were moist.

"And that was as much your work as John's. No man can save and get out of debt without his wife's help," said Olive.

"That was what John said. He gave me full credit for all I have tried to do. Oh, I am so happy."

"So are all your friends," began Olive.

"Yes, dear Mrs. Morton," interrupted Molly. "She will be as pleased as if she had inherited a fortune."

"You can tell her yourself when you go down for your vacation next month," added Olive.

"Oh, I cannot sleep tonight until I have written to her. She has meant so much to me. You and she together have made my world over for me."

"No, dear. The most anyone could do was to help you to accept your world as it is, and make the most of it. This is really the first change in outward conditions, and this change you can see is one you have earned yourself."

"That is the greatest miracle of all, it seems to me, that things could really be the same and seem so different." Molly rested her chin on her hand and looked off over the sunny landscape.

"I suppose now you will not have to go without everything while you pay your debts." Olive looked inquiringly at Molly.

"We decided last night when we talked it over to put all the increase of salary into the debt paying fund, and live on the original eighty dollars a month."

"Good!" applauded Olive.

"And when the debts are wiped out we plan to put that twenty dollars a month in the bank or somewhere so we will have a nest egg of a savings account. We must never be in such tight places again as this careless extravagance has plunged us in. You see we have been living on sixty dollars a month since early last winter. Eighty will seem a liberal allowance. Oh, I can live on eighty dollars a month all right," she laughed.

THE END.

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME--

"Trade-marked" articles—things sold by NAME or DISTINGUISHING and IDENTIFYING BRAND—must be kept at the highest standard of quality. The VALUE must never vary. For a maker to "cheapen" such an article would be to throw away the prestige he had fought so hard, and advertised so effectinvely, to gain.

DOMESTIC BLISS.

Shown in the Confessions of a Happily Married Man.

It takes my wife a long time to read anything. I skim whole pages instantly. She hates to be read aloud to. I love it.

When we travel I always suggest to her in advance the car we shall take. She agrees, but will suddenly change her mind and insist upon taking another one. I grumble to myself and obey. She likes the top of the auto up. I loathe it up. It remains up.

I always praise her golf, no matter how badly she plays. She always deprecates mine, no matter how well I play. When I criticise anything she does I don't say it; I think it. That sometimes makes trouble enough.

I compliment her occasionally before others. She pretends that she doesn't understand why I do it.

When I buy a new suit she will never admit that she admires it until it is worn out. Then she says the next one isn't half so becoming as the last. When she gets a new gown I admire it intensely until it is about time to replace it with another. She never liked any hat that I have ever bought. I like every one of hers—on principle.

I laugh at her when she gets too serious. When I get too serious she scolds me.

I keep her informed about my business only when she asks me. She never asks me, so you know the result.

I tell her a funny story every day. If I have two I keep one for the next day. Sometimes she laughs at them.

She asks me occasionally if I think her hair is as long as it was. I always tell her it is longer.

I hate bridge, dinner parties, dancing and the opera. She respects my opinion and makes me do them all.

She makes out checks and forgets to enter them on the stubs. Every time I catch her in this omission she reminds me of the celebrated occasion when I left the tickets to a large theater party in my other suit.

She always keeps her temper when I lose mine. I keep mine when she loses hers.

I once told her she was thoroughly spoiled. She kissed me and said she knew it.—Life.

LUNGS OF A BATTLESHIP.

Ventilation Is a Serious Problem In Building War Vessels.

One of the most difficult problems in building a battleship is to secure satisfactory ventilation. She is a very complicated creature, made up of so many steel boxes, large and small, for the accommodation of officers, men, coal, ammunition and stores, dotted here and there with so many steel ladders, automatic lifts, steel bulkheads and water tight doors, varied here and there by miles of electric wires belonging to lights, telephones, bells and motors, to say nothing of the endless mileage of pipes for flooding, draining, pumping, fresh water, fresh air or compressed air and speaking tubes.

First in importance comes the ventilating of the boiler and engine rooms. When you begin to think of gangs of coal black demons working away in the bowels of the ship at a temperature of 120 degrees; when, too, you commence to realize that unless the furnaces receive their required draft the speed of the battleship drops to below that of her sisters in the squadron, you appreciate the importance of the steam driven fans to the furnaces and boiler rooms. The supply of air comes down through large water tight trunks, which are continued right up to the weather deck, armored gratings being provided at the protective deck.

For ventilating engine rooms large electric fans are employed. So, too, the coal bunkers have to be ventilated, owing to the gas which the coal gives off. This gas when mixed with air forms an explosive, so in order to prevent the possibility of injury to men or ship supply and exhaust pipes are fitted in such a manner as to cause a current of air.—Pearson's Weekly.

Only Nation Without Budget.

We are the only civilized nation that hasn't a budget system. France, Germany, Russia, Japan, England, Italy, Spain, Rumania, Servia, Portugal, Bulgaria and Venezuela—all these countries and many more have budgets. In each country, that is, certain responsible officers prepare a definite plan for doing things, estimate the cost of executing it and suggest means for raising the money. There is only one important nation that has no business plan, and that is the one that has chiefly distinguished itself as a nation of business men—the United States.—World's Work.

Human Mystery.

Almost every man believes in the mystery of woman. I do not. For men are also mysterious to women; women are quite as puzzled by our stupidity as by our subtlety. I do not believe that there is either a male or a female mystery; there is only the mystery of mankind.—W. L. George in Atlantic Monthly.

Luck.

Jack—Congratulate me, old man. Tom—What's up? Are you engaged. Jack—No. Miss Roxleigh refused me the day before her father made an assignment.—Boston Transcript.

His Own Den Too.

Husband—A man is coming to see me on business. Can I have him come into my den? Wife—And interrupt my dressmaker? Never!—Life.

To Her Taste.

Jess—Why did Mae marry Harold? He's a perfect blockhead. Bess—Well, you know she always liked hard wood trimmings in a house.—Judge.

While The Passenger Was Arguing With The Ticket Agent About The Time of Leaving, The Train Left.

Fortunes have been lost by delaying the moment of action. Procrastination has robbed all of us of many things we might have had and enjoyed if we had but acted.

There are a lot of folks in this town who have heard of our remarkable ALMANAC AND ENCYCLOPEDIA and expect to own a copy. But they think that any time will do — that we will always have a copy for them.

But will we? Already the pile is getting low. We have telegraphed to the publishers for an additional supply only to be advised that the number printed for 1916 have all been disposed of.

Another case of "standing room only", as the theatres put it. SOMEONE IS GOING TO BE DISHED OUT OF THE COPY THEY EXPECTED TO GET. And that someone is going to be he who waits just a little too long.

On the same principle of a starting train or boat, the one who delays until the bell strikes generally get left.

"Early Bird" is always getting the juicy things because he is ahead of the other fellow.

—And, this is but another instance where Early Bird wins out by getting the most accurate — most authentic — ALMANAC AND ENCYCLOPEDIA of the year.

For scope of subjects — for reliable information upon every topic, subject or matters of information there has never before been offered a book the equal of this one.

Every one who has a copy is amazed at the wide range it covers. They marvel that such a wealth of knowledge could ever be gathered together and yet so condensed as to contain the full gist of the subject — not the slightest sacrifice made nor words used that would in any way cloud the information.

Already is the ALMANAC AND ENCYCLOPEDIA settling arguments. Already is it imparting information to its owners upon questions—features—places—cities—events—historical spots they have heard of but never known the real "inside facts" about before.

You, too, have still time to obtain this wonderful

BISHOP MATTHEWS TO RECEIVE DOCTOR OF DIVINITY DEGREE

Degreess of doctor of divinity will be conferred upon Rt. Rev. Dr. Paul Matthews, bishop of New Jersey, and Rt. Rev. Dr. George Y. Bliss, bishop-coadjutor of Vermont, by the Episcopal General Theological Seminary in New York, tonight. The investiture will take place at evensong in the seminary chapel.

Information contained in the catalog, just issued, indicates that the seminary is in a flourishing condition. The census shows: Faculty, 15; fellows, 6; graduates, 15; special students, 13; seniors, 41; middlers, 30, and juniors, 38. Forty-six universities and colleges in the United States are represented by the resident students, who come from fifty dioceses. In addition to these seminarians, eighty-one non-resident clergymen are pursuing the course for the degree of bachelor of divinity. This brings the total of students to 224, an increase of 16 over last year.

The annual reunion and dinner of the alumni association will be held tomorrow night at the Fifth Avenue Restaurant, New York. Arrangements for this have been completed by a committee of which Rev. C. Malcolm Douglas, of Short Hills, is chairman, and Rev. John Keller, of Newark, secretary. Rev. Dr. J. Nevett Steele, of New York, will preside. The speakers will include Bishop Matthews, Very Rev. Dr. Wilford L. Robbins, dean of the seminary, and Rev. Horace P. Silver, chaplain at West Point Military Academy.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

The Triangle offering presented at Proctor's today and continuing the first half of the week include Frank Campeau, Dorothy Gish and Owen Moore in "Jordan Is a Hard Road," the theme of which shows us how the love of a father for his daughter can transform him from a dangerous bandit to a noble character of rare self abnegation. Frank Campeau plays the role of the father, Bill Minden, most effectively. Dorothy Gish is Cora Findley, the daughter, who has been [illegible] ignorance of her father's identity. Owen Moore, who by the way is Mary Pickford's husband, plays the part of the young lover. The Keystone comedy presented is one of the most novel ever offered on any program. Roscoe Arbuckle assumes the lead, and it is entitled, "Fatty and the Broadway Stars." During the action there are introduced several of the most famous and popular Broadway and screen stars, including William Collier, Joe Weber, Lew Fields, Sam Bernard, Mack Sennett, Ford Sterling, Polly Moran and many others. See it, you will enjoy it as you have no other comedy. The headline vaudeville offering for the first half of the week is Hoyt's Minstrels, consisting of a cast of seven. This is a whole minstrel show in itself, and the scenic and lighting effects are simply magnificent. The seven talented artists entertain with pleasing song and dance numbers, and a whole load of corking good jokes. This will prove a big sensation. Others on the bill are Mayo and Welsh, delightful artists whose offering is the most refined one on the stage; Edward Bergen, who is an equilibrist of unusual ability, and Brosius and Brown, who are comedians a la Keystone, and keep the spectators in congenial spirits. Don't forget the big bazaar Wednesday. Lots of gifts and plenty of fun.

CITY BOWLING LEAGUE ORGANIZED; INITIAL FIGHT TOMORROW NIGHT

Schedule of Twelve Matches Calls for Tabs Opening on Imperials' Alleys—Eagles Start Next Monday Night at Columbus Club—Two Team Prizes and Four Individual Prizes Offered.

Complete organization of the City Bowling League was effected at a meeting held yesterday afternoon, and the schedule drafted Saturday afternoon by James Mahoney calls for the first match tomorrow night, with the T. A. B. Society team rolling on the Imperials' alleys. The season will end the latter part of next month.

The other two teams in the league — the Fraternal Order of Eagles and the Knights of Columbus—will pin their first match at the Columbus Club next Monday night.

There will be two team prizes and four individual awards, the nature of the prizes and the donors to be announced later. A cup will go to the champion team, and there will also be prizes for high team score, first, second and third high individual average honors and high individual score. To be eligible for any individual prizes, a man must roll at least fifteen games, including the last three games his team rolls.

The matches will start at 8:30 o'clock. A man who rolls on one team will be ineligible to represent another team during the same season. A rule providing that no man can be taken out of a game except immediately after a break before the eighth inning, was also passed.

The Imperial team will be selected from a list of eight names which has been submitted. The list is composed of George Lewis, Walter Conover, George Gates, Jim McKenzie, Clarence Smalley, Ernest Luthman, John Connolly and J. E. Sims.

The other three teams expect to use their regular line-ups, which are as follows:

Knights of Columbus—Joe Sullivan, John Duffy, George Taylor, George Howe and Miles Wilson.

Eagles—Bill Smith, Albert Jaeger, Jim Mahoney, George Miller and Harry Radin.

The Imperial quintet will probably be Gates, Voorhees, Conover, Lewis and Connolly.

The schedule calls for each team bowling once a week. The Knights of Columbus-Eagles match, originally carded for this week, will be run off next Monday night, making three series next week. Each entry will meet every opponent in a home-and-home series, making eighteen games for each team.

The schedule follows:

Tuesday, January 18—Tabs vs. Imperials, at Gates' alleys.

Monday, January 24—Eagles vs. Knights of Columbus, at Columbus Club.

Wednesday, January 26—Knights of Columbus vs. Imperials, at Gates' alleys.

LOCAL ELKS' JUNIORS LOW IN AVERAGE LIST

Team Mark 778.2 While High Man is in Thirty-first Place With 167.2.

Plainfield's quintet in the Elks' Junior League is in a class by itself. The Queen City colts, down in the cellar, have a six-game average of 778.2, and are far away from the rest of the pack. The best average is 927.2, owned by Elizabeth. Henry Gathman, with 219.4 for half a dozen combats, is without a rival for premier honors in the singles.

The leading Plainfield pinner is Bill Simpson, who stands thirty-first, with 167.2. The hefty work done by Tamboer, at Newark, the other night has lifted the Patersonian to second place. He also holds the high score record.

NEW RECORD FOR CLIMAX GUN CLUB

Percy Terry Breaks 48 Out of 50 in First Block of Season Competition.

SEIDLER IS IN FORM

Has Perfect Score in 25-Bird Event, Finishing at Top Twice—J. Terry and H. Bishop Win Sweepstakes With Perfect Scores of 10.

Percy Terry hung up the best record that has ever been made at the Climax Gun Club, when he had only two misses in a string of 50 Saturday afternoon, in the first half of the monthly block of the season competition, first prize for which is a case of 500 shells. He broke 24 in each of the first two 25-bird handicaps.

H. Bishop and A. Seidler, with the aid of handicaps, returned perfect scores in the first event, and G. Hayes, A. Notingham and Seidler did the same in the second event. Seidler had a perfect score in this event, the only one of the day outside of the 10-bird sweepstakes, which were won by H. Bishop and J. Terry, with scores of 10, A. Seidler and P. Terry being second in the respective events, with kills of 9.

The scores in the 25-bird events, the totals of which count for the 500 shells competition, follow:

A mixed bowling tournament will be held soon at the Columbus Club, for Knights and their girl friends. Partners will be drawn. Arrangements for the event, the first held here, have not been completed, but it is possible that all the games will be decided one evening, and that a dance will be held after the bowling is over.

N. P. H. S. OUTPOINTED AT P. H. S. 19-17, IN FIRST GAME OF SERIES

Carlton Dunham's Crackerjack Foul Shooting Decides Local Scholastic Basketball Championship Fray—Gerald Linke Scores Winning Basket—Exciting Game a Fight Every Inch of the Way.

"The Red and Blue to the fore" was the Plainfield High School's slogan Saturday afternoon, when P. H. S. played North Plainfield in the first game of the annual series for the scholastic basketball championship of the city, and it worked to such good advantage that the Red and Blue finished on top by a margin of two points, the final score being 19 to 17, after the most exciting game that has been played on a local court in many a day. Foul shooting proved to be the undoing of the Red and Black.

To Carlton Dunham, the Plainfield forward, fell the honor of chalking up the first points of the game, and he did it by making a pretty basket shortly after the fracas started. Sheldon Coudray followed with a basket before Warren Townley could get his eye on the basket and give the Canadian cohorts a chance to yell. The play was fast and furious and it was seldom that a man got a clear shot for a basket.

Dunham rose to the occasion for Plainfield every time Referee Byrnes stopped the killing pace to call a foul, and in the first half shot seven free throws, while Townley fell three behind that number. Seldom did the Plainfield forward miss fire, but "Wren" lost a number of points through hard luck. Dunham's second goal of the period ended the half with the Red and Blue having a five-point lead, 13 to 8.

For fast playing the second half far outstripped the preceding one and in their frantic effort to hold their men every player on the floor had two or more personal fouls. Field goals were even scarcer than in the first half, and excellent work by the guards of both teams made accurate shooting impossible. Townley began getting better in his shooting of free shots and bagged five to Dunham's four, but Gerald Linke's field goal, the last of the game, spoiled all chances for North Plainfield tying the score. He made the shot from directly under his own basket after receiving a pass the length of the floor.

Taken from all viewpoints, the game was one of the best and cleanest played contests that has taken place between the two schools, and the exhibition of defensive work put up by the two pair of guards has seldom been equalled on a local court.

The field goals were equal on both sides at four apiece, the game depending upon the points garnered from foul shooting. That the Plainfield five won out at this sort of game is due to the forethought of Ralph Patch, the Red and Blue coach. After seeing the points the boys from Ninth street have missed in former years from the white line, he decided to have a man this year that could make fouls count, and after a great deal of drilling he got one that did.

Every bit of available space in both galleries overlooking the court and on the improvised benches off the end lines were filled, and with two cheer leaders that kept on the jump every minute, and horns, gongs and other devices for making noise all over, the din was so great that the referee's whistle could hardly be heard. While Joe Byrnes' name is being mentioned, it might be well to say that for being a comparatively new man in local officiating circles he fitted into the occasion well, and nary a complaint against his decisions was heard.

HOT WATER THE BEST LIVER AND BOWEL MEDICINE

Says glass of hot water before breakfast washes poisons from system.

Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath, claiming this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of bowels do.

Men and women are urged to drink each morning, before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Just as soap and hot water cleanse and freshen the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the eliminative organs.

Those who wake up with bad breath, coated tongue, nasty taste or have a dull, aching head, sallow complexion, acid stomach; others who are subject to bilious attacks or constipation, should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to demonstrate the value of inside bathing. Those who continue it each morning are assured of pronounced results, both in regard to health and appearacne.

You can make your task of "buying for the home" either a very irksome one or a very interesting and pleasant one. A habit of ad-study will make it ALWAYS INTERESTING and always full of ECONOMY POSSIBILITIES.

A woman with buying to do never saves any time by omitting to read the advertisements. Nor does she always secure par-value for her dollar.

A store prospers in "well doing"—through the service that it renders to YOU. There is no other rule that governs.

The housewife is the "official buyer" for the home—in almost all families. She is, consequently, the official "ad reader" for the home.

COMMITTEE WILL BUILD CITY HALL

Body to Superintend Important Work is Named by Council.

HEADED BY THE MAYOR

President Blatz and Councilmen Hylan, Bird and Booth Are Other Members—Central Avenue Paving Comes up March 6.

Mayor Leighton Calkins, President Francis J. Blatz, of the Common Council, and Councilmen Hylan, Bird and Booth make up the building committe that will have charge of the planning and constructing of the new City Hall for Plainfield.

At last night's meeting of the Council a resolution was passed creating a City Hall committee of five, to be composed of the Mayor, president of the Council and three councilmen, to be appointed by the president. Mr. Blatz named Councilmen Hylan, Bird and Booth later in the evening. The committee will meet at once and adopt plans for the constructing of the new municipal building. It is not entrusted with power to act, but will report back to the general body, making recommendations. After a plan has been adopted and a contract awarded, it will supervise the work of building. Two of the councilmen appointed by President Blatz are engineers.

The bond of Andrew J. Gavett, street commissioner, was received, approved by the finance committee and ordered recorded.

A communication from the New Jersey Board of Health calling attention to a meeting of the Association of Heads of Sewage Disposals Plants in the State to be held in Trenton, January 28, was read. It invited the attendance of a man from this city, and upon the suggestion of the street committee, Chemist Downs, of the street department, was designated to attend. His expenses are to be paid by the city.

An application from Robert Murray to open an employment agency was favorably passed on by the license committee, and permission was given.

Upon resolution of the street committee it is to be advertised that a public hearing on the paving of Central avenue, from West Front to the New Jersey Central Railroad, will be held at 8 p. m., March 6. All members of the Council will be present to hear any property owners interested in the improvement. At the same meeting bids for all crushed stone and other material for street paving and culverts to be used by the street department during the year of 1916 will be received and opened. Bids for refined tar to be used by the street department during the year of 1916 will be opened at the regular meeting of February 7.

The Council adjourned until Monday evening, January 24.

TO DESCRIBE MEN ON "BLACK LIST"

Plainfield and Borough Officials Getting Together in Work.

Within a very short time a complete and effective "jag list" will be in effect in Plainfield and the borough of North Plainfield and a man barred from drink in one municipality will also be prevented from buying intoxicants in another. It will come as a result of efforts on the part of Mayor William Smalley, of the borough.

It has been agreed between officials of the two governments that the same list shall apply to saloon men in each. All that remains is the preparing of a list that will be effective. Many of the borough saloon men do not personally know all of those "blacklisted" in the city of Plainfield, and descriptions are meagre, many names being no more than "Dago Mike," or some other nickname. The list now being prepared will contain the name of each man who is not to be served a complete description of him and his address. It will be ready within a short time.

SPLENDID FIGHT ON TUBERCULOSIS

Reports Show Efficient Work by League During 1915—School Helps Children.

XMAS SEALS BRING $870

Last Year's Sale Better by 16,000—Keep Well Club Keeps Children Who Formerly Attended Open-Air School in Good Condition.

Gratifying reports of the success of the work during the past year were received at the annual meeting of the Anti-Tuberculosis League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, held last night at the League rooms in the Babcock building. At the same time William S. Tyler retired as president of the organization, after having served for several years, and was succeeded by George M. Holstein. Financially it was shown that the League is on a sounder basis than ever before, having the income at the present time from $15,000, and a liberal number of annual contributors.

Treasurer James P. Murray reported that the total receipts for the year amounted to $10,573.07, including a bequest from the estate of Mrs. George H. 'THE RAINBOW KIMONA' IS WELL RECEIVED

Young Women of St. Joseph's Church Score a Hit in Amateur Performance.

"The Rainbow Kimono" scored a big hit last night when an audience of over two hundred thronged St. Joseph's Hall for the production which was given by the young women of the church for the benefit of the building fund.

The various characters were impersonated in an unusually excellent manner, and throughout the presentation much applause was accorded the cast. Much credit was given Lawrence Barret, Jr., who coached the young women for several weeks past. Miss Anna E. Regan, in the role of "Rose Jackson," the impish little colored maid, was without a doubt the biggest hit of the evening, her humorous questions and replies coming at the most inopportune moments. The scene of the play was laid at Miss Penelope Wright's Collegiate School for Young Women, at Clairmont-on-the-Hudson, and the occasion was the meeting of the Rainbow Kimono Society. Each girl wore a different colored kimono to make up the rainbow. Between the acts Stanley Vardon rendered several vocal selections.

Those taking part in the play consisted of the Misses Edna F. Ryan, Helen Meany, Vera T. Bergen, Madaline I. Blimm, Helen A. Bryniarski, Florence B. Daly, Mary J. Newell, Ann V. Daly and Anna E. Regan. The executive staff composed Lawrence Barrett, stage and property manager; Miss Nora Bergen, chairman music committee, and Miss Edna Ryan, chairman entertainment committee. The patronesses of the affair were the Mesdames E. Ryan, R. A. Boyce, A. E. Kenney, J. A. Bailey, Edward Moraller, G. Keller, A. A. Cannon, M. F. Higgins, W. F. Hamilton, T. Meany and Fred Pettengill. Following the play a social hour was enjoyed, during which Messrs. Squier and Stewart furnished the music. The play will be repeated next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock for the benefit of the Sunday school children.

Those present included Alice Sutphen, Dolores Barnard, Dorothy and Corrine Hillstrom, Muriel Titus, Marion Drahan, Eleanor Olmstead and Edith Owens.

JAIL DOOR OPEN, THEY WALK OUT

Two Boys Gone When Time Comes to Send Them to Elizabeth.

WERE NOT CRIMINALS

Charged With Burglarizing Store Last Week—Older One Who Planned Crime Had Been Sent to Somerville for Punishment.

George Barritilo and George Marshall, two small boys under arrest for burglary, walked out of the police station some time yesterday afternoon. How they escaped has not yet been figured out by Chief Kiely, but he is conducting an investigation to determine which one of the officers, if any, was careless about noon yesterday.

The two boys were running loose in the main corridor of the station house. Because of their youthfulness they were not imprisoned in a cell. Clarence Garthwaite, who was arrested with them, was taken to Somerville shortly before noon. They were there when he was taken from the station. At 11:30 Lieutenant Higgins, who was in charge of the station, heard the boys talking, and ten minutes later Chief Kiely, who was in his office, remarked that they were making a "lot of noise." That was the last heard of them.

At 12 o'clock Captain John Flynn took charge of the station, and Chief Kiely and Lieutenant Higgins went to lunch. It was a few minutes after 2 o'clock when the officer that was going to take the boys to Elizabeth to await the action of the grand jury went into the corridor to get them. They were nowhere to be seen, and an open back door showed how they had made their escape, but not when.

For some time a number of painters have been at work in the police station remodeling and redecorating the interior of the building, and it is possible that one of them carelessly left a door open, permitting the two boys to escape.

The boys were not real criminals. They were arrested by Captain Flynn and Chief Weiss, of the borough police force, Saturday, charged with having entered and robbed the grocery store of Olson & Givens one night last week. Garthwaite, the older of the three, planned the robbery, and it was he who turned State's evidence and gave the names of his two companions to the police. He was sent to Somerville, where he was on probation, before the other two escaped.

The two boys that are missing were sixteen and seventeen years of age. Neither had been accused of crime before. They were being held on bonds of $300 each to await the action of the grand jury, and would have been sent to the county jail in Elizabeth yesterday.

Both live in North Plainfield. It is believed that they have left the State.

DEMAND BETTER LIGHTS ON CARS

Dunellen Board of Trade to Go After New Jersey Central.

CANNOT READ PAPERS

E. H. Dean Cites Case of Himself and J. A. Babcock, of Plainfield—Meter Committee Discharged Last Night.

Following the announcement in the New York papers last night of the victory won by Charles K. Blatchley, who commutes on the New York and New Haven Railroad, through the Public Service Commission in compelling the railroad to improve the lighting of its cars, Edwin H. Dean, of Prospect avenue, arose during the meeting of the Dunellen Board of Trade last night and proposed that the organization take similar action against the Central Railroad. Mr. Dean said that the lighting of the cars of the Central is very poor. Coming out from New York last night with Councilman Babcock, of Plainfield, Mr. Dean said that they both had to discontinue reading their papers on account of inadequate lighting. Mr. Dean said that in these days of electricity there was no excuse for poor lights, and that it seemed to him as if the old gas lights had been in use by the Central since time immemorial. In a few of their cars, Mr. Dean said the Central had installed the white Welsbach light and that the cars with these lights were the first to be filled.

Mr. Dean also suggested that the Board take up the matter of having

APPEAL IS MADE TO ENGLISH WOMEN

Want Money to Take Care of Soldiers That Are Disabled.

In an effort to raise money for the support of a home in London for totally disabled soldiers and sailors, Mrs. Thomas A. Wise has addressed a letter to the press urging donations from all English women in this vicinity. The same letter is being sent to newspapers all over the country. Miss Christina Grant, of 923 West Fourth street, has been designated as official agent of the fund in Plainfield, and will see that money boxes are given to all who are interested. The letter of Mrs. Wise explains the purpose of the fund. It follows:

"The British Women's Hospital Fund, of London, has, at the earnest request of Sir Frederick Treves, undertaken to collect the necessary funds. Fifty thousand pounds is needed.

"I have been deputed to organize the work among our people in America, and through your kindness I am asking the help of every English woman in America. No more noble purpose ever begged—the British Women's offering to the glorious men and boys who have given more than life, their useful, happy manhood—to their country. On application I will send a small money box. The holder will simply ask friend or visitor to contribute a coin or bill. When full the box may be opened and a check or money order for contents sent to Dr. M Spring-Rice, 48 West Ninety-sixth street, New York city, the cousin of our Ambassador at Washington, who has kindly consented to receive funds. They will then be counted, acknowledged and forwarded through a reliable bank to the headquarters in London, at 2 Robert street, Adelphi, London.

"If any lady in your city will undertake to act as distributor of boxes and worker for this great cause I shall be happy to forward any further information. I hope to reach in time every British Woman—English, Irish, Scotch and Welsh—for whose help in the collection of the necessary funds the maimed, the halt and the blind boys of our army and navy will thank them."

LICENSES COME UP NEXT MONDAY NIGHT

Council Will Consider Them in a Special Meeting January 24.

Applications for saloon and hotel licenses will be considered by members of the Common Council in open meeting to be held Monday evening of next week. The special meeting of last night was adjourned for one week, and when President Blatz next calls the body together the license committee will be ready to report on all applications now before it.

At last night's meeting of the Council a communication from Mary Davis Tomlinson, of the Plainfield Women's Christian Temperance Association, was read in which she went on record, with 200 other women of the city, as protesting against the granting of licenses for the sale of liquor to any person or firms. The communication said that the sale of liquor or any other intoxicants was a menace to the community.

A meeting of the license committee was held last night in the office of Mayor Calkins immediately following the meeting of the Council, but no report will be made until next Monday night.

TEMPERATURE DROPS TO 7 DEGREES ABOVE

This is the Coldest January 18th Since 1893, According to Weather Man.

Today is the coldest January 18 since 1893, when the thermometer dropped to 6 degress below zero. The mercury recorded 7 degrees above this morning according to Weather Prophet John Neagle, and so far as known no one has thus far doubted his statement. Plainfielders have been experiencing the simon pure brand of winter weather during the past few days and those who have been fortunate enough to possess furs have lost no time in getting them out of closets and cedar chests.

The coal man is now wearing his broadest smile for this is the harvest he has been waiting for. He is kept busy taking and delivering orders and, of course, everyone wants the coal delivered immediately. The ice man is also beginning to "sit up and take notice" for he is looking for a big harvest of ice to store away for next summer when old Sol gets in his fine work.

It was with considerable difficulty that Plainfielders kept warm last night, despite the vigorous stoking of furnaces and stoves and many a family awoke this morning ashivering and wishing that they could quickly transplant themselves to some sunny clime. The weather man gives no hope for immediate relief, the prediction being that freezing weather will continue for the present. This is good news for lovers of skating, and those who are fond of the sport are now enjoying it to the fullest extent.

This cold snap while discomfiting to many people is not without its blessing, for the physicians say that it has been the means of chasing the epidemic of grip and has given them a welcome relief from too much work. Prior to the low temperature it seemed as though everybody in town was affected with either grip, colds or pneumonia, but since the arrival of winter temperature there has been a marked absence of these maladies.

MARSHAL MAKES DARING STOP OF RUNAWAY HORSE

Marshal Pope, of the borough police, made a daring stop of a runaway horse belonging to Stonewall Jackson, near Westervelt avenue, this morning. The animal, a big gray, was being led by George Lewis from Mr. Jackson's farm to this city for delivery, when it was scared by a passing automobile truck and bolted.

Marshal Pope saw the horse coming from a distance and displayed considerable nerve in confronting the animal. As the horse bore down upon him the officer side-stepped and grabbed the dangling halter. He succeeded in bringing the frightened steed to a stop after being dragged about twenty-five feet. He escaped with a few scratches.

Air Raid On Ancona.

Rome, Jan. 18.—Seven Austrian aeroplanes flew over Ancona yesterday, dropping several bombs. One man was killed and several were injured.

The Saloniki correspondent of the Giornale D Italia says that terrific snowstorms have paralyzed the operations of all the armies in that vicinity. There is terrible cold, he says, throughout Macedonia.

2 Aeroplanes Brought Down.

Berlin, Jan. 18.—Wireless German war statement:

Two more British aeroplanes have been shot down in an air fight near Paschendsele and Dadizeele in northwestern Belgium. Three of the four occupants were killed. Near Nedevich, a French aeroplane was shot to earth by German airmen and the pilot and observer were made prisoners.

THE FEZ AND THE OTTOMAN.

Colors Mean Much, and Only the Arab Foregoes the Tarboosh.

That stream of people crossing the Galata bridge, over the Golden Horn, runs red, for every Ottoman, except the Arab, must wear the tarboosh. "The man with a hat" means the foreigner. The way to see Constantinople without attracting attention to yourself is to slip on a tarboosh, but the wise foreigner has been slow thus to surrender the one visible token of his special extraterritorial rights, for when trouble is afoot the word goes out to spare "the man with a hat" because of the fear of international complications. During the reactionary revolution that followed on the heels of the constitution there was a ludicrous scramble on the part of the Greeks and other Christians to get beneath hats, and the sudden crop of silk hats and derbies was wonderful to behold.

Fashions in fezzes pass in review across the bridge. The Albanian has a white headdress—a cross between a fez and a skullcap. The Persian wears a huge black felt dome that is matched in size only by the big brown bulb that crowns the head of the dervish. The hadji, whose merit in having made the haj, or pilgrimage, to Mecca is proclaimed by his huge turban, is a frequent figure on the bridge, for every Moslem man who has the means and the physical strength is expected to visit the birthplace of the prophet at least once in his life. The elaborately wound headdress of the hadji is of white cloth, but a sayid's, or descendant of Mohammed, is of green. Sometimes the [illegible] officials, or imams, even [illegible] are not of the prophet's blood, wear the green turban.

Only the men wear any sort of headgear. The oriental woman goes hatless. A cloth or veil is as much covering as she wears on her head. As I stood there on the bridge I saw a group of Turkish women stare through their thick veils at the hat of a foreign woman as she hastened by. Since Young Turkey has come into power western fashions are much in favor in Constantinople.—Youth's Companion.

Goodness, yes! I've caught three and let two of them go.

the Central install adequate sized racks in all of their cars.

Joseph G. Walton, after a motion had been made to refer these matters to the executive committee, wanted to know if action upon them would result in an ultimate increase in the rates of the commutation tickets. The members of the Board did not think so and the motion was carried.

President Arthur Cockburn thought that it might be a good idea in connection with these matters to call the attention of the Central Railroad to the notices put up by the Pennsylvania Railroad in its cars and stations requesting the traveling public to let it know what it wants. As one of the traveling public, Mr. Cockburn said that he didn't like the idea of paying a double fare when he happens to leave his commutation ticket home. He said that in Europe the regular commuters were not compelled to do this, as the conductors of the train were supposed to know his road's regular customers. Mr. Cockburn said that when he lived in England and commuted if he left his ticket home all that he was obliged to do was to give the conductor his name and address. He said that in according the public this fair treatment that the European roads were cheated very rarely.

It was regularly moved and seconded that the notice issued by the Pennsylvania be referred to the executive committee for action along with the matters broached by Mr. Dean.

The committee on water meters was discharged last night, the matter being referred to the executive committee to determine what steps should be next taken in the matter.

In asking for the discharge of his committee, Mr. Cockburn said that it had been left to him to see whether it would pay the Board to take up the matter of forcing the water company, through the Public Utilities Commission, to install water meters where desired. He told of how Mr. Dildine, who had taken the matter up with the Public Utilities Commission, had been informed that he would be given a public hearing on the matter if he would apply for it. The question at issue at present, Mr. Cockburn said, is whether the town stands in a good position to make such an application. Mr. Cockburn said that he had been told by an eminent New York lawyer, with whom he talked the matter over, that it undoubtedly did. In order to be absolutely certain as the matter, however, Mr. Cockburn said that this lawyer would look into the case for $25 and if the case was a good one would take up the borough's end before the Utility Board for an additional $75.

Mr. Fedderman here expressed his opinion that the Board should turn the entire matter over to the Borough Council. Mr. Fedderman said words to the effect that the Council had been too lenient with the water company and that it was time that it right about faced and gave those whom it represents consideration.

A communication was received from the New Jersey Real Estate Board, a special department of the State Chamber of Commerce, which has to do with the development of the realty interests of the State, in which that body stated that its first annual meeting and banquet would be held in the Hotel Washington at Newark on January 24. It was voted that President Cockburn represent the Board at this banquet. Joseph G. Walton was designed as a committee of one to get up a souvenir of Dunellen to be placed at the banquet plate.

A postal card was received from the Central Railroad on which the Board was informed that a B. H. Greenfall, of the Bronx, N. Y., wanted some facts about Dunellen.

A communication from the New Jersey Housing Association was referred to the executive committee to report at the next meeting. The association sends speakers around with the object of bringing communities to a realization of the far reaching importance of housing and just what good housing is and how bad housing is dangerous.

E. Waller was unanimously elected a member of the Board of Trade.

FIGHT ON TUBERCULOSIS

in 1914, $130.50; rent safe deposit box, $5, and an investment in Canadian Pacific note, with accrued interest of $5,236.25. This left a cash balance at the end of the fiscal year of $724.86.

The sale of Red Cross seals for 1915 brought in $870 to the League, and the entire expense of these seals was paid for by a friend of the organization, so that the sum is a net gain. In 1914, $710 worth of seals were sold, the increase for last year being 16,000. This work was in charge of Geore M. Holstein, and a vote of thanks was tendered him and his assistants for their splendid work in this connection.

Mrs. William C. Kinney, reporting for the open-air school committee, said that the average attendance had been 17.6 pupils, out of twenty enrolled. There have been liberal contributions to the work other than money. Mrs. Kinney said in part: "One of the most important developments of the school has been the organization of the children who have been discharged from the school into a 'Keep-Well Club,' as it is called. This was organized last March under the joint chairmanship of Mrs. Sherman B. Joost and Mrs. William B. Tyler. There have been thirteen meetings, with a membership of 39 and average attendance of 22, and all but eight of the former pupils have appeared."

In presenting the medical report for the school, Dr. Edward S. Krans showed that since its establishment in the spring of 1913 there have been 72 children admitted to the school, and six re-admitted. The "Keep-Well Club" members have been found to have gained weight after leaving school, with the exception of four cases, the average gain being five pounds. For the school year ending June 30 last, the average attendance was 18, and the average gain per child was 7½ pounds, the maximum being fifteen pounds. In concluding his report, Dr. Krans recommended that the school building be put to some use in the summer time, such as the establishing of shower baths for the men who work in the factories in the evenings, and the women and children of the neighborhood during the day time, a nominal charge being made.

Dr. Frederic J. Hughes, chairman of the clinic committee, stated that it has been open twice a week and 119 patients have been received for a total of 693 visits. Nineteen new cases of tuberculosis were registered, twelve of them solely through the operation of the clinic. He expressed appreciation of the assistance given him by Doctors Krans, Titsworth, Yood and Currie, and Miss Leahy, the tuberculosis nurse. Sixteen were admitted to sanitoriums.

Reporting for the case committee, Miss Phillips stated that the Somerset county authorities have been persuaded to provide for their tubercular patients at Bonnie Burn, at an expense of $15 a week, and Middlesex sends them to White Haven, Penn. A wish was expressed that some form of light manufacturing might be worked out that would result in giving tubercular persons employment.

Four hundred and eighty-three patients were under the care of the visiting nurse, June, 1908, to December 31, 1915, of whom 187 died, 98 left town and 153 remain. During 1915, fifty-six cases were reported to the nurse, 28 of whom were admitted to sanitoria, one is on the waiting list, five have died, six left town, five were discharged from sanitoria before coming to this city.

The total membership of the League is now 145, according to the report of Mrs. William H. Murray, chairman of the membership committee.

The elections last night resulted as follows:

Officers of the league—George M. Holstein, president; D. van D. Hedges, M. D., first vice president; William S. Tyler, second vice president; James P. Murray, treasurer; James Boyd Potter, secretary; Frederick J. Hughes, M. D., medical director; Edward S. Krans, M. D., assistant medical director.

FORMER MAYOR HOWE, OF ROSELLE, IS DEAD

John Ireland Howe, first Mayor of Roselle, and instrumental in the incorporation of that borough, died of pneumonia yesterday at his home there. He was seventy-one years old. He was president of the Roselle Board of Health at the time of his death. For thirty-five years he was a member of the wholesale grocery firm of Adams & Howe, New York city, but retired fifteen years ago. Since that time he had been president of the Roselle Casino and was a member of the Citizens' League and a vestryman of St. Luke's Protestant Episcopal church. MANY HELPED BY CHARITY SOCIETY

Report of Work Done in Plainfield During the Year Just Passed.

A YEAR OF SUFFERING

Legal Committee Was Busiest of All—How Each Dollar Handled by the Organization Was Spent—Recommendations Made.

That last year was a "hard year" on many unfortunates is shown by the annual report of the Charity Organization Society of Plainfield and North Plainfield, which has just been published. During the year $7,704.93 was spent by the society, an increase of $2,940.86 over the previous year. Of the above amount $300 was used for summer vacations and $186 for Christmas and Thanksgiving dinners.

The following from the report shows the manner in which the money was spent:

"Out of every dollar spent the money has been used this way:

"Sixty-six cents for groceries, coal, rent, milk, medicine, transportation, clothing, etc.

"Nineteen cents went for analyzing the causes of distress, removing them where possible, prescribing necessary direct relief in such a way as to encourage the dependent to help himself; obtaining sympathetic consideration from creditors; enlisting help and interest from relatives, employers, unions, churches, lodges; reconstruction work; friendly visiting, counseling, etc.

"Fifteen cents went for stenographer, office expenses, heat, light.

"A constant recurring objection to organized charity is the costliness of the machinery. Critics quote figures showing that a certain sum is paid in salaries and office expenses, for dispensing very little more than the same amount to the poor.

And Our Reply.

"If C. O. S. officials were paid merely for disbursing money, the objection would be unanswerable. But nine-tenths of the duties of trained workers consist of more practical and ultimately more important, work than the 'material relief' distributed is a secondary part of their function. Paid workers of the right kind earn their salaries not by what they give away, but by discrimination, by investigation, by restorative work, by helpful planning, by setting families on their feet, and encouraging them to become self-supporting. The fearest administration shall cost as much for more than relief such as food, fuel, etc., still persists. There are those in the community who cannot see how money spent for services is well spent; that a plan which will rehabilitate a family is of greater worth than any amount of financial relief.'

"The legal committee considered 37 cases and suggested solutions for the majority of these cases. On the other hand, the city has 32 cases of out-door relief which are the cases which can only be relieved and cannot be taught to help themselves. In many cases a single case presents many different problems for solution. For instance, in one family there was tuberculosis, mental deficiency, and a deserting husband, and a woman who could not or did not provide suitable surroundings for the children.

"The most perplexing cases that come before this committee are still the cases of the lazy man who deserts his family and refuses to support them. If he is put in jail he grins broadly and proceeds to enjoy the life of the loafer without being troubled by the plight of his unsupported children. If he is turned loose on the street, he may take care of himself, but he does not contribute to their support. We have for many years pointed out that the only way to deal with these cases is to have a work-house so that the loafer may be compelled to work. This takes from him the temptation of sojourning idly in jail at his ease and if the work could be remunerated and his family paid his wages, it would solve the problem at both ends.

"During the whole year only two cases of non-support were brought in where the cause was drunkenness.

"We can assist them in finding solutions, that is, ways in which families can help themselves, but in this work we have had the co-operation of the poor department, the Common Council, and the churches, the Boy Scouts, the Salvation Army, and many other institutions throughout the city, and most especially the help of the city judge and of the Children's Home.

"The committee has referred many cases to Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., of Reed & Hetfield, who has acted as attorney for the Society during the past year, and in every instance has received the most careful consideration and professional assistance.

"What does 'under our care' mean? perhaps some of you are asking, or what is the character of the services we render? Dean Hodges has stated it very pointedly for us all: 'The Associated Charities,' he says, 'exists for the purpose of giving good advice; it is not so much for the purpose of doing something for people as it is for the purpose of doing something with them, and of putting them in a position to help themselves, which is the only permanent way of bettering them.' According to this definition of our function, you will see that the giving of relief must fall into rather a secondary place. However, second-place is very important and we feel that we could not have given less than $7,704.93 in relief last winter, although it was an increase of $2,940.86 over the year before. What is more important than the amount we gave, though, is the way we gave it. We tried always to form a plan first and make the relief count. The endless detail incumbent upon giving in this way is scarcely realizable. It may help you to appreciate it, however, by telling you that for the families to whom we gave relief and for the families whom we helped without giving relief, we made 3,560 visits in 1914-15 and received from these families 6,402 calls; 9,059 office interviews, against 8,244 in 1913-14, itself a bad year, shows the amount of activity within these walls.

"Last of all in point of hopefulness come the drunks, the so-often disorderly and dependent. We have tried out the futility of jail sentences for these sick men, even friendly visitors and improved homes don't often cure against the saloon. We have recently learned of a small private free retreat in South Jersey which we may be able to use. Would it not be a proper use of our funds to pay board for men in such a place? Would not the seventeen Charity Organization Societies in New Jersey perhaps do well even to subsidize such a plant at least until the laggard State provides a farm colony for the care of inebriates? There are enough things yet undone to whet our courage for the coming year."

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Jot Hurtig's musical burlesque, "The Social Maids," with a chorus of forty Broadway beauties and Stone and Pillard, the dancing demons, as an extra attraction, will hold the boards at the Plainfield Theatre, this afternoon and tonight, cutting into the usual vaudeville for today only. The new vaudeville bill, shown yesterday afternoon for the first, made a big hit with yesterday's audiences, all the numbers being of exceptional merit. These will be seen again tomorrow afternoon and night without any change.

"Japanese Night" is now being held every Wednesday evening at both performances and many beautiful Oriental presents have been secured for tomorrow night. They include chinaware, bric-a-brac and Japanese novelties that are certain to afford pleasure to any recipient. These are given away absolutely free to patrons holding either orchestra or balcony chairs.

"The Green Eyed Monster" was the Fox feature photo film shown yesterday and it made a profound impression. Robert Mantell played the leading role and it afforded this talented actor an unusual opportunity to display the mannerisms that made Mantell famous. "The Green Eyed Monster" will be repeated tomorrow afternoon and night, and those who like a picture full of action from start to finish should not miss it.

William H. Nischwitz, of Nischwitz & Co., grain merchants at 53 Race street, resumed his duties this morning, after being laid up for two weeks and a half with the grip and an abscess of the ear.

JOSEPH E. STRICKER MADE PROSECUTOR

Will Succeed W. Edwin Florance, Now a Senator, in Middlesex County.

Trenton, Jan. 18.—It became apparent in the first night session of the Legislature last night that the Republican majority does not intend to impede the civil service investigation which has been conducted by the Democratic State Administration when O. H. Hammond introduced a bill to provide $5,000 for the inquiry. The commission of the previous committee expired after its revelations of abuses had led to the dismissal of a Republican attache by Controller Edwards.

Bills and resolutions introduced last night called for an inquiry into the rise in price of gasoline; for empowering juries to order life imprisonment for murderers, the infliction of the death penalty now being mandatory; for a committee to arrange a visit by the Governor, Legislature and State officials to the Bills Sunday Tabernacle; for the payment of bounties of twenty-five cents for each hawk killed and fifteen cents for each crow.

The Senate passed its first bill of the session, providing for the completion of the Shore boulevard in Cape May county. The Senate failed to confirm the appointment of Grover C. Richman as prosecutor of Gloucester county, and it was rumored that the Republicans will seek to hold up the nomination in the hope that a Republican Governor will be elected in the fall to nominate a Republican prosecutor.

Governor Fielder announced that he had appointed Joseph E. Stricker of Perth Amboy, as prosecutor of Middlesex county, succeeding W. Edwin Florance, now a Senator.

STATE-WIDE TEMPERANCE AND LOCAL OPTION RALLY

Arrangemens are being made by the Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey to hold the largest temperance and local option rally at Trenton, on Wednesday, February 2, that has ever been held in the State of New Jersey.

Delegations will come from every city and village throughout the entire State. "Billy" Sunday and the local committee have offered the tabernacle for a great mass meeting at 11 o'clock a. m., where the delegations will assemble by counties and a program, yet to be arranged, will be carried out and resolutions will be offered and adopted. From the tabernacle, the delegates will march in a body to the Capitol and if the Legislature be in session present their resolutions. They will then re-march to the Sunday Tabernacle, where, by request, the great evangelist will deliver one of his famous "booze" sermons.

Reservations will be made for all accredited delegates for which badges will be provided. Members of the Senate and Assembly will be invited to both morning and afternoon sessions.

Superintendent Shields, of the Anti-Saloon League, expects to have between ten and twenty thousand men in line.

Y. W. C. A. HAD A SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Encouraging Reports Presented at the Annual Meeting Held Last Night.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Mrs. F. G. Mead, the President, Gives Interesting Review of the Association's Many Activities—Report of Treasurer.

The Young Women's Christian Association of this city starts the year with a membership of 813 and a balance on hand of $1,400.89 in the treasury, according to reports submitted at the annual meeting of the association held in the parlors of the building last night. Beside the reading of the annual reports, additional directors were elected to fill expired terms. There was an attendance of about fifty present, and all expressed much delight at the flourishing condition of the association. Mrs. Frederick G. Mead, the president of the association, presided at the meeting, which was preceded with devotional exercises.

In her annual message to the gathering Mrs. Mead said, in part: "The months have slipped by so quickly, each one bringing new opportunities and privileges. There has never been a year when better teamwork has been done, and I wish now to extend my sincere thanks to our officers, secretaries, all the competent chairmen and faithful members of committees, and our teachers, who have been trying to work out the right way to accomplish the best results in all the various departments of our association.

"The year has brought several changes on our board because of the resignations of Mrs. Percy Stewart, Mrs. Rufus Lincoln, Mrs. Lewis Williams, Mrs. C. W. Tennant, Mrs. Harry McGee and Mrs. A. V. D. Honeyman. All have had to withdraw from the responsibilities they have each carried so capably and graciously for years. We in their place have welcomed Mrs. Charles A. King, Miss Ellen Burke, Mrs. Arthur Otterson and Mrs. Charles Titsworth and Mrs. G. G. Dale. Miss Katherine Aller continues to be our leader, as general secretary, and is one who inspires all our staff workers and members; herself binds all the countless interests of our association together. Miss Beatrice Gardiner still reigns supreme in the housekeeping center, next door, and seems truly one of our association family as if she were in name and fact one of our association secretaries.

"Miss Elizabeth Wetherell has had to be given to the University of Syracuse, and our great loss has been their gain. Her successor, Miss Winifred Mann, has won all our hearts by her ability, her loving spirit, and her consecrated talent for teaching old and young in her gymnasium classes.

"I want especially to speak of the kindness of Miss Helen Joy, who last summer helped us so splendidly for two months, carrying most capably the work of the executive during Miss Aller's vacation and absence at Silver Bay, and continuing with us until we found a successor for Miss Mae Jackson, whose health had obliged her to resign last June. Miss Alice Titus has slipped so charmingly into the office secretaryship made vacant by Miss Karner's decision to do some special study in New York, that it is hard to realize that she has only been with us a few weeks. Mrs. Griffiths and her daughter preside in such a homelike, efficient way over the housekeeping of our association that there is nothing to make our members or their guests conscious of any of the eternal vigilance which every housekeeper knows is absolutely necessary to the smooth running of the smallest establishment.

"I should be glad to tell you of the progress I know of attained through the educational, physical, religious work and junior classes; the club and camp and conference groups; the lunches and suppers served to so many; of the merry times with the birthday and holiday parties, and of the many kindnesses that by the doing have enriched the lives of many of our junior as well as senior members; but the other reports will give you these details, or at least a few of them.

"We wish to acknowledge most gratefully the generosity of some of our churches and chapels and of our contributors, of the public library, and the kindly courtesy of the Daily Press, and the Courier-News, all of whom help to make our usefulness in Plainfield effective. We ask for continued cooperation, that the equipment may be used to the utmost and enjoyed by many new and enthusiastic members in 1916.

"We have had eight years, full of blessings, with the trials have come strength and wisdom to meet them, and with the encouragements a constant longing for enlarged usefulness".

During the meeting the following directors were elected to fill expired terms. They will be in office for three years, with the exception of Mrs. Elliot C. R. Laidlaw, who was elected to fill the unexpired term of two years left vacant by Mrs. Rufus Lincoln. The other directors elected were as follows: Mrs. Charles King, Mrs. John G. Foster, Mrs. E. T. Barrows, Mrs. C. B. Tyler, Mrs. William A. Connor, Mrs. Frank W. French and Mrs. William D. Murray. On February 7 the entire board of directors will elect new officers for the coming year.

Probably the most interest was manifested in the treasurer's report which is here given in full:

Balance on hand, January 6, 1915, $2,107.96; receipts for the year 1915, sustaining members, $1,320; general membership, $561.50; general subscription, $1,850.21; educational, $328.49; gymnasium, $411.45; religious work, $248.07; rent of 214 or guest fees, $592.38; cafeteria, $141.53; interest from banks and refund from interest on mortgages, $23.24; miscellaneous, $24.79, making a total of $7,679.62.

The expenditures were: Secretaries' salaries, $2,154.64; office, $235.55; general expenses and interest on mortgages, $183.5; house $2,392.18; religious work, $261.88; educational, $510.22; gymnasium, $277.18; membership, $77.16; finance, $75.29; cafeteria and supper committee, $106.85; miscellaneous, $4.52, a total of $6,278.73, and the balance on hand January 3, 1916, was $1,400.89.

Miss Alice Titus, the office secretary, gave the following statistical report of the work of the association: Callers, 5,006; calls made by secretaries, 241; letters, 560; circulars, receipts, etc., 2,476; attendance at committee meetings, 459; applications for work, 92; applications for help, 76; positions filled, 18; number served with lunch, 1,442; number served with supper, 889; beds occupied by transients, 807; attendance at social events, 1,515; attendance at religious gatherings, 779, and library circulation, 2,476. Miss Harriet Mattison, the chairman of the physical committee, gave a concise resume of the year's work in that department, dwelling particularly on the several new features that were added during the term, among which were swimming, field hockey, baseball and tennis. Mrs. Frederick W. Goddard, reporting on the junior work of the association and the Sigma Gamma Kappa, told of the latter's co-operation with the Charity Organization during the past year. The club, which has a membership of 52 North Plainfield High School girls at various times assisted the Charity Organization by taking children to the clinics at the hospital. They have also been active in the Belgian Relief work, sewing over 200 garments for that benefit.

Reports were also submitted by Miss Lillian Fordham on the T. M. T. M. Club; Miss May Shreve, on the junior mission study classes; Mrs. H. T. B. Chase, on the sewing and recreation classes of Wednesday afternoon; Miss Ethel Titsworth, of the membership committee; Mrs. W. C. O'Donnell, of the sewing section; Mrs. John Gray Foster, chairman of the finance committee, who reported that of the 432 pledges left unpaid last year since the campaign, but forty-three remained unredeemed, approximating about $28; Mrs. W. D. Murray, of the cafeteria committee, who reported on the noonday lunches and Saturday night suppers; Mrs. Charles Titsworth, of the social committee, who reported twenty-eight parties during the year, with an attendance of 1,515, and expenditures for these affairs of $39; Mrs. F. G. Mead, on the religious work committee.

Miss Katherine Aller, the general secretary, dwelt on the features that have made 1915 a banner year in the life of the association, and the hopes of the association for the future. She also told of the approaching jubilee preparations, which will be inaugurated in this city on February 1 with a banquet in the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A. To date 1,700 invitations have been sent out to old and present members of the association in order to make the affair a grand reunion.

"AMERICA AND THE GREAT WAR" DEPICTED

Rev. Dr. Henry Rose, of Newark, Gives Interesting Lecture at the Y. M. C. A.

Under the auspices of the Dutch Arms, of Trinity Reformed church Rev. Dr. Henry Rose, of Newark gave an intensely interesting illustrated lecture on "America and the Great War," at the Y. M. C. A. last night. It was a "ladies' night" affair and the auditorium was crowded with the members of the Dutch Arms and their friends.

Dr. Rose, who is an entertaining and pleasing speaker, by the aid of 170 fine views, many of which belong to his personal collection, took his audience through England, Belgium, Germany and other countries now at war. He displayed views showing the placing of great mines, warships, aeroplanes, big guns, life in the trenches, which were fully explained by the speaker. Dr. Rose's pictures also included American views and in conclusion he recited a patriotic poem. The speaker maintained a strict neutrality throughout his talk.

Another feature of the entertainment was selections by the Dutch Arms Band, which the audience thoroughly enjoyed. Arthur B. Cole, as president of the Dutch Arms, presided and introduced the speaker of the evening.

The Ladies' Aid Society, of the German Reformed church, will meet tomorrow at 8 o'clock at the church.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Both Triangle productions presented at Proctor's the first half of the week are masterpieces of their respective kinds. "Jordan Is a Hard Road," a soul-stirring Thomas H. Ince production, in which Frank Campean, Dorothy Gish and Owen Moore appear, is a splendid feature, and deserves to be classed with the best photoplays produced. The Keystone comedy presented is a decided novelty, there being no less than ten big stars appearing in the cast, all of whom are the leading members of the Triangle organization. The name of the comedy is "Fatty and the Broadway Stars," and Roscoe Arbuckle, the "Keystone Fat Boy," assumes the leading role. Prominent Broadway favorites among the notable cast are William Collier, Lew Fields, Joe Weber, Sam Bernard, Mack Sennett, Ford Sterling, Polly Moran and Mae Busch. The comedy is good throughout, and was received with much laughter and amusement when presented yesterday. The vaudeville includes talented artists. The headline offering is Hoyt's Minstrels, a gorgeous scenic and lighting spectacle, with an excellent program of singing and dancing. There are seven talented entertainers, and they offer practically a whole show by themselves. Mayo and Welsh are two delightful singers, dancers and dispensers of clean, wholesome comedy. Edgar Berger makes the spectators "sit up and take notice" when he performs several difficult feats of equilibrium. Brosius and Brown present one of the most original acts in vaudeville, and scored big at yesterday's performances. The big bazaar will be held tomorrow night, and a whole wagon load of presents will be given away. See "The Red Circle" every Friday; you will like it.

Plutarch says, that perseverance is more prevailing than violence; that things which cannot be overcome at sight, yield when taken little by little.

When we first started in business, we did not resort to the violence of "sales," "over statements" and "any-price - you-can-get" methods.

Little by little our influence was felt, not only by showing the newest "Things Men Wear," but by adhering to one price and by telling the truth about an article.

And if these methods have brought us to the front, they will surely keep us THERE.

A CITY OF MYSTERY

Ancient Petra, In Arabia, Now In Ruins and Deserted.

LIVED IN EARLY BIBLE TIMES.

Then It Was Famous and Wealthy and a Place Where History Was Made—Its Curious Temples, Tombs and Dwellings Carved Out of Solid Rock.

The strangest city in the world is Petra, cut out of solid rock in a lonesome mountain valley in the Arabian desert. Once a rich city, it is now an abandoned ruin. It is so old that its origin is lost to history, but it was well known in early Bible times when the Edomites inhabited it, and about a century after the beginning of the Christian era it was conquered by the Romans. But a few centuries later it was abandoned by civilization, and for 1,500 years it lay forgotten by the world until the traveler Burckhardt rediscovered it in 1812.

So inaccessible is its situation, although it once lay on a trade route, that not more than fifty travelers are known to have visited it since Burckhardt's time.

No romancer ever conceived such a place. All around are barren mountains, rocky, wild and trackless. Beyond the mountains stretches the desert. A savage glen deepens into a long narrow gorge with perpendicular walls one or two hundred feet in height. Following this ravine for two miles, the adventurous traveler suddenly finds himself at a kind of gateway in the rocks, like the entrance to a Roman amphitheater.

Here he is confronted by a temple cut in the rock, with the most exquisite Corinthian columns, and, entering the doorway, he finds himself in the heart of the hill, surrounded by subterranean architecture of the most elaborate beauty of form and workmanship. This is the so called khasneh, or treasury, supposed to have been built by the Roman emperor Hadrian, who visited Petra in the year 131 A. D. Although called a treasury, it was a temple devoted to Isis. No description of this strange building has ever excelled that given by Stephens, the first American traveler to see it:

"The whole temple, its columns, ornaments, porticoes and porches are cut out from and form a part of the solid rock, and this rock, at the foot of which the temple stands like a mere print, towers several hundred feet above, its face cut smooth to the very summit and the top remaining wild and misshapen, as nature made it. Neither the Coliseum at Rome, grand and interesting as it is, nor the ruins of the Acropolis at Athens nor the pyramids nor the mighty temples of the Nile are so often present to my memory."

But this is only an introduction to the marvels behind. The gorge opens out into a narrow valley some three miles in circumference, everywhere sunk deep beneath the inclosing mountains, and the walls of this valley are filled with the remains of other rock cut temples, tombs and dwelling places. In one place are the remains of an open air theater. Some of the structures cut in the face of the rock are several stories in height, while their architectural details excite the wondering admiration of the beholder.

Of course they gain immensely in the eyes of the surprised visitor by their situation and by the air of total abandonment which surrounds them. They are at various heights above the floor of the valley, and the uplifting of the eyes turned to study them adds to the impression of lonely majesty which they make upon them.

It is rare to meet any human being in the place. Sometimes a few Arabs are seen, but at night the voices of wolves, hyenas, owls and jackals may be heard, and occasionally one of these animals may be surprised lurking in the dark interior of an open tomb. Large venomous serpents are also sometimes met with.

It is not surprising that some visitors have applied to Petra, which has been supposed to be the Selah of the Bible, the curses uttered by the Hebrew prophets against the land of Idumea, such as these: "And thorns shall come up in her palaces, nettles and rambles in the fortresses thereof, and it shall be a habitation for dragons and a court for owls," or, "Oh, thou that dwellest in the clefts of the rocks, that holdest the height of the hill, though thou shouldst make the nest as high as the eagles I will bring thee down from thence, saith the Lord."—Garrett P. Serviss in New York Journal.

The House of Croy.

In France the noble family of Croy boasts of descent in direct line from Adam's third son, Seth. They say at the time of the deluge Noah took their family title deeds into the ark. At their chateau may be seen a picture of that event, wherein one of the drowning men waves a scroll above his head on which is inscribed, "Save the title deeds of the house of Croy."

ONE POET OUT OF PLACE.

When Wordsworth, In Borrowed Finery, Attended a Royal Function.

It is not easy to imagine Wordsworth, the gentle poet, in the midst of the glittering artificialities of court life. Yet he once actually presented that picture. How slender was the tie that bound Wordsworth to the court during his seven years' tenure of the laureateship may be judged, says W. Forbes Gray in "The Poets Laureate," by the fact that he wrote no official poems and that on only one occasion did he leave his retreat in the heart of his beloved lake land to attend a court function. In May, 1845, he obeyed an imperative summons of the lord chamberlain to attend a state ball at Buckingham palace.

There must have been, as Professor Knight remarks, "something not a little incongruous in the severely simple, almost austere, poet of seventy-five years attending a ceremonial of this kind." Wordsworth went not only to the ball, but to the queen's levee, in a court dress belonging to Samuel Rogers and wearing a sword once owned by Sir Humphry Davy.

"What," exclaims Haydon, "would Hazlitt say now? The poet of the lakes in bagwig, sword and ruffles!" Haydon also remarks that the fitting of the court dress was no easy matter. "It was a squeeze, but by pulling and hauling they got him in. Fancy the high priest of mountain and of flood on his knees in a court, the quiz of the courtiers, in a dress that did not belong to him, with a sword that was not his own and a coat that he had borrowed." Haydon could not bear to "associate a bagwig and sword, ruffles and buckles with Helvellyn and the mountain solitudes."

On returning home the laureate wrote an interesting account of his novel experience to his American friend, Professor Reed. "The reception given me by the queen at her ball was most gracious. Mrs. Everett, the wife of your minister, among many others, was a witness to it, without knowing who I was. It moved her to the shedding of tears. This effect was in part produced, I suppose, by American habits of feeling, as pertaining to a republican government. To see a gray haired man of seventy-five years, kneeling down, in a large assembly, to kiss the hand of a young woman, is a sight for which institutions essentially democratic do not prepare a spectator of either sex and must naturally place the opinions upon which a republic is founded and the sentiments which support it in strong contrast with a government based and upheld as ours is."

Pineapples.

The pineapple is a solidified blossom, say the horticultural experts, and it is pineapple blossom time from June to October in Hawaii, where 7,000 acres are given over to the cultivation of this fruit. Pineapples are planted in three ways—for shipment raw, for canning and for juice. If the planter wants large, perfect specimens of the fruit he sets about 5,000 plants to the acre. The uniform smaller disks that you find in the cans are the result of closer planting, while the planter who desires only juice sets his plants still closer.—Youth's Companion.

Past Help.

The man with the old clock under his arm laid it on the jeweler's showcase. "I wish you'd see what is the matter with this," he said.

The jeweler removed the dial, screwed his eyeglass into place and inspected the works of the ancient timepiece.

"Nothing is the matter with it now. Its sufferings are over."

"Well, how much do I owe you?" asked the man.

"Nothing," answered the jeweler. "This isn't a professional treatment. This is a coroner's inquest."

Working Out a Garden's Salvation.

Looking backward, I note the transition from reading books about gardens to doing work in one of them and how it gradually came to pass that I read less and only of standard substantialities that might be termed principles, because I found that I must work out my own garden salvation and work it out, if not with fear and trembling, certainly with a humble mind and a humble disposition.—From "My Growing Garden," by J. Horace McFarland.

EARLY ENTRIES NUMEROUS FOR WESTMINSTER SHOW

While the lists do not close until Thursday, January 27, the rapid way in which the early nominations are coming along indicate a bumper entry for the fortieth annual dog show of the Westminster Kennel Club, which opens at Madison Square Garden, New York, on Washington's Birthday, and will last for the three succeeding days.

A class has been opened for the first time for smooth-coated specimens in this new fashionable toy breed. There are quite a number of the smooth Brussels Griffons in Canada and about New York, so that the new class, which is 644A on the premium list, is expected to fill nicely and be a feature of the show.

All entries close on Wednesday, January 27, at the office of the W. W. C., 18 East Forty-first street. The new rule of registration in the American Kennel Club, which requires both the sire and dam to be listed, which has been enforced the first of the year, does not affect dogs to be entered for the Garden Show. As usual dogs not registered may be listed for the year for a twenty-five cent fee, which will cover all the shows of the season.

COMMUNITY CENTER HAD ENJOYABLE EVENING

Despite the extreme cold weather which prevailed last night forty persons attended the monthly social of the West End Community Center at the Washington School. Card playing was made the feature of the program and everyone enjoyed "500" for a time, after which an informal dance was held. Music was furnished by Miss Elsie Vail.

John J. Carroll, president of the organization, was in charge during the evening, assisted by the entertainment committee composed of Edward Hadden, chairman; Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Dixon, Mis Lillian Lamson and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Edgar. It was announced during the evening that a glee club would be organized next Monday night and that two pool tables would be installed within the near future, both under the auspices of the center.

SEWER ARGUMENT MUST GO TO APPELATE COURT

Argument, which was set down for yesterday morning before Judge Lloyd in New Brunswick, on a rule to show cause why a new trial should not be granted in the matter of an award given by a jury in the county court on lands in Middlesex borough, wanted by Plainfield, North Plainfield and Dunellen for a joint sewage disposal plant, was not heard as Judge Lloyd ruled that J. Edward Ashmead, attorney for the municipalities that want the award set aside, should first go before the Court of Errors and Appeals on a writ of error.

W. A. Coddington is counsel for the owners of the lands affected and which were secured under condemnation proceedings, the commissioners being Lewis A. Howell, William H. Price and Lafferd Totten, all of New Brunswick. Their award was for $590, which was substantially increased by the jury in the county court, on appeal by the land owners, John H. Sebring, Henry C. Sebring and Kate C. Sebring.

The body was brought to this city and buried in Hillside cemetery. The father of the child was a former Plainfield resident, and died at Asbury Park last summer, being a member of the beach life guards at that place.

While The Passenger Was Arguing With The Ticket Agent About The Time of Leaving, The Train Left.

Fortunes have been lost by delaying the moment of action. Procrastination has robbed all of us of many things we might have had and enjoyed if we had but acted.

There are a lot of folks in this town who have heard of our remarkable ALMANAC AND ENCYCLOPEDIA and expect to own a copy. But they think that any time will do — that we will always have a copy for them.

But will we? Already the pile is getting low. We have telegraphed to the publishers for an additional supply only to be advised that the number printed for 1916 have all been disposed of.

Another case of "standing room only", as the theatres put it. SOMEONE IS GOING TO BE DISHED OUT OF THE COPY THEY EXPECTED TO GET. And that someone is going to be he who waits just a little too long.

On the same principle of a starting train or boat, the one who delays until the bell strikes generally get left.

"Early Bird" is always getting the juicy things because he is ahead of the other fellow.

—And, this is but another instance where Early Bird wins out by getting the most accurate—most authentic—ALMANAC AND ENCYCLOPEDIA of the year.

For scope of subjects — for reliable information upon every topic, subject or matters of information there has never before been offered a book the equal of this one.

Every one who has a copy is amazed at the wide range it covers. They marvel that such a wealth of knowledge could ever be gathered together and yet so condensed as to contain the full gist of the subject — not the slightest sacrifice made nor words used that would in any way cloud the information.

Already is the ALMANAC AND ENCYCLOPEDIA settling arguments. Already is it imparting information to its owners upon questions—features—places—cities—events—historical spots they have heard of but never known the real "inside facts" about before.

You, too, have still time to obtain this wonderful

A JEWISH COLLECTION DAY.

The nation-wide collection to be taken up on January 27 for relief of the destitute and suffering Jews in the war-distracted countries of Europe will powerfully appeal to the Jewish population of the United States, and the result is bound to be a general outpouring of contributions. But a sympathy for the European Jews is not confined to the Jewish race and many thousands of dollars will come from Christian hands, says the Newark Eagle. Much money has already been raised for Jewish relief, but it is sadly inadequate to meet the enormous needs, and millions more are necessary.

The Jews of Eastern Europe had no agency in bringing on the dreadful war which has overwhelmed them. They are merely its unhappy victims. Jewish youths have been forced into the belligerent armies and compelled to fight against and kill each other. The Jewish provinces of Russia, Austria and Germany have been made the theatres of war, the homes and possessions of multitudes of Jews have been destroyed, cattle and crops have been swept away and today many thousands of Jews, men, women and children, are living in forests and swamps enduring every privation. Harrowing stories about the condition of hundreds of thousands of the impoverished Jewish population come to the relief societies in this country, and yet the situation for them has not been adequately portrayed. Like the Armenian horrors, it defies description.

A MONUMENT TO POE.

Princeton is going to erect a memorial to Johnny Poe. Her graduates will honor the name of one of her heroes, and future students will honor his memory for all time. It is a deserved tribute to heroism, perhaps, but one sadly below an educational institution of the rank of Princeton. Poe was a hero, 'tis true, but where? His glorious deeds were on the gridiron and the cinder path during his schooldays and after that on battlefields. He was an adventurer, led to take up the fights of alien countries, not by any thirst for the blood of his fellowman, perhaps, but by a longing for excitement. Is this the class of man that Princeton hopes to turn out? Certainly her ideal of citizenship is above a roving, rollicking soldier-of-fortune who knows no country and no home. Johnny Poe fought well and in a good cause, when he could find one, but he was a failure in all peaceful pursuits, and Princeton has graduated many heroes who have toiled and sacrificed and even braved dangers that would have daunted a Poe that others in their country might be happier and better. Their memories are allowed to die while that of the dashing Poe is put upon a pedestal for the citizens of the future to revere. And we wonder why Europe is fighting.

Montenegro has surrendered. Surrounded and outnumbered by her enemies, and half-starved her army of 50,000 ill-trained and ill-equipped soldiers will lay down their arms rather than wage a fight that can have but one ending. It was an act that will not prove popular in most European countries just now, but it was one actuated by prudence and superior wisdom. Perhaps Montenegro had as much to fight for as Belgium. We who are so far away cannot know, but she could not hope to win anything better than a glorious defeat, a heroic death. To fight and even die for a principle is noble, but when the principle is hidden so deep in the tangle of diplomatic intrigue that even the Montenegrins could not understand the cause of it all, surrender cannot be taken as an expression of cowardice. Montenegro simply paid the price of unpreparedness and got off cheap, at that.

A good Orange Democrat, after waiting since he was twenty-one for a political job, died the other day at the age of 58 just when he was about to be appointed postmaster. This watchful waiting policy of Wilson's is beginning to be horrible.

The contention that nature is just in all things is pretty well upset by the fact that Caruso is so hoarse from grip he cannot use his voice and both Bryan and Roosevelt are still going strong.

In challenging another of his class a New York wrestler offers to post $10,000 with any sport editor in the town, which shows he is only kidding.

Mr. Ford denies that he will go back to Europe to urge peace. He prefers to stay at home and enjoy it.

New Year's

This day that once so held me in its spell
Now scarce lays hold upon my mind at all.
I know that it is "New Year's"—know it well;
But stolid as a bullock in its stall
I use my ink-eraser on the five
And make a six of it, when I forget.
I did not stay to see the year arrive;
My last year's breaks bring little of regret!

Now can it be that I am grown blasé?
Can "What's-the-use" have caught me in her net?
No, I have doped it out another way:
I've been excited all I'll ever get.
This round of time is nothing new or queer;
It has been so since the remotest whence.
One should not goggle o'er a mere "New Year"—
I'm growing old enough to have some sense!

Tires

There are several hundred makes of automobile tires, each selling as low as it can be sold.

And every now and then you'll find a cut-rate place selling nearly every one of those tires lower, and doing well at it.

This is one of the things you mustn't attempt to investigate, because it would involve calling a lot of good friends liars.

We can't help knowing that with the multitude of liars in the world some of them are our friends, but we hate to prove it.

If one had no liars for friends, one would be a candidate for the Home of the Friendless.

The way to run a tire business is to get some sandwiches made of alternate layers of rubber and canvas, and commit a recitation to memory so as to recite it while holding this sandwich in one's hand.

Any tire guarantee is perfectly good until the tire gives out and you go to see the man about it.

Even then a few of them are good.

But as a rule the guarantee begins to leak about the same time the tire does.

Once we went to get an adjustment on a worn-out tire, and found that the guarantee had had a blowout the week before.

Any tire will last as long as it can.

There have been even some liars who were mere users of tires.

Men have lied about the number of miles the tire had not run when the final dissolution took place.

Almost any issue of the Saturday Evening Boast contains advertisements of from four to seven kinds of tires, each of which is best.

The non-skid idea has rambled from the tire field.

It is now employed by makers of paper towels and dress-shirts.

The swaggerest rag you can put on, bo, is one of the new non-skid full-dress shirt-bosoms.

There are many kinds of consommé one can put inside one's tire to keep it from staying punctured—sort of puncture anæsthetic, as it were.

Also hobnailed tire shoes.

But it is hard to get any repair man or tire dealer to recommend them.

Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Gastric Ulcer

GASTRIC refers to the stomach, not to gas. Ulcer of the stomach occurs much more commonly than most people think, a great many cases being undiagnosed, or they are called "chronic dyspepsia," "indigestion," "acidity," or something else equally indefinite.

Ulcer in the stomach and ulcer in the abdomen—that part of the bowel just beyond the lower end of the stomach—are often indistinguishable. Their symptoms, effects and treatment are very much the same.

One important factor of ulcer is some long-standing trouble in the appendix or in the gall-sac. Dr. Deaver, the surgeon and author, states that he has observed an almost constant association between chronic appendicitis and gall-sac disease with gastric ulcer. And the Mayo clinic reports about twenty per cent. of gastric and duodenal ulcer cases associated with disease of appendix or gall-sac.

Pyorrhoea is probably a factor in some cases.

Rosenow, the bacteriologist, has proved the causal relationship of streptococci with gastric ulcer— and streptococci find a favorable situation for propagation in the pus-pockets about bad teeth, in diseased appendix or gall-sac and elsewhere in seats of chronic or unrecognized inflammation or infection (germ activity).

Some symptoms of gastric or duodenal ulcer we might mention here are: (1) Periodic attacks of stomach trouble with intervening periods of comparative comfort; (2) Gnawing, burning or boring pain in the pit of the stomach and extending toward the back or perhaps downward, coming on anywhere from half an hour to two or three hours after taking food; (3) The pain is often relieved by taking some such food as milk, a cracker or a sandwich, being a hunger pain; (4) Excessive acidity (not from fermentation, but from oversecretion of the natural hydrochloric acid of the stomach in the course of digestion); (5) The appearance of blood-stained material in stomach contents.

The diagnosis of gastric or duodenal ulcer must be made by (a) symptoms, (b) test meal and analysis of expressed stomach contents, and (c) X-ray photography of the bismuth-meal undergoing digestion.

The treatment depends. Moderate cases are curable by thorough medical and dietetic treatment, which means always at least four weeks in bed. Possibly a few cases respond to ambulatory treatment, but very few. In severe cases operation is indispensable. One reason why operation is advised is that something like one in every ten cases of gastric ulcer eventually become cancers if not operated on.

Advice About Hemorrhoids

Will you kindly advise me about my trouble—frequent attacks of piles? I have tried so many remedies without success.

Vest Pocket Essays

BY GEORGE FITCH

THE OPTIMIST

AN OPTIMIST is a man who would celebrate the anniversary of the day on which his leg was broken, because the automobile didn't spoil his clothes when it ran over him.

The optimist sees only the bright side of things. Every dark cloud to him has a silver lining and is perpetually inside out. There is no such thing as misfortune to the optimist. He has torn the misfortune page out of his lexicon, and has used it for a cigar lighter. If he is poor, he is glad because he will enjoy so much more being rich week after next. If he is sick, it is a most auspicious occasion because he is indoors with liver complaint, instead of outdoors catching pneumonia. If he has lost his job, it will enable him to enjoy a nice vacation. If he is starving, he remembers how uncomfortable fat people are, and smiles. If the home team is seven runs behind in the eighth inning, does he leave the park in disgust? No, indeed. Something is bound to turn up in the ninth, so he bet another dollar and stays on.

In fact, betting, gold mining, and stock selling would hardly be paying games if it were not for the optimist. He will bet on a three-legged horse, because for all he knows it may grow another leg on the back stretch. He will buy $1,000 worth of stock in a hole in the ground with traces of brass filings in it and will pay assessments for forty years, greasing up his wheelbarrow every month in order to be ready when the dividend is declared. He will buy a block of stock in a perpetual motion company and will hold onto it even after some other sucker has offered to cart it away for him free of charge.

The optimist sees only the bright side of things

Thus optimism is profitable, but not always to the optimist. However, life is very beautiful to him, and he is always happy. Once an optimist was lynched for horse stealing out west, and just before they kicked the barrel out from under him, he was asked if he had any last words. Looking over towards the mountains he murmured: "You couldn't have picked out a spot with a nicer view."

Views Of The Press

Lightening The Gloom Of War

REGARDLESS of what may be the preferences or prejudices of any man, as between the warring nations of Europe, he cannot withhold his admiration of the patriotism born of intense love of country which has been manifested by the men of all nations.

The war is the grimmest, ghastliest and most lamentable tragedy that ever distressed and horrified mankind, but the horror and gloom has been lightened by deeds of unselfish heroism which have thrilled the world. The love of country is the most unselfish emotion that ever filled or thrilled a human heart. This is true because it is a love of the abstract and ideal.

Richelieu, the great cardinal priest of France, expressed the thought in mind when he said of his country:

"In thine unseen and abstract majesty I have bodied forth a thing of love."

Germany, in point of preparedness and efficiency, surpasses all other nations, but nothing can exceed the intense, passionate patriotism of the people of France, and while England has moved with that deliberation and steadiness and with that lack of effusiveness and demonstration which is characteristic of her people, they have answered her call with admirable readiness.

Business men well known in Houston, and who have made their homes here for years, have recently left for England to enlist. The whole nation is said to be in mourning—that there is scarcely a family which has not lost one or more members, and that gloom enshrouds city and country alike—yet men in the flush and vigor of life are abandoning their daily vocations, their means of livelihood, and returning to England from foreign lands, to give their services to their country.

The conduct of the scions of English aristocracy has raised them greatly in public estimation. They have literally raced to join the colors, and every English paper contains a long list of administrations opened and wills probated, following the death of members of the aristocracy in the forefront of the fighting, and many of them left large fortunes.

The war is taking fearful tolls of noble lives in every land, and patriotism has reached high-water mark, and the German, the Englishman and the Frenchman vie with each other in daring death out of love of country.—Houston Chronicle.

Inheritance

Q. If a married man dies and leaves no children, to whom does his property descend, under the laws of New York?

A. In answering a question of this character, several things are to be taken into consideration. One is: What other relatives, if any, survived him? The New York statutes provide: "If an intestate die without lawful descendants, and leave a father, the inheritance shall go to such father, unless the inheritance came to the intestate on the part of his mother, and she be living; if she be dead, the inheritance descending on her part shall go to the father for life and the reversion to the brothers and sisters of the intestate and their descendants, according to the law of inheritance by collateral relatives hereinafter provided; if there be no such brothers or sisters or their descendants living, such inheritance shall descend to the father in fee." There are numerous other provisions of the statute, disposing of the question of the descent of real estate under varying circumstances. With reference to personal property, the statutes provide: "If there be no children, nor any legal representatives of children, one-half of the whole surplus (after the payment of the debts of the estate) shall be allotted to the widow and the other one-half distributed to the next of kin of the deceased entitled under the provisions of this section."

Mr. Branson will be glad to answer all questions. If your question is of general interest it will be answered through these columns; if not, it will be answered personally if stamped, addressed envelope is enclosed. Address all letters to E. R. Branson, care of this newspaper.

She Knew The Law

If women ever come to sit on the bench in Old Virginia, there is a maiden lady living on her ancestral acres, just across the Potomac from Washington, who can qualify for the job.

A few years ago a real estate company bought a tract of land on the other side of her property and cut it up in suburban lots.

Desiring ready access to the capital, they instituted proceedings to run a public road through the old lady's land. Worse, as she learned, the projected road would cut right through the prettiest part of her trim lawn, dear with its memories of her childhood.

She consulted her lawyer, only to be told that there was no help for it, since private property may, under the law, be acquired for public use, no matter how unwilling and indignant the owner may be.

Far from resigning herself to the ruthless inroad on her cherished lawn, the old lady buried herself in the musty law library handed down from an ancient ancestor, once a prominent judge in the old domain.

When, some days later, a party of surveyors appeared with stakes and chains to lay out the line of road, they found the owner, spade in hand, just setting out the last of a phalanx of young apple trees squarely in front of the lawn, and right in the line of the proposed highway.

"If you set foot inside this orchard," she said defiantly, to the astonished surveyors, "I'll have you thrown out and then arrested for trespass." With that she called up half a dozen lusty young countrymen waiting behind the barn for the summons.

"What does all this mean?" asked the leader of the surveying party, in whose contract there had been no mention of fighting. "We are surveying for a public road and can go anywhere."

"Anywhere — except through an orchard!" exclaimed the old lady, pulling a musty volume from under her apron. "It's been the law in Virginia since the days of Patrick Henry that you can't run even a public road through an orchard; so you stay out!"

The old lady had dug up an ancient law unknown to modern attorneys, confounded her opponents, and saved her lawn.—Boston Herald.

Pepper Talks

Almost

Almost may be one of the Saddest or one of the most Encouraging words in the language—Saddest if you Almost win and then give up—but intensely Encouraging if you Almost fail and don't give up.

Almost a Winner is good—but it doesn't win the race.

This world is full of people who became almost great. They fought their way on and up, but just at the moment they were about to come into their full and justified possessions they began to lose heart and to slip back.

With you, let it be not Almost—but Wholly.

There are also people who Almost fail—but don't. They are the people who make up the bone and sinew of Character of this World—the people who are never whipped, never defeated, never wholly and completely discouraged.

Never quit a good proposition or a right cause because it is Almost lost.

A woman always compliments another woman's gown. A man glances casually at a new suit of clothes, expectorates at a crack and says: "Where was the fire?"

If it is a college that is to be exploited, a winning football team is the most skilful press agent.

A man knows less at sixty than he knows at twenty. But the little he does know is true.

Unfortunately, the cranberry crop seldom is a total failure.

When a very polite man is accused of an offense he says the charges against him are "made of whole cloth."

A man doesn't mind putting on his evening clothes if they are new.

Men always admire the clever, capable man who can keep his garters up.

Current Poetry

Wanted—A Leader

The voices of the little men come raucous to our ears—
They mock the God of Battles and they taunt us for our fears;
They see no dangers threatening our sturdy ship of state;
Is it on the souls of little men shall hang the nation's fate?

The little man's a mighty man within his petty sphere;
His gaze is on his own concerns, but is his vision clear?
The naked eye's informing, but a telescope is best
When blood is on the setting sun slow sinking to the west.

The little men are clever and 'tis little men who heed
The voices of the petty ones who were not born to lead;
The selfish still are selfish and the blind are still the blind,
But no nation ever saved itself but through a mighty mind.

O Washington and Lincoln, ye the saviors in our past,
Again the thunder rumbles and the clouds are coming fast;
God grant to us, we little men, in this our hour of fear,
A leader with the soaring soul that made their vision clear!

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

For restoring a faded hair switch to medium brown, steep a handful of green tea and, when nearly cool, drop in a piece of copperas the size of a pea. Dip switch in this and dry; if not dark enough, repeat.

THE TABLE

Cheese Stars—Cut stars from thin slices of bread and spread half the number with a cream cheese and chopped walnut filling. Top each with a second piece of buttered bread and decorate with half a walnut meat.

Prune and Chestnut Stuffing for Roast Goose — Soak one-fourth pound prunes in cold water over night. Drain, cover with boiling water and simmer until tender. Wash one cup rice, add prune juice and enough water to make three cups in all. Season with teaspoon of salt, and cook until rice is tender. Add prunes, stoned and cut in pieces, and one dozen large chestnuts, blanched and chopped. Blend thoroughly and stuff.

Sage and Potato Stuffing—Peel and boil one-half hour six potatoes. Mash well and season with one tablespoon salt, one teaspoon pepper, two tablespoons onion juice, one tablespoon butter, one teaspoon sage. Mix and stuff.

Pepper Relish—This is a southern relish which, when ready to serve, is red and green, colors so appropriate for the holiday season. One and one-half cups vinegar, one cup sugar, two even tablespoons salt, half dozen red peppers, half dozen green peppers, half dozen onions, one stalk celery; chop, pour boiling water over all, let stand five minutes, drain. Put vinegar, salt and sugar in kettle and when hot add peppers, onions and celery; let come to a boil. Ready to eat in twenty-four hours, or can be put in cans and sealed.

"Tutti-Frutti"—Two bananas, two oranges, one cup nut kernels, five cents' worth chocolate drops, one-half cup raisins (soaked), one box gelatine, four tablespoons sugar in gelatine, one cup figs and dates. Can be eaten with plain or whipped cream.

Steamed Chocolate Pudding—One-fourth cup butter creamed, two-thirds cup sugar, one-half teaspoon vanilla; cream all together; one egg well beaten, one cup milk, 2½ cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt, 2½ squares baker's chocolate melted. Steam 1½ hours.

Harvard Sauce—One cup sugar, one-third cup hot water; boil to 280 degrees. Yolks two eggs beaten slightly, cup whipped cream. Pour slowly over syrup, cook until thick, stirring constantly. Remove from fire and cool.

German Rice Pie—Two cups rice washed clean; cook in water with one teaspoon salt for 1½ hours. Then add one quart milk—be careful it does not stick to bottom of kettle. When done cool. Then take six eggs, beat whites separately. Mix yolks with three cups sugar and put into the rice when it is cold. Beat well. Next, beat the whites and mix into the rice. Then add one-fourth teaspoon saffron, which will give it a good flavor. This recipe makes about six pies. You can make it with less. Bake with one crust.

Stewed Figs—Run the figs through the grinder. Add confectioners' sugar to sweeten, cover with water and stew slowly. Serve cold. Add nuts if liked.

Home-Made Mincemeat—Pare and core one peck tart apples. Cook tender two pounds beef from the neck and put all through food chopper. Add two pounds granulated sugar, one-half pint boiled cider, one large cup New Orleans molasses, one cup any kind of jelly, one teaspoon each of ground cinnamon, allspice, cloves and one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg. Be sure to add all the stock that the meat is cooked in, straining to take out particles of bone. Add 1½ boxes seeded raisins (more if liked). Heat all together and put in cans. This makes enough for twelve pies. Very inexpensive and very good.

It Was a Beautiful Little Green House.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

Daddy Teaches Jack And Evelyn How to Feed Winter Birds.

ONE night daddy came home with a big package under one arm, and the children thought it was a late Christmas present. But when daddy unwrapped it 'twas a beautiful little green house for the birds.

"First thing we do Saturday morning," said daddy, "is to nail this house in our maple tree." Jack and Evelyn clapped their hands. "Soon as I have had my dinner I'll tell Evelyn what Mr. and Mrs. Downy Woodpecker would like to eat."

"Will birds come and board with us, daddy?" asked Jack.

"If we treat them kindly," said daddy. Then when he was no longer hungry he began: "All the song birds went to spend their winter in the pleasant southlands along in September and October. But many lusty birds who didn't mind working hard for a living, birds like the English sparrows, the white breasted nuthatch, some woodpeckers and charming little brown chickadees brave Jack Frost and the north wind by staying with us all winter.

"All the woodpecker family belong to the carpenter tribe. They have long, sharp bills, like little hammers and saws, and they can thrust them into the barks of trees where little bugs and worms have taken winter shelter. When we go out in the woods next time, if we listen we shall hear Rat-tap—rat-tap Mr. Woodpecker drumming on a tree trunk for his breakfast. But the smaller birds have a harder time of it, and that's why I bought them this nice little house. Look inside and see how they have a bedroom and a sitting room, Jack."

Jack looked, and Evelyn ran for some soft strings and cotton so the birds could make a nest if they wanted to. "Now, if you children will have a hammer, four nails and the ladder all ready for me Saturday morning I'll give you 10 cents to buy bird seed. Then if Evelyn sprinkles some on her window sill every morning probably a lovely little white breasted nuthatch will come to visit her."

"Do birds love nuts, like squirrels do?" asked Jack.

"If you climbed out on Evelyn's roof and sprinkled some cracked walnuts there you probably would beat Evelyn in this feeding game," daddy told him. "But what winter birds need most of all to keep them warm is plenty of fat. And most nice, fat worms are hard to find when the ground freezes. So you must both ask mamma for some little pieces of suet; then Jack must climb our maple and tie them to the branches, where the birds can come and help themselves," daddy finished.

"Daddy, I love the birdhouse!" cried Evelyn, giving him two kisses.

Marrying for Money

BY MRS EVA LEONARD

The Man Has His Way in Spite of the Danger Signals.

"But I don't love you," she objected. "You surely do not want a wife who does not love you and knows it. People are often mistaken about such things, but I know." Ortrude Blakely smiled with candid indifference at her companion.

The man persisted. He was used to having his way.

"I would teach you to love me. You do not dislike me, do you?" His tone was earnest.

"No, I am too indifferent to you to dislike you," she replied frankly. "You do not affect me one way or the other. You are too old." She tapped with a paper knife on the table, the personification of careless indifference.

"You could not remain indifferent if you married me. I would give you everything that money could buy," he pleaded. "I would be so devoted to you that you would learn to love me." The man leaned forward and tried to take her hand.

She drew the hand away. "You know how your children would feel to have you marry someone so near their ages," she reminded him. "I am not hunting trouble."

"I have thought of all that. I would settle enough property on you to keep you comfortably always and then you would agree to have no portion of the property after my death," he proposed. "It is always the money that makes trouble. By giving you your portion outright we would save all that. The children will be sensible enough to see that they have nothing to gain by opposition in any case."

The man got up and began to walk up and down the room with his hands clasped behind him. He was rather tall, with shoulders slightly bent. His iron gray hair had entirely disappeared from the top of his head. The girl followed him with her eyes as he paced up and down.

"He has a strong face," she thought. "He has been used to getting what he wants. That is why he will not take 'no' for an answer."

There was something decidedly pleasant in being thus persistently courted by the wealthy widower. Visions of herself installed as mistress of a fine new home were very alluring. She had always been poor; had earned her slender income by teaching. She was heartily tired of the school room, of disciplining bad boys, and placating unreasonable parents.

Jacob Townsend stopped in front of the girl and, taking her chin in his hand, raised her face to his. She looked steadily into his eyes without a tremor or agitation of any kind.

"You will not refuse me, Ortrude? I can surely make you happier than you are now, unles there is someone else, someone you care for."

"There is no one else," she answered quietly.

"Then you will not refuse?" He was almost compelling in his manner.

"You mean you are willing to buy a wife?" she asked with brutal frankness.

"I am willing to take you without love now, hoping to be able to make you so happy that you will learn to love me later," he answered, flushing slightly.

"You understand that if I married you it would be because I long for the opportunity to have things I never have had; to have time to do with as I pleased. I should expect to spend money." She tossed her head, and the proud bearing was very becoming to her.

"I think the business will stand up under your demands," he replied. "Is it yes?"

She gave him her hand for answer.

Temperance

NEWS AND VIEWS

Conducted by THE W. C. T. U.

Minnesota, with nearly fifty counties which have closed their saloons within the last few months, is having a chance to experience for itself the way in which prohibition ruins cities and towns. Bemidji, a small city with a population between five and six thousand according to the latest figures available, has had an interesting history since the day, a little over a year ago, when the twenty-four saloons, many of which had been harbored within its borders for fifteen years, under the provisions of an Indian treaty of 1855, were locked and barred, and the license fee of $24,000, upon which the city had come to depend, was suddenly at an end. Many good citizens honestly wondered with grave misgivings what the outcome would be. Here is the result of the year of prohibition as given by F. A. Wilson, a resident of Bemidji:

"Bank deposits have increased $90,000; number of arrests has decreased 408; church membership has increased 222; rents in business districts failed to decrease; building improvements amount to $150,000; of twenty-four former saloon buildings, only two are vacant; cost of operating police department decreased $75; number of men held for drunkenness 100, making a decrease of 119 in twelve months; banks report increase in savings department and at all small notes are paid when due.

"New business enterprises have taken possession of the buildings vacated by the thirst parlors, while a great many of the blocks have been remodeled. Among the improvements made is the construction of a summer hotel, at a cost exceeding $20,000. This hostelry was opened on July 15 of last year, and was filled to capacity with tourists until closed in September. So great was the patronage that plans are under way to enlarge the structure. Many reservations have already been made for the 1916 season."

According to the Des Moines Register-Leader, the merchants of the city report the biggest holiday trade ever known. With some the increase has been as great as forty and fifty per cent., while practically all say their sales went far beyond their expectations. Similar reports are made by merchants in all other lines. The haberdashers, confectioners, jewelers and florists all tell of increased sales.

The reports of the merchants seem to be borne out by the reports of the express companies and the postoffice. Continues the paper above quoted: Postmaster George Huffman says the increase in postal business was from thirty to fifty per cent., while the express companies also say the traffic in Christmas packages was enormous.

Bank clearings would also tend to show the reports by the merchants are correct. For the month of December these indicators of business conditions showed a steady increase of from twenty to thirty per cent. The week, and the week before Christmas was no exception. The clearings up to Christmas eve amounted to almost half a million dollars more than Christmas week a year ago, $4,473,468.62 changing hands between the banks.

In the call to an informal dinner and conference held in Grand Rapids, Mich., last week, to "consider what part men of large industrial interests shall have in the campaign for State wide prohibition," emphasis was laid on the benefits experienced from closing the saloons in certain cities of the State. "Wherever prohibition has been in effect," says the call, "good results have been obtained. The directors of Lansing's board of commerce, which includes twenty of the industrial leaders of that city, unanimously passed a resolution recently indorsing prohibition as it is now in force in our capital city. Merchants tell us that their business has greatly improved in Flint, Pontiac, Lansing, Kalamazoo and Battle Creek by these centers going dry. Most of the prominent papers of the State have refused to publish liquor advertisements of any kind."

"We have plenty to do attending to our own business," reads the call, "but surely this is a part of our own business. If it is going to improve the conditions of the men in our employ, increase the dividends of our stockholders and cleanse the social life of our city and State what more important job can we tackle?"

A sane and logical conclusion and one which is being reached by great industrial leaders everywhere!

Through the enforcement of an other old Indian treaty, it is hoped to abolish the liquor traffic in a number of the counties of the upper peninsula of Michigan.

Indians living on the Fond du Lac (Minn.) reservation have signed a petition addressed to Hon. Cato Sells, Commissioner of Indian affairs at Washington, D. C., requesting him to clamp the Indian liquor lid on all territory embraced within the reservation. The petition sets forth that saloons at Brookston are within inhabited territory and that "liquor is being sold and disposed of to the hurt and detriment of the Indians."

GIBBONS MEETS AHEARN IN ST. PAUL TONIGHT

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 18.—One of the biggest ring battles ever staged in this section is the Gibbons-Ahearn fight, which will go ten rounds tonight before the Capital City Athletic Club. It will be a bitter fight, for the boys have much at stake, and no little feeling has been worked up in connection with the charge that Gibbons was stalling when he canceled the first engagement.

Gibbons is said to be in great shape, having shaken off the effects of the grip, which held him from active training for some weeks. He is no longer a youth, but the man he meets tonight is about the same age. Gibbons will have to use all the fight he knows, for he is up against one of the headiest boxers in the ring. Ahearn owes his success entirely to the fact that he makes better use of his brains than his more rugged rivals. But Ahearn cannot afford to make a single mistake tonight, for he cannot stand the wallop, and if he gets into trouble at all it is likely to be all over in a jiffy.

Gibbons in a long career has never been knocked out. Also, he has never suffered a bad defeat. Ahearn, on the other hand, has lost five contests, and in three of these he was knocked out. Packey McFarland put him to sleep at Albany, and Gibbons put over the haymaker on him in the fourth round of a bout held in New York on June 13, 1913. On October 29 of the same year a Frenchman named Badoud knocked out Ahearn. Since then, Ahearn has emerged a victor from every battle save one.

Gibbons has beaten practically all of the middle weights of the present day. He was never accused of backing away from an opponent until illness brought about a postponement of the Ahearn match. Gibbons lives clean and takes good care of himself. On straight dope, Gibbons should rule favorite, and, in fact, has much backing here in his home town. Ahearn's manager and press agents have been talking about Gibbons' "yellow streak," and it is sure to be a merry ten rounds when the fighters meet tonight.

CITY LEAGUE OPENS WITH TABS AT IMPS TONIGHT

The two teams will probably use the following men:

T. A. B. S.—George Rohrs, Jim O'Keefe, Jim Monahan, Jim Scott and Bill Skinner.

Imperials—George Gates, Art Voorhees, Walt Conover, George Lewis and John Connolly.

BIG SCHOOLBOY MEET AT TOME SCHOOL ON MAY 20

Invitations are out for the tenth annual interscholastic field and track meet to be held at Tome School, Port Deposit, Md., on the third Saturday in May, and acceptances are beginning to pour in. In addition to the four events heretofore open to contestants from the rural high schools there will be two new ones, the broad jump and the shot put. Another innovation upon which will center a great deal of interest will be the half-mile faculty relay race. Altogether there will be 22 events, including the 100 yard dash, 220 yard dash, 440 yard dash, 880 yard run, mile run, 120 yard hurdles, 220 yard hurdles, high jump, broad jump, pole vault, shot put, 12 lbs., hammer throw, 12 lbs., and the mile relay race, in the program of open events. Events open to the country high schools only are: 75 yard dash, 220 yard dash, 880 yard run, broad jump, shot put, 12 lbs., and a mile relay race. A special event will be the faculty relay race—half mile—four men.

Gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded the victors. A handsome silver cup will be given to the highest individual point winner in the open events; the school winning the meet will receive a silver mounted plaque; and a banner will be given to the school making the most points in the country high school events.

Records have been broken each successive year, and last year's meet was the fastest ever held, four records being broken and two tied. The complete records are as follows: 100 yard dash, 10 sec.; 220 yard dash, 22 1-5 sec.; 440 yard dash, 50 2-5 sec.; 880 yard, 2 min. 2 3-5 sec.; mile, 4 min. 43 sec.; 220 hurdles, 25 4-5 sec.; 120 yard hurdles, 16 1-5 sec.; high jump, 5 ft. 8 3-4 in.; broad jump, 21 ft. 4 in.; pole vault, 11 ft. 9 1-2 in.; hammer throw, 163 ft. 10 in.; and shot put, 48 ft. 10 in.

WISCONSIN SPORTS MAY GO.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 18.—Whether football and all intercollegiate sports will be continued at the University of Wisconsin will be decided at the meeting of regents today, to act upon the recommendations of an investigating committee. It has been rumored that the committee is in favor of quashing intercollegiate sports. Home sports may be substituted if this program is carried out.

Behind Until Last Two Minutes, They Are Victors by a Single Point.

Several points behind most of the way, the Tabs threw on full steam last night, and breezed home a 25-24 winner on the Scotch Plains Parish House court.

Babe Gleason tossed in the basket that won the game. He was the star of the game, the giant pivot being responsible for 14 points made from play. Art Kyle, the P. H. S. performer, made the other 11 counters.

All the Scotch Plains basketeers had a finger in the scoring pie. There was really little to choose between the two teams, the game being one of the most interesting ever played on the Parish House floor.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally If You Eat Meat Regularly.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggy, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color, thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant.—Adv.

HOT TEA BREAKS A COLD—TRY THIS

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Thee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.—Adv.

TRAIN PULLS IN WITHOUT FIREMAN

He Fell From Moving B. and O. Engine While Crossing Canal.

SLID ONTO THE ICE

Engineer Missed Him But Could Not Investigate Until Forced to Stop Here Because of Lack of Steam—Injured Man May Live.

When the fast B. and O. express pulled into Plainfield at 10.42 this morning, the engineer left his throttle and went to the fireman's side of the cab to see what was the matter with his mate, as the steam guage had been dropping since he left 49th street, Bayonne. He found the fireman's seat empty, and the man supposed to occupy it gone.

The strange disappearance was reported to the ticket agent here, and the yardmaster's office at Jersey City wired for instructions. The answer came back to take the fireman off the 10 46 train and proceed. By this time the 10.46 was in, but it required fifteen minutes hard work to get up steam enough to move the heavy train, the boiler having become exhausted.

Before he pulled out, on his way to Philadelphia, the engineer learned that Paul Davis, the fireman, had fallen from the train just after the 49th street station was passed. He fell in the canal, and narrowly escaped being drowned. The fireman sustained a bad cut on his head, and is seriously bruised. He is still alive, and has a chance to recover, the physician who examined him at Bayonne believed.

Whether the fireman was suddenly stricken ill, or was struck by a piece of flying ice is not known. He left Jersey City in good health, apparently, and the engine was racing under a full load of steam when the 49th street station was passed. When the fireman fell he slid along the ice for a few feet, and stopped just before reaching a hole in the ice. The man was unconscious, and was not found for more than ten minutes. His escape from death is considered miraculous.

The engineer noted that his steam guage was dropping before he reached Westfield. He could not see the fireman's seat without leaving his throttle, so did not make an investigation until it became necessary to stop. Fireman Davis lived in Philadelphia.

REVIEWS WORK OF PAST YEAR

Miss Aller, Secretary of Y. W. C. A., Presents Report of Association's Activities.

OUTLOOK IS PROMISING

Plans Being Made for the Observance of the Jubilee Celebration From February 1 to March 3—Special Program to Be Presented.

In connection with the annual meeting of the Y W. C. A., which was held on Monday night, Miss Katharine L. Aller, the general secretary, presented the following interesting resume of the year:

"You have probably stood at some time upon the deck of a boat and watched the landscape, with which you believed yourself perfectly familiar, fade into the distance. And you have then in those moments of withdrawal seen things as you never saw them in months of close acquaintance with the scene. The old proverb runs: 'Distance lends enchantment to the view.' But the truth is that distance rather discovers the enchantment which has always been resident in the scene or the situation. There is enchantment, there is the ideal element in every situation, only it often needs perspective to reveal it. As the space widens between us and the well-known shore, the essential points in the landscape stand out in clear relief, and the whole resolves itself into permanent and proportionate values.

"So as we stand tonight upon the deck of our Association ship, outward bound for the new year, let us look back together at the year that is already gently receding from our sight. We can see it now in truer propor-

FIREMEN RESCUE TRAPPED FAMILY

Bad Blaze in J. I. Lyle's Home Replete With Heroic Work and Narrow Escapes.

GIRL IS BARELY SAVED

Servant Found Unconscious After Long Search Revived by Pulmotor Total Loss May Reach $10,000—Cold Hampers Department.

In the midst of the zero weather which prevailed last night almost the entire fire fighting force of the city battled with a stubborn blaze for nearly three hours at the home of J. Irvine Lyle, of 1,200 West Seventh street. The fire was attended by a series of thrilling incidents, among them a narrow escape from death by Miss Mary Samonski, a twenty-year-old servant girl, who was overcome by smoke, and who was revived only through the use of a pulmotor. Several persons were carried down ladders by firemen, and many of the latter suffered in various ways. The Samonski girl was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital, where she was reported as resting easily today, but in danger of contracting pneumonia. All the rescued persons were clad only in night clothing when gotten to safety. The money loss is estimated at from $8,000 to $10,000, fully $5,000 being on the house.

The Lyle family, with the exception of Mrs. Lyle and her mother, Mrs. David Biggerstaff, had retired for the night. Mr. Lyle was not at home. The remaining two women were preparing for bed when Mrs. Lyle detected smoke. A hurried investigation showed that a blaze was in progress in the cellar, but when she attempted to send in a still alarm by

ITALIAN DIES AND SCOTT IS ARRESTED

Local Man Held Under $3,000 Bond as Result of Auto Accident.

Leo Cerchiaro, the aged New Market laborer who was struck by the automobile of Walter Scott Saturday evening, died at 11:30 o'clock last evening at Muhlenberg Hospital as a result of his injuries.

Mr. Scott was arraigned before Judge Peter F. Daly, of the New Brunswick court this morning, on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the accident. He was released on a bond of $3,000, quickly made, and will await the action of the grand jury, which meets in February.

While Mr. Scott is not believed to have been responsible for the accident, officials of Middlesex county caused his arrest, in order that the case might be tried in court. The accident happened in New Market, where the Italian lived. Cerchiaro was 62 years of age. He was employed as a laborer at New Market. Early last Saturday night he attempted to cross a street in front of the oncoming automobile of Mr. Scott, and was knocked down and run over by the front wheels. His body was badly crushed, and he died from internal injuries.

Attorney Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., and Chief of Police Kiely, accompanied Scott to New Brunswick this morning. No evidence was heard in the case, but the small bond is evidence of the manner in which officials view the charge. The bond of Mr. Scott was signed by Louis K. Hyde and William F. Arnold, of Plainfield.

For almost two of the three years he has been a fugitive from justice, Di Gennaro was employed in the Saurer plant of the International Motor Works, in this city. He was in no trouble while here. He is wholly resigned to his fate, and says he expects to forfeit his life to the hangman when he get back to New Haven. He did not demand extradition papers.

Vienna, Jan. 19.—(Via Berlin and Amsterdam)—A Sofia despatch to the Neue Frei Presses announces that the Greek Government on Tuesday sent a note to the diplomatic representatives of the Entente Allies demanding the evacuation of Greek teritory occupied by Anglo-French troops.

London, Jan. 19.—Reports of an overthrow of the Greek government, a 48-hour ultimatum delivered by the Allied powers and of various other developments there which have a direct bearing on the world war are current in all of Europe today. From Berlin comes the report that the Allies have demanded that Greece throw her lot in with them and that only 48 hours has been given for an answer. This is denied in England. Germany also declares that the Allied powers, especially England, have fathered a revolution against the Greek government, which will be launched within a few hours. This has not been officially denied and reliable reports from Athens give grounds for its belief.

Germans and Bulgars Fight.

Athens, Jan. 19.—A report from Florena Close to the northern border of Greece, states that the Germans and Bulgarians fought at Monastir following a quarrel and that many were wounded. The Bulgarians, it is said, insulted the Germans by claiming exclusive credit for their victories in the Balkans.

Hospital Governors Want Garage For Physicians

At a recent meeting of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, it was suggested that our physicians, who are on duty for the pay patient, and the free patient alike, at any hour of the day or night, in sunshine or in storm, in winter and in summer, ought to be provided with a garage where their cars may be kept from the cold and storm while they are on duty.

Often the doctor must come, all heated and tired, after perhaps hours in the operating room, out into the chill air, only to find that he must work and sweat to get his car going to be off to the home of a patient to which perhaps death is hurrying, that he may enter first.

The governors are most anxious to provide the doctors with a suitable garage. Having no funds available therefor, and realizing that those who contribute to the hospital's support would not approve the incurring of a debt to build such a garage, the governors respectfully urge that the good citizens of Plainfield show their appreciation of the services which our doctors are rendering to the community, by sending contributions to the treasurer of the Hospital, Arthur M. Collens, 1320 Watchung avenue.

While the garage can be built for $600, it is desired very much to raise, all told, $1,200, including amounts contributed by the Governors personally, in order that they may be enabled to put up a structure which shall be in keeping with the other buildings. One of the governors, in speaking of the movement, said:

"Probably many of us, to whom the doctor responds to our "Come at once, there is illness in the home," very seldom—perhaps never—stop to think what the doctor's profession really means to him and to others.

"We accept the invitation to dinner, or for the evening, expecting as a matter of course to keep it, for our time is our own, but the doctor must always accept conditionally, for his time is not his, but belongs not only to us or our friends, but to the humblest family in our midst—even to that family too poor to pay for the service so freely rendered.

"We pay no bill so willingly as that of the doctor who has brought the loved one back from the grave's brink; but do we stop to think that ofttimes his visits are made at dead of night to the bedside of one not able to pay, and one to whom the doctor, unknown to the public, says "That's all right, old man, don't hurry; pay it when you can," knowing when he says it that that time will never come.

"Plainfield's citizens have provided a hospital where the very poorest, black or white, born here or under some other flag, may go and receive, if necessary without cost, the care of the physician or surgeon."

MISS PIDDINGTON ENGAGED TO WED

Many Guests Attend a Reception in Her Honor at Dunellen.

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Piddington, Jr., of 326 Whittier avenue, gave a party at their home, Monday evening, in honor of the engagement of Mr. Piddington's sister, Miss Hazel Piddington, of New Market, to T. A. Pierce, Jr., of Jersey City.

The announcement of the betrothal came as a surprise to the friends of the couple present. It was made in a unique fashion. When the guests upon their arrival at 9 o'clock sat down to the banquet table, midst decorations of red, white and green, they were confronted with tiny baskets filled with candy and nuts. On the top of each basket was a shell of a walnut neatly tied with ribbon. On opening of these shells each guest found a small scroll. Neatly engraved on each scroll were these words: "This is the story in a nut shell," then followed the announcement of the betrothal. All of these walnut shells contained these scrolls, with the exception of Miss Piddington's. In her's was a diamond engagement ring.

Following the announcement William T. Piddington, Jr., proposed a toast to the couple. The guests rose and responded in joyous fashion.

Westfield.

Skating on the park lake was enjoyed this week for the first time on a Sunday. At the meeting of the Park Commission Saturday night, Walter H. New Providence.

A report was circulated Monday that Arthur Lord, foreman of the Murray Hill section of the Passaic and Delaware branch of the Lackawanna Railroad, had received orders from England to report immediately for military service. Mr. Lord also thought this was the case, having received an official looking letter addressed "Private Arthur Lord," which he left unopened for half a day. When he opened it, however he found it was a letter from a friend who had seen service in Turkey. Mr Lord spent four years in the English army before coming to this country.

Miss Gertrude McBarron, of Newark, was a week-end visitor to Mr and Mrs. Fred Correll, of the Circle Murray Hill.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

And again Plainfield theatregoers will flock to the Plainfield Theatre tonight, imbued with a gala spirit of oriental pleasure over another of the pleasing entertainments recently put down as a regular part of the Wednesday night program. Manager Shannon carried out his idea of Japan in his weekly shopping, and has collected a valuable list of articles to be given away in the drawings.

In addition to the special part of the program, the regular vaudeville bill for the first half of the week will be given. This is featured by Charles Wilson, "The Nuttiest of the Nuts," with an original and hilariously funny act of the kind that Plainfield has been longing for since the season opened. Wilson is one of the fellows who admits "it takes a lot of nerve to come out here and do this, and get away with it big." Three other good vaudeville acts pleased the patrons Monday afternoon and night. The bill is remarkably well balanced.

Robert B. Mantell, in the William Fox feature, "The Green-Eyed Monster" will be seen again tonight. This is one of the strongest of the film dramas presented by the Fox Corporation, and the star is well known for his remarkable dramatic work in Shakespearean roles.

ROADS IN CHINA.

They Remind One Very Much of the Snakes in Ireland.

BECAUSE THERE ARE NONE.

What Apologies There Are For Them Are a Great Deal Like the Bed of a Stone Quarry—The Torture That Goes With a Trip In a Peking Cart.

Describing the roads, or, rather, the lack of roads, in China and the torture that is undergone by the tourist who, used to the luxurious modes of travel we may employ, trusts himself to the uncertain joys of a trip in a Peking chair, a writer in the Wide World Magazine says:

"Now, a Peking cart is a very venerable mode of progresssion. When our ancestors were lightly dressed in woad and had no conception of any wheeled vehicle the Chinese lady was paying her calls in the back of a Peking cart, the seat of honor under the tilt, well out of sight of the passers by, while her servant sat in front, the place of comfort, if such a word can be applied to anything pertaining to a Peking cart.

"In spite of its long and aristocratic record if there is any mode of progression more wearying and uncomfortable I have not met it. It is simply a springless board set on a couple of wheels with a wagon tilt of blue cotton over it and a place for heavy luggage behind. The Chinaman sits on the floor and does not seem to mind, but the ordinary westerner, like myself, packs his bedding and all the cushions he can beg or borrow around him and then resigns himself to his fate.

"The Peking cart has one advantage people will tell you—it has nothing to break in it. But there are moments when it would be a mighty relief if something did break, for if the wood work holds together as it tosses you from side to side you yourself are one sore, bruised mass. No; I cannot recommend a Peking cart, even on the smoothest road.

"And the roads in China are not smooth. We all know the description of the snakes in Ireland. 'There are none,' and much the same might be said about the roads in China. There are so called roads, certainly, upon which the people move about, but I have seldom met one that was any better than the surrounding country, and very, very often on this journey I met roads where it was ease and luxury to move off them on to the neighboring plowed field.

"The recipe for a road there in the north seems to be: Take a piece of the country that is really too bad to plow or to use for any agricultural purpose whatever, that a mountain torrent in fact, has given up as too much for the water, upset a stone wall over it—a stone wall with good, large stones in it—take care they never for a moment lie evenly, and you have your road.

"Leaving Peking for the eastern tombs, you go for the first two or three hours along a paved way of magnificent proportions planned and laid out as a highway should be. The great stones with which it is paved were probably put there by slave labor, how many hundred years ago I do not know, but the blocks are uneven now, some of them are gone altogether, though how a huge block of stone could possibly disappear passes my understanding, and whenever the carter could he took the cart down beside the road, where at least the dust made a cushion for the nail studded wheels, and the jarring and the jolting were not quite so terrible.

"It takes as long to get beyond the environs of Peking in a cart as it does to get out of London in a motorcar. First we passed through the Babylonish gate, and the great walls were behind us; then, outside the city, all looking dusty, dirty and khaki colored in the brilliant sunshine, were numerous small houses, and the wayside was lined with booths on which were things for sale.

"Along the roadway came an endless array of people, clad for the most part in blue cotton—men walking, men with loads slung from a bamboo across their shoulders, donkeys laden with baskets or sacks of grain, with fat Chinese on their backs. There were Peking carts, there were mules, there were ponies, and this busy throng is almost the same as it was a couple of thousand years ago.

"But it was a long, long while before I could feel I was really in the country. There was the khaki colored land, there were the khaki colored houses, built of mud apparently, with graceful tiled roofs, and blue clad people everywhere and everywhere at work.

"Always the fields were most beautifully tilled. There were no fences. The Chinese are too civilized to need fences, and when you see stone walls it is only because, since they can't be dropped off the planet into space, the stones must be disposed of somehow."

Paris For Politeness.

Translated rather crudely and literally, this is the notice in a Paris trolley car: "Messieurs the passengers descending from the carriage are urged (literally "prayed"), before renouncing the shelter which the carriage they are about to quit offers them, to assure themselves, as a preliminary, that no carriage coming in the opposite direction is in proximity."

Hope for the best, but work hard for the result.

THE AMERICAN RAVEN.

Found Now Only In Safe Retreats In the Rocky Mountains.

The raven has gained little in the affections of the people from his kindly act of supplying Elijah, the prophet, with food when hunger pressed him. The raven is thought of as a bird of ill omen wherever his black shadow appears. He is the sinister bird, and he cannot shake from his feathers his evil name, though it be only in part deserved.

How can any one be supposed to cultivate affection for a bird of which a great poet could write lines like these:

The sad presaging raven tolls
The sick man's passport in her hollow beak
And in the shadow of the silent night
Doth shake contagion from her sable wing.

The raven is passing. Already it has almost entirely disappeared from the British islands. Formerly the American raven was fairly common in our middle western country, in New England and in the lower ranges of the Allegheny mountains. Today it is only occasionally to be seen in its ancient haunts.

In the Rocky mountains, however, where men are scarce, the raven is holding its own. It builds its nest on the edge of the ledges of the inaccessible cliffs, and, sighting its foe from afar, it keeps the distance in which lies safety.

The raven is ugly in shape, as it is in voice. Its sole beauty lies in the luster of its feathers when the sun strikes them full and fair. It is a bearded bird, with high shoulders and certain bumps and humps here and there to make its form seem utterly lost to symmetry.

The bird is not altogether bad. It robs the nests of other birds, and it is this trait of character which has lost it caste and life in England. The gamekeeper shoots it on sight, and in recent years, because of the growing scarcity, the museum collectors have been hunting the raven in all places where it is reported to have dared to show its head.

The raven is the bird of books. It has a larger place in literature perhaps than all other birds combined if we except the eagle. Shakespeare mentions it no less than fifty times. Milton did not neglect it, and all the poets—ancient, medieval and modern—have considered the raven.

The American raven probably will be safe in his Rocky mountain haunts for years to come, but he is so far removed from man's habitations that his picturesqueness, his oddities, his gravities and his croakings virtually are lost to the world.—Chicago Post.

JOKING RELATIVES.

Peculiar and Embarrassing Custom of the Crow Indians.

The Crow Indians are divided into thirteen clans. In former times the number was probably greater. These groups are called by nickname like designation, such as Whistling Waters, They Bring Game Without Having Killed It, Kicked In Their Stomach, and so forth. Every individual belongs to his mother's clan, and it is considered highly improper to marry a person of one's own clan, since all the marriageable women of that group are reckoned as belonging to the status of either a mother or a sister.

Those individuals whose fathers belong to the same clan stand to each other in a very special relation, which for want of a better name may be called the "joking relationship." They are privileged to play pranks and practical jokes on each other without giving offense, says the Southern Farmer. More particularly is it the function of one of them to administer a stinging rebuke when the other has transgressed some rule of tribal morality or etiquette.

In such a case the "joker" will bide his time until some public occasion arises. Then he will boldly come forward and twit the culprit with his deed in the face of the assembled throng and to his utter discomiture. Against this punishment there is no redress, for nothing said by a joking relative can be resented. The only thing a man can do is to wait for an offense on the part of his denouncer and then treat him to a dose of his own medicine.

The Persian Crow's Beak.

The [illegible] is a weapon known as the [illegible] which was formerly much in use among men of rank in Persia and north India. It was a horseman's weapon and consisted of a broad curved dagger blade fixed at right angles to a shaft, pickax fashion. The shaft incloses a dagger, unscrewing at the butt end. This concealed dagger is a very common feature of Indian arms and especially of the battleaxes of Persia.

Not the Same.

On one occasion when "The Mikado" was being rehearsed Gilbert called out from the middle of the stalls, "There is a gentleman in the left group not holding his fan correctly." The stage manager appeared and explained. "There is one gentleman," he said, "who is absent through illness." "Ah," came the reply from the author in grave, matter of fact tones, "that is not the gentleman I am referring to." —Dundee Advertiser.

A False Note.

"I hear you calling me," warbled the daughter from the parlor.

"Yes," sang mother from the kitchen. "I want you to come here and help me with the dis-s-shes."

And then a profound silence reigned. —Louisville Courier-Journal.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Plainfield People Know How to Save It.

Many Plainfield people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Weak kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health—the slightest delay is dangerous. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has helped thousands of kidney sufferers. Here is a Plainfield citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. Anthony Wahl, R. F. D. No. 1, Plainfield says: "I had such distressing pains in my back that I could hardly stand, and it was out of the question for me to stoop. I was all crippled up, and I knew perfectly well that my kidneys were the cause of the trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills gave me almost immediate relief, and three boxes changed me from a chronic sufferer to a healthy woman. I still take Doan's Kidney Pills occasionally, when a cold settles on my kidneys, and they act as a preventive of any serious trouble."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Wahl had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

QUESTION BOX AT PARENT TEACHER MEETING POPULAR

One of the most interesting of any meetings held by the Parent-Teacher Association of the Plainfield High School was that in the Plainfield High School auditorium last night. There was a large turnout of members and friends, and all were enthusiastic about the feature added to the meeting last night. "The Question Box" will undoubtedly become a fixed feature at these meetings. Parents had many questions to ask, and all were most efficiently answered by Superintendent Henry M. Maxwell, Library Best, Henry Hubbard and others. Probably the most interest was manifested in the manner of ventilation of the High School. This subject was spoken of by Mr. Hubbard, who had made a test of the ventilation in the school, and compared the air of the interior with that outside. He found the former much better.

During the meeting, Miss Lillian Lamson, of the Recreation Committee, gaven an interesting address of the music lessons taught under the auspices of the Public Recreation Committee, and urged the co-operation of all parents. A number of members of the Parent-Teacher Association of Elizabeth attended the meeting here last night.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Katherine Kaelred, who has been repeatedly characterized as the most accomplished "vampire actress of the stage," will be seen at Proctor's the latter three days of the week in a stirring Triangle play entitled "The Winged Idol," in which she is ably supported by House Peters and a superior cast. Under Mr. Ince's direction Miss Kaelred finds unusual scope for her talents. The Keystone comedy presented for the latter half of the week is one of the best laugh producers ever shown in this city. It is entitled "Crooked to the End" and genial Fred Mace is the main funmaker. He plays the parts of a station master and it is his duty to guard a shipment of Wells Fargo gold. Among the vaudeville offerings that will be presented the latter half of the week are Heins, Washburn and Gear, a trio of versatile entertainers who offer a splendid singing and dancing act, intermingled with clean, wholesome bits of comedy. Cook & Evans, who will entertain by offering one of the most novel stunts ever seen in vaudeville. The big headline act will be no other than Barney Williams and his Summer Girls. A big musical comedy revue, consisting of ten people. This act is one of the best of its kind on the circuit and scored big at Proctor's Elizabeth theatre. Barney Williams is a splendid comedian and obtains plenty of laughs without having to stoop to any coarse comedy stunts. He and his company will immediately win favor with local patrons and will plainly be the hit of the show. Don't forget the big bazaar tonight. See the "Red Circle" every Friday. It is the best and latest Pathe serial. Bring the kiddies on Saturday for the toy matinee will then take place, and a whole wagonload of gifts will be given to the children.

RURAL SANITATION SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

Typhoid Fever Reduced According to Report of Public Health Service.

Reduction in typhoid fever and improvement in sanitary conditions have followed the intensive investigations of rural communities carried on by the United States Public Health Service in co-operation with local and State health officers, according to the annual report of the surgeon-general of that service. During the past fiscal year 16,269 rural homes in eight different States were visited and many of them revisited. In each of these homes information was obtained as to the prevalence of disease and insanitary conditions, and a complete sanitary survey of the premises conducted. This was followed by reinspections to determine if remedial measures had been instituted. In but a relatively small percentage of the cases did the persons concerned, after having their attention drawn to the danger of a particular unhygienic condition, fail to inaugurate corrective measures. Stimulus was given to the work by means of public lectures, the formation of active sanitary organizations, and the enlisting of all public-spirited citizens in the campaigns for reform. Public buildings were also inspected and local authorities given expert advice in solving such sanitary problems as the disposal of excreta, the prevention of soil pollution, and the maintenance of pure water supplies.

The surveys made during the year 1914 had shown that in rural communities less than 1 per cent. of the homes had sanitary toilets, and that more than 50 per cent. of the people were using water from polluted sources. This condition, according to the Public Health Service, made the rural sanitation question loom large among the matters vitally affecting the welfare of the nation. Following these studies, and as a result of the interest aroused, the typhoid fever rate, an excellent indicator of the sanitary status of a community, has in some places frequently been cut to one-quarter of its previous figure. In Berkeley county, West Virginia, the cases of typhoid fever were reduced from 249 to 40 in one year. In Orange county, North Carolina, the rural sanitation campaign resulted in a reduction of the cases from 59 to 17.

The tangible results of operations in rural sanitation indicate that marked advancement in maintaining hygienic and satisfactory surroundings in country districts is possible by the application of the common principles of preventive medicine. Insanitary conditions exist largely because they are not known to be such. Actual demonstrations of their harmfulness, together with definite recommendations for their correction, remain one of the most gratifying and successful methods for instituting reforms, and has been, in the experience of the Public Health Service, invariably accompanied by definite and measureable results.

PHTHISIS LEAGUE STARTS FIELD WORK

Miss Stella Weeks Will Make a Survey of Situation in the State.

The New Jersey Anti-Tuberculosis League is just starting some field work in order to create greater interest in the fight against tuberculosis. Miss Stella Weeks, sister of Dr. David F. Weeks, at Skillman, and who has done investigation work for the former Commissioner of Charities, is just beginning work in South Jersey, where there are very few organizations, and where work is very much needed. It has been found that the death rate from tuberculosis is decreasing most rapidly in those communities where there is an organized body to fight it. Miss Weeks is beginning her work in Camden, and will first make a survey of the situation and try to be in a position to recommend what is the next best stop to take. Camden county has its county hospital, but it is in need of an active association to co-operate with the Oncora Institution.

In a few days Miss Emily Halsey Suydam, who has been secretary of the Elizabeth Association for a number of years, will begin her duties as field secretary of the league. Miss Suydam will work primarily in North Jersey, organizing associations, although she will be at the call of any local association or locality where a talk on the subject will be helpful. Miss Suydam is an experienced public speaker and knows her subject thoroughly. Part of her duties will be to interest freeholders in counties where there are no county hospitals and where such hospitals may not be established. The State law of 1912 made it mandatory that all counties should establish hospitals or provide for their tubercular patients. About ten counties have already provided in some way, either by erecting hospitals or sending their patients to outside hospitals. The co-operation of all officials is solicited to make the work of these secretaries more effective.

ANNIVERSARY OF NURSERY

Most and Miss Clara Van Fleet; Silver Cross circle—Mrs. Alexander Milne and Mrs. H. A. Robinson; Emanuel circle—Mrs. E. Baker, Jr.; Unity Circle—Miss Dorothy Leal and Miss Gwendolyn Gough; Little Workers for Little People—Mrs. Sidney Tilsworth.

Besides members of the Union, members of the guilds in the various churches in the city were also invited to attend. Visitors are shown through the building, and details of the work is explained to them by the large corps of King's Daughters on hand. There are over 500 of the latter in the Plainfield Union.

When the Day Nursery became a permanent organization, under the auspices of the King's Daughters, its first place of residence was on West Third street, near Liberty street. The home was a two-story frame structure containing seven rooms and a bath, and accommodated on an average of twenty children a day. Six years ago, the present commodious building was opened on West Front street, and afforded the organization a field for enlarged usefulness and opportunities. The growth of the work has been highly pleasing; the present handsome home containing seventeen rooms all told and three baths. The first floor is given over to a dining room and play room for the older children, and a cloak room, while the second floor is devoted to a nursery, crib room and a diet kitchen. Here the younger children have the excellent care of two capable nurses, and every convenience which they would otherwise miss at home. There are seventeen cribs for the infants. Three spacious porches surround the house. Two are in the rear, and extend the whole width of the house, and are fourteen feet wide. The other is a small cozy sun parlor in the front. The lunch rooms are comfortably furnished throughout, and afford the matron an opportunity to successfully carry on the work. Mrs. Emma L. Bird, who has occupied the position of matron ever since the Nursery was organized, has two assistant nurses and two maids. She reports about ninety mothers taking advantage of the Nursery, and averages about 600 children a month.

During the gathering this afternoon, Mrs. Stuart H. Patterson will announce the amount of money collected through the "Riding Stars," which were distributed among the members of the various circles in the city. Each star had a capacity to contain ten dimes, and very nearly a thousand of them were given out.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

"Peer Gynt" with Cyril Maude, the noted British comedian, in the leading role, will be the principal film at the Astor Theatre today and tomorrow. "Peer Gynt" is full of subtle humor. It is not like a Keystone comedy but is calculated to please the most discriminating theatregoers by its splendid characterization and wit. Of course, Mr. Maude, who has appeared on the New York stage in the character of "Peer," does the role with all his skill.

Buyers Are Found by Advertising--Because They Are Opportunity-Hunters!

If you have something to sell—real estate, personal property of any sort—there's a buyer for it. You don't know who he is, or where he is. You'd be helpless in trying to locate him—but for the fact that he is trying to locate you!

For buyers are opportunity-seekers. And they have learned that the Plainfield Daily Press classified columns are 'the Happy Hunting Grounds' for opportunities. Thus, when your "ad" starts upon its quest it meets the man for whom it was written—also upon his quest. And that's how "results" follow classified advertising.

APGAR NO LONGER HEALTH OFFICER

Resigns to Dunellen Council and His Successor is Named.

G. S. SMITH GETS JOB

Committee Reports That Blind Girl Reported by State Charity Board Does Not Exist—Report on Sewer Work.

David S. Campbell was reappointed recorder of the borough by Mayor E. B. Latham at the adjourned meeting of the Dunellen Council last evening. No action was taken by his honor on the street commissioner or borough engineer appointments. Willard N. Apgar, the new postmaster, resigned his position as health inspector, and the Mayor appointed G. Sumner Smith to fill out Mr. Apgar's term.

President Richard M. Ryan was appointed a delegate to attend the public hearing to be given the Public Service Electric Company, in Trenton, on January 27, by the Board of Utility Commissioners, on the matter of whether the rates charged by the company are reasonable.

An exchange of communications between Chairman Ryan, of the law and ordinance committee, and Lydia Y. Hayes, of the State Commissioners of Charities, were read. The subject matter of these letters was a blind girl somewhere within the bounds of this borough, who was supposed to need the attention of some charitable organization. That, at least, was what the commissioners at Trenton were informed by some anonymous person. Upon the matter being called to his attention, Chairman Ryan had Chief Mohan call upon the family of the only known blind girl in the borough. The parents were very indignant, saying that they were fully capable of taking care of their child, and that they didn't want any interference from the State. The borough fathers spent several minutes in speculating as to how they could find out the identity of the anonymous person.

The street committee reported that four cinder crosswalks had been laid at Equator Park, and that several on Washington avenue had been fixed up.

The following bills were ordered paid: Paxton Van Arsdale, streets, $5.90; Lewis Vossler, collecting sewerage, $24.88; Bertram Brandon, collecting sewerage, $29.12; Philip Pfeister, streets, $6.25; First National Bank, finance, $2.11; Clark Ramsey, collecting sewerage, $29; G. Sumner Smith, collecting sewerage, $36; First National Bank, finance, $194.90; Public Service Light, $7.50; New York Telephone, $3.10; Charles Wrage, hall, $4.22.

The bill of $29 of Clark Ramsey, for inspecting duties, was ordered rebilled to the H. K. Corbin Company, which is to pay the salaries of the regular inspectors from now on.

It was voted to issue a hundred-dollar improvement certificate to meet current collecting sewerage bills.

Chairman Williams, of the collecting sewerage committee, reported that in connection with the triangle at Taylor's Hotel in would be necessary to leave the sheathing in the sewer trenches, and that the Public Service Gas Company has agreed to stand $100 of this expense, and the Corbin firm has made a concession of $150, or $250 in all. The Mayor here related a conversation which he had had with a North Plainfield councilman, who said that the failure of the engineer of his borough to leave sheathing where it had ought to have been left had proven cheap economy, as it would cost his municipality in the neighborhood of $15,000 to repair the damage done by the cave-ins.

Chairman Williams reported that Harry Dodwell, the injured inspector, is getting along very well in the Muhlenberg Hospital. If his improvement continues at the present rate, Mr. Williams says, he will be able to leave the hospital in a week.

TRENTON MAYOR NOT A "TRAIL HITTER"

Denies That He Has Been Converted by "Billy" Sunday.

In a statement issued by Frederick W. Donnelly, Mayor of Trenton, that individual denies published reports that he "hit the trail" recently at a "Billy" Sunday meeting. Mayor Donnelly calls attention to a story printed in a Philadelphia newspaper last week, and declares it maliciously or carelessly false. His reasons for denying the story are given as follows:

"I make this statement in justice to myself and in order to prevent me being accused of duplicity at a later date, when my ideas of life and religion, as I practice them in accordance with the tenets of my church, may not be in strict conformity with the brand of religion preached and taught by "Billy" Sunday.

ARAB PATROL DRILL FEATURES "BIG SHOW"

Salaam Temple's Winter Circus the Event of the Week in Newark Amory.

Under the auspices of Salaam Temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, Newark is having a week of unprecedented cold-weather entertainment through the production in the First Regiment Armory of Frank P. Spellman's New York Hippodrome winter circus. It began on Monday night and will end on Saturday night, with matinees every day, a drill by the Arab Patrol of Salaam after each performance and dancing every evening at the close of the big show. And "big show" it is in every sense of the word. There are three hundred performers, two hundred horses elephants, camels, bears, ponies and all that goes to make a monster modern circus.

The acts have been selected from the feature offerings of the New York Hippodrome and from the best tent shows that were on the road last summer, and include a number of European novelties. Monday night was "Shrine Night" and the several thousand persons who attended were surprised by the size and the quality of the production, every act exceeding the expectations of those who had never before seen a Spellman circus and justifying all that had been said in advance about it. Invitations for Thursday night include Governor Fielder, Mayor Raymond and other State and city officials, and Miss Anna Morgan, Mrs. Belmont and a dozen other New York women of prominence, and there will be a big time for the Tall Cedars on Saturday night.

tions than when we were at close range. Can you see the points which stand out on the landscape of memory for 1915—the things that make it distinct and different from many other years? How I should like to have each one of you enumerate them as they appear to you and see if they would be these.

"First—that splendid piece of work in which so many of us had a share—our Model wardrobe for the Association contest at the Panama Pacific Exposition. I am so sorry for those who had no part in it. You missed so much that came to those of us who did. There were 35 persons in all who actually sewed on the garments, and there were many others who, by their interest and encouragement, rendered effective service. The comradeship, the pride in our home talent, the little jokes we had together, the things we learned from each other and about each other made it a memorable and wholly worth while experience.

"Then the sewing which we did for the war sufferers. The call that came to us from stricken Europe to meet the need of the womanhood of our sister countries, met with a noble response from our Association girls and though none of us was wise enough to count, it is safe to say that between four and five hundred garments were made here for other women and other women's babies. As the Spring days lengthened we turned our energies to the heroic task of giving the Association Pageant, 'The Ministering of the Gift.' One hundred and sixteen persons took part in the pageant as given in our Association garden, on two evenings, and there were many others who were around and about and behind and before, whose services were indispensable to the success of the undertaking. The rallying of separate groups to a common purpose, the closer fellowship and the unity of spirit which develop during the preparations for events of this kind far outweight any spectacular achievements.

"We were able this year to have a more open and active summer season with definite programs for three evenings each week. The outdoor Bible class, preceded by a basket supper was especially enjoyable and helpful. Our Camp and Conference Club rejoiced in making use of their fund for delegates even more than usual, because of the $134.65; all but $25.00 was raised through the efforts of the club.

"Another thing which gives our 1915 landscape a characteristic mark is the institution of some new Christmas customs. The simple ceremony of 'Hanging the Greens,' the Christmas eve caroling at the Hospital, and the home gatherings on holiday nights, we hope to make traditions in our Association life, and carry them on from year to year.

"These are tangible and accomplished facts, but there are other results that cannot be recorded save as they have entered deeply into the lives of those of us who have learned through the year just closed to love this fellowship more dearly. We are facing the bright future made possible by what has been accomplished here in the past.

"'Our deeds still travel with us from afar
And what we have been makes us what we are.'

"The new year lies before us with all the mystery and charm of an unknown country. Let us enter and begin at once to cultivate a world outlook. Let us determine to meet more fully the claims and obligations which rest upon us as a part of this Northeastern field, especially our foreign work. The first great interest of 1916 is our Jubilee celebration. The meaning of Jubilee is not only rejoicing—more than that—it is a returning. Shall we not as individuals, and as an organization, return to our first allegiance to the Master of us all? Shall we not through this celebration enter into new experiences of fellowship and service?

"Perhaps you have seen in the papers lately the announcement that one of our great sculptors, Borglum, has been commissioned to execute a most remarkable memorial to the Confederate Cause. Out of the granite of Stone Mountain, North Carolina, which is 700 feet high, the sculptor will carve in high relief a colossal group which will represent as advancing over the mountain the Army of the South. Mr. Borglum has said that the thing that made him decide to undertake this gigantic task, which may occupy ten years of his life, is the fact that it is not a glorification of any one man, but a memorial to a great Cause. That is the secret of the immortal Greek art. They built to the ideal.

"In such a spirit we may build in this great organization of ours. Dr. Talcutt Williams has said: 'A great deal of good can be done in this world provided we are not too particular as to who gets the credit.' In such a movement as the Young Women's Christian Association we can afford to lost track of personal honors in the glad fact that the work is being done. In such a fellowship as ours we know the hearts that willingly and gladly bear the heaviest part of the burden but we are not careful what glory should attach to any name except 'the Name that is above every name.' As we take up the work of this new year let us stand so close together, shoulder to shoulder, that the joy of it, and the credit for it, shall belong to everyone."

BOYS COME BACK TO POLICE STATION

Picked Lock, They Said, But Mothers Made Them Give Up.

After enjoying liberty for more than twenty-four hours, George Barritilo and George Marshall, the two boys who walked out of the Plainfield police station, Monday afternoon, yesterday took the advice of their mothers and went back to headquarters.

The boys spent Monday night in New York, they told Chief Kiely last night, but their small supply of money ran out, and they came home to eat.

Barritilo and Marshall picked the lock in the rear of the police station according to their story, and the door was not left open as had been believed. This lock has been picked before. Because of the tender age the two boys were not locked in cells as others prisoners at the station are but were permitted to enjoy the freedom of the main corridor. They took advantage of this liberty, and while all the officers were busy in the front of the station, managed to work the lock with wire and walked away. They caught a train for New York immediately and spent the night wandering around in the big city, but had only a small amount of money and they caught an afternoon train yesterday and came back to Plinfield. After going home and talking with their parents, they went to Firstbrook's grocery store, corner of Front street and Washington, and called up the police station, saying that they wanted to surrender. Lieutenant Higgins, who was on duty at the desk went after them. He found both boys waiting, and they walked to the station without a protest, both being glad to get back. They were locked in cells this time, no consideration being shown their youth.

The boys are to be taken to Elizabeth this afternoon. They are under bond to await action of the grand jury for robbing the grocery store of Olson & Givens one night last week.

FIREMEN RESCUE FAMILY

telephone, she found the wire open, having evidently been burned. She then screamed for help from an upper window and her cries were heard by the family of C. O. Peacock, living directly opposite, at 1,207 West Seventh street. An alarm was sent in from this place at 10:19. The flames were then raging through the lower floor, cutting off all escape from above.

The West End hose company and Chief Doane arrived on the scene about the same time, and the latter, immediately on learning the extent of the blaze, the house by this time being aflame from cellar to roof by way of the partitions, sent in a box alarm from No. 39. He also telephoned for the hook and ladder truck, which had been taken off the apparatus, answering this box. The few firemen reaching the spot first were forced to break an entrance, as all doors were locked, and on learning of the people on the second floor, devoted their attention in this direction. Mrs. Lyle and her two children, Miss Cornelia, twelve years old, and Irving, ten years old, were gotten to safety first. Mrs. Biggerstaff and her husband, the latter a helpless invalid because of paralysis, were gotten to an extension roof in the rear of the house, safe from smoke and flames. At this point they insisted they be left alone while search was made for Miss Samonski. It was said that she had been sleeping in a front room on the third floor, and although several of the men broke their way through the blinding smoke, they were unable to find her. A search of all the rooms that could be reached met with the same result, and it was believed for a time that she had gotten out, finding shelter with one of the neighbors.

With the arrival of the headquarters' companies, Captain Townley with Fireman William Jaeger, of No. 3, and Wesley Dunn, the later Chief Doane's driver, fought their way through the smoke and flame at the foot of the front stairway, and got into the hall on the second floor. Captain Townley was groping his way along when he stumbled over an unconscious form, which proved to be that of the missing girl. With the assistance of Jaeger and Dunn she was carried out and to the home of Councilman Thomas F. Hylan, directly next door. Divining that a pulmotor might be needed, when it was stated that someone was possibly in the burning house, Thomas Melick and Frederick Smith, of the Public Service Corporation, had sent for the company's. It was on hand when Miss Samonski reached the Hylan home. Councilman Charles C. Graves and other volunteers aided in the work of restoring the young woman, previous to the arrival of Drs. Wood and Creger, who came in response to telephone calls. The unconscious girl finally showed signs of life and west sent to Muhlenberg Hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Biggerstaff were carried down ladders and taken to the Peacock home, where Mrs. Lyle and her children had preceded them. Although suffering from shock and exposure they were reported today as being all right.

All of the firemen suffered more or less from water and cold, but despite the many difficulties and obstacles their work excited the highest commendation on the part of many citizens who witnessed the fight. George Mehl, of No. 3 Hose Company, sustained a bad cut on the face when struck by falling plaster, for the time being almost lapsing into unconsciousness. Just previous to this mishap the captain and two of his men, William Jaeger and Raymond Randolph, were badly shocked by the hose stream they were handling coming in contact with an exposed electric wire. The current followed the water down to the brass nozzle, developing such a powerful shock that all three were hurled to one side. Captain Townley was also one of the men given unstinted praise for his heroic work. Without any method of off-setting smoke or flame, he penetrated all corners of the house, and on two occasions almost fell unconsciousness. He stuck to his task until all danger to the house was removed, emerging from the battle saturated to the skin and his clothing stiffened solid by ice.

Chief Doane devoted his first moment at the fire to seeing that all the inmates were gotten to safety and afterward ordered in six lines of hydrant hose, in addition to the chemicals, which had been put on first. The house had been provided with fire stops in the partitions, but it was found later that these had been removed when some new eletctrical wiring was installed. This is what gave the flames quick access to the upper floors and thence to the roof. Within a few moments after the chief arrived the structure was a mass of flames from top to bottom. The chief first gained access to the house by smashing in the large plate glass in the front door, an action which aided in saving the life of Miss Samonski. She was then at the top of the first flight of stairs, where she had fallen in trying to make her escape, and the current of fresh air coming in through the opening undoubtedly kept her alive until found later.

It was one o'clock this morning before the last vestage of flame was extinguisher, and by that time all the firemen were suffering badly from cold and exposure. At the most opportune moment, Former Councilman Theodore A. Martin appeared on the scene with two large kettles of hot coffee, and the stimulant gave the men the needed impetus to keep going. It more than likely prevented a number of them from being victims of cold or pneumonia today.

Although Chief Doane and Mr. Lyle conducted an investigation this morning, no conclusion could be reached as to what caused the fire. The fact is certain that it commenced in the cellar, and perhaps had its start through the furnace. This had been kept going to its limit, in order to keep a full head of steam as the result of the extremely low temperature prevailing last evening. The flames had probably been spreading for a long time before Mrs. Lyle and her mother smelt the smoke, as it had penetrated almost everywhere when the first company began work. The loss is covered by insurance, and the amount, which is only an estimate, includes about $5,000 for furniture, wearing apparel and jewelry.

Quality and "Cut Prices"

Are the oil and water of business. You may attempt to mix them by a generous use of printer's ink, but the fact remains that between buyer and seller a cut price offer produces a feeling that somebody is attempting to "put something over."

While The Passenger Was Arguing With The Ticket Agent About The Time of Leaving, The Train Left.

Fortunes have been lost by delaying the moment of action. Procrastination has robbed all of us of many things we might have had and enjoyed if we had but acted.

There are a lot of folks in this town who have heard of our remarkable ALMANAC AND ENCYCLOPEDIA and expect to own a copy. But they think that any time will do — that we will always have a copy for them.

But will we? Already the pile is getting low. We have telegraphed to the publishers for an additional supply only to be advised that the number printed for 1916 have all been disposed of.

Another case of "standing room only", as the theatres put it. SOMEONE IS GOING TO BE DISHED OUT OF THE COPY THEY EXPECTED TO GET. And that someone is going to be he who waits just a little too long.

On the same principle of a starting train or boat, the one who delays until the bell strikes generally get left.

"Early Bird" is always getting the juicy things because he is ahead of the other fellow.

— And, this is but another instance where Early Bird wins out by getting the most accurate — most authentic — ALMANAC AND ENCYCLOPEDIA of the year.

For scope of subjects — for reliable information upon every topic, subject or matters of information there has never before been offered a book the equal of this one.

Every one who has a copy is amazed at the wide range it covers. They marvel that such a wealth of knowledge could ever be gathered together and yet so condensed as to contain the full gist of the subject — not the slightest sacrifice made for words used that would in any way cloud the information.

Already is the ALMANAC AND ENCYCLOPEDIA settling arguments. Already is it imparting information to its owners upon questions—features—places—cities—events—historical spots they have heard of but never known the real "inside facts" about before.

You, too, have still time to obtain this wonderful

CLAIMED THE SHIP

Maro Thought He Was Eligible to Command a Cruiser.

AN OLD TIME NAVAL PRANK.

The Shabby Trick That Was Played Upon a Patriotic Greek Boilermaker by Some of Uncle Sam's Sailors With Whom He Had Shipped.

"A number of years ago the cruiser on which I was serving shipped a boilermaker while we were on the Mediterranean station," said a retired petty officer of the navy. "Our former boilermaker's time expired while we were at Gibraltar, and as he was not in good physical shape he wasn't re-enlisted, but took his discharge and returned to the United States by mail steamer. So the ship was shy a boilermaker, a very important and necessary petty officer down below in the engineer's department, and when the ship pulled into Naples harbor the chief engineer went ashore to see if he couldn't dig up a boilermaker.

"There was a clause in the enlistment regulations permitting commanding officers to ship necessary men on foreign stations in short handed emergencies. The chief engineer brought back to the ship a Greek named Charlie Maro. The man couldn't speak any English to speak of, but he was a good man at the boilermaking business, and he was duly shipped aboard of us for three years. He was a wild, hairy looking lot, Maro was, and he got a good deal of a laugh at the hands of the crew, especially the younger fellows, from the time he first came over the side.

"Maro thought that there wasn't any other country on the map except Greece, and after he got hold of enough English to make himself understood he used to take some of the young apprentice boys up into the eyes of the ship and tell them, with many gesticulations and furious words, of the different kinds of tar Greece could knock out of Turkey.

"The ship was around on the Pacific station when the war broke out between Greece and Turkey. When the news of the outbreak of the war got to Maro, our boilermaker, he nearly had heart disease and a whole lot of other sudden things from pure excitement. He just couldn't hold himself in, he looked so tickled.

"'Da Greek man willa bim, bim, bim, da Taurka man,' was Charlie Maro's way of putting it, and he didn't see that the Turk had a ghost of a show. All hands forward encouraged him in the belief. They all acquiesced in expressing the belief to Maro that Greece would simply eat Turkey up. Then a bo'sun's mate who knew how to crack the most impossible jokes with a face as solemn and wooden as an Indian's took Charlie in hand and told him some things. He told Maro that the United States was so much in sympathy with Greece in the struggle with Turkey that the navy department had decided to turn over all of the ships of the American navy to Greek commanders.

"'Here's a chance for you, Maro,' the bo'sun's mate told Maro. 'You just want to work your edge. Here you are already shipped on this cruiser, and it's dollars to doughnuts that if you ask for the command of this ship in order to take her over to Greece to mix it up with the Turks you'll get it hands down. Better try it on.'

"That idea impressed Maro a heap. He asked the bo'sun's mate whom he'd have to apply to to get command of the cruiser.

"'Why, to the commanding officer, of course,' was the reply.

Maro was tremendously important for a day or so while he let this huge idea grow within him, and he bullied the men detailed to work with him down below in the boiler room a good deal. The bo'sun's mate kept working him up to it, and finally Maro appeared on deck one morning togged out in his very best mustering suit of bluejacket clothes and went up to the officer of the deck and asked permission to see the commanding officer at the mast. The officer of the deck was rather surprised to see the man all done up in his mustering togs when all hands were at work; but, as he is obliged to do when an enlisted man requests permission to see the commanding officer, he sent word to the skipper, who soon emerged from his cabin and appeared at 'the stick.'

"'Well, my man?' said the skipper to Maro, who stood bolt upright and saluted with a flourish.

"'Sare,' said Maro to the skipper, 'I hav-a da honor to her-a-by taka da command of-a da ship.'

"'Hey?' said the commanding officer, putting his hand to his ear and looking as if he hadn't heard aright.

"'Da ship,' repeated Maro. 'Fer-a da navee of-a Hellas—de Greeka navee—I hava da honor to taka da command.'

"All hands among the enlisted men were up on the to'gallant fo'c'sle taking the thing in, and they broke into a roar that you could have heard five cable lengths' distance. Maro heard it and, suspecting that his confidence had been abused, got red and flabbergasted. He suddenly bolted for the engine room hatch and made his way below, and it took three marines to drag him aft to the sick bay, where the surgeon, at the skipper's command, gave Maro a half hour's examination as to his sanity. Maro was game enough to decline to give the name of the enlisted man who had told him he was eligible for the command of the ship upon its being 'turned into the navy of Greece,' but the thrashing he gave that bo'sun's mate when he got him 'on the beach' was certainly savage."

KEEPING A PIANO IN TUNE.

Use All the Keys Every Time the Instrument Is Played.

The trained musician has little trouble in keeping his piano in excellent tune. But the amateur pianist who just plays little snatches of this and that soon finds that some of the keys are in much better tune than others.

The fault is not always that of the piano tuner, nor is it always due to the fact that the piano has been exposed to dampness or left in a strong draft of air. Usually it is because the amateur player doesn't use every key when he plays. The musician who plays merely for his own benefit and who is far from being a skilled pianist discovers that he plays better in some one key, and consequently he selects all his music from that key. The true musician plays all keys and has no preference for any particular one.

If for any length of time we play almost entirely in one key the notes which are not used are bound to produce a different sound from those which are used constantly.

The skilled musician runs his fingers lightly over the whole keyboard before starting any piece, thus bringing all the notes into action. But the clumsy amateur usually starts without the slightest pretense of a prelude or calling forth the different tones of the piano. No piano can be expected to keep long in perfect tune unless every key is used about as much as every other key. The well modulated instrument is the one whose notes all see equal amounts of service.

The piano, like the voice, must be evenly used to be perfect. Any one who talks in a high pitched voice and only calls forth the high tones of his throat cannot expect to talk in a low, well modulated voice when he never uses the low, soft strains. A cheap piano well taken care of will sound better if played by a musician who uses all the keys than a higher priced one which is only allowed to produce the tones of the single key which the amateur player can read best.—New York American.

It Pays to Secure a Tenant Who Pays.

The uncertain sort of tenant is easy to find. He is always answering the call of the window sign of "To Let." He is easy to please. Even a rather high rental does not frighten him away.

But the Stay-and-Pay tenant is not so easy to secure. He is surer of what he wants. He does not take the first house, or apartment, or store that he finds. He watches and answers "To Let" Ads.

And to secure him for your tenant is a good day's work—a good week's work.

WE THANK YOU.

(From the Trenton Times).

Since Leslie R. Fort left the Executive Department and gave his entire time to newspaper work, he seems to have made a remarkable success of the Plainfield Daily Press, which he purchased a few years ago. So great has been his success that he has contracted to have installed a press with a capacity for 13,000 papers an hour, up to and including sixteen pages; and that should be enough in Plainfield for many years to come, though the changes in newspaper production have been so numerous and radical that one dare not venture to predict what may happen.

Not only is the Press to have a new printing press, but a new home also. A building on North Avenue has been taken under a long lease, with option to purchase at any time, and the Press establishment is to be moved within the next few weeks, when its new printing machine will be ready and additional linotypes installed, and Editor Fort thinks that "with the contemplated alterations the Daily Press will have one of the most complete newspaper publishing houses in the State."

Under its new management the Press has been bright, newsy, enterprising, progressive and successful. It seems but yesterday that one or two weekly newspapers sufficed to serve Plainfield, and now there are occasions when a sixteen-page daily is required; which goes to prove that the days when a practical printer with $200 or $300 in capital could "start a newspaper" and make it go, have passed, never to return.

"BURNED BUT NOT DISMAYED."

Fire destroyed the plant of the Asbury Park Evening Press early Monday morning. The only thing saved was the modern twenty-four page Duplex press, and this was damaged by fire and water so that it cannot be used for two or three weeks. The nearest plant which can provide facilities for printing the Asbury Park paper is at Long Branch, and yet with this great drawback, J. Lyle Kinmonth and his able force of assistants were able to get out a very creditable sheet on Monday, before the fire had been complete extinguished.

Everybody likes a fighter. But when a man does what Mr. Kinmonth did on Monday it is hard to find words to adequately express appreciation. The linotypes in two job job shops in the city were at work on the story of the fire at the regular hour Monday morning, and arrangements had been made to print the paper on the Long Branch Record press, as soon as that paper got off its regular edition. A temporary office, with telephone wires and complete service was installed immediately in the rear of the old building, and there under the head of "Burned but Not Dismayed" Mr. Kinmonth camly sat down and wrote a signed editorial in which he said:

Of the fire, nothing need to be said here. It destroyed the home and belongings of The Press, but it did not destroy nor even dismay the spirit of The Press' organization. This spirit, this organization will now redouble its zeal to give Asbury Park and Monmouth county a daily newspaper service of superior standard. The building will be replaced by a five-story concrete and steel structure as near fireproof as it can be made. The equipment will be new and of the best. May 30 will see us in the new building if steel can be secured promptly. To say that we appreciate the assistance of the firemen and others and the offers of assistance of every kind is to but faintly express our feelings. The Press will endeavor to be worthy of the kindly feelings expressed. The owner is proud of the organization which has made The Press what it is. With their help The Press will rise from the ashes bigger and better than ever.

That is the kind of a fighter that everyone appreciates, the kind of a man whom we would like to fight against, were we compelled to fight at all. The Daily Press expects to see an even greater paper sent forth from the new home than the splendid sheet which Mr. Kinmonth has been publishing for many years.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

LOCAL OPTION OUTLOOK.

A local option bill was passed by the Senate last year. It failed to pass the Assembly. There is a much stronger sentiment this year favoring the measure. Senator Gaunt has introduced a measure very similar in construction to the one before the Legislature last year. There is little doubt that it will pass the Senate, since a larger number of Senators than last year are known to favor it. In the Assembly six new members were elected who are known to favor the proposition, making nineteen who can be depended upon to support it. It ought not to be difficult to gain other converts to this proposed home rule measure. The Assembly members of Morris county, for instance, by every right should be supporters of the bill. They should be willing to line up for it as did Senator Rathbun from that county. It is very certain that there must be a predominance of sentiment in that county for the bill among rank and file Republicans.—Elizabeth Journal.

"A Day's Catch"

Now doth the liar, whose hotel
Lies in the fishing region,
Induce his camera to tell
Fish-lies that number legion.

He rummages about upstairs,
Until, up near the thatch,
He finds, all hid with dust somewheres,
His faithful "one day's catch."

He cleans them off and hires some men
To put on sporting garments,
To stand before the lens and then
Pretend they caught the varmints.

The string is always three yards long
And holds a hundred fishes—
They surely make inducement strong
To those with fishing wishes.

But one can fish till cows come home,
In the adjacent waters
And never coax a fish to roam
From wife and sons and daughters.

Alas, the fish have all been caught!
One's hope for them is vain.
The ones they photographed were bought
From someone with a seine.

Days

A day is what every dog has.

Also at a certain season of the year, the dog has several in succession.

Days are sent to us whether we ordered them or not.

Often we have awaked or awakened, or whatever is grammatical, in the morning and exclaimed indignantly:

"Now, here's a brand-new day, with the label still on it. I never ordered it! I couldn't afford it, even if I wanted it. If I had been going to order one, I'd have asked for a second-hand one."

But our protest went for nothing, and we had to take the new day and pay for it just the same as if we had ordered it, in writing.

So we have got into the habit of grabbing the day as soon as we see it and trying to see if we can't find something to do with it that will help somebody else or ourself.

The sender of days is beginning to short-weight us just now, but there's no earthly use in going to the 'phone and stomach-aching about it. You would be told, if anything, that the price of days had gone up, but that the effort was tending to make the days better in quality to make up for the shortage in quantity.

To-morrow morning you'll be saddled with another day, just as sure as shooting, and so will we.

But we can't stop and figure out what we'll do with it.

If we did, this day we have now on our hands would get away without our getting the worth of our money out of it.

Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Mastoiditis

PROBABLY IN EVERY case of middle ear infection, or "gathering in the ear," in which the drum ruptures and permits a discharge of matter from the ear, or is lanced for that purpose by the physician, there is more or less involvement of the spaces inside the mastoid process back of the ear. These spaces communicate with the cavity of the middle ear, and no doubt partake of all inflammations involving the lining of the middle ear. (The middle ear is that portion of the ear within the eardrum which houses the little bones of the ear and communicates via the Eustachian tube with the back of the nose and throat.)

Of course soreness or tenderness of the bone just behind the ear would be suggestive of inflammation in that bone (mastoiditis), but a very serious inflammation and pus-formation may be present in the mastoid without any noticeable pain or tenderness behind the ear.

Any acute earache or gathering which is followed by a very profuse discharge from the ear should be looked upon as suspicious, because such cases are usually cases of mastoiditis.

A discharge which can be seen to pulsate is certainly indicative of mastoiditis.

A discharge from the ear persisting for many days or weeks after the "gathering breaks," especially if the patient has an elevated temperature part or all of each day, is probably due to mastoiditis.

The danger of mastoiditis is septic infection of the brain cavity—abscess, meningitis or septic sinus thrombosis (clotting and infection of the great vein-paths of the brain cavity).

Of course a fair share of cases of mastoiditis will go on to spontaneous recovery after a few weeks under good care, but the disease is a treacherous one and must be managed by a physician of good judgment. Perhaps half of the cases of mastoiditis will recover without operation and the other half will require operation.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A Gland That Influences Growth

Can you tell me whether there is any such thing as a gland having control over the growth of the body? That is, can growth be stimulated or increased by feeding a person some gland or glandular extract?

Answer—The pineal gland, at the base of the brain, exerts such an influence. In animal experimentation, at any rate, the feeding of extracts of pineal gland produces a markedly rapid growth, in young animals, particularly males. Whether such effects are ever noted in human beings we are unable to state. If the individual were undeveloped because of a deficiency of pineal gland function it would perhaps be worth trying.

Chenopodium (wormseed)

Kindly advise me whether oil of chenopodium (American wormseed) is considered a safe remedy for hookworm infection and for other intestinal parasites.

Answer—Safer than most vermifuges, and said to be far more efficient. The dose given is five drops in capsule to a child, ten drops to an adult, early in the morning, after a light supper and no breakfast. This is given each morning for three days. Two hours after the dose on the third morning a tablespoonful of castor oil should be taken.

Vest Pocket Essays

BY GEORGE FITCH

THE DOLLAR

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE to speak of the kindly, hard-working dollar in anything but terms of affection. Whatever may be our contempt for twenty dollar bills and $1,000 bills we can only admit that the plain and capable dollar is a friend of humanity and is full of good works.

There are two kinds of dollars, hard and soft. The East prefers the soft dollar, which can be folded up and placed in a pocket book in the hip pocket, from which it can easily be extracted by removing the glove and the overcoat and turning the contents of the pocketbook upside down into a hat. The hurried West prefers the hard dollar, which is durable, convenient and cannot be mistaken in the dark for a laundry bill and cast haughtily into the fire.

However, hard and soft dollars are equally talented in producing pleasant effects. The amount of sunshine and joy and internal comfort which a dollar, even an old and dog-eared one, can produce, is little short of marvelous. A dollar will set 'em up from ten to forty times to cigars. It will carry us fifty miles by railroad and will support a man for several days. A dollar will buy enough printed wisdom to last some men forty years, or it will purchase three hundred laughs in the balcony of any theatre. A dollar will commit twenty acts of charity. With the 200th part of a dollar, a poor woman purchased a reputation for charity almost two thousand years ago which even now makes John D. Rockefeller look like a tight wad. With a dollar a man can buy a year's good government, and with a dollar he can buy much trouble that he will still be dodging ten years hence.

Everyone loves the dollar and is hospitable to it. We may be charming and lovable, ingenious and aesthetic, but unless we can induce a certain number of dollars per week to gather beneath our humble roof, we are going to make a failure out of life. No other visitor is as welcome as the dollar. The man who will grumble if he has to get out of his chair at 7 P. M. and welcome his mother-in-law, will slide down the banisters at 2 A. M. with a glad shriek and welcome a dollar with both hands.

Some men, however, do not seem able to entertain the dollar when they have it. They will start the week with fifty of them and those dollars will make the most ridiculous excuses to leave him and stay gone. Other men, who have never entertained a human being in their lives, are so fascinating to dollars that the little creatures will not only make their permanent homes with them, but will go out and grab other dollars by the neck and haul them in.

Everyone loves the dollar

The taste of the dollar in choosing its friends, however, cannot always be commended. Many times a dollar will leave a splendid, upright man and cling to a usurer until Death doth them part.

Dollars delight to work for men, but some men are very poor bosses. They have to use a hundred dollars to get the results which other men can accomplish with five. Dollar training is one of the most beneficial exercises, and if you persist in it you can, in time, persuade the faithful creatures to do all your work for you.

Views Of The Press

Enterprise

A MIDDLE-WESTERN BOY, whose family moved to New York, found his environment intolerably circumscribed. There was no place to play. Worse than that, the youngsters in his neighborhood didn't seem to know how to play. He decided to do some missionary work.

Near the apartment-house where he lived there was a vacant lot that was obviously intended for baseball, although it happened to be badly littered with stones. The new boy tried to persuade the other lads to clean up the lot, but they were not interested. They couldn't see the advantage of going to all the trouble just to be able to play ball.

Then the discontented youngster went and got a lot of bottles and stuck them, upside down, on the pickets of the fence around the lot.

Of course all the kids flocked into the yard and picked up the stones and threw them at the bottles. Being city boys, they couldn't throw straight, and by the time they had broken all the bottles they had cleaned up the whole yard. Then the schemer came in, laid out a diamond and organized a ball game.

This is a true story. It is also a parable. That Western boy represents the young men who go to New York from all sections of the country, and make good—and by pouring fresh blood into the old metropolis keep it going and make it the business power that it is.—Oswego (N. Y.) Palladium.

Divorce Again

Q. (1) If a man leaves his wife and goes to another state, remaining there several weeks, and does not write to her and leaves her without funds, can she, if he has property in the state, get rent from same, or sell enough to live on, without first getting a divorce or a legal separation? (2) Is a man compelled to support his wife if he has property? (3) If he remains away and sues for divorce, can he get it without paying the wife alimony? (4) Who is it that informs either party that a divorce has been sued for?

A. (1) She can pledge his credit, to the extent of necessaries. (2) He is under a legal as well as a moral duty to support the wife. (3) The question of alimony depends on the circumstances of the case. (4) When a suit for divorce is brought, the method pointed out by the statutes for the purpose of enabling the court to acquire jurisdiction must be observed.

Mr. Branson will be glad to answer all questions. If your question is of general interest it will be answered through these columns; if not, it will be answered personally if stamped, addressed envelope is enclosed. Address all letters to E. R. Branson, care of this newspaper.

Not Anna Held

THE AVERAGE MIND is much wiser than many may suppose. Questions can be put to a witness under cross-examination, in argumentative form, often with far greater effect upon the minds of the jury than if the same line of reasoning were reserved for the summing up. The juryman sees the point for himself, as if it were his own discovery, and clings to it all the more tenaciously.

The entire effect of the testimony of an adverse witness can sometimes be destroyed by a pleasant little passage-at-arms in which he is finally held up to ridicule before the jury, and all that he has previously said against you disappears in the laugh that accompanies him from the witness box.

In a recent case a witness who had been badgered rather persistently on cross-examination finally straightened himself up in the witness chair and said pertly, "I have not come here to ask you to 'play with me.' Do you take me for Anna Held?" (It was at the time when Anna Held was singing her popular stage song "Won't you come and play with me.")

"I was not thinking of Anna Held," replied the counsel quietly. "Supposing you try Ananias!"

The witness was enraged, the jury laughed, and the lawyer, who had really made nothing out of the witness up to this time, sat down.

Those little triumphs are, however, by no means always one-sided. Often, if the counsel gives him an opening, a clever witness will counter on him in a most humiliating fashion, certain to meet with the hearty approval of jury and audience.

At the Worcester Assizes in England, a case was being tried which involved the soundness of a horse, and a clergyman had been called as a witness who only succeeded in giving a confused account of the transaction. A blustering counsel on the other side, after many attempts to get at the facts upon cross-examination, blurted out, "Pray, sir, do you know the difference between a horse and a cow?"

"I acknowledge my ignorance," replied the clergyman. "I hardly do know the difference between a horse and a cow, or between a bull and a bully—only a bull, I am told, has horns, and a bully, luckily for me, has none."—Curiosities of Law and Lawyers.

On Being Different

To be Different, you must not follow the route that the Crowd takes. Also, you must needs have Spunk and a real reserve of the Heroic in your make-up. And also, no one was ever Different who did not have the courage to Initiate—to Dare.

Be daringly Different.

But be sure you are Different in genuineness, and with a high purpose as guide—not freakishly Different.

Be daringly Different.

All anybody has to do to be common, uncommented upon, and unnoticed, is simply to Imitate—do what everybody else seems to be doing. For the Different people are always those who care nothing for the sneers or comments or criticisms of the crowd, and who with ease and boldness pull away and Stare Things all by themselves—whereas the Crowd bestirs itself to them.

Be daringly Different.

The Famous people of the world always will be the Different people. If this were not true, there would be no famous people.

Be daringly Different.

To be Different, study Yourself. Search for the Big things in your make-up. Face your Weak Points. Then formulate, and carry out, plans for putting Strength where Weakness was. Get your Big Values out into the open where they will radiate real Inspiration. Experiment with your Abilities. Mind not the off smiles and comments from the side lines. Be sincere and honest with yourself. That is the thing that counts. Get your Best—Out.

Be daringly Different.

Be what you actually are. Let the world know you for your actual worth. Be done with any popular veneer. It is not easy thus. But for it all, there is a fine, satisfying Reward in the knowledge that you are a Leader and not a Follower, merely. To be Different is to show the world your Most—unafraid.

A Mistake

I wrote to a friend
In a casual way,
And addressed it J. R.
Instead of J. A.
I never considered
The matter at all,
But now my remorse is
As bitter as gall.

For a fellow is tender
Concerning his name;
That is why I am crushed
By a burden of blame.
And a Road of Contrition
Is stretching afar,
For his name is J. A.
And I called him J. R.

He does not revile me,
He's calm as an oyster;
If he has a complaint,
He never has voiced her.
But still he must feel
Some resentment to-day
Because I forgot
That his name was J. A.

The worry is mine,
And the moral is clear.
Let the telephone book
Be conveniently near.
Take NOTHING for granted,
Then life will be gay,
You will not write J. R.
When the name is J. A.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish says it is expensive to be rich. Owing to certain rules governing the use of language, and insisted upon in nearly every newspaper office, we are unable to tell Mrs. Fish what it is to be poor.

After she has had her cry it is comparatively easy to "make up" with a woman.

Up to the time a bachelor is thirty-five his relatives are the only ones concerned as to his unmarried state. But after he is thirty-five the entire community takes an interest in the matter.

If a man has red hair he is willing to admit it. But a woman never irrevocably commits herself.

In a country neighborhood they do not describe that phase of mental turmoil as "a grouch." They say the man who has it acts like a "bear with a sore paw."

Daddy's Bedtime Story

How Bobbie And Jim Made a Toboggan Slide.

Bibbley Wah Rolled Off into the Brook.

"PROBABLY Uncle Ben's hill was the nicest in the state," said daddy. "It led to the little Frenchies' house, the peach orchard, Whist pond, the rocking bowlder and the rabbit snares. But when the boys had their long winter holiday they made it into a toboggan slide."

"Oh, tell us, daddy!" shouted Jack and Evelyn.

"First of all, Jack Frost obligingly covered all its bumps and ruts with a beautiful fall of fluffy snow. Then the kind sun melted this into a mush, and the north wind pleasantly froze it. This, you see, made a good hard bed that really lasted till spring. Then old Father January snowed some more on the road bed, and then Hank Fritz and the boys took matters into their own hands. They hitched Carlo to a dog sled Hank made, got Anne to give them three milk pails, and they carted gallons of water and sprinkled it all down the mile long hill. It took a lot of time and patience, but Jack Frost froze every drop for them, so that when they finally got Uncle Ben to come and see their job he said it was the best toboggan slide in town.

"Now the three children inherited from Uncle Ben and their daddy a wonderful set of bobs, all painted a shiny red, like Bibbley Wah's mittens, and on such smooth runners that they ran without even a starting push. All the youngsters had to do was to sit on the bobs, tuck in their feet, hitch along onto the top of the hill, and flash! away they shot, down past the beech grove along the frozen brookside, a mile away. Then some eight or ten little Frenchies ran out to greet them, help the boys drag the bobs up the hill and catch a ride back home, themselves. And at least twice through the day Marta, the little Frenchies' mother, served the children Marie Antoinette cake. Then Anne would worry about Bibbley Wah catching cold, so she would meet the gay crowd at the top of the hill with a big pitcher of hot chocolate and treat everybody. Oh, it was just like having a picnic every mile you went, top of the hill or the bottom.

"Well, one beautiful, snappy, cold day, when Jim was taking his turn steering the bobs, he ran them right into a beech tree. The bobs upset, and Bibbley Wah rolled off right into the brook."

"Oh, she'll get drowned!" cried Evelyn.

"Not Bibbley Wah," daddy comforted her. "She got soaking wet, but Hank grabbed her, and in about a dozen of his long legged strides nestled her to Anne, who put her in a hot bath, gave her some hot milk and tucked her in bed. All the rest of that afternoon she sat up in bed in a little red dressing gown, while the boys stayed in to nurse her."

Marrying for Money

BY MRS EVA LEONARD

Daughter and Son Are Greatly Disturbed by News of Father's Engagement.

"Do you mean you intend to marry that snippy Ortrude Blakely?" There was fierce resentment in Marian Townsend's tone.

"The sooner you get rid of that attitude the better it will be for you, my girl," her father answered, in what was intended to be a conciliating manner. "You have it in your power to make yourself very miserable, or you can take a course that will bring happiness all around. I shall see that you children do not suffer in any way because of this marriage. If you all do your part I am sure she will do hers. One thing that I will not stand is any slighting treatment of her. You understand?"

Jacob Townsend was what Fairport called an indulgent father. Marian had been especially spoiled and petted, and to have her father speak to her as he had spoken was a new experience. She turned and left the room without a word, and the father had an uncomfortable feeling that his success in announcing his engagement left something to be desired. If he had seen her angry, vindictive face as the girl walked up and down in her room he would have been still more disturbed.

"I'll never stay here, never!" blazed the girl. "If she thinks she is coming here to lord it over me she is very much mistaken. I'll go away." She stopped before the mirror and looked at her angry reflection in the glass. "Now that he has her to pet, perhaps he will consent to my going away to school. He could not spare me before," she said bitterly.

"I just know she is marrying him for his money," she continued to her reflection in the glass. "I wish he had not a dollar in the world; just had to work for a bare living. We'd never be troubled with Miss Ortrude then, I can wager.

"I wonder if he has told the boys," she mused. "Of course it will not make so much difference to George. He's married. But I'll warrant that Dudley makes a fuss."

Hearing her brother's step on the stair, she flew to the door.

"Come in here," she called, as he appeared in sight.

"What's the excitement?" he asked, as he observed his sister's flushed face.

"Matter enough!" she burst forth. "Has father told you that he is to marry Ortrude Blakely?"

"That teacher who carries her head so high?" asked Dudley.

"Yes. A fine kettle of fish we'll have here," continued the excited girl. "I'll not stay here! Will you?"

"Not so fast; not so fast. I can't tell what I'll do yet. I am glad you told me; forewarned is forearmed." Dudley sat leaning forward with his elbows on his knees, looking at the rug.

"You be careful, Puss, not to antagonize Dad. It will do no good." He rose and left the room without another word to the girl.

If it's advertised today it is likely that it is of timely interest to you today.

Tomorrow night—Rahway at Hoboken, Paterson at Rutherford.

1042, 1058, 1067—those are the scores the Elizabeth Elks rolled at home last night. The results of such spectacular work include: winning three games from New York lodge, and increasing their hold on first place to four full games over Newark, totaling 1,118 pins, and averaging 1,055.2 for the night; increasing their season average, which is the best in the league, to 945.6 for thirty games; bettering their own high team score for the season, a mark of 1,011, in three successive games; breaking the league record for the season, 1,062, held by New Brunswick, with a count of 1,067.

Naturally, there were some individual feats of unusual merit. Lee Johns, New York's anchor, rolled 257, which, excepting Albright's record of 216, is the best tally of the season. Joe Nolte stopped at 255, and with other marks of 243 and 220, averaged 239.1 for the night.

Eddie Feihl averaged 214.2, Dave Maloney 204.1, Heinie Clauss 200 and Lee Johns 211.2. Other big scores included George Blythe's 202 and 201, Feihl's 197, 237 and 210, Maloney's 205, 213 and 195, Clauss' 195, 199 and 206, Charlie Starr's 226, Wessell's 197 and L. Westphal's 195.

There was only one score under 195 turned in by a member of the Elizabeth team. That was Blythe's 189 in the second game. This is the second clean sweep the Betsytown Antlers have scored over New York this season, as they won three games in their match in Manhattan on November 3.

New York hung up 988 in the first game, which is just one pin shy of the Gothamites' best game of the winter. They lost by 54 pins. The winners' margins in the last two games were 185 and 205.

Thursday night—Episcopal vs. Holy Trinity.

After all, the Westfield Sunday-School Bowling League race is not now the one-sided competition it threatened to be, and bids fair to be another three-cornered fight such as it was last year. The Congregationals, refusing to be thrown off the trail by the Holy Trinity team's winning three games the other night, again drew up on even terms with the Trinityites by capturing three games last night from the Presbyterians. Trinity and Congregational are now only two games behind the leading Baptists.

The All-Stars, a team composed of members of the class teams of North Plainfield High School, were defeated by the Junior Class yesterday afternoon in Saengerbund Hall, 42 to 19. The winners, who are tied with the Freshmen for the leading position in the league, displayed good form, and look like the probable winners of the class championship.

SPORT NOTES

Mike Gibbons' next appearance is at Winnipeg next month, when he boxes Jack Dillon with big gloves for an exhibition of six rounds.

The "bike strike" is the latest sport squabble to entertain the lovers of the strenuous side-lights of the various sports. The National Cycling Association finds most of its track riders on strike and supporting a rival meet.

The Northern Baseball League meets again tomorrow at Duluth, expecting to organize an eight-club league for the coming season. Clubs certain to be in the circuit are Winnipeg, Fort William, Duluth, Virginia, and Fargo. Superior, Houghton and Calumet are the best bets for the other three clubs.

The dropping of Heinie Wagner from the World's Champ Red Sox team looks as though the veteran shortstop will manage one of the big clubs. Wagner is a strategist, and has been the mainstay of the Red Sox, together with Bill Carrigan.

The Indianapolis speedway race, to be run off on July 4, has received its first entry from Dario Resta. The distance at Minneapolis will be 300 miles. Resta will also be in Chicago, Indianapolis and Vanderbilt races.

The reported attempts to merge the New Englaind League with the Eastern Association will get down to brass tacks today, when the magnates meet again in Boston to try to straighten out their tangles.

Stanley Yoakum, who recently lost a battle to Gilbert Gallant, will meet Johnny Dundee in a 20-round battle at Denver, on Saturday night.

NO K. C. BOWLING.

The Knights of Columbus League bowling match, scheduled for last night between the Bayonne and Jersey City teams, on the latter's alleys, was indefinitely postponed.

AVIATION FASCINATING, SAYS A SLOANE STUDENT

Driving an aeroplane has a certain fascination—at least to those who do it for pleasure, but it is comparable to the flight of an other kind of a bird through the clouds, according to Casch Rolfe, of New Brunswick.

For the past month, young Rolfe has been receiving instructions in driving a plane several thousand feet above ground, from H. W. Blakely, the aviator and instructor of the Sloane Biplane Company, which is conducting an aviation school near Bound Brook. In another month Rolfe expects to become a full fledged air pilot. One month more of study under the Sloane experts will acquaint him with all the details of the latest game of business and sport. The New Brunswick boy is not learning aviation for the sport of it, however. It is a business with him.

After completing his course he is to take out a license and will thereafter make flying a business. The youth is all wrapped up in aviation and says nothing is quite so fascinating as flying over brooks and trees in the country, and bailuing in the city, and mingling with the clouds at the same time.

Rolfe is the first one to study under Blakely, and he is the first New Brunswicker to take up flying as a business. Most every day for the past month he has been driving his car over the aviation grounds, then ascends into the clouds and down again and again homeward in the auto.

Only this week he and Blakely flew over Bound Brook and back to the grounds, with Rolfe at the steering apparatus. It was his first trip of any distance with himself directly the air craft. He talks enthusiastically of biplaning.

"There's nothing like it," he says. "When you first go up the fascination is so great that you laugh. After a time this fascination wears off, and you think no more of it than driving an automobile, or walking down the street. Flying is getting to be a business, and more people should take it up."

Young Rolfe is thinking of starting an aviation club of New Brunswickers, who wish to take up flying either as a sport or business. In the spring the Sloane Company expects to conduct an aviation school on a large scale, and it is probable they will secure a number of recruits from this section.

Schedule.

Tonight—Loyal Association vs. Westfield Club.

The first match in the Westfield Bowling League, since the Red Men were voted out of the league Sunday, was decided last night, the Immediate Aid five winning two games from the Royal Arcanums.

The corrected standing of the teams, after taking out the results of games rolled against the Red Men, still leaves the Royal Arcanum team in the lead, but the teams are more closely bunched. The change puts the Clinks ahead of the Westfield Club, the Immediate Aid team remaining in fourth place. The Aiders, however, instead of being five full games behind the leading Royals are only one and a half games behind the pace-setters. High scores last night were 203 by Montross, 200 by Nelson and 204 by Hunt.

The change in the standing euchres the Westfield Club out of six victories they scored over the Red Men, the Royals and Clinks being the next biggest losers.

P. H. S. SIX OFF TO A BAD START

Outscored 22 to 5 in First Half at Roselle Park—Improve in Second.

MISS GOOD SCORELESS

Plainfield Captain Fails to Find Basket for First Time in Many Contests—Locals Without Services of Star Guard.

Minus the services of Jennie Bremble, the dependable guard, the Plainfield High School girls' basketball team went to Roselle Park yesterday afternoon to be beaten by the high school maidens of that borough 24 to 10. The girls from the Elizabeth suburb won the game in the first half, when they rolled up a total of 22 counters while the locals were making five, but try as they might they could only make one basket in the last period, owing to the sudden brace of the Queen City combination.

The court was not of regular size, and the local forwards kept ever shooting continually. Elsa Palmer and Dorothy Butler each also made a free throw. Irma Good, the red and blue captain, went scoreless for the first time in many games. Miss Broome proved adept at coralling points, and was responsible for seven baskets and two fouls, which totaled sixteen of the Roselle Park points.

NATIONAL GUARD NOTES

The new olive drab overcoats for which the local guardsmen have been looking for several years, were received last week. The issue of these coats came as the result of the criticism made on those worn by the New Jersey regiments which attended the inauguration of President Wilson, in Washington. At that time the men were compelled to wear the old blue overcoats, some of which had capes with red lining. Company K was allowed sixty-five coats, with an equal number of blankets.

Preparations are being made by the First Field Hospital Company for the annual banquet, which will be held on Monday night, January 31, in Achtel-Stetter's restaurant, Newark. At this time there will also be a reunion of all the former members of the organization. It is expected to have several regular army officers present.

The committee on arrangements consists of: Chairman, R. F. Harris; Sergeant, H. Doran and Corporal L. P. Knowles.

DRESS WARM AND KEEP FEET DRY

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Take Salts and Get Rid of Uric Acid.

Rheumatism is no respecter of age, sex, color or rank. If not the most dangerous of human afflictions, it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat less meat, dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure, and, above all, drink lots of pure water.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

OUCH! LUMBAGO! RUB PAINS FROM SORE, LAME BACK

Rub Backache away with small trial bottle of old, penetrating St. Jacob's Oil.

Back hurt you? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now listen! That's lumbago, sciatica or maybe from a strain, and you'll get relief the moment you rub your back with soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil." Nothing else takes out soreness, lameness and stiffness so quickly. You simply rub it on your back and out comes the pain. It is harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Limber up! Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest "St Jacobs Oil" from any drug store, and after using it just once, you'll forget that you ever had a backache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt or cause any more misery. It never disappoints and has been recommended for 60 years.

PUT CREAM IN NOSE AND STOP CATARRH

Tells How To Open Clogged Nostrils and End Head-Colds.

You feel fine in a few moments. Your cold in head or catarrh will be gone. Your clogged nostrils will open. The air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more dullness, headache; no hawking, snuffling, mucous discharges or dryness; no struggling for breath at night.

Tell your druggist you want a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

It is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer needs. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable.—Adv.

Hopes Women Will Adopt This Habit As Well As Men

Glass of hot water each morning helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "run-downs," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking, each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.—Adv.

$2,000 LOSS IN BOROUGH BLAZE

Three Horses Burned to Death in Fire Which Destroys H. M. Gnatz's Barn.

DWELLING THREATENED

Saengerbund Hall is Also Damaged to Some Extent—Firemen do Good Work in Preventing Spread of Flames.

The barn in the rear of the bakery shop of H. M. Gnatz at 84 Somerset street, leased by Mr. Gnatz from Jacob Voehl, burned to the ground at 4:30 o'clock this morning, destroying three horses; three sets of harness, two wagons, a half ton of hay, straw and a quantity of oats. The rear wall of Saengerbund Hall, only ten feet from the barn, was also damaged, all of the window frames and a door being charred. But for excellent work on the part of the borough firemen there would have been a far greater loss. A frame dwelling on Harmony street, standing close to the barn, was threatened. Fully half of the surface of the side of this dwelling which faced the barn is charred, the only thing which saved it being the fact that the firemen played a constant stream of water on the building.

This house is occupied by an Italian family of the name of Alelobene. They were driven from their home by the intense heat.

The damage totals about $2,000. Mr. Gnatz estimates his loss at $550, part of which is covered by insurance. The barn, which was valued at $800, is covered by insurance. The damage to Saengerbund Hall is confined to broken window lights, the charred window frames and doors, and slight damage by water.

The fire was discovered by Louis Fay, a baker, of 516 West Third street, as he was driving his wagon through Harmony street. He hurried to Manning avenue and Somerset street and turned in the alarm from box No. 142. The firemen responded quickly with their combination wagon. When they arrived at the scene of the fire the barn was in flames from end to end and Saengerbund Hall and the dwelling occupied by the Italian family were also on fire.

Realizing that the barn was doomed Chief McCullough directed his men to devote their entire attention to the hall and the dwelling. Two streams were used. The fire call was received at 4:25 and at 6:10 the recall was sounded.

The only property saved from the barn were two wagons. These were taken out by Patrolman Sheats. Mr. Gnatz is at a loss to account for the origin of the fire. Mrs. Gnatz, however, believes that the barn was set on fire by a tramp, as for the past three weeks, Richard Perrine, the hostler, reported on various occasions during that time that the hay looked as if somebody had slept on it during the night.

Mr. Gnatz didn't know that his barn was on fire until he was awakened by people who were attracted to the scene by the blaze which could be seen many miles. Mr. Gnatz aroused his family and after hastily dressing they all went to the street.

The business of the Gnatz establishment was carried on much the same today. This afternoon the regular delivery was made. Mr. Gnatz will build at once. The borough fire ordinance prohibits the erection of any more frame barns. He has been engaged in the bakery business at 84 Somerset street since he purchased the business of John Voehl a year ago.

MISS SAMONSKI STILL IN A SERIOUS CONDITION

Mary Samonski, the young servant girl who nearly lost her life in the Lyle fire, on West Seventh street, Tuesday night, was reported at Muhlenberg Hospital today as being slightly improved. She is semi-conscious most of the time and is still threatened with pneumonia due to the exposure she suffered before being found in the burning house, and until she was gotten to safety.

All the members of the family of J. Irvine Lyle, who were exposed to the cold in getting away from the house in their night clothing, were reported today as showing no ill effects. Mrs. Lyle's aged father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. David Biggerstaff, were among those rescued by the firemen, and although Mr. Biggerstaff is an invalid, he quickly rallied from his experience with the smoke and flame on the trip to a neighbor's home in zero weather. Although an investigation has been in progress since the residence burned, nothing has been learned that might throw light on the origin of the fire, and it still remains a mystery.

"CHILDREN AND THEIR WAYS" IS DESCRIBED

W. D. Murray Addresses Gathering of Parents at Crescent Avenue Church.

"Children and Their Ways," was the subject of an interesting talk given by William D. Murray at the Crescent Avenue church, last night. The occasion was the annual gathering of parents who have children in the Sunday-school, and there was a large attendance. All thoroughly enjoyed Mr. Murray's remarks.

Mr. Murray began his address with some lessons drawn from 1 Sam. 10:2 where Saul was told that his father was not now worrying about his lost property, but "is anxious for you; saying, What shall I do for my son?"

He pointed out how important it was to begin early in teaching children, and then spoke of some of the ways of children which older people often-times misunderstand, drawing his illustrations mostly from incidents in the lives of the children in the primary department of the Crescent Avenue church.

The wonderful confidence which children have in those they trust was illustrated by the little girl who brought him her first tooth, and by another child who showed him her vaccination.

That children are often misunderstood because they reason differently from grown people was shown by the boy who preferred the machinery on the ferry-boat to the beautiful decorations of the city when Dewey returned; and by the boy who when charged with having been the last at the party, said, "No, mother, I staid until the last one went and then I came home."

Their sense of importance was shown by stories of four year old children who wanted to get out of the baby class.

The most powerful influence in shaping the character of the child is the example set by parents and older people. Mr. Murray told of a little boy who wanted to have a wooden leg like daddy, and of another boy who was getting his first hair cut and wanted it cut like father's with a bare place in the middle.

In closing Mr. Murray read as a warning the parable of the "Prodigal Father," who discovered too late that he had neglected his boy while the boy was growing up.

JOSEPH LUPO INDICTED.

Elizabeth, Jan. 20.—Two indictments, one charging the conducting of a disorderly house and the other receiving money from Annie Nugent for improper purposes, were found against Joseph Lupo, of Plainfield, and when he was arraigned yesterday in the Court of Quarter Sessions he pleaded not guilty to both charges. Bail was fixed at the sum of $1,500 for each indictment, and his trial was set for January 26.

TO END CONTEST.

The Holy Name Society, of St. Joseph's church will terminate the contest conducted under its auspices for the past two months on January 31. At that time an entertainment and reception will be held in the parish hall and the winner of the diamond ring announced.

TO UNDERGO OPERATION

Joseph McCarthy, of Manson place, this city, has gone to St. Luke's Hospital, New York city, where he will undergo a serious operation tomorrow. Dr. McIntyre will perform the operation.

CARL A. STEINER LEAVES FOR THE PACIFIC COAST

Carl A. Steiner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Steiner, of Jackson avenue, left this morning for Los Angeles, Cal., where he will represent the sales department of the Pratt & Whitney Company, of Hartford, Conn. The latter concern is affiliated with the Niles-Bement-Pond Company, with which Mr. Steiner has been connected in the New York office for the past ten years. Mrs. Steiner and her daughter, Mary Gorden Steiner, are at present visiting relatives in Maine, but will join the husband and father at Los Angeles in March.

Mr. Steiner was graduated from the North Plainfield High School and for many years was prominent in athletics at the local Y. M. C. A. Since entering business, he has made rapid strides and his promotion to the present position comes as a reward for faithful service. Mr. Steiner leaves Plainfield with best wishes for continued success on the part of his hundreds of local friends.

PREPARATION FOR PREACHING MISSION

"Cottage Services" Are Being Held Under Auspices of Episcopal Churches.

In preparation for the mission to be conducted by Bishop Charles Woodcock, of Kentucky, at Grace church, during the week of February 13 to 20, under the joint auspices of the Church of the Holy Cross, the Church of the Heavenly Rest, St. Stephen's church and Grace church, the mission committees of the four churches have arranged a series of "cottage services" at the homes of people living in the different parishes and in the churches themselves.

This mission will be part of the nationwide movement for a reawakening of religious interest and activity. Bishop Woodcock is well known as one of the most eloquent preachers in this country, and Plainfield is considered fortunate in getting him for a week, invitations for him to do similar work having been sent to him from a large number of churches.

Preparatory meetings were held last night at the homes of Mrs. Charles King, 95 Watchung avenue, by the Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, and at the home of Mrs. J. O. Stevens, 340 Clinton avenue, by the Rev. Cortland H Mallery.

Other meetings have been arranged as follows: Every Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, at St. Stephen's church; January 26, at the homes of Mrs. Foster, 1 Foster place, and Mrs. U. B. Crane, 315 East Second street; January 27, at the home of Mrs. Eli Long, 74 Grove street; February 2, at the homes of Mrs. David H. Rowland, 511 West Seventh street, and Mrs. Charles Borden, 1045 West Seventh street; February 3, at the home of Mrs. F. B. Ball, 31 Myrtle avenue; February 9th, at the homes of Mrs. McGoldrick, 409 East Fifth street, and Mrs. Michael Rimmer, 681 Essex street; February 10, at the parish house of Holy Cross church. The hour for all the week-day evening meetings is 8 o'clock.

MUNICIPAL LEAGUE OF CITIES ELECT OFFICERS

Trenton, Jan. 20.—With representatives present from most of the ninety-four cities affiliated, the first convention of the New Jersey State League of Municipalities was held here yesterday. These officers were re-elected: President, Mayor W. F. Donnelly, Trenton; first vice president, George N. Seger, Passaic; second vice president, Charles N. Ellis, Camden; third vice president, Leighton Calkins, Plainfield; executive committee, Joseph Robinowitz, Woodbine; Clarence E. F. Herrick, Asbury Park; George Brensinger, Jersey City; Spaulding Frazer, Newark, Daniel A. Garber, Ridgewood; George H. Packer, Bound Brook; William S. Dey, South Amboy; L. S. Page, Chatham; W. F. McAllister, Merchantville, and C. G. Justice, Pitman.

In his report for the first year, Mayor Donnelly asserted that the league was the outcome of meetings held by municipal executives to aid Passaic and Paterson in their fight for 90-cent gas. He charged that the league had been hampered in obtaining members by the agents of public utility companies, working to prevent the adoption by municipalities of the resolution permitting the necessary expenditure of funds to become affiliated.

Mayor Leighton Calkins, of Plainfield, one of the vice-presidents of the league, and chairman of the executive committee, submitted an interesting report.

SCOTT VOLUNTARILY APPEARED IN COURT

Local Man Asked That Fatal Accident Be Officially Investigated.

Walter Scott, of Plainfield, whose automobile struck Leo Cerchiaro, of New Market, last Saturday night, inflicting injuries from which the aged Italian died Tuesday night at Muhlenberg Hospital, was not arrested on complaint issued by Middlesex county officials, where the accident happened, but voluntarily went to New Brunswick and appeared before Judge Daly. Mr. Scott has engaged Attorney Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., to represent him in the case and he sought to force an official investigation of the accident by having it come before the grand jury. It will be brought up at the next term, which convenes February 1.

DRAKE DIVORCE CASE IS HEARD

17 Year Old Son is Principal Witness Against His Mother.

Elizabeth, January 20.—Former Chancellor William J. Magie this morning heard evidence in the divorce case of Charles Drake, of Plainfield, who is asking separation from his wife, whose maiden name was Waldron. Joseph Bellot is named as co-respondent. Bellot was formerly a boarder with Mrs. Drake. A seventeen-yearold son of Mr. and Mrs. Drake was the principal witness, reciting incidents of familiarity between his mother and the boarder. Bellot was recently tried on a charge of immoral relations toward the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Drake, but was acquitted. A decision has not yet been handed down in the divorce hearing.

FIREMEN NEED AN AUTOMOBILE TRUCK

Old Horse Drawn Hook and Ladder is Sadly Out of Date.

As a result of the Lyle fire Tuesday night an agitation has been started in Plainfield for an improvement of the local fire fighting service that experts say has long been needed. The long run of the horse-drawn hook and ladder and heavy streets over which the two patient and loyal animals had to draw the heavy load made this piece of apparatus late at the fire on Tuesday night and as a result the firemen were handicapped in the important work of saving human lives. Those directly in charge of the department have considered the horse-drawn hook and ladder out of date for some time, but now they have the support of a large number of citizens in their efforts to get an automobile truck and it is likely that the Common Council will be called upon to act within a short time. The hook and ladder weighs more than four tons, without a man on it, and when it is loaded with the necessary crew and started for a long run on snow covered and slippery streets the two horses that pull it are barely able to move faster than a sharp walk. This is the only piece of apparatus of its kind in the department and it may be needed in any part of the city at any time. Two plans are being considered for improvement. One is the purchased of a new auto-propelled hook and ladder or service truck and the other is the purchase of an automobile tractor to pull that now in use.

Should the weather be favorable tomorrow night the skating carnival for the benefit of the Belgium Relief Fund will be held on the Von Ohl pond, as scheduled, even though it should snow during the day. The latter will be swept off the pond, and the skating will go on just the same.

BLAZE IN LUMBER PILE ENDANGERS NEARBY HOUSES

The city fire department was called out at 12:20 this morning on an alarm from box 49, for a fire in a pile of old lumber belonging to Elmer Mills, and located in the rear of his premises at 1217 West Front street. Mr. Mills has been erecting a new refrigerating plant and tore down an ice house that had been previously doing service. A large quantity of salt hay was included in the debris and it is presumed that this caught fire from a locomotive spark, the railroad being only a short distance away.

The flames spread with great rapidity, endangering Mr. Mills' residence and store and also the store of W. W. Wilson at Clinton avenue and West Front street. The firemen worked for half an hour before the blaze was extinguished, it being necessary to move most of the lumber in order to get down to business. Mr. Mills said today that his loss was trifling, owing to the fact that most of the material was in pretty bad shape..

DEATH COMES TO EDWIN J. SKINNER

Well Known Retired Insurance Man Succumbs to Third Stroke of Paralysis.

Edwin J. Skinner, for many years connected with the local office of the Metropolitan Insurance Company, and one of the best known insurance men in the city, died early this morning at his home, 132 Elmwood place, following a long illness with paralysis. He first suffered a stroke about two years ago, and this was closely followed by a second. The third came last week, since which time he had been failing steadily.

Mr. Skinner was born in London, Eng., in 1844, but came to this country when he was a young man. When the big "strikes" were first made in the Colorado gold field he was among the thousand Easterners who emigrated to that section. Although fortunes were being made in the mines, Mr. Skinner turned his attention to business, and opened up a large general store. He did an enormous trade with the miners, but because of the motley assemblage that made up most of his customers, the task of being a storekeeper and general adviser to the community was anything but a pleasant task. There was a considerable lawless element always about, and Mr. Skinner and his assistants had to stay on watch in the store through the night, and were frequently called upon to use shotgun force to keep intruders away. The proprietor finally closed out and came East, locating for a time in Brooklyn, where he was employed in the civil engineering corps that laid out and graded Prospect Park.

Mr. Skinner came to Plainfield about thirty years ago as an agent for the Metropolitan Company, and he remained with the concern until about four years ago, at which time he was retired on a pension. The company paid him a high tribute at the time he left its employ, declaring that he was one of the most faithful and conscientious agents on its staff of thousands. Mr. Skinner had lived a retired life since leaving the company. He was a member of an Odd Fellows lodge at Denver, Colo., and for many years attended service at Trinity Reformed church. His only surviving relative is his wife. The arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made.

GREECE NOT YET IN FIERCE WAR

WAR OF DIPLOMACY

Roumania to Go With Constantine's Nation, Says Experts—Revolution Still Threatens Greek Leader—Armies Inactive.

London, Jan. 20.—There were no new developments in the Greek situation today, although all reports from that country insist that a crisis must come within a very few hours. Germany is using every effort to keep King Constantine in power and to prevent an outburst of Allied supporters fathered, it is said, by England, but rumors of a threatening revolution against the government grow stronger. That Roumania will follow Greece in whatever course she may take is admitted both here and in Berlin and for this reason diplomats and war lords are fighting more desperately to gain a victory in Greece than they are on any battle front in Europe. German, Turk, Bulgarian and Austrian troops are reported as falling back from Monastir, in Serbia, where they have been facing the Anglo-French front above Saloniki, but this is not believed by Allied leaders to be the birth of a retreat. They predict that movements are but an assembly of troops for a fierce charge into Greek territory. Military developments are likely to be held up, however, until there is some settlement of the diplomatic crisis.

BADER ON TRIAL IN QUARRY CASE

Contractor is Charged With Maintaining a Public Nuisance.

Somerville, January 20.—The trial of Edwell L. Bader, contractor for the Plainfield, North Plainfield and Dunellen sewer, on a charge of creating and maintaining a nuisance, is on in the Somerset county court here today. Bader, who operated a quarry on Watchung mountain, from which stone was taken to be used in the sewerage filtration beds, near Dunellen, was indicted for causing dangerous and reckless blasting in disregard of public rights. It is claimed by residents near the quarry that great stones were thrown many hundred feet from the quarry and houses were badly damaged. No one was injured by any of the blasts, but the residents said they were in constant fear of being killed or hurt. Ex-Assemblyman Emerson L. Richards, of Atlantic City, and former Judge Clarence Case, of Somerville, represent Bader. John Cuningham and John Ryan, parties to the contract, are also under indictment.

16 INCH GUNS ARE SOUGHT FOR NAVY

Would Have Two New Battleships Armed With Giants.

WANT SHIPS OF 36,000 TONS

High Speed and Cruising Radius of 10,000 Miles Are Proposed—Dreadnaughts, Each Costing $18,000,000 Would Be Greatest Warships in the World—Report of Navy Board.

Main batteries of ten sixteen-inch guns each, the greatest practicable speed and a cruising radius of at least 10,000 miles are the general characteristics urged by the navy general board for the two new superdreadnaught congress has been asked to authorize this year.

It was learned that the board proposes that the ships should cost $18,000,000 each, displace 36,000 tons and have the highest speed attainable without sacrificing armament, armor or fuel capacity. It would have them represent a 25 per cent increase of gun power and endurance over any American battleship afloat or authorized and carry the biggest guns ever placed aboard a fighting ship by any power.

Indications at the navy department, however, are the adherence to the 32,000 ton ship of the California class finally will be decided upon by Secretary Daniels, although the estimates already before congress are based on the larger craft. Opinions differ among Mr. Daniels' advisers as to the advisability of increasing the size of battleships, because of many limitations of yard facilities and channel depth.

Other Guns Fourteen Inches.

Some officers believe also that the power of individual guns should not be increased at the expense of the total number of big guns carried. The California and similar ships will carry twelve fourteen-inch guns each.

It has been figured out by experts who favor the fourteen inch weapon for future ships that a twelve gun ship will average 75 per cent more hits than an eight gun vessel. The only advantage of the bigger gun, they say, is at ranges in excess of 15,000 yards.

Navy information as to the battle in the North sea, in which the German battle cruiser Bluecher was sunk, shows that only 1 per cent of hits was scored by either fleet. That fight was fought at from 15,000 to 20,000 yards, and the German ships did much damage to the British battle cruisers, it is said, although they mounted only eleven inch guns against the 13.5 inch weapons of the British.

The general board reached its conclusion on the necessity of bigger battleships after a study of events abroad. The reasons for raising the cruising radius from 8,000 miles, as in the California class, to 10,000 have not been discussed, but probably had to do with the great distances of the Pacific ocean.

The board did not recommend any specific speed to be reached, advising merely that the twenty-one knot gait of the present first line ships should be increased as much as possible "without reducing the armament, armor or fuel capacity."

OUR GUNS SET NEW MARK.

Atlantic Fleet Makes Highest Target Average In Its History.

Gunners of the Atlantic fleet made during 1915 the highest averages of the fleet's history for target practice in the open sea. This became known when the annual report of Admiral Fletcher, commanding the fleet, was sent to the senate in response to a resolution introduced by Senator Lodge. The report was ordered printed as a confidential document at the request of Senator Lodge.

In transmitting the report Secretary Daniels wrote a letter to the naval affairs committee explaining that certain conclusions reached by Admiral Fletcher of a purely military nature had been omitted, as it was believed their publication would be unwise. He outlined the progress made by the department toward rectifying conditions in the fleet, which Admiral Fletcher thought undesirable.

It was learned at the navy department that the admiral's report dwelt upon the shortage of officers and men on vessels of the fleet. Secretary Daniels' letter, which also was made a confidential document, is understood to have stated that this condition had already been overcome so far as it could be met [illegible] the present authorized limit of strength of personnel.

WANTS PARENTS FOR A DIME.

Orphan, Happy In Children's Home, Would Help Other Boys.

Charlie, a five-year-old ward of the children's bureau of the Associated Aid Societies of Harrisburg, Pa., was placed in a comfortable home at Dauphin mere than a month ago.

John Yates, secretary of the aid organization, called recently to see how Charlie was getting on. Blissful with the joys of Santa Claus, he chattered incessantly about his home and the kindness shown him. As Yates was about to go Charlie edged up to him and handed over 10 cents, his entire capital.

"I want you to buy a papa and mamma for another little boy," he lisped "You bought me nice ones."

A Galley o' Fun!

JUST A LITTLE FAVOR.

"So you're goin' back to New York to morrow, eh?" said Uncle Eb Cobb to the city boarder.

Yes; got to go. My playtime has come to an end. Got to go back and go to work."

"Yes, I reckon. Well, I wonder if you'd be willin' to do me a little favor when you git to New York."

'Certainly, certainly. Glad to oblige you. What can I do for you?

"Well, I got a nephew there named Jones. His mother was my sister. His name is Ed Jones an' he lives somewhere in New York, but I ain't got his address. Had it, but don't seem able to find it now. My wife an' me thought it would be nice to send Ed an' his wife a few things right from the farm, an' I was wonderin' if you would be willin' to take him a pair o' chickens an' a dozen ears o' corn an' a few of our fall pippins an' a dozen or two o' eggs an' a green tomater pie like he used to be so fond of when he was a boy here in the country. We'd like to send him a bottle o' maple sirup an' another ripe gooseberry jam an' a little jar o' sweet pickle an' a bottle o' ketchup such as I bet he can't buy there in the city, if it'd be convenient to carry them. His full name is Edward Everett Jones. I reckon you'd find him in the city directory. I'll fetch the things over to the hotel this evenin' in a carpetbag that was Ed's great-grandfather's, an' mebbe he would like to have it as well as what's in it. Much obliged to you for the favor o' takin' those things to Ed. I reckon he'll be some s'prised when he gits em. Mother thinks sh'd like to send Ed a little kitten in a box if it wouldn't be too much trouble for you to take it."

A RACIAL DISTINCTION.

THE CHAMPIONSHIP GAME.
(A la Thomas Hood.)

I remember, I remember,
The field whence I was borne,
The crowded stands, the shouting mob,
The raucous auto horn.
The side lines running down the field
Amain from goal to goal,
Were thronged with blanketed recruits
That would each play extol.

I remember, I remember,
The flags of varied hue,
The death-like stillness in the air
[illegible] the whistle blew;
And [illegible] youth and winsome maid—
The "Old Grad"—back again—
The favored minions of the "Press,"
The "fav'rite colors" men.

I remember, I remember,
The tossing of a coin,
The oval sailing high in air,—
A kick anent the groin;
A jab, a gouge, a jolt, a crunch,—
A whizzing, whirring roar,—
The plaudits of the multitude
A bucketful of gore.

I remember, I remember,
A fierce and bloody fray,—
The surgeon's corps, the ambulance
That carried me away;
A broken nose, a splintered arm,
Two eyes of darkest jet,
Some fractured ribs, a missing ear,—
The rest,—oh, I forget!

HIS REVENGE.

"I tell ye, the editor of the Weekly Plaindealer is a vindictive cuss!" said shrewd old Farmer Hornbeak, upon his return from an afternoon's stay in the county seat.

"What makes ye think so, Ezry?" asked his wife.

"Why, I heard, while I was in town, that he had hired the village band to serenade, night before last, a grass-widow who had horsewhipped him a short time before."

BISHOP DAVID H. GREER

At the Mass Meeting Held at Carnegie Hall, Said in Part:-

"Therefore, I say it is humanity's debt to the Jew and I appeal to that humanity of the American people, which is the boast, the legitimate boast, the only worth while boast and glory of the American people, which never fails to respond to any human needs, no matter how remote, as it is responding now so liberally and so freely. I appeal to that humanity, that American humanity, to pay promptly, with free and open hand, its debt, its human debt, to the Jewish people in this, their bitter hour, and so discharge its indebtedness to its own American human life.. In the name of the Christian Church, in the name of civilization, in the name of American humanity, I appeal in behalf of the Jew, who is suffering today—men, women and children—tonight on the other side of the seas."

The Plainfield Branch of the American Jewish Relief Committee appeal to you to assist this noble cause. "He who gives quickly gives doubly." Please send your contribution to HERMAN SCHWED, TREASURER, 107 EAST FRONT ST., PLAINFIELD, N. J.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

There will be an illustrated lecture at the High School tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock by Dr. Allen B. Walliams on "Taming Wild Animals." Dr. Williams has addressed the student body annually for the past eight or ten years, and last year had a number of snakes with him that he exhibited. He spoke on the same subject five years ago, and at that time brought with him Captain Jack Bonavita, who lost his arm while engaged at his profession of taming lions in a cage at Coney Island.

Announcement has been made that the annual midyear examinations will start next Thursday, a week from today. They will continue until the following Tuesday, and on each day there will be two examinations, from 8:30 until 10:15, and from 11:15 until 1. All English examinations will be taken on the first day.

Weekly dancing classes have been started at the High School, to be held in the auditorium every Friday afternoon. Although two instructors will be present, those who already know how to dance may join. A school dance will be held in the High School Auditorium Saturday night.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Jack Singer's Behman Show, with Lew Kelly heading the cast fresh from a laurel strewn tour which included an engagement of four months on Broadway at the Columbia Theatre there, is announced as the attraction at the Plainfield Theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday, with matinees daily. The program that is to be presented here will be identically the same as was offered during the long run on Broadway. It comprises a one-act opening burlesque entitled "The Dope's Legacy." Following this there is a revue consisting of impersonations of all of the famous stage stars of the day and the performance concludes with a one act travesty on Bronson Howard's far famed war drama, "Shenandoah." During the action of the first part there has been interpolated a series of the modern dances of the day, which are performed by Ameta Pynes and Bert McCarthy, and Martelle, who is pronounced to be the foremost of female impersonators, will give his famed impersonation of Julian Eltinge. In the passing revue of stars, James Tenbrooke will appear as Caruso, Eileen Sheridan will be seen as Nora Bayes, Harry Van will impersonate Charlie Chaplin, the famous film star, and, with the assistance of an octette of dancing ponies will offer a special Chaplin song with all of the chorus presenting the impressions of the comedian's work on the screen.

An entire new change of vaudeville comes to the Plainfield Theatre this afternoon to continue for the last half of the week. Five high class acts, selected from the leading circuits, together with another sensational Will Fox feature film, "Flash of Emerald," will form the program. The vaudeville numbers consist of Brunell and Company, presenting a novel musical offering; Nettie Calvin, comedienne; the Three Harvey Girls, in delightful songs and dances; the Deuzo Lazeette Brothers, in a sensational act.

Robert Warwick, who is well known to Plainfield audiences, portrays the leading role in "Flash of Emerald." Those who have seen the picture before say Mr. Warwick is at his best and depicts the hero in a manner that holds the spectator breathless. The play is in five parts every one of them teeming with action.

The customary "Country Store," which the Plainfield Theatre has made so popular and which is the city's biggest event in theatricals, is held every Friday night. Many gifts not presented before have been secured for tomorrow night and those who have never been at one before should make certain to occupy a seat in either the orchestra or balcony at either performance tomorrow night.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

A special added attraction at Proctor's tomorrow will be the presentation of the third episode of "The Red Circle," the popular new serial which everyone in this town is talking about. This episode is even more interesting than its predecessors. Ruth Roland and Frank Mayo do excellent work as usual, and the story is carried along without any "padding" whatsoever. The Triangle plays presented for the latter half of the week starting today, include "The Winged Idol," a lavishly produced dramatic feature in which Katherine Kaelred, the greatest "vampire actress" of the American stage, is intrusted with the leading part and is ably assisted by House Peters. The Keystone offering the latter half of the week gives Fred Mace, one of the greatest of screen comedians, plenty of opportunities to show his ability and versatility, and is a veritable uproar of fun and merriment. You can not stop laughing at this comedy, it is a scream. The vaudeville provided for these days is the most pretentious bill ever offered and includes as the headline attraction the famous Barney Williams and His Summer Girls, consisting of ten people, mostly girls, who sing and dance in a way that is as clever and well executed as many of the big Broadway successes. Mr. Williams is an excellent comedian and does not have to stoop to any coarse methods in order to amuse the spectators. Heins, Washburn and Gear are a trio of up-to-date entertainers who have that dash and vim about them that immediately wins favor with the audience, and that they will be greeted with numerous rounds of applause is a foregone conclusion. Cook and Evans offer a refined dancing and singing skit, interspersed with vivacious comedy, and the management will provide a fourth act that will measure well up to the standard of the preceding ones. The big toy matinee for the children will be held Saturday afternoon as usual.

Old-Fashioned Half-Yearly Sale of Hosiery & Underwear

---For Everybody

Our only regret is that the quantities are not larger. There will not be enough to go 'round. Dealers are kindly asked not to buy so that our regular customers may have full benefit of the opportunity.

We call it the "old-fashioned" sale, because it is made up of the Wanamaker values that New York has known for many years. Included are:

25,560 Pieces of Underwear
44,534 Pairs of Hose

Or, stated in terms of dollars and cents,

$28,259 from our regular stocks
$21,217 new special purchases
$49,476 to be sold for $32,850

This, you see, is a clean average of one-third less in price. Nothing is reduced less than a fourth. Some things are reduced a half.

Where things have been reduced before the NEW reduction for this sale is at least a fourth.

Something for Everybody

Men, women, children—everybody can be outfitted in this sale. Usually mothers buy for the whole family. But bachelors are not barred.

Of course, sizes and sets are broken, but there is YOUR size in something, and that something is sure to be a bargain if you want it. Better see it, at any rate. You may be sorry you missed it!

All weights in the underwear—weights now go according to the demands of the people, not of the seasons. Cotton, merino, wool and even a few of silk, including a special purchase of Swiss underwear for women, made by the manufacturer who makes practically all of our Swiss goods.

Stockings are also of all kinds—plain and fancy; cotton, lisle and silk.

The prices are published merely as a guide, to show that the sale offers something for everybody.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

VETERAN NEWSDEALER DIES AT HOSPITAL

William Spicer, Well Known Character, Succumbs to Long Illness.

William Spicer, aged 72, well known by both young and old of this vicinity, died at the Muhlenberg Hospital this morning. Mr. Spicer was taken to the hospital five days ago suffering from general debility.

The deceased was born in New York. He had been a resident of this vicinity for the past fifty years. During his early life he was engaged in doing odd jobs. For the past twenty or thirty years he obtained his livelihood by selling Sunday newspapers. He carried his papers in a soap box wagon.

Mr. Spicer was a quaint character. He always carried a green cotton umbrella no matter what the state of the weather. Up to four years ago he made his home in a hut located at the foot of the mountain in the "Bull Frog City" section of the borough. One time he was found in his hut in a helpless condition and was taken to the hospital. Since he left the institution at that time he had made his home on Somerset street opposite Fairview avenue. His only known survival is a brother, Charles Spicer, of New York city.

MEXICAN BANDITS ROB AN AMERICAN HOME

Washington, Jan. 20.—Six Mexican bandits robbed a house near Hachita, N. M., yesterday afternoon, according to a report to the War Department from General Funston today.

CANAL WILL NOT BE OPENED FEBRUARY 15

Washington, Jan. 20.—An official denial was made by Secretary of War Garrison today that the Panama Canal will be opened for traffic on February 15. A cablegram was sent to the Isthmus inquiring about the facts, and a reply was received that conditions are still to uncertain for the authorities to make any predictions as to the probable date when the canal will be reopeed.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE.

Discriminating folk have an opportunity today at the U. S. Astor Theatre to view one of the finest photo plays of the season, "Peer Gynt," starring the noted British comedian Cyril Maude, who appeared as "Peer" when the play was produced at Wallack's Theatre, New York, two years ago.

"Peer Gynt" is essentially a picture for thinkers. Its comedy is subtle. There is no knockabout stuff such as characterizes the Chaplin films and the Keystones. It is a play of the better class and one in which intelligent persons will find a great deal of amusement.

Lou Tellegen, for several years leading man for Sarah Bernhardt and now appearing on the stage in "The Ware Case," will be seen in the Lasky picture, "The Explorer," at the Astor Theatre, tomorrow and Saturday, in which the mast exciting episode is a battle in the heart of an African jungle between British prospectors and cannibals. Monday and Tuesday of next week, "The Man Who Could Not Beat God," will be shown. Maurice Costello will appear in the leading role.

GIVEN A SURPRISE.

Miss Granette Bandle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Bandle, of 405 Liberty street, was tendered a surprise party by her friends last evening. Games were played and refreshments were served.

WARREN CHAPEL MEETING.

The Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel will meet at 3 p. m. tomorrow. It is asked that all "Little Travelers" be returned.

Y. W. C. A.

There will be a rehearsal of the pageant flag drill in the association tonight at 8 o'clock. Miss Emma Ryno will have charge.

It Pays to Secure a Tenant Who Pays.

The uncertain sort of tenant is easy to find. He is always answering the call of the window sign of "To Let." He is easy to please. Even a rather high rental does not frighten him away.

But the Stay-and-Pay tenant is not so easy to secure. He is surer of what he wants. He does not take the first house, or apartment, or store that he finds. He watches and answers "To Let" Ads.

And to secure him for your tenant is a good day's work—a good week's work.

Property that is advertised adequately in the Plainfield Daily Press is rarely rented injudiciously.

Five high school boys by spreading limburger cheese on radiators closed the Short Hills (N. J.) school.

INTRODUCING REAL CAUSES OF PRESENT GRIP EPIDEMIC.

They Have Long Crime Records, and Even Their Names Sound Criminal.

Callers at the New York health department are introduced to the causes of the grippe epidemic as they have been reported by Dr. A. W. Williams, assistant director of the department's research laboratory. Let us mention their names: Mr. Pneumococcus and Mr. Influenza Bacillus, both of whom have figured much in the newspapers recently, and Mr. Micrococcus Catarrhalis, who is comparatively unknown.

Before the bacteriological laboratory made its report there had been a difference of opinion in the department as to the cause of the disease. Commissioner Emerson blamed Mr. Pneumococcus and Dr. C. F. Boldman, head of the department of public health education, blamed Mr. Influenza Bacillus. Micrococcus Catarrhalis was not even suspected.

It was announced that Dr. Williams' examination had shown that the influenza bacillus was present in about half the cases. The pneumococcus in nearly all the cases and the micrococcus catarrhalis in a great many cases. Hence, indictments were returned against all three. The micrococcus catarrhalis is similar to the meningitis germ, but otherwise different.

These objects are referred to by the health department physicians in their learned medical books as microbes, germs or bacilli, but when they speak of them in ordinary conversation they refer to them as just plain bugs. It was explained that these "bugs" are so small that from 7,500 to 50,000 of them can roost on a hair an inch long.

SLANG REVEALS DEFICIT.

Teacher Says "Loose Thinking and Loose Speech" Are Detrimental.

"Slang is a convincing proof of the mental deficiency of its users," declared Dr. Carl G. Doney, president of Willamette university, Salem, Ore., at the convention of the Oregon State Teachers' association in Medford. He deplored the increasing use of it and urged the teachers to use their influence to stamp out "loose thinking and loose speech in America."

He called attention to the "growing inaccuracy of speech among educated Americans."

"Language," he said, "is the man. We are merely what our powers of speech allow, for, no matter how lofty or profound our ideas, they only equal our ability to express them."

FLYING BOAT FOR JERSEY.

Gift to State Naval Militia From Inglis M. Uppercu.

A hydroaeroplane of the pontoon type is the latest substantial contribution to the national aeroplane fund, which was instituted six months ago by the Aero Club of America for the purpose of developing an aviation corps in the militia of all the states.

This gift was made to the naval reserve of New Jersey by Inglis M. Uppercu, a member of the Aero Club of America and president of the Aeromarine Plane and Motor company. The machine will be used for teaching officers of the New Jersey naval reserve to fly.

The national aeroplane fund has given $500 for the upkeep of the machine

216,274 REACH PORT IN 1915.

American Line Holds Palm For Bringing Largest Number.

According to the report issued the other day by W. C. Moore, the landing agent at Ellis Island, the New York immigration station, the total number of passengers of all classes arriving at the port of New York during 1915 on 1,435 trips was 216,274. Of the total there were 39,797 first cabin, 61,010 second and 95,467 third class passengers.

The greatest number was brought to New York by the American line steamers in fifty trips, which was 23,401 passengers from Liverpool.

Biggest Guns Used In 1886.

Some of the guns used in 1882 at the bombardment of Alexandria, Egypt, were of sixteen inch bore, an inch larger than the biggest British naval cannon of today, while four years later that navy had guns of 16.25 inches caliber.

THE WORLD CARES LITTLE FOR WHAT YOU SAY

It is what you do that counts—it is how much you "deliver" of what you promise that really matters.

Our success has not been built upon words, but upon deeds.

Today storekeeping is scientific as well as ethical; it eliminates the "get-the-best-of-it" spirit that peevailed twenty years ago—at least, it should.

We strive to give you better things for less money, not so much for your sake as for our own. That's frankness for you.

But it is nevertheless true—and the truth wins. We are meeting every day a great many strangers who are coming into our store for the first time to look around.

Perhaps you'd like to come.

PLAN TO INCREASE CHURCH EFFICIENCY

First Presbyterian Congregation Adopts Every-Member Canvass.

Ways and means of increasing the efficiency of the church from a financial point of view were discussed at a special meeting held at the First Presbyterian church last. After a brief prayer service the rest of the evening was devoted to a consideration of financial matters, during which the report of the special committee of which H. W. Herrman is chairman, was adopted.

This report includes an every member canvass and the adoption of the Duplex envelope system, whereby every member will be called upon to contribute regularly and systematically to the support of the church. E. M. Cave and E. P. Morris are the other two members of the special committee.

There will be a personal canvass of the church membership every year and instead of the annual reports there will be quarterly reports so that the members may know from time to time the exact financial condition of the church. This new plan of finance met with the unanimous approval of all members present last night and it is believed will work to far greater advantage. Grove P. Hinman presided at the meeting.

FUNERAL SERVICE OF MRS. A. G. DUNHAM HELD

The funeral of Mrs. Anne G. Dunham, widow of James V. Dunham, whose death occurred last Saturday was held yesterday afternoon from her late home on East Sixth street. Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, conducted the service during which he read the hymn, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus." There was a wealth of beautiful floral tributes from friends and relatives who were in attendance.

The burial took place in the Bound Brook cemetery, the following acting as pall bearers: N. R. Runyon, of Stelton; James R. Dunham, of Dunellen; George Dunham, of Plainfield; Adrian Vermeule, of New Brunswick; Harold and Russell Tomlinson, of Plainfield. The three former were nephews of Mrs. Dunham. Mr. Vermeule was a cousin and the Messrs Tomlinson are grandsons.

FORMER PLAINFIELDER DIES AT LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Word was received in this city yesterday of the death at Los Angeles California, on January 5, of Miss Elizabeth Taylor, who made her home in Plainfield for ten years up to last October. At that time she left for Los Angeles to reside with her brother, Malcolm Taylor, who has been on the Pacific coast for a number of years. While in this city, Miss Taylor resided with Mrs. E. J. Berrien, of 502 Madison avenue, and information regarding the death came to the latter by letter.

It was stated in the message that Miss Taylor died as the result of a severe attack of grip. This was followed by complications. While in Plainfield, Miss Taylor attended the Congregational church, where she was active in the work, and she had many friends through the city and borough to all of whom news of her demise is received with deep regret. The funeral and interment took place at Los Angeles.

EMPHASIZES IMPORTANCE OF "BIEDERWOLF REVIVAL"

The subject of the prayer meeting at the First M. E. church last night was the "Biederwolf Revival." In the absence of Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, the pastor, George M. Rittenhouse was in charge. The leader outlined the plans which are being made by various committees, and stated that a tabernacle to hold 6,000 people would be built.

It was further stated that the city would be districted and a religious census taken of every family in the city. Cottage prayer meetings will be held, prayer circles formed in the churches and young people's societies. The congregation was urged to lay aside other engagements so far as possible and to give much thought and prayer to this specific work. Volunteers for personal service will be sought both before and during the progress of the meetings. A number present expressed their interest in the movement, and said they were ready to co-operate in any way they could.

Watchung Homestead, of American Yeoman, of Bound Brook, will have class initiation tonight and a delegation from Queen City Homestead, of this city, will attend.

RELIEF FOR THE JEWS.

America is the hope of all those unfortunates who are suffering as a result of the horrible ravages of war, and as it responded nobly in the case of Belgium it will not turn a deaf ear to the appeal of the Jews of Russia, Galicia, Poland and other European countries and provinces. Plainfield's part in the great charity, if sharing life with another living creature can be called charity, has been set at a nominal amount by those who are in charge of the fund here, and it would be a sad indictment of the citizenship of this community if the fund were not subscribed. That this may be done it is but necessary for Plainfield people to understand the real situation of those for whom the relief is intended. A writer for the relief fund who recently visited Europe says:

"I have seen the Jewish victims of the war. Indeed, the Jewish people is THE tragic victim of the war. I have seen the nation of sorrows in mourning, plunged into the depths of grief.

"I have seen Jews who have gone insane from the horrors that have come upon the Jewish people in Europe. I saw one of these victims in Switzerland. He had come from Russia. Some of his relatives died on the battlefield. Others were tortured by program-makers—pillaged, violated, hanged. He has seen children tortured, women violated and old men put to death, and the Holy Scrolls desecrated. This has driven him insane. And his 'mania' expresses itself in a peculiar form. Wherever he goes he shouts about the terrors he has witnessed, about the cruelties against the Jewish people. All day long he sits in his little room and writes hysterical and heart-rending letters and appeals to the rulers and potentates of the nations, relating his experiences and begging them to make an end to the persecution and sufferings of the Jews.

"There are many such unfortunates in the Russian and Polish provinces where the Jews are starving today.

"When the whole story of Israel's tragedy in this war will be told the world will shudder."

MORE MILITARY NECESSITY.

The warring nations are resorting to "military necessity" more and more, and gradually they are losing the respect and even patriotism of their most loyal subjects abroad. Because of their inhuman tactics born of desperation they are ignoring all rights of neutrals and innocents and the struggle has become one of extermination. Germany threatens to resume her wholesale sinking of ocean liners without regard for the safety of women and children, and England is to establish a complete blockade of Germany and starve women and children. The London Daily Telegraph, in urging this blockade says, "Well meaning and honest persons learned in the law must be stopped from interfering with the work of our fleet, which, subject to every reasonable neutral interest, must be employed remorselessly, ruthlessly and relentlessly to crush Germany, the enemy of humanity." We on this side have reached the conclusion that "honest" persons have no place in the war at all.

It is with great pleasure that we announce that the services of James J McNamee have again been secured for the Daily Press. For four years, until November last, Mr. McNamee was one of the most valuable members of our staff. At that time he left of his own accord to go to Greenwich, Conn., to take the city editorship of the Greenwich Press, managed by Ralph L. Morrow, formerly of this newspaper. The Press missed Mr. McNamee, and we suspect that he missed the Press. He will resume his duties with us, at our urgent request, on February 1, becoming the advertising manager. With his return we shall establish a service for advertisers such as has never been equaled in this city.

The announcement that Elizabeth Gurley Flynn will appear on the platform in Paterson again tonight and defy the police and the lawmakers creates but small sensation in this day of "strict neutrality." The so-called violent speeches of Miss Flynn sound like the cooing words of a lover compared to some of the bitter denunciations of Wilson and his cabinet from those who are not in sympathy with his efforts to keep America at peace.

There is not much left upon which to base a prayer of thanks when an entire family is forced out into the biting cold of these winter nights by a blaze that destroys home and contents, but the prompt and courageous response for Chief Doane and his men to the call prevented the family, or many members of it, from dying in the fire, and that is worth being thankful for.

New Jersey Assemblymen are progressing with the years. We see the lower house now has a goodly number of automobile owners, having passed a resolution to investigate the high price of gasoline.

Having defeated Serbia, Montenegro and Belgium, Germany has but to take the Island of Corfu and she will only have Russia, England and France to fight.

New Haven murderer invited Union county detective who arrested him to come and see him hung, but didn't ask him to hurry.

Whether there is anything in a name or not Greece is slipping.

RECREATION NOTES

The colored people of the city will organize a choral society in the Washington School tonight. The club will be under the leadership of Rev. William Imees and Mr. Hobson.

The Dunbar Club will hold its regular dance in the Washington School tonight.

The Dramatic Club will meet tonight in the Washington School.

TO GIVE WHIST PARTY.

Mrs. B. Kline, of 926 West Front street, and Mrs. Victorson, of Dunellen, will give a whist next Sunday evening at the home of the former, for the benefit of the Hebrew Sheltering Home, on West Third street. This home provides a meal and shelter over night to every wayfarer who comes to this town and has enough money to go to the next place. Beside card playing, bowling will be a feature of the evening, and refreshments will be served.

Off Again, On Again
STRICKLAND W. GILLILAN

The Chestnut Burr

He stuck around; she could not shake
This barnacle from her.
She cried, in peeve: "For goodness' sake!
He's just a human burr!"

He sprung old jokes—old as the hills,
And listened for her laugh.
He simply gave that girl the chills,
This addlepated calf.

Considering that he stuck so tight
And sprung old gags on her,
We rather think she had been right
To call him "chestnut burr."

Finnigin Filosofy

It does not matter that Austria decided to recall Dr. Dumba, the student of history will have hard work recalling him, in a few years. Especially as very few American babies will be named after him.

The Canned Stuff Siege

At our house we're all unmanned.
We're feeling very meek and tame.
For ever since our cook was canned,
Our food's been pretty much the same.

Attar De Booze

When a man whose facial exhaust shows that he is using too rich a mixture—when such a gink, we say, approaches us and exhales fluently into our one and only countenance, we are peeved.

So is everybody else under similar circumstances.

If one is not himself a running mate of John Barleycorn, one naturally resents having one's features filled with this cheap edition after the copyright has expired.

It is as offensive as are onions or wintergreen to those who do not like either of those two powerful drugs.

If he doesn't like the real article, served under sanitary conditions, it is a leaden-pipe skinch he does not love it more when it is commingled with carbonic acid gas and other débris from the human system of a stranger, no matter how perfect a stranger he may be.

While if the breathee who faces the breather is addicted to the habit, the aggravation and tantalization are acute.

He thinks what a shame it is to waste on this man a lot of liquor from which he himself might have acquired a much-needed supply of "Dutch courage."

The abstainer hates the booze-breath-bearing-bore for flaunting offense, and the imbibing citizen hates him for the taunt.

So nobody loves him.

Ain't it the truth?

Sad Case

I'd known her for years nor suspected
That she ever was loose in the noodle,
Till one day, by chance, I detected
Her talking baby-talk to a poodle.

"But where did you get all this information that lent you such overwhelming enthusiasm for Bloharde?"

"He talked to me for an hour, yesterday."

Influence Of The Times

The bride went into the kitchen of their new home, and returned, shortly, carrying a rolling-pin and a flat-iron, which she lay beside her twin bed.

"What in the world are you doing?" asked the astonished groom. "You aren't afraid I'll beat you, are you?"

"I am not afraid of anything," answered his bride. "I have not the least suspicion that you will ever be anything but sweet and kind to me. But I am a firm advocate of preparedness."

Worry And Disease

THE PATIENT'S mental attitude is an important factor in the outcome of an illness.

Everybody knows how emotions influence the appetite, digestion, bowel and kidney functions; how fear blanches the face and relaxes the sphincter muscles and inhibits the circulation; and how faith, confidence, cheerfulness and optimism enable an invalid to put up a better fight for health.

The pallor, faintness, and other disturbances accompanying fear are probably caused by relaxation and dilatation of the splanchnic or abdominal blood-vessels, which are capable of holding one-third of all the blood in the body.

Worry is diluted fear, or a succession of fear states causing a loss of tone which becomes chronic. If one large dose of fear can cause the marked symptoms mentioned, a continual feeding of fear in small doses will obviously bring on actual disease in time. Somebody, indeed, has referred to the blues as "splanchnic neurasthenia." Worry is a direct factor of intestinal stasis, with resulting autointoxication and all that that implies.

Fear can paralyze the bowel or the bladder, as is well known. Worry can cause functional disturbances of both organs, as the student about to appear for his final examination has learned.

A buoyant, courageous, jovial visitor in the sick-room is good medicine for the patient. A pessimistic, gloomy tale-bearer, a person of the "old womanish," gossipy type is poison in the sick-room. The visitor who can breeze in, get the patient smiling or laughing and then go while the going is still regrettable is a valuable acquisition. Where there is gloom let smiles and gentle banter come. Doctors have the best of reasons for placing obstacles in the path of the crapehanger who calls to express doubts about the possible recovery of the patient or to detect signs of evil omen which the household as a whole would prefer to overlook.

Let this be borne in mind: No patient can be too sick to profit by an atmosphere of good cheer, and we are all of us susceptible to the dynamic influence of the emotions.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Bronchitis

1. Is bronchitis curable? 2. Is the climate of Chicago bad for it? 3. If change of climate is desirable, what climate would you recommend?

Answer—1. Bronchitis, in some cases, is curable. 2. So far as moisture and temperature are concerned, Chicago air may be as good as any other air, but Chicago air is more dusty than the air of a mountain resort, for instance. 3. In a general way an equable climate and a moderate elevation are desirable, but it all depends upon individual conditions.

Perspiration Under Arms

Is it dangerous to use a lotion to prevent perspiration under the arms? I know several girls who use one without apparent injury.

Answer—It is not dangerous to stop perspiration in the armpits, provided the agent employed does not irritate the skin.

MOVING PICTURES

ONE DAY EDISON caught sight of the camera which had hitherto had an easy time, but from that moment it was doomed. Edison harnessed it up with a set of gears and a revolving shutter and set it to work photographing speed, history, romance, humor and travel.

As soon as this was done moving pictures became enormously popular. The moving picture theatre immediately leaped into being and began to compete with the street car and the cigar store for the nickels of the populace. In consequence the limited supply of five-cent pieces became so overworked that a nickel which doesn't register at three tills each day is loafing on its job.

Moving pictures are making us acquainted with the world and familiar with the great men of all times. The scenery of Java, Sahara and Siberia are chestnuts to us, though we may never have traveled 100 miles on a railroad train. For five cents we can see King Solomon quarrel with fifty wives, in colors. We have seen so many battleships launched, kings crowned and buried, tigers shot, highwaymen treed, pugilists demolished and mountain peaks scaled, that most of us are extremely blasé and the trees on the streets would have to walk off arm in arm to get more than a yawn out of us. This the trees will never actually do, but they are likely to do anything on a moving picture film, which is a great assistance to Nature, sometimes.

In moving pictures we may also see ferocious Indians chasing the brave hero down a macadam road and barbecuing him against a trolley pole; likewise we may discover the temperamental cowboys capturing a horse-stealing Mexican and lynching him in the wilderness around the corner from a hat factory in New Jersey. This teaches us not to believe all the moving pictures tell us. It is, in fact, one of the most accomplished of liars. It is possible in a moving picture factory to make a magnificent and awe-inspiring volcano out of a pile of sand, a roman candle and a barrel of soapsuds.

Moving pictures have been taken of practically everything

More people are watching moving pictures to-day than are watching chorus girls, which is a sign that the work is getting better. The picture melodrama is not a brain strengthener but it is an improvement over the old "ten, twent', thirt'," variety because the audience cannot hear the remarks of the characters. Moving pictures have been taken of practically everything in the world, including the pyramids and Washington's monument, but no one has taken a moving picture of a baggageman accommodating a crowd of hurried passengers. A standing or even sitting picture can handle this subject perfectly.

Views Of The Press

No Lack Of Ambition

A PIECE IN THE PAPER last week reciting the life story of a successful man who had died recently told that he worked his way through school by washing dishes in a restaurant.

"You don't find young men striving that hard for an education these days," said a man who had just got through reading it.

"No, the young men of to-day are different. All they think about is having a good time," agreed his companion.

Is that true?

The Detroit News tells a story about a young man who entered this fall upon a six-year medical course in the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor. After paying his matriculation and registration fees he had only three cents left. He had no books, nothing to eat, no place to sleep and he was a stranger in the city. But he has not missed an hour at his studies. He found a job picking apples for five cents a bushel in an orchard seven miles away.

After school each day he walked out, picked apples by moonlight until midnight, slept in a barn, was up before dawn, picked apples again until it was time to start walking the seven miles to school again, and lived on one meal a day. When the apples were all picked he got a job working around the home of a rich man, attending the furnace, the garage and lawn, and sleeping over a stable. That young man will be a good physician.

The same paper says that last year the Y. M. C. A. provided jobs for 500 students at Ann Arbor, jobs meaning anything from carrying ashes out of a cellar to washing windows and raking lawns.

Young men to-day are just as ambitious and energetic as they ever were; and these days are just as good, and filled with as many opportunities as were the "Good old days of long ago," the passing of which so many persons are in the habit of bemoaning.—Kansas City Star.

A Real Estate Swindle

Q. When a man advertises a piece of real estate, stating so many acres, and some one is induced to purchase, by further explanations, and after the purchase is made the purchaser finds out that what the seller said was untrue and less acreage than what the advertisement stated, and the purchaser is dissatisfied, what can he do to get his money back that he has paid? Should suit be instituted to get the money?

A. Where the seller of real estate makes a material misrepresentation, with the intention of inducing the prospective buyer to act on such statements, and the buyer has an inferior means of knowing whether the representations are true or false—that is, if the buyer has not an equal opportunity and has the right, under the circumstances, to rely on what the seller says—then the buyer, if so induced to purchase, may institute a suit for the recovery of the amount paid. Under certain circumstances, acts on the part of the seller, such as you describe, may be punishable under the criminal laws. Probably it would be well for you to consult your lawyer and lay the facts, in their entirety, before him.

Mr. Branson will be glad to answer all questions. If your question is of general interest it will be answered through these columns; if not, it will be answered personally if stamped, addressed envelope is enclosed. Address all letters to E. R. Branson, care of this newspaper.

As He Pleased

A FELLOW NAMED DONKS was once tried at Yuba city for entering a miner's tent, and seizing a bag of gold dust valued at $84. The testimony showed that he had once been employed there, and knew exactly where the owner kept his dust; that, on the night specified, he cut a slit in the tent, reached in, took the bag, and then ran off.

The principal witness testified that he saw the hole cut, saw the man reach in, and heard him run away.

"I rushed after him at once," continued the witness, "but when I cotched him, I didn't find Bill's bag; but it was found afterwards where he had thrown it."

"How far did he get in when he took the dust?" inquired the counsel.

"Well, he was stoopin' over, about half in, I should say," replied the witness.

"May it please your Honor," interrupted counsel, "the indictment isn't sustained, and I shall demand an acquittal on direction of the court. The prisoner is on trial for entering a dwelling in the night-time, with intent to steal. The testimony is clear that he made an opening through which he protruded himself half way, and, stretching out his arms, committed the theft. But the indictment charges that he actually entered the tent or dwelling. Now, your Honor, can a man enter a house when only one-half of his body is in and the other half out?"

"I shall leave the whole matter to the jury. They must judge of the law and the fact as proved," replied the judge.

The jury brought in a verdict of "guilty" as to one-half of his body, from the waist up, and "not guilty" to the other half.

The judge sentenced the guilty party to two years' imprisonment, leaving it to the prisoner's option to have the not guilty half cut off or take it along with him.—Case and Comment.

Why

Before you do a thing—ask Why? A great deal of the Lost Motion of the world results from Headlong Action—going into a task without Cause—without some definite Purpose—without first finding out—Why.

Before you do a thing—ask Why? Let Why lead you on and save you Power. Simply answer with promptness its Silent questionings. Give unto Why a substantial reason for the fiber that is within you.

Before you do a thing—ask Why? Ask yourself: "Why should I do this thing? Why should I refuse to do it?" Put your actions to the Why test. Think of the wealth of happiness that the habitual use of Why can bring you!

Before you do a thing—ask Why? Make Why very personal. "Why do I squander so much Time? Why do I appreciate so little the chance to Live? Why do I use so small a fraction of my Brain Ability? Why do I not make more Friends? Why do I worry about things that Never Happen? Why do I scold when I should Cheer?" Why?

Before you do a thing—ask Why? Keep Why busy about your House. And at the Night-fall of each day gather into convention the Whys of each Thought and Act.

Before you do a thing—ask Why? Eliminate the regretful Why. Put yourself on the Stand hourly. Ask and Answer with fortitude and freedom—unafraid of Right conscientiously performed.

Learning To Farm

(Massachusetts has started a correspondence course in Agriculture.)

It is oh! to rise ere the wintry skies grow red with approaching day,
To wake the cows as they stand and drowse 'mid the frost-bespangled hay.
There's a subtle charm to the dear old farm when it's covered with gleaming snow;
There's a joyful thump to the frozen pump when the mercury's 10 below.
No throne for me, when at half past three I can sit on a milking stool
In delightful bliss—I have learned all this at a correspondence school.

To comb the locks of the placid ox as he solemnly chews his cud,
While the snowflakes fall on the stable wall with a dull and sickening thud;
To scatter the chaff for the new-weaned calf, while the rooster crows aloof;
By the light of a match or two to patch the leaks in the cowshed roof,
To teach the hen not to set again, to curry the shivering horse,
You can learn to do—and you ought to, too—in a correspondence course.

Just sit by the light of a fire at night
In a snug and sheltered nook,
With your pen and ink and a nice hot drink and a farm instruction book,
And comfortably learn to milk and churn and to shake the potatoes down,
And to harrow and reap till you fall asleep and dream you have moved to town.
The course you will find will improve your mind; it's utterly free from harm—
And, take it from me, it will always be the best way to learn to farm.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

What the Kind Lady Does For Children Of the Northland.

The Kind Lady Taught Them to Weave.

"IF Evelyn will stop rustling and if Jack won't blow his nose any oftener than necessary I will tell them a story of the northland," said daddy. So the children snuggled down, quiet as mice.

"Far up beyond where the United States ends lies a bleak, cold seashore called Labrador. All but three months of the year this land is frozen. When little children peek out of their windows at Jack Frost they see almost no sunshine, but cold gray mist clouds and a long white ice line that means the Atlantic ocean has closed its waters to their fathers' fishing boats. All this long winter few ships come, bringing food and wool and playthings, and hundreds of children can't run outdoors to build snow men and forts or snowball each other the way you children can."

"What do they do, daddy?" Jack wanted to know.

"Shut in the house, far from newspapers and books, kept by the cold from going to visit each other, unable to send their fishing boats through the ice banks, even the parents of these shut-in children got very sad and dull. They did not have enough interesting things to think and do, you see. Well, this dreary state of living went on years and years till one day about ten years ago a very kind lady went up to Labrador with her kind mind all made up to teach these frozen-in people how to braid mats and make rugs and sew, very much the way you children are taught in the kindergarten."

"Oh, tell us the lady, daddy?" cried both children.

"Her name is Miss Jessie Luther," said daddy, "and she worked and worked to help these cold folks, till now they love her very dearly. All through the short summer she works, helping them dig roots and chop barks to dye wool pretty colors for the blankets and rugs. Then she works helping them get looms to weave these rugs on. Then she works some more, teaching rather stiff fingers how to make beautiful garments of the skins of seals the children's fathers catch in the bays. Then she works training two blind men how to make lace and baskets, which she sells for them. For years the Labrador fathers had trapped rabbits to feed their families, but they always threw away the skins. So this kind lady taught them how to dry the skins, cut them in strips and weave them into beautiful wool rugs to wrap the little Eskimo babes in. So now in Labrador it's just like—

Bye, Baby Bunting.
Daddy's gone a-hunting
To get a little rabbit skin
To wrap the Baby Bunting in.

Marrying for Money

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Nell and Olive Discuss the Widower's Prospective Marriage.

"I'm to have a new neighbor," said Nell Morton. She had dropped in to see how her friend's new baby was geting along.

"Is that so? Who is it?" asked Olive Ellson.

"Do you know the new teacher who came to town last year?"

Olive thought a minute. "The proud, stylish-looking girl?"

"Yes, Ortrude Blakely. She is going to marry Mr. Townsend."

"You mean Dudley Townsend, don't you?" asked her friend.

"No, I mean the widower. Dudley is as much too young for her as his father is too old. She is older than I am." Nell went to the window to see if there was any sign of her small son. He had stopped in the yard to play with the cat.

"Dear me, how alarmingly old she must be. You are approaching thirty," laughed her friend.

"Well, Dudley Townsend is not much over twenty-one." Nell sat down, ready to go on with her story.

"They are building right next to us."

"Indeed! How did you learn about the engagement?"

"Excuse me; I think I hear the baby." Olive left the room, and soon returned with the child in her arms. "Go on with the story," she laughed, as she sat down.

"Yesterday the doorbell rang, and on answering it I found Miss Blakely standing on the porch. I had met her I suppose at some social, but I had forgotten her. She excused herself for intruding, and asked if she might see the arrangement of the house. 'You know I am to be your next door neighbor,' she added; 'and when Mr. Townsend and I are married we want to go right in the new home, so I am trying to decide just how I want it. I have always liked your house so much that I thought you might not object to my looking it over to get ideas'. Of course I showed her through. She is a very handsome woman. I do not wonder that Mr. Townsend was attracted to her."

"I hope she is tactful. She is undertaking a difficult task. Most grown children resent having a young woman introduced into the family as mother," said Olive.

"From the tilt of her head I should not think it would keep her awake worrying about what they thought," laughed Nell.

"I hope we shall like her. So far the neighborhood has been a delight. If people in the cities knew what they missed by having no neighbors they would never be contented again till they discovered a way of finding some."

"Now, Miss Marjory," she continued, addressing the baby, "you are going to be put down, and if you cry, why, you must cry it out. You are all comfortable and I simply will not spoil you."

"You miss a lot of pleasure in not holding your baby," remarked Nell, rising.

"Possibly, but I am sure I shall miss a lot of discomfort by not allowing her to become a little despot," answered Olive.

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME--

"Trade-marked" articles—things sold by NAME or DISTINGUISHING and IDENTIFYING BRAND—must be kept at the highest standard of quality. The VALUE must never vary. For a maker to "cheapen" such an article would be to throw away the prestige he had fought so hard, and advertised so effectinvely, to gain.

Our Lady of Pity.

Mother divine! yea, even now as then
Save us with pity from a world of men;
For, now as then, with war and weeping wild,
Woman has still the whole sad world for child.

(Richard Le Gallienne in Delineator.)

Marriage Sanctity.

Now that the women of Europe, especially the young girls, are being called upon to sacrifice themselves for the re-population of Europe, too much stress cannot be laid upon the responsibility of mothers to teach, and to live, marriage sanctity. "Two wrongs cannot make a right." Nor will sex-hatred help. That means retrogression not progression. Man and woman are equipotential but not equivalent. The paternal and the material are essential in the home life for the proper development of a nation.

Growing.

The State Congress of Mothers has grown to such an extent that the smaller cities can no longer accommodate the delegates attending the conventions. It will be necessary hereafter to hold the annual convention in the largest cities of the State.

Open-air Class Room.

If you are interested in an open-air class room in the new school to be built in the Netherwood section of Plainfield you should begin an agitation for it at once as public opinion is essential to the Board of Education to introduce such an innovation.

If you are not in favor of such a room, why are you not? Do you know the advantages to be gained by such a room? Talk about it. Get still another point of view. It is a great saving in coal and ventilation, two big items in the expense account.

Food.

Modern investigation has shown that no article of food is good for a person if he dislikes it. If a child has practically a fixed notion that he does not like eggs, they will do him no good, and may do him harm. Only serious results can follow from coercing a child into eating food that he dislikes.

Punctuality and Attendance.

One of the most trying things the public school has to face today is the indifference to punctuality and attendance at school. Our associations are furnishing talks on these subjects, while it is a deplorable fact that these same meetings are beginning from five to fifteen minutes later than they are supposed to and are closing fifteen minutes to an hour later than they ought to. Is it fair to the teacher who has been in the school room all day to expect her to stay two hours after school when the meeting is only supposed to last an hour? The time is near surely when supervisors will consider the parent-teacher association of sufficient importance to dismiss the school a half hour earlier. Most of the associations have about as many evening meetings as afternoon meetings. The teachers would miss not over two hours a year of class room work with the children. How many extra hours does she give to the children during the year? I should be wronging every teacher in the country to say two hours. The prospect to the children of a half hour holiday four times a year would cause an increase in attendance for every child would want his mother to help get the little play spell. Many a mother sits with her eye on the clock as it nears five. There are visions in her mind of a hungry family needing a meal soon, but the meetings are interesting and helpful and she lingers on. One president in Kenosha has solved the problem of tardy opening and closing. She has announced that the meeting will begin at 4:10 if only herself and secretary are present. She informs her speaker that the program closes at 5:10. Her speakers never prolong their talks. Those mothers who can, visit over the tea-cups; those who must go depart immediately. There is a business-like attitude which we all enjoy.

WILL ELECT A DELEGATE

First Team's Game Decided by Three Points, 24 to 21.

SCRUBS' SCORE 24 TO 6

Dunham and Davies Play Valiantly—McDowell's Showing In Second Team Game Earns His Place on the School Combination.

Westfield High School was hit twice in the same place yesterday afternoon, when both the first and second basketball teams from the Mt. Araret institution were defeated by the fast-going Plainfield High School basketeers on the Ninth street court. The game between the regular teams was a sizzler, and the result was in doubt until the last minute, but, repeating their performance at Cranford, the second string men of the Red and Blue squad had an easy time securing the verdict. The big game ended 24 to 21, and the seconds' contest terminated with the figures reading 24 to 6.

In the first teams' game, Dunham started the Plainfield scoring by a pretty field goal. All through the half the lead see-sawed back and forth. The locals were outshot by two goals, but the foul shooting of Dunham kept the score up, and the half ended with honors even at 13 points apiece.

Led by Stevens, the Westfield crew started with a rush at the beginning of the second period, and had a lead of six points under their belt before Plainfield thought about doing something. With but a few minutes to play, however, McDowell, who replaced Coudray, led off with a basket, and Whelan, Linke and Dunham followed up with one each, while fouls gave Dunham a chance to contribute three more counters before the call of time.

Whelan and Peacock kept up their brand of guarding that has marked the last ten games, and seldom gave an opposing forward a clear shot, while "Bill" also broke in the scoring column for the first time this season. Besides making four baskets, Dunham kept up his excellent foul shooting and dropped the ball in eight times. Davies was a world of strength to the Mt. Araret quinet, and played a good game.

The game between the two second teams was a walk-over for the locals, and it was not until the third string men were put in for the last few minutes that Westfield got a smell of what resembled a score.

McDowell did excellent work during first half, and Coach Patch took him out to shove him in at forward or the first team for the second half. Noonan was a little off in his shooting, but Kyle was as good as usual.

HARRY DE HART BREAKS A LEG PLAYING BASKETBALL

An x-ray examination last night disclosed the fact that Harry De Hart sustained a broken leg when he collided with the side wall in a basketball game at Hope Chapel, Saturday night. It was thought at first that a sprained ankle was the extent of De Hart's injuries. The young man is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry De Hart, of South Second street, and is employed at the Spicer plant in South Plainfield.

FITZGERALD AND BRADY OUT OF KNIGHTS' POOL TOURNEY

Eddie Fitzgerald and Bernard M. Brady were eliminated from the two-man rotation pocket billiard tournament at the Columbus Club, last night, by John T. Caulfield and Tom McInerney. The latter lost the first game, but won the next three.

LEAL'S GAME NOT PLAYED.

The Leal's School-Roselle High School basketball game scheduled for yesterday was postponed on account of two members of the Plainfield team being unable to play.

Rolling the match postponed from December 6, the Newark Eagles, Tuesday night strengthened their hold on first place by winning three games at Elizabeth.

Last year's champions rolled in consistent style, annexing totals of 886, 905 and 907, while the homesters, who were minus the services of Dave Maloney and Justus Bock, turned in 875, 870 and 789.

The going was close in the first two games, the homesters dropping the initial game by eleven sticks and the next by thirty-five pins.

Greiling and Stander did some splendid pinning for the Newarkers, the former corraling 156, 202 and 216, while the latter succeeded in registering scores of 181, 187 and 172. Captain Ernie Bleicker, who appeared at anchor for the Elizabeths, shot well and got in scores of 193, 180 and 170. After shooting 210 and 177, Henny Keller dropped to 117 in the final game. RECREATIONS PLAY ON KNIGHTS' COURT

Game Tonight Will Go Long Ways Towards Settling City Championship.

What should be the hardest fought basketball battle of the season will take place tonight on the Columbus Hall court, between the Plainfield Recreation Five and the Knights of Columbus team. The other usual Thursday night attractions—a girls game, and informal dancing—will not be omitted.

The scrap between the Ricketts and Caulfield forces gives every indication of being a tooth and nail battle. The rival quintets are two of the strongest—if not the two strongest—contenders for the local court championship, and the game is billed as one of a series for the city title.

The Knights have disposed of every local opponent they have encountered this winter, including the Tabs and the Plainfield A. A. The Recreations bowed to the now disbanded Y. M. C. A. bunch, but in some of their games have exhibited considerable ability, and on any other court would reign favorites over their opponents of this evening.

The Recreation Five, unlike the Columbus Club aggregation, is not a strictly Plainfield outfit, some of the players being from Westfield. The team will have Jack Ricketts, former P. H. S. player, and Dutch Allegar, of Westfield, in the forwards. Marston, formerly of the Scotch Plains Parish House five, and Poole, another Westfielder, for the pivot position; and Bergen Naylor, old Y. M. C. A. defender, and Punk Smith, of Westfield, in the guards.

The Knights will use Billy Coyle and George Linke for forwards; Dan McAfee, center; Al Bryniarski, Joe Carty and Jim Kyle, guards.

Al Squires will furnish the music for the dancing.

OFFER WILLARD $60,000.

A guarantee of $60,000 for two fights in Madison Square Garden was yesterday offered Jess Willard. Frank Moran was offered $30,000 for two bouts.

Jackson and Mills Keep Putting in Baskets Against Freshmen of P. H. S.

The Sophomers registered a fairly easy victory over the Freshmen yesterday afternoon in the third game of the Interclass Basketball League now in progress in the Plainfield High School. The score was 31 to 21. The second-year men started off in the lead right from the start and were never headed.

Jackson and Mills were the demon shooters for the Sophs, while Polly Snyder did some pretty foul shooting. Butler made the majority of the baskets for the Freshies.

BATTIN QUINTETS WIN AT N. P. H. S.

Borough School Team Loses After Plucky Uphill Fight, 26 to 21.

SECONDS' GAME CLOSE

Fast, Well Played Contest Ends 27 to 24—First Team, Far Behind in First Half, Nearly Overcomes Big Lead.

After an uphill fight, North Plainfield High School was defeated by Battin High School yesterday afternoon, in Saengerbund Hall, 27 to 21. The boroughites played a great game in the last half, and were gaining point after point on their rivals when time expired.

The locals, playing indifferently, were 13 points in the rear at the conclusion of the first period, the score being 16-3. A complete rejuvenation was noticeable in the second period, and the gap was soon lessened between the two contingents, the boroughites outscoring their rivals, 18 to 11.

The North Plainfield team has shown a marked improvement since the last contest with this school. The locals were downtrodden on their opponents' court by the largest score of the season, 61-18.

The scoring of N. P. H. S. yesterday was divided chiefly between the forwards, while Potter and Schneider led the attack of the visitors.

Battin H. S. claimed a double victory over North Plainfield H. S. yesterday afternoon, both the first and second teams being victorious. The Elizabeth scrub team conquered their rivals by the count of 27 to 24. The contest was close and fast, being featured by some pretty shooting.

The shooting of Husband, for Battin H. S., was a decided advantage for that team, the versatile forward making six baskets, while Force was a big asset to N. P. H. S. with five baskets.

OLD-TIME COLD CURE—DRINK TEA!

Get a small package of Hamburger Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Thee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time. It loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also is the most effective way to break a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.—Adv.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.—Adv.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids.

Kidney and bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again. Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.—Adv.

$10,000 BLAZE AT WARRENVILLE

Spectacular Fire Destroys the Home of Frank Carrar on Mountain Boulevard.

MONEY IS BURNED

$150 in Cash Belonging to Daughter, Representing Savings, Destroyed—Plainfield Department Aids in Work.

One of the most spectacular fires that has occurred in this vicinity in several years completely destroyed the home of Frank Carrar, located on Mountain boulevard, between Watchung and Warrenville, shortly before 8 o'clock last night. The sky for miles around was brilliantly illuminated and following a call for help to the Plainfield fire department, hundreds of persons from this city hurried to the scene, crowding the thoroughfares leading to the mountain with scores of automobiles and other vehicles. Several surrounding buildings were barely saved, but the loss to the Carrar family is placed at ten thousand dollars, partially covered by insurance. Included in this amount is $150 in cash, belonging to Mr. Carrar's daughter, Sophie, and a quantity of jewelry, which was in a room where the fire first broke out and could not be reached.

The Carrar family had just completed supper when Leon Carrar, a son, went downstairs to fix the furnace for the night. He immediately came runing back announcing that a fire was in progress in the cellar and a telephone call was sent to the Watchung fire department. The chemical engine of the latter was quickly on the scene and although the firemen had difficulty at first in locating the blaze they soon had it under control. In a few more minutes the building would have been saved, when firemen and volunteers were knocked in every direction by a terrific explosion which occurred in the cellar. This was due to the expansion of an acetylene gas tank which had only been refilled to its capacity yesterday morning. Flames seemed to burst from every part of the house and it was quickly realized that the Watchung chemicals and garden hose brought to use were of no avail. The Plainfield department was called on the telephone from Pedefious' Hotel, which is located almost opposite the Carrar place. The party giving the message said the fire was at Pedefious' and this report was current about town for several hours afterward. Chief T. O. Doane ordered out the Nott pumping engine, accompanying the vehicle in his own machine. The apparatus carried a full crew which did excellent work, saving several outbuildings, among them a garage, mushroom houses and also the handsome bungalows of Paul Kleiber and Henry Vosseler, which were within the danger zone. Water was secured from a pond located on the Carrar place, the big Nott throwing six hundred gallons a minute on the flaming house. The run to the scene was made in exactly twelve minutes, but Chief Doane realized as soon as he arrived that the residence was beyond saving, devoting the energies of his men to keeping the blaze away from the buildings nearby. The Watchung department has been highly commended for the heroic fight it put up.

The Carrar family is unable to give an explanation as to what caused the fire, but there is a possibility that it might have originated about the furnace or in a defective flue. The house was a large three story affair of an old-fashioned type. The frame work was of heavy oaken beams, which burned quickly despite their thickness and glowed for hours after the structure had been reduced to a heap of embers. When the flames were first discovered the family attempted to save the furniture on the lower floors and managed to get out the contents of two rooms with the help of volunteers from Pedefious' hotel, Arthur Stout, Paul Kleiber, George Winans and other immediate neighbors. The money belonging to Mr. Carrar's daughter represented her savings from her wages at the Berkelden Mills on Washington avenue, this city, where she is employed. It was in a front room with a diamond stickpin belonging to her brother, Lawrence, and a quantity of other jewelry, none of which could be secured. The daughter's husband is in Italy, having been called to the colors as a reservist when war was declared on Austria.

The Carrar place is one of the best known on Mountain boulevard, or as it is better known, the Warrenville road. Mr. Carrar has been engaged in mushroom growing and the conduct of a bakery, but gave up the latter a short time ago to enter the contracting business, which he managed in conjunction with the production of mushrooms. The family saved only the clothing they wore and for the present are being taken care of by neighbors and at Pedefious' Hotel.

STANBERY WILL IS FILED FOR PROBATE

Wife Not Mentioned in Document as it Was Written in July, 1915.

The will of the late William Field Stanbery, who died at his home on East Second street, last month, was filed for probate in Elizabeth this morning by Attorney Francis J. Blatz. The value of the Stanbery estate is not set out in the will, and it has been estimated by those interested at a sum all the way from $10,000 to $40,000.

Mrs. May Day Stanbery, his bride of two weeks, is not mentioned in the will, it having been written sometime before the marriage ceremony. Her attorney, former Judge William A. Coddington, filed a caveat in which she demanded her share of the estate.

Miss Bessie Field, an aunt, was left a greater part of the property, all of which is personal. Mrs. Field lives on East Front street in Plainfield. Roy Day, a friend, was also left a small sum. The will was written last July.

BADER & CO. PLEAD GUILTY TO CHARGE

Sewer Contractors Surprise Somerset Co. Court by Admitting Culpability.

Somerville, Jan. 21.—After proceeding for half an hour this morning, the third day in the trial of Edward L. Bader, John Ryan and John Cunningham, the contractors installing the Plainfield, North Plainfield and Dunellen joint sewer beds on the Darling farm, came to an abrupt termination. A distinct surprise was occasioned when the lawyers for the defendants, former Judge Clarence E. Case, of Somerville, and former Judge Emerson L. Richards, of Atlantic City, suddenly announced their their clients wished to withdraw their plea of not guilty and enter one of guilty. The presiding judge, Daniel H. Beekman, gave his consent and fixed sentence for Friday, January 28. The men in the meantime will be released on the bonds given at the time of arrest.

The trial of the three men followed an indictment found by the Somerset County Grand Jury on complaints made by George F. Updike and other residents of Bound Brook. The contractors had leased the quarry of the Bound Brook Crushed Stone Company, north of Bound Brook, for an indefinite period for $150 a month the idea being to secure crushed stone for the proposed sewer beds. Because of the manner in which the blasting at the quarry was conducted, the nearby residents brought the matter to the attention of the Somerset county authorities, charging that the contractors maintained a nuisance. Their rest and quietude, they said, was rudely disturbed and their lives and property placed in jeopardy.

Prosecutor Azariah N. Beekman took the matter up and indictments were secured on evidence furnished by County Detective George Totten who worked up a very thorough case. A large number of witnesses were examined Wednesday and Thursday and nineteen more were awaiting to be called when the proceedings came to an end. All of the residents were of the wealthy class residing north of Bound Brook, most of them being New York business men, and considerable credit is given Detective Totten for his success in getting them to voluntarily appear before the court. Messrs. Bader, Ryan and Cunningham are all residents of Philadelphia. Work on the sewer beds has been stopped temporarily because of the winter weather, but is to be resumed as soon as the weather moderates.

MAX MUNGER DIES AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

Promising Young Man Passes Away at His Home on West Seventh Street Today.

Max Munger, of West Seventh street, died this morning after an illness of a month with typhoid fever, which was contracted while he was in England on a business trip. He returned on one of the Holland-American Liners, and his condition was quite serious when he reached New York. During the past few days he failed rapidly.

Mr. Munger was the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Raymond Munger, of Washington avenue, the borough. He was born here and spent his early boyhood in public and private schools. SUFFS LAUNCH A NEW CAMPAIGN

"Are We Downhearted? No!" Is to Be the Slogan of Workers.

MRS. FEICKERT LEADS

Analyzes Recent Election and Tells of Work That Must Be Done If Women Are to Get Vote in State of New Jersey.

"Are we downhearted? No!" Stealing the slogan of the maimed and wounded soldiers of Europe retiring from battlefields on which they have met temporary defeat, New Jersey suffragists are going back into the battle for votes in this State with renewed energy, determination and enthusiasm, and also with a great deal of practical knowledge of politics.

Women from all parts of the State met in Elizabeth yesterday for an analysis of the recent election and a discussion of the new campaign. None were lost from the ranks because of defeat and thousands were added, they found, and they are already hopeful of success when the equal suffrage amendment is again put before voters of the State.

Mrs. E. F. Feickert, of Plainfield, president, of the New Jersey Equal Suffrage League, started the campaign with the following stirring address:

"The soldiers of Europe, retiring from the battlefields, many of them maimed and crippled, have a slogan which we may well use on this occasion; it is 'Are We Downhearted? No!' We have been defeated, but like the European armies, we have executed a masterly retreat, with no losses in our ranks. Our wounded have recovered, not one of our soldiers has been crippled for life or in-

Word of the capture of Villa was received from several sources yesterday and elaborate arrangements were being made for his execution. It was said that he would be shot in the race track at Jaurez where all who desired might witness his end. Pablo Lopez, a Villa leader, and reputed to have been in charge of the band that killed 17 Americans a short time ago, is also believed to have been captured, with seventeen of his men, and all of them shot.

LIED TO JUDGE GETS SIXTY DAYS

Negro Promised to Be Good And Was Back the Next Day.

William Oliver, colored, found what it meant to break a promise to Judge De Meza this morning. No later than yesterday morning, William had solemnly given his word to the judge that he would behave himself and leave town and he was not only still in Plainfield this morning, but he was again in police court—in fact he was the full criminal docket. The negro was originally arrested for being drunk and disorderly. He started a fight at his boarding house on West Third street, in the course of which he struck a fellow boarder in the head with a beer bottle. After being released by Judge De Meza yesterday morning on his promise to leave Plainfield at once and to stay sober and peaceful wherever he went, he went back to the house and last night caused another fight. He was arrested and when tried in police court this morning was given sixty days in the county jail. He will be taken to Elizabeth this afternoon.

WILL GIVE AID TO POLISH SUFFERERS

Flag Day Will Be Observed Here Tomorrow to Raise Funds.

According to reports from the Eastern Theatre of the European war, the Polish nation is doomed to extinction and the unfortunate people are destined to die just when they hoped to regain their liberty. History shows that their love of personal liberty and greediness of their neighbors, cost them their country, which was partitioned about 120 years ago by Russia, Germany and Austria—by Austria, whose capital, Vienna, was saved from the Turkish yoke by Polish knights in the seventeenth century.

Legions have been formed. Notwithstanding the heavy drafts to the regular armies, men of all ages have swarmed under standards which are to create a new Polish kingdom. Poles all over the world, including the United States, have been enlisting to fight for their beloved country.

But another foe has appeared. The whole of Poland, desolated by contesting armies, represents the country of death and ruin. It is a big cemetery. Not only a cemetery of warriors; it is the cemetery of children, who, fed for months on water with chalk, died of starvation; it is the cemetery of women and infirm, who, fed on bark and grass, exposed to cold winter, died the terrible death.

All over the world, Plainfield included, collections are being made for the unfortunate and Flag Day will be observed here tomorrow to help the cause. A local committee, comprising Police Chief P. S. Kiely, City Judge W. G. De Meza, Leslie R. Fort, William F. Arnold, B. J. Dukszta and others, guarantee that the money received will be used for the purpose intended. Donations and checks should be sent to the City National Bank, of this city.

TURK RETREAT BECOMES ROUT

Relief Expedition Has Won Way to Kut-El-Amara, Says Report.

RUSSIANS ARE WINNING

They Report Victories in Caucasus—Siege of Townshend's 40,000 Men in Mesopotamia Was Most Desperate of War.

Rome, Jan. 21.—Turkish forces in the Caucasus and Mesopotamia are reported to be in headlong flight before the Russian and British forces. The Turks are said to be without ammunition and at some points their retreat has become a rout.

The only Turkish force of importance in Mesopotamia is that which has beseiged a British army of 40,000 men under Gen. Townshend at Kut El Amara for the past two weeks. Last reports from the British garrison were that they were suffering from the lack of food and water and were on the verge of complete and unconditional surrender or extermination in desperate sorties. An expeditionary force was being rushed to the relief of the beseiged, and two days ago was reported as having engaged the Turks seven miles from Kut El Amara. The above despatch from Rome indicates that it has been successful and that the 40,000 men are saved. This siege has been the most spectacular of the entire war. Reports on movements in Mesopotamia that come through Rome are based on unofficial stories and rumors and are not given much credence, however, unless borne out by other circumstances.

Steamer Lutherland Sunk.

London, Jan. 21.—The British steamer Sutherland has been sunk in the Mediterranean Sea, presumably by a submarine. Her crew was picked up and landed at Malta.

Germans Lost 300,000

Paris, Jan. 21.—The Journal, quoting Swiss military experts, states that the Germans lost 300,000 men in the battle in Champagne last September.

Another Big Swiss Loan.

A despatch from Berne says that the Swiss government is preparing to issue a fourth loan of 100,000,000 francs. It will offer for subscription bonds bearing 4½ per cent. interest. The proceeds will be used to cover the cost of the continued mobilization of the army.

ACTIVITIES OF THE WEST END COMMUNITY CENTER

The residents of the West End are fast becoming acquainted with the aims and purposes of the Community Center Association and are cooperating with the members in making the best use of the spacious and beautiful rooms in the Washington School. Several groups have requested the use of a room for meetings once a week where they may carry on their own activities. A number of well known singers have gotten together and are inviting their friends to join with them in a chorus. They will meet each Monday evening at the school for rehearsal, when part songs, chorals and some of the semi-popular music will be taken up. Every one in the West End who sings because he loves to sing should endeavor to become a member.

A private dancing class where the modern dances wild be taught to benedicts and matrons as well as the young pepole is to be organized on Monday evening by another group. Any one wishing to inquire about this class may telephone Wm. J. Boyd, of West Sixth street. A class in roller skating is to be announced next week. Any citizen of the West End wishing to aid the association is invited to attend the next business meeting to be held in the school February 7. Plans will then be presented for improving the equipment of the building to meet the needs of the whole community.

ENGINE CRACKED CYLINDER.

While the Nott engine, of the Plainfield fire department, was working at the Carrar fire, near Warrenville, last night, it was discovered that one of the cylinders in the motor had become cracked. Pumping was immediately ordered stopped and the vehicle was brought back to Plainfield under its own power. The damaged cylinder was removed at once and early this morning was taken to Newark, where it is being welded. It is thought the engine will be back in service not later than 6 o'clock tonight.

It Pays to Secure a Tenant Who Pays.

The uncertain sort of tenant is easy to find. He is always answering the call of the window sign of "To Let." He is easy to please. Even a rather high rental does not frighten him away.

But the Stay-and-Pay tenant is not so easy to secure. He is surer of what he wants. He does not take the first house, or apartment, or store that he finds. He watches and answers "To Let" Ads.

And to secure him for your tenant is a good day's work—a good week's work.

Property that is advertised adequately in the Plainfield Daily Press is rarely rented injudiciously.

BOUND BROOK Y. M. A. LICKS ST. JOES HERE

North Plainfield Churchboys Accept Defeat From Bigger, Better Team.

Encountering strong opposition, the St. Joseph's Boys' Club was defeated last evening in Saengerbund Hall by the Y. M. A., of Bound Brook, the score being 30-12. The winners far outweighed the local quintet and experienced little difficulty in overcoming the efforts of the home team.

The local team was unable to present its strongest lineup, several of the regulars being absent. La Porte figured in most of the shooting, tallying four field goals, while O'Connor and Pasch were responsible for the other four points. The shooting of Hall, Allner and E. Mathews soon put their team in the lead.

The T. A. B. S. second team was given a severe drubbing last evening in Saengerbund Hall, the St. Joseph's seconds being their conquerors, 33 to 9. The Plainfield club was completely outclassed, and was left trailing far behind their opponents. The winners, although lighter, displayed some speedy teamwork and shooting. L. EAST ORANGE H. S. WATER MEN AT P. H. S. TOMORROW

The swimming team of Plainfield High School will enter its first meet Saturday afternoon, when it takes the water with East Orange High in the local school pool, without the services of Lorenzo Brower, captain, and the best man on the team. Scholarship deficiencies will prohibit his taking part. As it is the first meet for both schools, it will be a toss-up as to the winner, but with Brower out, Plainfield will lose several points anyway.

In all there will be five different events, the 25-yard, 50-yard and 100-yard swims, relay and the dives. East Orange will enter five men in the first event, Walker Fortescue, Thomas, Johnson and Pierce, while none of the Red and Blue men have been entered as yet. The same five East Orange men will be in the 50-yard event, and Snyder and Johnson will be two of the local men to oppose them. In the century, Thomas is the only Newark suburb man named as a contestant, while Fullerton will sport the local colors. Lofquist and Morris will compete against Field and J. Brownlee in the dives. The relay teams will be composed of Johnson, Thomas, Walker and Fortescue, for the Orangemen, and Snyder, Fullerton, Searles and Johnson for P. H. S. A. Brownlee and Erickson are also members of the local team, but Coach Harron has not completely made up his program of those in the various events yet.

ST. JOE-HOPE GAME OFF.

The St. Joseph's Club-Hope Chapel basketball game, scheduled for tomorrow night, was this afternoon called off at the request of the borough basketeers.

In the afteroon two Boys' College League games were played, and the Navy triumphed over the Army by a score of 8 to 5. Both games were well played, pretty passes being a feature.

TO DISCUSS MEANS OF EXTERMINATING MOSQUITOES

Mosquito control work will be discussed from a number of viewpoints at the third annual meeting of the New Jersey Mosquito Extermination Association, to be held February 17 and 18 at Hotel Traymore, Atlantic City.

Major-General W. C. Gorgas, surgeon-general of the United States army, and the man who cleaned up the Isthmus of Panama, mosquitoes and all, will handle the subject from the angle of the sanitarian bent upon disease prevention.

Speaker Charles C. Pilgrim, of the Assembly, State Senator Charles M. Egan, of Jersey City, and Spencer Miller, of South Orange, member of the United States Naval Advisory Board, have accepted invitations to tell what the taxpayers think of the work and how they are benefited by it.

A number of speakers, including Dr. L. O. Howard, of the Bureau of Entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture; Dr. Jacob G. Lipman, director of the State Experiment Station at New Brunswick; Dr. Thomas J. Headlee, State entomologist, and Dr. Haven Emerson, Commissioner of Public Health of New York city, will deliver addresses on various phases of the work from the point of view of those in the field trying to rid the State of this pest.

MANY THEFTS REPORTED IN SOMERVILLE HIGH SCHOOL

Somerville, Jan. 21.—Among the many thefts that have taken place in the Somerville High School in the past three months, Wallace Hawley is the latest to suffer. He had an overcoat stolen from the main cloak room a few days ago. During Teachers' Institute, a short time ago, several teachers were relieved of money, gloves and books. The matter has never been brought to the authorities' attention. Charles Hamilton, a prominent citizen of this place, is minus an overcoat. It was stolen last Monday.

The housewife is the "official buyer" for the home—in almost all families. She is, consequently, the official "ad read er" for the home.

Did you decide, not long ago, that you could not buy some particular thing because the price was a little too high? See if the store advertisements bring to you today any interesting "news" on this question.

Buying for the home cannot be done wisely and economically unless the "buyer" is a student of the advertisements—no more than a store may be made prosperous without advertising.

A Galley o' Fun!

ALMOST-PHILOSOPHY.

A public official, we are told, should conduct himself in his first term as if it were his last, and no doubt he would, only for the fact that if he does it almost certainly is.

A farmer, while chopping out a bees' nest in a hollow tree, found a keg of whisky forty years old. Lots of men would like to cut out the booze in this way.

Diogenes took a lantern and went looking for an honest man. If he had taken an automobile lamp, and what goes with it, he'd have run into any number of them.

A bad correspondent sometimes makes a good husband.

All is vanity, but especially all book reviews.

EXTREME CASES.

"Bredren," said Parson Black, earnestly, "dere am some folks in which de still, small voice ob conscience keeps a-gettin' stiller and' smaller until at las' it 'd hab ter l'arn de deef an' dumb langwidge if it wants ter attract dir attention!"

BALLAD OF SOC'L MAINTENANCE.

The grocer duns us twice a day,
The butcher has his grievance, too,
The milkman wants his long-sought pay,
The landlord's in a dreadful stew;
The baker seems to have in view
One end—to dun us early, late;
But then—what would you have us do?
One must maintain one's social state!

The back-stair carpet wears away,
In fact, it's ragged—it's not new.
Of such we make no great display
To those who stroll our parlors through;
Our parlors to the chosen few
Present an air of riches great,
To our true plight they give no clue—
One must maintain one's social state!

In truth, we would not—could not—say
That we have found enjoyment true
In this our mode of life; but stay!
The system on us claps the screw!
The Wealthy-Wonders led the crew,
We scrimp and pinch and imitate—
What other course can we pursue?
One must maintain one's social state!

L'Envoi.

Around our good Dame Fashion drew
Her tinseled mantle. Lo! We wait
Upon our knees to catch the cue—
One must maintain one's social state!

AT THE BALL GAME.

He—I suppose you know what a rooter is?

She—Why, of course. A rooter is a man who acts as if he was crazy.

THE ORIGINAL ADVANCE AGENT.

"Yes," remarked Washington, after throwing the silver dollar across the Potomac; "times are better now. I not only have money to throw away, but I can make a dollar go farther now than I used to."

A REFLECTION.

Mrs. Johnson—What I said to Mrs. Simpkins was dat I didn't b'leeb yo' husband ebbah robbed a hen-roos' in his life.

Mrs. Black—Yo' done meanto insinuwate he ain't got de nerve?

HIS CONJECTURE.

Mrs. Newrocks—I don't know just what they mean by "the embarrassment of riches."

Mr. Newrocks — Maybe it's the butter.

THE LIMIT.

"Is it really such a bad book?"

"Yes, indeed! Why, its almost bad enough to dramatize!"

Naming a Town.

An interesting story is told as to the origin of the name "Moosejaw" as applied to a town in Canada. Some fifty years ago, so the story runs, a pioneer, with his team of oxen and "prairie schooner," passing along the banks of the river, was obliged to camp at this point in Saskatchewan on account of an accident to his cart.

A spoke had fallen out during the day, and the wheel was falling apart. He looked about for something to insert for a temporary brace for the wheel, while his wife busied herself with the evening meal.

The pioneer's child, while romping around, found the jawbone of a moose, which she held up to her father, who by this time almost despaired of finding anything with which to repair his cart. He was delighted to find that the jawbone exactly fitted the place of the missing spoke. The Indians thereafter named this district the "Place Where the White Man Found the Moosejaw." This, it is said, accounts for the town's queer name.—Washington Star.

Message of a Banknote.

Writing on a banknote once freed an English slave. The note came into the hands of a Liverpool merchant's cashier. He examined it, noticed some pencil marks on the back and by the laborious use of time and ingenuity deciphered the message. It ran: "If this should fall into the hands of John Dean of Longhill, near Carlisle, he will learn thereby that his brother is languishing a prisoner in Algiers." John Dean was found, and he applied to the government and interested the prime minister, who stirred the foreign secretary into action. Inquiries were made, and the dey, by golden arguments, was persuaded to release him. For eleven years he had been a galley slave, and he had written the message in blood with a splinter of wood. His release came in time to allow him to die at home.—London Telegraph.

Neighbors.

Occasionally a writer makes a big hit by a very simple device. He discovers his neighbors. Most of us live next door to people for years and visit with them on the front porch and once in awhile call on them. But we rarely get really acquainted.

And then a McCutcheon comes along, or a Webster, or a Briggs, or a George Ade, or a Fatty Lewis and finds out that a neighbor is a human being. It is revealed that he gets peevish when the buttons aren't sewed on, and that his children have the croup, and that the baby keeps the family awake all night, and that in general he is a romantic character.

It is possible that your own neighbors might be as interesting as those of the gentlemen just mentioned if you would take the pains to know them.—Kansas City Star.

Scolds Gagged With Iron.

In the seventeenth century erring inhabitants of Newcastle used to undergo far more trying ordeals than that of the drunkard's cloak.

Ralph Gardner in a work entitled "England's Grievance In Relation to the Coal Trade," published 1655, records having seen "in Newcastle six months ago one Ann Bridlestone drove through the streets by an officer of the same corporation holding a rope in his hand, the other end fastened to an engine called the branks, which is like a crown, it being of iron, which was muzzled over the head and face, with a great gag of iron forced into her mouth, which forced the blood out, and that is the punishment which the magistrates do inflict upon chiding and scolding women."—London Express.

Everybody's Opportunity.

How many people we meet who are living narrow lives, complaining of their lack of opportunity!

Take the woman who feels helplessly that she does not know how to think—she has had no chance to study or to meet people of great interests and great purposes. Yet there are libraries—city libraries, country libraries, loan and traveling libraries, with all the wealth of the world's thought and experience, all hers for the taking. She may not know how to think great thoughts herself—comparatively few people do—but through a book she may live with some master mind until his thoughts become a part of her very life. It is not the mere reading of many chapters that starts the life growing.—Youth's Companion.

Epsom Salts as a Dimmer.

Five cents' worth of Epsom salts dissolved in a teacupful of water provides the neatest and most efficient "headlight dimmer" for automobiles so far proposed, according to the Scientific American. The solution is used on the inside of the headlight glass, where it is allowed to evaporate. The result is a beautifully frosted lens, the frosting on which lasts for several months.

A Warning.

"You had better be careful, Miss Flirty, or you will find yourself up against the law."

"Oh, what do you mean?"

"Why, you have such a killing way of shooting glances at a fellow."—Baltimore American.

Love and a Cathedral Altar.

The high altar of the Freiburg cathedral, with its matchless carvings, tells a story not only of love, but of love's triumph through the sharp wit of the lover. The simple woodcarver, Hans Lefrink, who had been the early protege of Maximilian I., 200 years before Alsace was captured by the French, had dared to love the daughter of a rich man, and she was foolish enough to love him in return. The indignant parent, when the youth had received the commission to carve the high altar, and on the strength of this honor asked for the hand of his love, received the haughty response, "When you carve an altar as much higher than the church in which it stands, as my daughter is higher than you, you may lead her to that altar in marriage." It was an impossible condition, but nothing is impossible to love. When the altar had been installed it was observed that the topmost point of it was bent forward, extending in a curve, and was actually about fifteen inches higher than the church. It merely stooped a little in order to conquer.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

When Gasoline Runs Low.

In Farm and Fireside is an ingenious suggestion for autoists whose gasoline has run so low that they have trouble in hill climbing.

One sometimes is caught out with a low supply of gasoline through having to make long detours to avoid bad roads or from other causes. The supply can be made to stretch over this emergency by adding denatured alcohol or kerosene. Occasionally there is sufficient gasoline for the ordinary level road, but not enough for an unexpected hill.

In this case the principle of pressure feed can be applied. Screw the cap down tight on the gasoline tank and then sharpen a match to fit the ventilating hole in the cap. Blow into this hole as hard as possible and immediately plug with a sharpened match. Usually this will enable the driver to make the hill without further trouble. But if not he can turn the car around and back uphill.

Doctors' Bills.

Your doctor's bill, as a general rule, reads, "For professional services rendered." That means that you are to pay for work done and not for miracles performed. If you hire a doctor to attend you in sickness you enter a contract to pay for his expert services, whether he succeeds in curing you or not. It would be unfortunate for both parties in the contract if the terms were otherwise.

Two things are not yet clearly understood by some people—first, a doctor's fee is collectable, and, second, a doctor is not legally bound to attend any one under any circumstances unless he wants to. You can't make a doctor work for a contingent fee, and you can't make him work at all if he chooses to refuse his services.—Chicago News.

RUSSIAN TELLS OF THE NEED OF JEWS

Member of Duma Recites Horrible Cruelties Against the Race.

Preparations are rapidly being made for the big mass meeting to be held here on the evening of January 27 in the interests of the Jewish War Sufferers' Relief Fund. It is assured that all of the speakers arranged for will attend, and all people in the city, irrespective of nationality or religion, will take part in the meeting.

The purpose of the movement is to raise money to feed and clothe Jews who have been reduced to starvation as a result of the present European War. Their need is told by the following portion of an addrress recently made by Deputy Telegatza before the Russian Duma:

"What kind of truth is this when lying communiques are being published in the official organ of the Government to the effect that Jews at Kuty have betrayed the Russian soldiers to the enemy? Why have the various periodicals been ordered to publish this communication under threat of penalties of the justice, that requires that a Jewish volunteer—and there are thousands of them in the Russian army—who has been several times embattled and is now crippled and mutilated, should be sent out within twenty-four hours from places in Russia where he was looking for some employment? What humanity is this which forbids the offering of food to hungry Jewish fugitives, kept in sealed wagons at the stations, as our authorities have done? What freedom is this? To have the whole Jewish press suppressed and destroyed by a single stroke of the pen? What fraternity is this, when a part of the army is set against the Jewish soldiers who are risking their lives in the same trenches with the others? What, gentlemen, in the name of what code of law are orders being issued to the Russian army to drive the Jews—the peaceful Jewish population—in front of the fire of bullets? By virtue of what code are Jewish subjects of Russia being taken as hostages by the Russian army and thrown into prison in order to subject them to torture and to have them shot? Shame, indeed—but this is a fact."

P. H. S. JOINS AN ATHLETIC LEAGUE

South Side, Rahway, Battin and New Brunswick High Schools Organize.

WILL REGULATE SPORT

At Beginning, Will be Only For Football—Bar Youths 21 Years Old, and Post-Grads—To Be Known as N. J. H. S. A. L.

A new high school athletic league was formed at a meeting of representatives from the South Side, Rahway, Plainfield, New Brunswick and Battin High Schools, at the Battin High School, Elizabeth, yesterday afternoon. The organization will be known as the New Jersey High School Athletic League, and, until further developments, will be active during the football season only. Another meeting will be held in two weeks, at which it may be planned to have all three major sports brought under the league's supervision.

W. E. Short and S. C. Strong represented the interests of the Rahway High School, R. S. Patch looked after the Plainfield High School's end, L. H. Campbell spoke for the New Brunswick High School, the Battin High School was represented by Charles Johnson, while South Side had at the meeting Ira Sheppard and "Doc" Cavallaro. Sheppard was chairman of the meeting.

Next fall will see this organization launched, and, from the plans formed at yesterday's meeting, every indication points to success. There will be no complicated eligibility rule in this league. It will be a sort of an honor system. But three rules were set down, to which all of the schools will be bound. The first sets the age limit at twenty-one years; a student being barred from competition after reaching his twenty-first birthday; secondly, he must take at least fourteen hours of work at school a week, and, thirdly, post graduates will be barred from representing the league members.

It was also decided that the school having the home game should receive all gate receipts. It will, however, defray all of the visiting team's expenses. The championship team will receive a sum of fifteen dollars. This sum is to be made up by equal distribution among the league members and will pay for a trophy. In case of a tie there will be no championship. At the next meeting each school will be represented by a member of the faculty and a student. Five officials will be submitted from each school at the next session of the league representatives. It has not been announced where the next meeting will be held.

P. H. S. FIVE GOES TO PENNINGTON TOMORROW

Pennington Academy will be the opponent of Plainfield High School's basketball team tomorrow afternoon. The game will be played at Pennington.

Coach Patch will take the full squad on the trip, but the game will start off with the regular line-up, composed of Dunham and Coudray, at forwards; Linke, center, and Whelan and Peacock, guards.

SAURERS MEET TABS.

Saurer Factory and T. A. B. S. basketball teams will play off their recent tie game in T. A. B. S. Hall tonight. The previous game, which was fought on the Y. M. C. A. court, ended abruptly in the middle of the second half, when the score was 25 all, because the lights were extinguished.

TOTAL PINS TO COUNT.

Total pins will count tonight in the roll-off of the triple tie for first place in the Columbus Club head-pin tournament. The Reds, Browns and Grays are the teams which finished the schedule in the first place deadlock.

Plainfield Eagles handed the champion Newark Aerie team its first beating of the season on the Second street alleys, last night, the 866 Lodge taking three straight from No. 44. Up to last night Newark had lost only one game. Plainfield is now back in third place. The locals rolled their highest total of the season when they knocked down 940 in the first game.

The Queen City Birds had respective margins of 39, 36 and 62 pins. Caulfield, taking Kats Miller's place, had a garrison finish in all three games, ending up with three strikes every time. Harry Radin maintained his place at the top of the league average list, with an average of 191. Caulfield hit 220 in the first game and averaged 193.1. Jim Mahoney was continually confronted with splits, and he negotiated many of them. Gruenling bowled 224 and Smith 215 for the champs.

The Somerville-Rahway match, originally scheduled for last night, was to have been rolled Wednesday evening, but Somerville telephoned to Rahway at 6:30 o'clock that night that the pinners could not keep the date on account of one or two of their men being ill. The Rahway Eagles had a match between the first and second teams, and also went through with the customary after-bowling program.

FIERCE BATTLE AT COLUMBUS CLUB ENDS 32–31 WIN FOR RECREATIONS

First Game for City Basketball Championship One of Roughest Ever Played Here—Two Players Have to Have Medical Attention—Crowd Kept in State of Constant Excitement by Thrilling Incidents.

With one man completely incapacitated, one severely cut and practically all the remaining players cut or bruised, the basketball game played on the Columbus Club court last night will go down in the annals of local sportdom as one of the fiercest and most closely fought of any of the indoor games ever staged in this city. The occasion was the first of a series of three games between the Recreation Five and the Columbus Club five for the championship of the city. The result was a one-point decision in favor of the former, the final score being 32 to 31. Both contingents had cohorts of rooters on the sidelines and in the gallery, who kept up a constant din of shouts for their respective players. As point by point was made a roar went up from all sides.

At the first chirp of the whistle, Willard Marston, the lanky pivot man of the Recreation team, tapped the ball toward the vicinity of his goal, but the pass was quickly intercepted by Bryniarski, who threw the sphere the length of the floor to Coyle, at forward. Poole held Coyle for a toss-up, and after several scrimmages the ball was again manipulated toward the Recreation goal, Marston caging the first goal of the game.

Coyle quickly followed with a neat basket, and Bryniarski put in four of the one-point variety. Ricketts and Allegar put in two net goals. At this point Coyle was penalized two points for charging Poole, who was shooting for a goal. The ball went through the net before the whistle was blown, and Ricketts made good on the two fifteen-foot tries—thereby elevating the Recreation score to 10. Rallying quickly the Knights, by some clever teamwork and flashes of speed, chalked up a score of 23, while the Recreation boys claimed 19 points when the end of the first period was called.

Coyle and Bryniarski played as they never played before in the second half, the former on the offensive and the latter on the defensive, the guard's one-hand dribbling being a feature of the game. During one of the latter plays, Dallas' interception sent Bryniarski headlong to the floor. He suffered a severe pain in his right shoulder, but went into the game again, and shortly after rolled the leather in for a two-point tally, while Coyle tallied one from the fifteen-foot line. Marston, who was the high-score man for the visitors, rang in another goal, and Ricketts caged one and three fouls.

The score stood 26 to 26, and there were ten minutes to play. The excitement ran high, and the players on either side were tuned to a pitch where every move meant either a point for or against them. The ball was relegated all around the court, and when near the opponents' goal, Bryniarski again got hold of it and proceeded with a one-hand dribble down the court. He had an open field until the middle, when Ricketts' interference sent him on the floor again. Misfortune seemed lurking in the game for him this time, his knee-cap being injured. He was carried off the floor, and Dr. Campus was summoned to attend to his injuries, while Caulfield donned the Columbus uniform to finish the game.

After Bryniarski was taken out of the game the basket in the rear of the court became loosened and went crashing down on the floor. Umpire Dan McNamee, who was standing directly under the goal, escaped by a narrow margin. When the towering pole was seen descending, a scream of warning to the young man went up from the feminine portion of the attendans, and was only by a quick sidestep on the part of McNamee that prevented a serious accident.

During the second half Dallas suffered a cut in his head by running into one of the chairs on the sidelines. He was also attended by Dr. Campus and re-entered the game.

During the remaining nine minutes fouls were frequently called and missed by either team. Coyle caged the first goal during this period, giving his team a lead again over the Recreations, but the joy was short lived, Marston again coming to the front with another goal. Ricketts followed with two fouls, Coyle with one, and McAfee sent the Knights again in the fore, the score being 31 to 29, with ten second to play. A pretty goal from the field by Marston sent the Recreation quintet in the lead again, just enough to win the game when time was called.

Both teams made an even number of goals, each caging eleven, but the Recreation team made good on one more foul than the West Front street players. Penalties were numerous throughout the entire game, twenty-four being called on the Recreation boys and twenty against the Knights.

FIRST DEFEAT FOR N. P. H. S

After Winning Ten Straight Borough Maidens Lose at Newark Normal, 16-12.

Best Pair of Shooters the Somerville School Players Have Opposed Season—Winners Appeared Here Twice This Winter.

By a margin of four points, the North Plainfield High School girls lost their first game of the season yesterday afternoon, at the Newark Normal gym, being defeated, 16-12, by the "State Six" representing the institution. The latter team has appeared in Plainfield twice this season, losing at P. H. S. to the "regs" and in Columbus Hall to the Plainfield Five.

The boroughites had won ten consecutive victories until yesterday, having been victorious over many high schools in this vicinity. While the loss of yesterday's contest is regretted, the score was very close and an unusually strong team was met on its foreign court.

Miss Vennet and Miss Miller were the best forwards the locals have encountered this season, both being adept dribblers and shots. Miss Keller and Miss Doughty played remarkably well in holding this combination to five field goals. Miss Vennet proved equally as good in dropping free shots from the fifteen foot mark, converting six straight tries into points.

Marjorie Burtis was responsible for the entire twelve points of the borough school, shooting four baskets and an equal number of fouls. Miss Spencer greatly aided her team-mate by some fine passing.

CITY MANAGERS BECOME POPULAR

Many Cities Have Adopted Business Plan of Government.

New York, Jan. 21.—Dissatisfaction with local municipal governments in many cities and towns of the United States has led to a boom for the city manager plan, under which affairs are run like any other business, with the brake hard on expenditures, the assurance of full value for every spent, together with the highest efficiency of the city's employes. The new year brings several more cities under the plan, and in 1917 it is expected that a goodly group of municipalities will seek relief in the new order of city government.

This month the cities of Newburg, N. Y.; Sandusky, O., and Niagara Falls, N. Y., have been placed under city managers, and this addition brings the number of cities trying out this method of government up to twenty-four. Nearly every newspaper reader has read of the remarkable results achieved at Dayton, O., which has had the system in efficient operation for two years. Much has been written concerning the savings effected in that instance, and Dayton is still the largest city to try it out. Pittsburg and Detroit are seriously discussing the advisability of trying it out in their city government, while other large cities have active organizations looking to the same end.

The commission manager plan is a radical departure from popular form of city government. It is based on efficiency and responsibility to the people, not on the political fortunes of leaders or cliques. Deadwood, waste, graft and temptation to saddle debt onto the municipality are all eliminated. In consequence, the taxes are kept to the lowest possible level, and the public expenditures purchase the best that money can buy in the open market. Such is the theory under which the new form of city government was worked out, and the reports from the cities which have already adopted the plan testify to the success of the city manager government, in cases where the plan has been put into effect without strings or hitches.

Practically all political abuses, civic, State or national, have their origin in the political mismanagement of cities. It is contended by the advocates of the city manager plan that the cleaning up of cities, the taking of their management out of politics, will do more to purge the politics of State and nation than any other one thing that could possibly be attempted. The experience of the big cities of the country is a story of extravagance, waste, graft and manipulation of contracts. The taxpayers have paid the bills, or are bonded to meet in future years the burden of debt that has been piling up. Now and then reformers have arisen to protest, and all honest citizens have become dissatisfied. Tax-dodging has become popular in self-protection; for no man relishes the furnishing of money for waste and oiling of political machines in city halls.

The commission manager plan has been adopted by the following cities: Sumter, S. C.; Hickory, N. C.; Morgantown, N. C.; Dayton, O.; Springfield, O.; Phoenix, Ariz.; La Grande, Ore.; Amarillo, Tex.; Cadillac, Mich.; Manistee, Mich.; Montrose, Colo.; Taylor, Tex.; Denton, Tex.; Collinsville, Okla.; Lakeland, Fla.; Big Rapids, Mich.; Sherman, Tex.; Bakersfield, Cal.; Tyler, Tex.; Newburg, N. Y.; Sandusky, O.; Niagara Falls, N. Y.; Wheeling, W. Va.; Ashtabula, O.

BISHOP DAVID H. GREER
At the Mass Meeting Held at Carnegie Hall, Said in Part:-

"Therefore, I say it is humanity's debt to the Jew and I appeal to that humanity of the American people, which is the boast, the legitimate boast, the only worth while boast and glory of the American people, which never fails to respond to any human needs, no matter how remote, as it is responding now so liberally and so freely. I appeal to that humanity, that American humanity, to pay promptly, with free and open hand, its debt, its human debt, to the Jewish people in this, their bitter hour, and so discharge its indebtedness to its own American human life.. In the name of the Christian Church, in the name of civilization, in the name of American humanity, I appeal in behalf of the Jew, who is suffering today—men, women and children—tonight on the other side of the seas."

The Plainfield Branch of the American Jewish Relief Committee appeal to you to assist this noble cause. "He who gives quickly gives doubly." Please send your contribution to HERMAN SCHWED, TREASURER, 107 EAST FRONT ST., PLAINFIELD, N. J.

SUFFS PLAN CAMPAIGN

capacitated for further duty! One result of the campaign also has been the coming to the colors of many new recruits, and we face the future with a larger force, better equipped and organized than before, all ready for the next campaign. Are we downhearted? No!

"In the face of special difficulties experienced by the other State, with a smaller proportionate number of trained workers and much less money than any of the other campaign States, the result of the election was gratifying because a much larger percentage of the New Jersey vote was in favor of woman suffrage than was the case in Massachusetts, and it was almost as large as that of New York, and only a small per cent. less than that of Pennsylvania.

"Our organization is twice as large as it was a year ago, and we now have 196 branches, covering every big city, most of the smaller cities and dozens of towns. The new constitution, putting our work upon an up-to-date basis, is, we believe, the last word in efficient organization. It is based upon the plan worked out for the New York Woman Suffrage Party, by Mrs. Chapman Catt, our national president, with slight changes and modifications to fit some special New Jersey conditions.

"There is not time to enumerate the hundreds of men, prominent in all walks of life, who have boldly championed our cause, not only during the campaign, when it was becoming hourly more popular, but before, in the days when it took more courage than it does now for a man, especially a man of political prominence, to espouse the women's cause. The names of the President of the United States, the Secretary of War, United States Senator William Hughes and Congressmen Thomas J. Scully, James Hamill and John J. Eagan stand out prominently in the list of our friends. This evening we will have the pleasure of electing to honorary membership forty of New Jersey's leading citizens, who have expressed not only their willingness, but their pleasure at having their names associated with the work of our association in this way. We are grateful, too, for the help, financial and otherwise, given us by the suffrage associations of other States, to the National Association for the speakers and money it gave us, to the Western Women's Voters' Alliance, who financed part of the work in the First Congressional District, spending nearly two thousand dollars in New Jersey; to Mrs. Joseph Fels, who gave $750 to the campaign fund; to Mrs. Robert Gould Shaw, of Boston, who not only financed an automobile speaking tour about the State, but gave us several hundred dollars inaddition to this, and to many others.

"Everybody knows who our real opponents were; who raised the money for the circulation of untrue statements in regard to the working of woman suffrage in the West; who compiled false statistics and sent 'fake' letters from prominent men to them across the street to register and vote illegally in many cases, in so many cases, in fact, that in one city alone the police took off the registration books between our election and the general election the names of five hundred illegally registered men. They were discovered in time so that their votes might not affect the elections of men running for office, but they voted on the woman suffrage and other amendments. Everyone knows that the ladies of the opposition had no special part in the campaign, except that of serving as a screen for the real anti-suffragists, and in spite of the fact that many of them denied in public and private that they had any connection with James R. Nugent, the Newark papers of October 20 described the scene at the headquarters of the Men's Anti-Suffrage League in Newark on Election night, when Mr. Nugent came into the room where the leaders of the women's organization were gathered, and was greeted with loud applause and warmly thanked for having fought and won the battle against suffrage by the president of the Antis herself.

"The future rests with you. Efficiency in our work and patience with the mistakes and failings of our fellow-workers are the two things most needed. Of course, we will often disagree—we would be dead as the proverbial door-nails if we didn't; but let us learn to be impersonal, and above all, let's all pull together! Let us vote for the women we want to see in office, and discuss and adopt the policies we want to follow, and then let's all go home and support the officers we have elected, and work along the lines which we ourselves have chosen. We are going to work hard and to work steadily until we win. There is no such word in a suffragist's dictionary as defeat. One of the newspapers said of us a few days after election, 'The woman, like the man, who doesn't know when she is beaten, is bound to win in the end.' And win we surely will."

WILL GIVE ILLUSTRATED LECTURE ON "MAINE WOODS"

The Boy Pioneers held an interesting meeting at the Crescent Avenue church yesterday afternoon, when six new members were elected and some time was devoted to drilling. The boys have become very enthusiastic over the work of the organization and substantial progress in efficiency is being made from week to week.

It was announced yesterday that L. D. Beers, of the Plainfield High School, will give an illustrated lecture on "The Maine Woods," in the chapel of the church, Thursday afternoon, February 3, at 3:30 o'clock. All boys and others interested are invited to attend. The Boy Pioneers meet every Thursday at the Crescent Avenue church and they will welcome all boys eligible to membership.

Mrs. H. C. Brokaw, of Watchung avenue, is visiting friends in Orange.

B. C. Pope, of Summit avenue, is detained at his home with a severe attack of the grip.

EDGE IS IN RACE FOR GOVERNOR

Makes Formal Announcement of His Candidacy to Republicans.

LONG PUBLIC RECORD

Believes in Publicity in All Affairs of State, and For Consolidation of Departments for Economy and Efficiency.

Trenton, Jan. 21.—Formal announcement was made today by State Senator Walter E. Edge, of Atlantic City, that he will be a candidate at the primaries next September for the Republican nomination for Governor.

Walter E. Edge

The announcement is not unexpected, as it has been thought for some time he would throw his hat in the ring.

For several months Senator Edge has been looked upon as a candidate for Governor or United States Senator, and some time ago the Atlantic County Republican Committee voted him endorsement for whichever honor he might seek. More recently, however, he decided to make the Governorship his aim. During the past two or three weeks he has been endorsed as a Gubernatorial candidate by the Republicans of Pleasantville and Hammonton, Atlantic county, and Republican organizations in other parts of South Jersey.

Read and Lewis Out.

Senate President William T. Read, of Camden, has been looked upon as a possible candidate for Governor but is now slated for State treasurer, and will be elected to that $6,000 position by the Legislature some time in February. This takes him out of the Governorship race and leaves Senator Edge as the only South Jersey Republican thus far in the field. Senator Austen Colgate, of Essex, is the most talked-of candidate in North Jersey, though there is also mention of former Judge Robert Carey, of Hudson, and former Senator John D. Prince, of Passaic. Friends of Vice-Chancellor Vivian M. Lewis, of Passaic, have been booming him for the Governorship, but he states positively that he will not even consider being a candidate.

Although the direct primary act has done away with the old-time slating of the candidates for United States Senator and Governor by a few party leaders, there is still live speculation as to how the ticket will be made up, and it is expected that the leaders of both parties will lend more or less support to certain candidates for both offices. As far as possible, too, efforts will be made to have the ticket for these two offices represent North and South Jersey.

Former Governor Franklin Murphy and former Governor Edward C. Stokes are already in the field for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, with the probability that ex-Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen will also seek this honor. Others may get in this race also.

Senator Edge was born in Philadelphia, November 20, 1873, and is in the general advertising and newspaper publishing business in Atlantic City. He was first elected to the Senate in 1910, after serving two terms in the Assembly. He was the Republican leader in the Assembly in 1910. In 1912 he was party leader in the Senate. Last year he was president of the Senate, and served as Acting Governor of the State during the month that Governor Fielder was in the West.

He was a member of the personal staffs of Governors Murphy and Stokes, and at present is lieutenant-colonel and chief of ordnance on the staff of Quartermaster-General C. Edward Murray. He has served both as journal clerk and secretary of the Senate. His statement is as follows:

"I shall be a candidate at the primaries for the Republican Gubernatorial nomination.

"I have reached this conclusion only after a careful survey of existing conditions through interviews and correspondence with many interested citizens representing every county in the State. I have personally conducted this investigation on the firm conviction that a man is not justified in being a candidate for this high office unless he is able to find a reasonable sentiment favorable to his candidacy. Notwithstanding much public discussion and p[illegible]rences as to my position in the matter, I therefore purposely refrained from making any final declaration until I had personally satisfied myself as to the general feeling existing in all parts of the State, and I really preferred to await the adjournment of the Legislature before actively entering the contest.

Believes in Publicity.

"I shall, however, in good time exert every proper effort to acquaint the public with the business policy that I will strictly adhere to, if honored with this high and powerful position, and feel confident my program will receive their endorsement and approval.

"I deem it not improper to point to my seven years' record in the Legislature, as indicating my interest in aggressive, constructive legislation, but shall not now attempt to go into detail, as to the successful fight I assisted in waging for workmen's compensation, for economy and efficiency, for consolidation in State government, and other matters leading up to the partial application of accepted business principles to State management.

"The work is far from completed, and I only say briefly at this time that I desire to be Governor, not alone to gratify a personal ambition, but primarily to carry to a conclusion, as far as is possible, the economy and efficiency program in all its ramifications; likewise, to make workable a complete budget system, through which a revised and modernized financial control can be developed, until the State of New Jersey's $15,000,000 annual business will be conducted from a business man's standpoint, with the Governor the responsible business manager of the State, rather than the mere political leader of his party. I thoroughly appreciate the necessity for proper organization and leadership in politics, as is business, but that organization must be for service rather than partizanship.

"It is my earnest belief that no man should be an aspirant for Governor without a clear and definite program, nor without being prepared to take the public into his confidence in this and other respects.

"My activity in the Legislature has been directed with the hope that I could see New Jersey a real business proposition, with the main responsibility of the Governor being that of conducting the affairs of the State with all the opportunities for good, rather than the mere filling of a few offices, seemingly his most important accepted function.

"I shall make every effort to meet the people of the State during the months intervening before the primaries, and to frankly detail to them what I hope to accomplish in their interest through a business administration of State affairs."

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Audiences at the Plainfield Theatre both yesterday afternoon and last night enjoyed the new show for the last half of the week better than any that has been at the playhouse for weeks, if applause is any criterion. Every number on the bill received an enthusiastic reception and curtain calls were frequent. J. K. Dennett and company of five people, presenting the laughable sketch, "Pluto Up to Date," made one of the biggest hits of the year, and Runnell and Stevens, in a comedy singing and talking number, entitled "In the Catskills," jumped into instant popularity. The other acts were exceptionally good and were as follows: Nettie Calvin, character songs; the Three Harvey Sisters, singing, dancing and piano; and the Duzzo Rutter Brothers, the famous Belgian acrobats.

The new picture from the Will Fox feature film serice, "The Flash of An Emerald," with Robert Warwick, in the leading role, ran a close second to the vaudeville program. The film is a new release and tells an unusual story in an unusual way. Mr. Warwick is supported by a very capable company, which includes a number of principals familiar to Plainfield audiences.

The usual "Country Store" will be held tonight and will have a big surprise. Something new has been arranged by Manager Shannon and the best way to find out what it is is to be numbered among the patrons at either performance.

During the summer while the Behman Show was playing its record run of four months at the Columbia Theatre in New York, the Special Narcotic Squad from Police Headquarters was particularly active. One evening about 9 o'clock, Lew Kelly, who is appearing with the company in the character of his famous dope fiend, stepped from the theatre during the intermission into a neighboring bar to secure a thirst quencher. As he stepped into the electric light coming from the establishment, two rather burly appearing individuals peered at him closely and then stepped up to him and placed him under arrest. They were a couple of members of the Narcotic Squad and Kelly's make-up convinced them that he was a dope fiend. It took almost a half hour before they won't be convinced that he wasn't rallying a "coke" and then they had to be taken to the front of the house so that Kelly could be identified by the manager. Kelly will appear here next Tuesday and Wednesday at the Plainfield Theatre, with The Behman Show in "The Dope's Legacy."

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed and you can't breathe freely because of a cold or catarrh, just get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. HANDICAPPING FIREMEN.

At the serious fire of Tuesday night the members of the Plainfield fire department were handicapped because of the late arrival of the horse-drawn hook and ladder truck. This was not due to any failure upon the part of the crew to perform its duty. Because of the icy surface of the roads, the heavy load they were forced to draw and the long run, the two horses could not move faster. The truck was badly needed when firemen first arrived at the Lyle home to save women, children and an aged, helpless man. That this work was done without ladders is due to the courage and resourcefulness of members of the department. They did a heroic work, but why it is necessary for Plainfield to demand such heroism of its firemen? Their work is dangerous enough at best, and much of the danger, not only to them, but to citizens, would be removed if they were properly equipped. Cities of all sizes and in all parts of the country have discarded horse-drawn fire apparatus. Every second counts when an alarm has been sounded and seconds run into hundreds and even thousands of dollars and sometimes into lives. Members of the Plainfield Council are to be commended for a policy of economy, but it is false economy to handicap firemen, and there can be no question of economy when lives are at stake.

That Essex county intends to "hog" Republican nominations for governor and senator was openly admitted at a dinner held this week in Newark, when Herbert W. Taylor, chairman of the Essex county committee, defied all leaders and voters of the party who opposed the nomination of Murphy for senator and Colgate for governor. The address of Mr. Taylor was intended for only Essex county ears, but it should be circulated in all counties of the State. Among other things he said, "These are our candidates. Let the people decide if they want them." The people will decide, of course, that being not only an inalienable right but a task, but we doubt the ability of Mr. Dalrymple, Mr. Taylor and others to cram two Essex county men down the throats of Jersey voters. There will be others in the primary, as good, or better men perhaps, than the favorite sons being pushed forward by the Dalrymple combination and New Jersey has progressed too far to go back to the old system of boss rule.

In Poland today there are thousands of women and children who wander homeless and hungry over a devastated country in the throes of a biting winter. They are dying from cruelty and neglect. The cruelty is to be charged to Germany, Russia, Austria, Serbia, or whatever people or power an omnipotent judge may later decree, but the neglect can be fixed here on earth. It is the duty of American people to give life to these destitute victims of the war. It is your duty, not that of someone in a foreign country or in another city. Tomorrow there will be a collection taken by a local sub-committee for the relief of Polish victims. Collectors will be on the streets tomorrow with small flags and those who wear these flags will be enrolled in the common cause of charity. You must enlist.

More than 1,500 corporations have been dropped from the books of the State of New Jersey and prevented from doing business here or under their charter secured here, since the first of the year, according to a report just issued from Trenton. This would seem like a gigantic loss in revenue, but the corporations were all dropped for non-payment of taxes, and the State loses nothing. New charters are being issued every day and they are coming in sufficient quantities to make up for those revoked.

The two boys who picked the lock at police headquarters the other day and escaped were not real criminals and were not being treated as such. They were allowed liberties by the kind policemen and there is no danger of a dangerous character ever escaping justice in a similar manner. While a jail escape is usually a black mark on the record of any department it is a source of gratification to Plainfield people to know that its police department is human enough to be kind to children.

When Wilson swings "round the circle," Bryan is going to follow and argue against his policy of preparedness. This is the same brand of party unity that the Republicans found so profitable four years ago.

More than 30,000 people were turned away from the Philadelphia hall where Roosevelt spoke last night and yet there are some who wonder who stole the Colonel's popularity.

The first of the gubernatorial candidates has entered the ring and soon we will be told from every stump what is the matter with New Jersey.

New Jersey man who bequeathed newspaper to a friend must have known where he was going and wanted company in his misery.

Off Again On Again
STRICKLAND W. GILLILAN

His New Typewriter

He wrote a letter proudly on his new typewrite machine.
He started with a snowy sheet all water-marked and clean.
But ere he'd done a dozen lines his troubles entered in—
He'd written practice lines before, as neat as any pin.
"Now is the time for all good men," he'd write it just as well
As that delightful gentleman who had the "mill" to sell.

He started making m's for n's—erasing them at first;
Then found that, 'twixt the bulls and rubs, the latter looked the worst.
He left the figure-shift locked down when he attempted caps,
And said a lot of language far from lady-like, perhaps.
Then in the middle of the page, the ribbon he'd forgot
Fetched loose; and ere he fixed it he had mussed the page a lot.

It looked as if a chimney-sweep had got into a fight
With some ill-tempered coal-cart man whose hands were far from white.
It took no vain imaginings to figure what he'd said
When from its moorings at one end he found that ribbon fled.
But he was game and sent it, and I have the letter yet—
If ever he mistreats me I shall show it, too, you bet!

Horse Sense

This phrase is common, but like many other common phrases, it is shy on meaning.

So much depends on what horse.

There are some horses that are intelligent.

And others that have very little more sense than people have.

There are some steeds that, if they could arrange it, would chew gum and stick the wad on the underside of the chair.

And there are others that, if they were human, would say, "exsquizz-it," and call a cu-po-la a "cu-pa-lo"—as you probably do, yourself.

We have had a more or less intimate personal acquaintance with all sorts of horses, from clothes horses to real meat ones.

We have known horses in every previous condition of servitude.

And the quantity known as horse-sense was as fluctuating as the horse-acquaintances were numerous.

One time when we were an agriculturist we associated on terms of equality with a large, mongrel bay mare with a head the size of a flour-barrel.

We never saw so large a head before with so much vacant space.

It was the most tenantless bean we have ever encountered.

Once we used her for a spark-plug.

We left her colt at home, so she would return swiftly.

She did.

Head and tail up and emitting a whinny like the wail of a lost soul every hundred yards of the four miles between the jane's house and mine.

When she and we reached home, which we did in a few jolty minutes, we found father sitting up in the haymow with the colt in his lap.

The steed's child had got hungry and lonesome and had climbed all through the barn, nickering like a siren.

This was the only time we ever saw our father reasoning with a perfectly healthy colt at 2 A.M.

We had thought, when we went to see that girl, that we were too old to be spanked.

As soon as the colt got at its nourishment, we found out that we were younger than we had figured.

When you are told of a man who has horse-sense, unless you know what horse, you haven't been told anything.

Health Talks
BY WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Living On Terms With The Liver

THERE IS A widespread fancy that certain drugs have some vague but beneficial influence upon the liver. There is a made-to-order notion to go with this idea, a notion that vague pains in vague situations, and vague states of mind are symptoms of "liver complaint" and indicate the use of some of the so-called liver remedies.

Salines—salts—whether in natural spring water or in fancy packages, undoubtedly do help to reduce portal engorgement. That is to say, if one eats too heartily, occasionally or habitually, a saline cathartic in sufficient dose to produce two or three watery evacuations will directly lower blood-pressure in the portal area (the veins conveying blood to and through the liver), and thus give some relief. But temperance in eating, abstinence or fasting if necessary, will prevent what the saline only helps. It is more sensible not to pack in the excess of food, than to stuff as a matter of habit and then resort to a cathartic to force a passage through the alimentary canal.

And then there are numberless "dum-dums" made and sold under the implied idea that they do something or other to that liver. Of course no laxative has any special affinity or selective action on the liver, not even the well-known calomel, except in the imagination of the patient.

"Liver trouble" is mostly leg trouble—the victim doesn't walk enough to keep the blood circulating and metabolism metabolizing. And too often the leg trouble is shoe trouble—fashionable shoes built without the least regard for anatomical or physiological requirements. In fact the shoemakers assume that legs were made wholly to admire and not to use for any practical purpose.

Bread and Milk Club members get along fairly well with their livers. They feel better Tuesday than most people feel on Monday morning.

Rest for the liver is obtained by—

1. Cutting down by one-half the butcher's bill.
2. Reducing the total of fats in the diet to about two-thirds of the amount commonly consumed.
3. Relying upon bulky vegetables, cereals, fruits and perhaps occasional doses of one of the mineral oils (pure petroleum oil) to regulate the bowels, instead of "dum-dums."
4. Drinking at least two quarts of water each day.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Dryness of the Air of Houses

Is the air of furnace-heated houses too dry in winter weather?

Answer—Not if the temperature is kept around 68. It becomes too dry when the temperature soars above 68.

Source of the Air Warmed by Furnace

Is it objectionable to admit air from the cellar into the intake pipe of a hot air furnace?

Answer—Yes. The air should come from outdoors always.

Marasmus and Malnutrition

What causes "marasmus and malnutrition" in babies?

Answer—These are meaningless terms used as a cloak to ignorance. They are neither symptoms nor diseases, nor even "complaints," but just words.

Dr. Brady will answer all questions pertaining to Health. FLATS

FLATS ARE AN INVENTION whereby people who live in crowded cities can be piled up in layers like pancakes.

A flat consists of a collection of living rooms all on one floor. A flat building consists of from six to sixty sets of rooms all under one roof and under the overlordship of a janitor who lives in the basement and does the furnace with coal on the homeopathic plan. A really expert janitor can run a twelve-flat furnace all winter on a wagon load of coal and can so chill the tenants when they come down to complain that their rooms will seem tropical when they return to them.

Flats are built of brick, wood, stone, strawboard, felt and tissue paper, the latter being used principally for partitions. An economically built flat building is usually provided with a light well which is entirely filled with conversation. By means of this well the occupant of the top flat can hear what the husband of the first floor says when the coffee doesn't suit him and when the woman in Number 2 tells her late returning spouse that he is a brute the women in Numbers 1, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 quiver with simultaneous indignation.

Flats have handsome hallways fitted with New Jersey Turkish rugs and back porches where one may have a garden consisting of a geranium. They are also provided with bathtubs and two kinds of water, cold and not so cold. In the cities, owing to the high price of ground, aldermen and building material, the rooms in a flat are sometimes very small—so small that when the daughter is playing the piano, the mother has to wash the dishes gently for fear of splashing on the music—so small that the members of the family have to be measured for the bedrooms as they would for vests, and anyone weighing over 180 pounds has to work himself into the bathroom by means of glove powder and a shoe horn.

Some flats are very magnificent, however, and contain splendid marble lobbies, sun parlors, air filters, vacuum cleaners, automobile elevators, refrigerated bedrooms and even places where children and dogs can be stored if they are kept perfectly quiet. Such flats rent for from $5,000 to $50,000 a year, which, however, does not include the privilege of gossiping with the family next door.

Run a twelve-flat furnace all winter on a wagon load of coal

By means of flats people can live with little exertion and great comfort, to say nothing of perfect seclusion. No one will bother them, and when they are at last lowered from the fourth floor to the hearse after a long and peaceful life, the neighbors of twenty years' standing will heave a sigh and say: "Hello, I wonder what poor devil is being planted today?"

Views Of The Press

Where Is The Troubadour?

WHERE IS THE old-fashioned medicine show, which was the delight of our childhood? What has become of the "perfesser" in the long-tailed coat who once created a market for his harmless wares by delivering a lecture illustrated with a chart of a deceased gentleman with his mainspring and larger cog wheels exposed to the curious gaze?

Before the passage of the pure food and drug law it was a dull summer that did not bring a mass of medicine shows to every little town. Always there was a gentleman lecturer, who expounded the workings of the duodenum and the descending colon to persons who never before knew they owned such organs. He was aided and abetted by a clown, usually a banjo picker, or a sleight-of-hand performer who, with his foolishness, drew the crowd, and helped collect the money after the professor had convinced his hearers that the immediate purchase of a bottle of his cure-all was the only insurance against an early and untimely grave.

The medicine show man led a rollicking life. He put up about a dime's worth of charcoal, chalk, sulphur and sugar in an ornate package which sold for a dollar. He picked up all the stray change in town, and made times tight for the country apothecary. Many medicine show owners retired from the game wealthy. The medicine shows ranged all the way from organizations in which the medicine man did his own comedy and his own selling to organizations with two or three comedians, and a "perfesser" who gave a lecture "for men only" Saturday afternoons in the opera house. Some of the outfits traveled overland with a red wagon and two or three teams of spotted ponies.

Then came the days of the pure food and drug acts, and the day of the medicine show was over. The medicine show is dead, but the gentlemen lecturers and professors are in some other game where a gift of gab and "front" will sell something no one wants.—Emporia Gazette.

Real People of the War
BY ROBERT MONTSIER

German Soldier Will Be An American If—

THIS IS NOT AN interview with General von Hindenburg. Any American journalist or dramatic critic or professor or ex-senator who is willing to sell himself and his opinions for German gold in the form of paper money or for German adulation and joy, rides where all is tragedy, can get close enough to Germany's idol to count the number of warts on his countenance.

This is an interview with Hermann Piel, and what is more, it is an exclusive interview, for everybody cannot interview Hermann Piel, because, for one reason, he is only a private in General von Hindenburg's army. And there is another reason—Hermann Piel isn't Hermann Piel. He is himself, but here I give him another name, since German officials in Washington and Berlin as well as you will read what he said to me a few weeks ago, when he was on furlough, riding with me in a third-class compartment on an express train out of Berlin.

Before the war Piel was a butcher, not by choice, but by the will of his father. Now he is a soldier, not by choice, but by the command of his King and Kaiser. If Germany's armies were raised by voluntary enlistment, I know, from what Piel told me, that he would be in his meatshop to-day, instead of in Russian snow and mud.

"I did not want this war," Piel said to me after we had opened the conversation with a bottle of beer. "My neighbors at home did not want it. My neighbors in the trenches do not want it. A Russian prisoner who could talk German told me that he knew nobody who wanted it. And everybody knows that the Belgians did not want it, even though they took up arms against our invading armies. I was one of the invaders."

"Do you personally know of any instances of Belgian civilians firing on German soldiers, or did you see any atrocities committed?" I asked Piel, for I had not forgotten the Bryce report, and the Germans with whom I had come in contact day after day for four months did not allow me to forget the German version.

"I did not see any of our soldiers killed by Belgian civilians," replied Piel. "In different towns that we entered I heard our soldiers saying that the people had been killing our men, and I have seen the same thing stated in many of our papers, but I do not believe everything that I read in the newspapers now. I think that Belgians who were not soldiers did shoot some of the men in our armies, but I think that because I would want to do the same to Belgian soldiers that would invade my country as we did Belgium and destroy homes and families. I saw a number of older men and women who had been killed, and two girls. Our officers treated the Belgians cruelly, but no worse than they did some of us soldiers. As a soldier it is impossible for me to tell you about it.

"Although you hear it said by very few people, there are many of us Germans who are ashamed of Belgium. The world will never forget it, and we will never be able to undo the crime, no more than we will be able to give back to their families the men and women and children who died on the 'Lusitania.' Our big newspapers can explain Belgium and the 'Lusitania' away, but among us are people who can think for themselves. I was glad when my regiment was sent to East Prussia, for there we were driving an enemy from our land. But now Poland and the suffering of its people remind me too much of Belgium."

"Are you a Socialist?" I asked Piel.

"No," came his answer. "Before this war I wasn't much more than a butcher, although I did not wish to be one when I left the gymnasium. Now, I am a republican. If the kings and emperors of Europe, with all their power and blood relationships, could not prevent such a war as this, it is time that we all had a republican form of government. I never expect to see it here, so if I am alive when this war is over I will go to America. What do you advise me to do, since I don't wish to be a butcher? I have had too much bloodshed in my life."

I rather look forward to meeting Piel on a Hoboken pier some day if—there's always an "if" connected with "after the war"—he is alive when the war is over.

My interview with Piel was much longer than any with von Hindenburg could have been, and I am sure in view of what was said by Piel to me and by von Hindenburg to others that Piel would make the better American citizen, absolutely unhyphenated. Of scores of German soldiers with whom I have talked some of them adorned with the Iron Cross, I consider him the bravest—he dares to think independently of the mass of the German people, who think as their government wills.

Pepper Talks
BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Up

For general Run-down-ed-ness try the Tonic—"Up." The "Up" Tonic has actually saved this big world from going off to a Hospital. Millions daily rise to sing its marvelous praises.

Get Up.

That is the first step. Stand Up. The more you test your own Strength, the more you will pat yourself on the back for having such Strength. Get Up—and stay Up.

Cheer Up.

The Best is always yet to come. Cheer Up. All you have to do is to go after the Best. And then, Cheer is so Magnetic. No matter where you work or where you go—you draw People and Fortune your way. Suppose the Cow did kick over the pail of Milk. There's more Cow and there's more Milk. Cheer Up!

Smile Up.

Smiles don't count when they hit the ground. Smile Up. When you face a day that seems knotted with kinks—Smile Up. There will be very few Kinks left. At every time and in every place—Smile Up. Make no exception. Smile Up.

Climb Up.

Be satisfied with nothing. Climb Up. Gather up carefully and patiently the threads of Toil and Experience that make up your completed day and use them as a Rope with which to pull yourself higher. Climb Up.

Lift Up.

If everybody were always Up and never Down, there would be no reason for this little talk. Somebody is always Down and somebody is always Up. You who are Up help the one who is Down. Lift Up. Then YOU will be HIGHER Up.

Snap Shots
By Jay E. House

In novels and on the stage a kiss is supposed to seal the engagement. In real life it indicates that the young people are becoming tolerably well acquainted.

A girl never is quite sure whether she prefers to elope, thus becoming a romantic figure, or have a church wedding and lead a parade.

Speaking of the high cost of living, another expensive combination is that of a girl and a cook-book.

What, by the way, is the pouter pigeon's excuse?

Another conservative theory is that one to the effect that a sucker is born every minute.

A married woman divides her time about equally between abusing her husband in private and bragging about him in public.

When a man does a thing to please his wife, that is a sign she is both young and good-looking.

A girl first makes sure of her own marriage. Then she begins to look around for a suitable husband for her chum.

You, doubtless, have noticed there are no love matches between old men who are poor and young women who are rich.

Trouble has various aliases. One of them is putting on a suit of union underwear in an upper berth.

Unless one has relatives in the cast, no amateur show is very good.

CALLED HIM PILATE, HE SHOULD WORRY

Atlantic City Mayor Does Not Mind Words of "Billy" Sunday.

Atlantic City, Jan. 21.—Mayor William Riddle doesn't object to being called Pontius Pilate so long as his wife doesn't refuse to kiss him. The title was conferred on the city's executive by Evangelist Henry W. Stough. The evangelist severely arraigned the Mayor and a number of church folk and city officials were of the opinion that the Mayor would instruct his lawyers to start a slander suit against the preacher.

The Mayor's attitude toward the evangelist was found to be quite the contrary.

"I told my wife to kiss Pilate when I left Chelsea this morning," said the Mayor yesterday; "and she did. So why should I worry?"

Mayor Riddle declared, however, that he had changed his mind about visiting the tabernacle, as he had promised to do.

"They might frame me up as a train bitter as they did Mayor Donnelly in Trenton," he said.

ANNUAL MEETING OF LORD'S DAY ALLIANCE

Strong Speakers to Address Convention to Be Held in Newark Next Week.

The annual convention of the Lord's Day Alliance of New Jersey will be held on Thursday, January 27, in the Y. M. C. A. building, in Newark, at 11 a. m. During the years of its existence the alliance has stood in the front line of battle for the preservation of the New Jersey Sunday law. Public meetings have been held throughout the length and breadth of the State in the interests of the proper observance of Sunday as a day of rest. The repeated attempts to amend the Sunday law so as to permit the opening of dance halls, theatres, and the playing of games in public for profit, have been met by this alliance, and thus far successfully. The alliance emphasizes the importance of Sunday as a rest day, and believes that the industrial enslaving of the hundreds of thousands of laborers in New Jersey is impossible so long as there is left one day in seven on which these multitudes rest from their labors, and own no master but their Almighty Creator.

Rev. Frank E. Depew, of Boonton, will speak on "The Sabbath In Its Relation to the Church," and Rev. Robert Wilson Mark, of Woodbridge, will talk on "The Sabbath in Its Relation to Society," at the morning session. In the afternoon there will be the following addresses: "The Sabbath, Man's Priceless Gift," Rev. Dr. James Mason, of Metuchen; "The Sabbath An Ancient Landmark," Rev. Dr. W. Y. Chapman, of Newark; "Lessons from Canada's Sabbath Laws," Rev. Dr. Charles H. Stewart; "Perilous Tendencies in New Jersey Sabbath Legislation," Rev. Francis Palmer, of Trenton. Officers will be elected at the afternoon session.

FIGHTS FOR LAND TITLE.

Washington, Jan. 21.—The Secretary of the Interior has been cited to answer tomorrow the petition in the District Supreme Court filed by John D. Maxey, who claims to be entitled to a land patent on property near Carson City, Nev. The plaintiff claims that the decision of the Secretary, declining to issue the patet, abrogates an old and established rule of procedure in such cases, and is "arbitrary, whimsical and capricious," and that it is "tantamount to a confiscation of the property right for the use and benefit of the United States."

PATRIOTIC FUND CAMPAIGN.

Montreal, Jan., 21.—His Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught, will formally open the second whirlwind campaign to raise money for the Patriotic Fund, by delivering today an address at the luncheon of the Canadian Club. The Duke opened the successful campaign last year, and he will be present and lend his aid unless something prevents.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

How Odysseus Introduced Himself To a Queen.

Kneeling, He Implored Her Aid.

"TELL us a Greek story, daddy!" cried Jack and Evelyn.

"When Odysseus, wrapped in his concealing cloud, had seen all of the king's palace he wanted to he decided it was time for him to beg a Greek ship and get on home to Ithaca. So with a rapid step and a light heart he walked right into the palace hall where the king and his queen, with all the senators, were having their dinner. Going straight to the queen, he kneit before her and implored her aid to return to his home. Then, with a low bow, he backed away to a seat by the hearthside, where all the beggars had to sit."

"But Odysseus was a prince!" cried Jack.

"No man of Corfu knew it. For a long time nobody spoke; then an aged statesman said to the king: 'It is not fit that a stranger who asks our hospitality should be kept waiting like a beggar, with none welcoming him. Let him be led to a seat among us, sire, and give him food and wine.' He had very good manners, you see. So the king went and gave his hand to Odysseus, ordering his own son to give up his seat to the stranger. Then Odysseus sat down beside the king and enjoyed his dinner. After all had finished the king told his senators that he would call them in council the next day to help him decide what to do with the stranger.

"Left alone with the king and queen, Odysseus got a good quizzing about who he was and where he came from. Suddenly the queen saw that he had on her son's clothes!"

"They might think he was a thief!" cried Jack, much alarmed.

"The very clothes that she and her maidens had made with their own hands," daddy went on. "So Odysseus told them about his stay on Calypso's island, about the wreck of his raft, his escape by swimming, his long sleep on the sands and the relief the gentle princess gave him. As the king and queen listened they grew more interested and liked him. He was handsome and had beautiful manners, you know. And before the three went to bed that night the queen had promised Odysseus a ship."

"Goody for the queen!" shouted Jack.

"So the next day the king declared a festival. Everybody on the island came to the palace for a big feast. A beautiful ship was picked for Odysseus and a crew of strong young men chosen as rowers. And then the king ordered all sorts of manly sports and games for the rest of the day, because one of the first things the ancients used to do whenever they got a good chance was to play games," daddy finished.

"Two kisses and three hugs for daddy!" cried the children.

Marrying for Money

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

The Bride-to-be Is Cautious About Signing Papers.

"I brought over the document for you to sign tonight," said Jacob Townsend, as he seated himself in the tiny parlor where the boarders entertained their callers.

"What paper?" asked his fiancee.

"You know I told you that I thought it would save trouble and all hard feeling among the children if you signed a paper agreeing to make no claim on property left when I am gone. Your share has been deeded to you and that will be yours from the time we are married."

Ortrude reached for the paper and read it.

"It is rather previous, signing a document as your wife, don't you think? I am not superstitious, but I prefer not to sign this until I am actually your wife."

"I did not wait until we were married to deed you your share of the property," objected Townsend.

"You deeded the property to your wife, you said. If I should never be your wife the property would not be mine and no harm would be done. I do not choose to sign the paper until after I am your wife."

"Suit yourself, but I cannot understand your objections." Townsend was evidently nettled, but the irritation passed away as he listened to her sparkling repartee and watched the changing expressions on the vivid face.

"I wonder why she would not sign the paper," he thought as he walked home. "She seemed perfectly satisfied with the settlement I made on her. It is some girlish notion of propriety, no doubt," and the subject passed out of his mind.

When Jacob Townsend told his sons of the approaching marriage Dudley only said: "I hope you will be happy." His father was relieved. He did not know that the boy had schooled himself to show no displeasure after his sister imparted the news to him. Then the father told them of his financial arrangement. "I wanted to be sure that you would have no money troubles after I was gone; this definite provison for her and the division of the rest between you three is all provided for in my will and her signature will make any breaking of the will impossible."

"Has she signed the paper?" asked George.

"Well, no. She prefers to wait till she is married," admitted the father, reluctantly.

"Excuse me, but would it not be more businesslike to have all the matter settled before the ceremony?" asked George. "It sems to me that it would be more nearly certain to avoid trouble."

"I did suggest it, but I did not press the matter when I found out how she felt. She will sign the paper as soon as she is married."

The boys exchanged glances.

"I have decided to let Marian go away to school next year. She has always wanted to do it, and it will be easier to make the adjustments that must come if she is away for a time."

"Isn't she pretty young to leave home? She hasn't finished high school," exclaimed Dudley. He was alive to everything that affected his little sister.

"Oh, I think not," said the father easily.

Why do so many mothers take Wood Brook milk? Perhaps they have noticed the difference in the doctor's bills, if they are wise economists. But a mother's first thought is the children, and it does not take her long to discover that Wood Brook milk is health insurance for the children.

RECIPE TO CLEAR A PIMPLY SKIN

Pimples Are Impurities Seeking an Outlet Through Skin Pores.

Pimples, sores and boils usually result from toxins, poisons and impurities which are generated in the bowels and then absorbed into the blood through the very ducts which should absorb only nourishment to sustain the body.

It is the function of the kidneys to filter impurities from the blood and cast them out in the form of urine, but in many instances the bowels create more toxins and impurities than the kidneys can eliminate, then the blood uses the skin pores as the next best means of getting rid of these impurities, which often break out all over the skin in the form of pimples.

The surest way to clear the skin of these eruptions, says a noted authority, is to get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of hot water each morning before breakfast for one week. This will prevent the formation of toxins in the bowels. It also stimulates the kidneys to normal activity, thus coaxing them to filter the blood of impurities and clearing the skin of pimples.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent drink which usually makes pimples disappear; cleanses the blood and is excellent for the kidneys as well.

PANAMA REPUBLIC OPENS ITS BIG EXPOSITIONS

Panama, Jan. 21.—To commemorate the discovery of the Pacific Ocean by Balboa, the National Exposition of the republic of Panama will be opened today. The charm of a tropical setting and of picturesque native sports and industries will be combined with the more striking features of great American fairs. It is the first big exposition held in Central America, and the close relations of the natives with Spain and the United States have brought participation by those two powers, as well as representation from many of the Central and South American countries. Cuba has also joined in the event, and has constructed its own building on the fair grounds.

The exposition is situated on an elevation overlooking the city and the winding sea coast. After the 100-day exposition is over, the buildings will be retained as a government center and as museums and places of gathering.

One of the most interesting exhibits is that of Ecuador, in the form of a collection of relics of the people who inhabited Central and South America in ancient times. This exhibit rivals in interest the many exhibits brought from the San Francisco Exposition by the United States Government.

One of the buildings will show the growth of the infant republic, now only a dozen years old. The natural resources, industries, arts and crafts of the people will be shown effectively. A palace of education has been constructed, and other buildings are devoted to agriculture, fine arts, government, commerce and industry.

During the exposition a statue of Balboa will be unveiled, with suitable exercises, in which the representatives of the North and South American countries will take part.

During February, when the dry season is at its best, a Mardi Gras festival will be held, and this old Spanish town will be given over to carnival and revelry for a full week.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Today the third episode of that heart gripping serial, "The Red Circle," is an added feature at Proctor's Theatre. This serial is Pathe's latest and has set the whole town talking, for it is by far the best serial ever presented in a local theatre. The Triangle plays presented today include Katherine Kaelred, who is widely known as the greatest vampire actress on the American stage, in a vehicle well suited to her particular talents entitled, "The Winged Idol." She is ably supported by House Peters and a superior cast of screen stars. The Keystone comedy will be "Crooked to the End," in which Fred Mace, one of the greatest of screen comedians, is at his best and keeps the audience in an uproar during the whole two reels of celluloid. The bill of vaudeville provided for this half of the week includes one of the greatest musical comedy revues appearing in vaudeville, Barney Williams and His Summer Girls. Mr. Williams is certainly an excellent comedian and finds favor with the audience at once by his winning way and congenial manner, and he is surrounded by a group of talented artists who sing, dance and perform in a really delightful manner. Other acts on the bill are Heins, Washburn and Gear, who offer a skit entitled "Fun Frolics," and whose act gets over big. Henry Ferrerie, whose offering is of the "somewhat different" type, a novelty in every sense of the word, and Cook and Evans, billed as the versatile duo, who do everything that's of a refined order. Don't forget to come to the big bazaar tomorrow afternoon with the kiddies. The management has made special arrangements to provide extra toys and introduce new comedy stunts. A wagonload of toys have been provided. A big bill of entertaining features have been arranged for next week, the headline vaudeville offering being "The Five Immigrants," one of the most pleasing novelties offered in vaudeville, and consisting of five excellent and talented artists.

PLAN TO SET BOYS AND GIRLS THINKING

Marked Advance in Movement for Vocational Guidance Noted by Experts.

"Probably no prase of the movement for vocational education exhibits clearer evidence of the rapid evolution in thought and practice that is taking place than vocational guidance," says Dr. W. T. Bawden, specialist in industrial education of the United States Bureau of Education, in his annual review of progress for the year 1915, made to the Secretary of the Interior.

"Only a few short months ago vocational guidance was conceived of chiefly as a matter of giving to boys and girls advice in the choosing of a lifework and assisting in the securing of positions. In view of the ambitious attempts made in a few quarters, and especially the claims of a few concerns that have investigated the commercial possibilities of vocational guidance, extravagant expectations have been raised in the popular mind that have not been realized.

"This conception is rapidly passing, however, and among the leaders of the vocational guidance movement the chief function of their work is now regarded as the study of vocational conditions and opportunities and the making of the resulting information available to boys and girls.

"The most important service that can be rendered the individual youth under the name of vocational guidance, is to set him to thinking, at the proper time, about the problem of choosing a lifework as a problem to be seriously faced and prepared for—to make him fully conscious of its existence as a problem to be solved and aware of the sources of data having any bearing on its solution."

Vocational guidance, in its application to college and university students, has been receiving special attention, according to Dr. Bawden. He points out that sooner or later a closer correlation will have to be worked out between the college course and the life of the community for which students are educated.

"Probably the most serious obstacle to progress in vocational guidance is the aloofness of the schoolteacher, under ordinary conditions, from such of the world's work, and the practical difficulties in the way of his knowing very much about certain vastly important phases of it through actual participation or even through close contact.

"Important events during the past year include the offering of a college course for vocational counsellors by Boston University in co-operation with the Vocation Bureau, Boston, Mass., and the announcement by the Tuck School of Finance and Business Administration, at Dartmouth, of a new course for employment managers to consider the problems arising in connection with the examination, employment and training of a staff of employes."

Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast a Splendid Habit

Open sluices of the system each morning and wash away the poisonous, stagnant matter,

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise; splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, can, instead, both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phosphated hot water each morning.

We should drink, before breakfast a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before putting more food into the stomach.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast and it is said to be but a little while until the roses begin to appear in the cheeks. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to make any one who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism a real enthusiast on the subject of internal sanitation. Try it and you are assured that you will look better and feel better in every way shortly.—Adv.

AMERICA IS IN GREATEST DANGER SINCE FORT SUMPTER WAS FIRED ON

SO DECLARES REV. DR. C. A. EATON IN STIRRING ADDRESS ON "NATIONAL PREPAREDNESS" AT THE PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL.

THE COUNTRY NEEDS A REAL ARMY, HE SAYS

Urges a "Call to the Colors" to Organize a Military Force of at Least 300,000 Well Trained Men Who Could Shoot Straight Until the Enemy Quits—Judge W. R. Codington Presides—Dan Runkle Also Speaks.

Declaring that America is in the greatest danger since Fort Sumpter was fired upon, Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton stirred a large audience at the Plainfield High School last night as he pointed out in a forcible, straightforward and impassioned way why this country should be prepared to meet any foe on land or sea. "I make no defense of war, for there is no such argument that can be presented to an American audience," said the doctor, "and when this world now in arms finally reaches the desire of peace, it is to be hoped that men come to believe that there is a better way of settling disputes.

"I am a firm believer in peace, but with arms. There are times when we ought to fight, and I can give you Scripture reference to prove my assertion, for does not the Bible say that we should 'watch, fight and pray.' The man who is too proud to fight should hand his trousers over to his wife, for she would probably get them anyway.

"Fighting does not necessarily mean murder. Here we are a great American community, and as American citizens we are confronted by a great problem. What about America? We should always be prepared to live, fight and die for her. I am afraid that we have forgotten our ideals, even forgotten Americanism. The man who today teaches patriotism renders an invaluable service.

"Once every four years we save the nation, once in awhile for the Democrats and oftener for the Republicans, but there are millions of citizens who do not share our views. America was born out of the great awakening of Europe, from among those who dreamed of a new empire, and this was aided by the German Reformation of the sixteenth century, which set at liberty this freedom we enjoy. Then came the pilgrims, who signed a compact declaring for religious and civil liberty, and the right of a man to worship God according to his own dictates, his equality with his neighbour, to vote as a citizen and to establish a commonwealth with a government of, for and by the people.

"Since then the nation has passed through three important periods: first the pioneer with the Revolutionary War, when our fathers were not too proud to fight and make untold sacrifices. This was a time when, as Benamjin Franklin said, 'the people must hang together or they will hang separately.' It was fortunate for England and mankind that the British were defeated.

"The second period was known as the constitutional age, the birth of the judiciary and our National Congress, a time when our citizens were safer on the high seas than they are today. Then came the third period, the Civil War, which was a scrap between two sets of Americans.

"That war was fought to a finish, and demonstrated once and for all the permanency of the Federal idea. We are now in the period of development, chiefly from an industrial point of view, for ever since the Civil War we have been trying to establish a policy of democracy in industry. Someone has said that a nation is an idea, and patriotism is allegiance to it but we have grown more or less timid, because as a nation we are so rich.

"The world today is so racked and torn that there is no way to redeem it except through the Cross. In Europe millions, and I say it reverently, are doing what Jesus Christ did, giving their lives for a cause. Is America worth living and dying for? America is in the greatest danger since Fort Sumpter was fired upon. The whole sky is illuminated with a struggle between two ideals, one being that power comes from above, and the other that it comes from beneath.

"Belgium had eight millions of people, but today she is wrecked; while Armenians have been slaughtered by the millions during the past months. We as Americans can fall just as easily before a 16-inch shrapnel. We at present would make one of the finest and fattest marks for the enemy. Canada has given a fine demonstration of preparedness from which we may take a lesson. She has sent out a large body of well-equipped and well-trained men. It would take between two and three years to place this country on a proper war basis. England has been making mistakes. All she has been doing has been to find out her weakness and at tremendous cost. If England and the other Allied powers had been prepared this war would have been over in a month. We don't want to prepare for peace, but war, to defend ourselves. We have the money and the men, and the thing to do is to act. Why, there are some people who don't believe there is a war in Europe. Bryan's dove of peace has been cooing to calm the world, but that dove, I think, has a throat affection.

"America cannot today defend her citizens, which is deplorable. Why the other day I read where seven cavalry officers were captured by Mexicans, and I expected the next day to read that our government had advertised for their return. The humblest citizen should be defended by every other citizen of this entire country.

"We must face the facts and be prepared to defend ourselves. We want war ships and lots of them. We want a large army of well-trained men who will shoot straight until the other fellow quits. It is a joke to have an army on the basis of thousands or scores. We should start now and get a real army; call men to the colors and train them, 200,000 or 300,000 strong. I believe in taking the boys of our schools and colleges and giving them a thorough military training.

"There is a Presidential election soon, and the American people will then have an opportunity to have their say. I confess that I am strong for the views of Roosevelt. With all his faults we love him still. But I give Wilson the utmost credit for his efforts to guide the nation straight through troublesome times. He makes mistakes, but all do. When the next election is held there won't be a hyphen left to set up an editorial. It will be a national, a world issue to be settled."

Throughout his talk Dr. Eaton was frequently interrupted by hearty applause. He was introduced by Judge W. R. Codington, president of the Plainfield Branch of the National Security League, under whose auspices the meeting was held, and at the conclusion Dan Runkle, of Troop D, First Squadron Cavalry, and a member of the league, presented the congratulations of the national body, in session at Washington, to the local branch. Before the meeting adjourned a rising vote of thanks was given to Dr. Eaton.

BORO BUDGET IS FIXED FOR 1916

Council Makes Appropriations Amounting to $51,845.

Added Cost of Sewer Work Principal Item That Must Be Met by Taxpayers—Figures for Different Departments.

A budget for the different departments of the borough of North Plainfield totaling $51,345 wah adopted by members of the Borough Council at the meeting held last night. This is an increase of $3,168 over the appropriations of last year, due principally to added expenses in the sewer department.

The special meeting of the Council was short lived. A tentative budget had been decided on at a meeting held Thursday evening and as soon as Mayor Smalley called the meeting to order Councilman Milne submitted this list and moved that the amounts be granted. Action was taken by unanimous vote of those present.

The detailed budget follows:

Borough fund	$ 5,500.00
Police fund	6,250.00
Fire fund	4,000.00
Street fund	10,000.00

DR. GARHART IS ACCUSED BY WIFE

She Charges Non-Support—Makes Bond to Provide Home for Her.

Charging that he had driven her away from home and had refused to support her, Mrs. M. Garhart, wife of Dr. Manch Garhart, pathologist at Muhlenberg Hospital, appeared as complainant against her husband in police court this morning. Dr. Carhart was charged with failing to provide for his wife.

The case occupied all of the morning, and it was almost 1 o'clock when Judge DeMeza finally disposed of the case. It was agreed that Dr. Carhart should provide a home for his wife, and he made a bond acceptable to the court for the carrying out of this promise.

Attorney Martin O'Conner, assistant prosecutor of Union county, appeared for the defendant, and Attorney Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., represented the wife. Mrs. Garhart is but twenty-two years of age. She is a native of Summit. She lived with her husband on Madison avenue, in this city, she said, until three months ago, when she was forced to leave because of his actions toward her. Since that time he has refused to support her, she charged. The case was bitterly contested by the local physician. Repeated attempts upon the part of Judge DeMeza to bring about a reconciliation proved fruitless, and it was only when attorneys and principals were finally brought together in the private office of Jude DeMeza that an agreement was reached whereby the case could be compromised.

Mrs. Garhart is to be given a home and her expenses there will be paid by her husband. Just as soon as this can be arranged she will be cared for.

HOME READY FOR BELGIUM WAIFS

Mrs. Wallace Sees Building as It Will Be Put Together.

IS PERFECT, SHE SAYS

Total Contributions to Belgium Relief Fund Have Reached $3,872.12 and Many Valuable Gifts Have Been Received.

All those who have been interested in the work of the local Belgian Relief Society this winter will be intensely gratified by the report made by Mrs. Wallace on the portable house for the hundred children at La Parvne. Mrs. Wallace left for Boston Wednesday night, and Thursday went to Dover where Mr. Hodgson, the builder, had put together both ends of the building so that she might see exactly what form the gift of the Plainfield people to Belguim had taken. It seems that she found it as nearly perfect as possible; solid, wellbuilt, most attractive and complete in every detail. The sections which are 6 feet long and 9 feet in height are bolted together with iron bolts. These pass through three-inch molding and are kept in place be iron pins. The sections fit so perfectly that the building is as tight as a drum and the fitting together can all be done by ordinary unskilled workmen. The floor is in three sections and is about eight inches thick. The inside of the building is sealed and varnished and is of a nice light color and the outside is painted a pretty French gray with soft green trimmings to match the green roof. The windows which open out are so arranged that as much light as possible is given and Mr. Hodgson has made a gift of green shades for them all. These are on rollers from the bottom and can be hooked at five different heights. All the hardware is of Sargent's best and the chairman could find no fault with any part of the work. Patent fibre used in the air space between the walls and the lining will serve to keep out the cold. Three freight cars were drawn up on the track near the factory to take the house to the boat and a letter was written to Captain Paul Roland Hymens, head of the Queen's household, enclosing a blue print of the building and a key so that the foundation parts can all be put in place before the house arrives.

Mrs. Richard Hale, president of the Dover Belgian Relief, with a number of her committee, called on Mrs. Wallace in the new house and asked that her society be allowed to contribute either some chairs for the building or sheets for the beds. Whatever the society decides to give will be shipped from Boston with the house.

Later Mr. Hicks, one of the vice presidents of the Boston Art Club, who has been supervising the work on the panel for Mrs. Wallace, went with her to Winthrop to see the tablet. It is about four by two and a half feet, of a soft brown tone with a three inch molding of a darker brown. The letters are in black with the initials in red and at the top the Belgian and the American flags crossed and painted on the panel. The wood is four-ply so that it will not warp and Mr. Hicks has promised to screw it on one of the sections himself.

Since the latest meeting, January 10, $694 has been added to the fund, making a total collected since November of $3,872.12. In all 300 blankets, 82 per cent. wool, have been bought, 100 army cots, 75 yards of rubber sheeting, 102 pads, 100 pillows, 2 large rubber tubs and 6 light pails for carrying water. To these have been added gifts of 200 pillow cases; over 100 warm night gowns, a few warm coats and petticoats and dresses and over 100 toy animals.

Among the recent donors are Miss Meta C. Petersen, of New York; T. J. Mumford, Mrs. Ellis Hedges, Mrs. F. W. Wallace, Miss Ada Wetzel, Mrs. George Mellick and John F. Harmon. A special contribution of $79.80, included in the above total, was made by some of the members of the society for the pads and rubber sheeting and the committee on bedding entered warmest thanks to these contributors.

OFFICIALS WILL ATTEND.

The service for men in the Grace M. E. church tomorrow evening will be attended by the postoffice employes and the members of the Juniors, Odd Fellows and the North Republican Club, who will march to the church in separate bodies.

MRS. FORCE GIVEN VERDICT FOR $2,800

Mother of Young Man Killed at Manville Crossing Wins Suit Against Railroad.

The case of Mrs. Catherine Force of Oak Tree, against the Lehigh Valley Railroad, to recover $10,000 damages for the death of her son, Norton Force, in a crossing accident at Manville, on December 4, 1914, came to a conclusion in the Middlesex County Court, at New Brunswick, yesterday afternoon. The plaintiff was awarded $2,800 as administratrix for the son's estate. The case was heard by Judge Lloyd and a jury, with former Senator William C. Gebhardt acting as counsel for Mrs. Force, and Large & Large, of Flemington, representing the defendant company.

The accident which resulted in the death of Norton Force occurred at 6:30 in the morning, as he was driving an auto delivery truck belonging to the Zeek Baking Company, of this city, across the tracks. There was no flagman at the crossing to warn him of any danger, and a special train bore down upon the vehicle. Force was instantly killed and the truck was completely demolished. The Zeek Company brought a separate action in the Somerset County Court last month to recover for the vehicle, receiving a verdict of $1,665. The suit of Mrs. Force was originally scheduled for the Somerset county calendar, but was afterward transferred to Middlesex.

At the time of his death, Norton Force resided in Plainfield and was shortly to have married Miss Matilda Block, daughter of L. L. Block, of Dunellen.

She carried a bouquet of white sweet peas. The bride's sister, Miss Polly Libbey, was maid of honor. Her gown was white silk, covered with silk net, trimmed with white fur. She carried pink roses.

The bridesmaids, the Misses Elizabeth Baldwin, of Paris; Janet Libbey, of Spring Lake, cousins of the bride; Eva G. DUNELLEN YOUTH HELD FOR FORGERY

Passed Bad Checks There and is Arrested in New York.

E. A. Malherbe, a former employe of the H. K. Corbin Company, wanted by the local police for forgery, has been arrested by New York detectives and taken to Schenectady, N. Y., where he is wanted on a similar charge. Malherbe was arrested at Great Neck, Long Island. Chief Mohan received a telegram informing him of the arrest yesterday morning.

Malherbe committed three forgeries in this borough, all of them being checks on the local bank, to which he affixed the signature of H. K. Corbin.

On December 11 he obtained $5.70 from Thomas Fegsbie, the young man in charge of the Union News stand, and $7 from Mrs. Frank Margentino, who conducts a fruit store on North avenue.

With amazing nerve Malherbe ventured to appear in the borough again on the evening of January 3. He went to an Italian boarding house on North avenue and got the proprietor of the place to accompany him to the wholesale liquor establishment of Joseph M. Maier. Malherbe presented a $10 check to Mr. Maier to be cashed. The proprietor of the boarding house, who is a good customer of the establishment, unwittingly told Mr. Maier, who did not know Malherbe, that Malherbe was all right, and Mr. Maier cashed the check.

Malherbe cashed several forged checks in Schenectady and one in Troy. One of the checks which he cashed in Schenectady was for $85.

NEWCORN PREACHES ON A MAN'S SOUL

Eulogy of Mrs. Bertha Hochberger at Meeting of Temple Sholem.

Samuel Rothberg presided at the regular meeting of Temple Sholem held last night. William Newcorn, who has been ill for some time, delivered the sermon. He also paid a tribute to the life of Mrs. Bertha Hochberger, a member of the congregation, who had died during his illness. He told of her life of virtue and service as a mother, a wife and a member of the community. It his sermon Mr. Newcorn said in part:

"When God created man He formed him out of the earth, molding him in His image and called him man. He then breathed His spirit into him quickening life, which spirit has since been known as the soul. God therefore gave to all mankind a precious gift, a pure and spotless soul. The good and pious who make use of this divine gift are permitted to enjoy eternal bliss, but the wicked are debarred from this happiness until their souls are purified from the taint of sin.

"Whether a man is rich or poor, strong or weak, wise or foolish, depends mostly upon the circumstances that surround him from the time of his birth, but whether a man be good or bad, righteous or wicked, depends entirely upon his own free will. The soul of one good man is worth as much as all the earth, because it has been well said, that the soul of a man is larger than the sky and deeper than the ocean."

MAPS PLAY HUGE PART IN BIG WAR

Germans Began Charting Surface a Century Ago.

ALL NATIONS ADOPT SYSTEM

Every Object In Territory Covered by the Maps Shown by Certain Signs Form Basis For All Movements of Troops and Must Be Absolutely Correct—Roads and Footpaths Shown.

In modern warfare and especially in the present world conflict accurate maps are the greatest auxiliary of the armies, and they play a far more important part in the operations than the general public knows. Without them success is impossible.

These maps are worked out with infinite care by special departments of the general staffs of the armies of the different countries. Only officers possessing special training and knowledge are assigned to the work.

The first military topographical bureau was established by the general staff of the Bavarian army nearly a century ago under the direction of General von Naus, who also became famous as a mathematician and daring mountain climber. Other countries, however, were slow to follow the example of Bavaria. In Prussia an exact topographical survey of the country was not undertaken by the general staff until 1862. About the same time the leaders of the Austro-Hungarian army became convinced that the maps then in existence were not sufficient for war.

The Austrian topographical bureau was organized in 1863 under the direction of Captain Julius von Payer, who later became famous as an arctic explorer. France waited still longer and as a result was badly handicapped in the war of 1870-71 by the lack of accurate maps. In this war it is said the French officers were supplied with maps of Germany, but none of France.

All Nations Use System.

During the last forty years all countries are using the same system in the production of the general staff maps. The method seems complicated, but is simple enough. First the country is divided into triangles, the corners of which are marked by church steeples, high poles, trees and other landmarks. Every one of these triangles then is surveyed separately and again divided up into smaller triangles. The corners of these subdivisions are marked by small square granite blocks, which are sunk into the ground so that only their tops are visible.

After the subdivisions have been laid out and marked the officers intrusted with the work draw large maps of every one of them. These maps show the minutest details of the landscape and are then joined and reproduced on a smaller scale by expert draftsmen. In this manner an exact topographical picture of the whole country is obtained.

The general staff maps speak a language of their own. This language is very simple, but must, of course, be understood. Every object in the territory covered by the maps is shown by certain signs. Pine woods are marked by little sharp cones, other woods and trees by groups of small circles and dots, elevations by curves which show the heights of the hills, roads by double and foot paths by single lines.

There are also certain signs for church steeples, mills, ponds, brooks and isolated farmhouses. Nothing is missing, and a man looking at one of these maps and understanding it has the impression of flying over the territory and looking down upon it from a height.

All maps of the general staff have to be absolutely correct. They not only form the basis for movements of troops, but also have to be used by the artillery in ascertaining the distances and finding the range of the positions of the enemy. In this respect the German maps have become world famous, as they are drawn with proverbial German thoroughness.

WHEN CLIFF DWELLERS LIVED

University of Arizona Starts Experiments to Determine Time.

Experiments are being conducted at the University of Arizona, at Tucson, it was learned, in an effort to determine when the Arizona cliff dwellers lived.

The theory of Dr. A. E. Douglas, professor of astronomy at the university, that there is an exact relation between the rainfall and other climatic conditions in [illegible] years with the size of the rings shown in the cross section of the trunk of a tree is being used in connection with the experiments. Trunks of trees used by the cliff dwellers in constructing their dwellings, many of which are still intact, will be compared with the trunk of the largest tree that can be found in Arizona.

If the rings are similar in their characters, the time at which the aborigines inhabited the southwest will be reckoned from the known age of the tree.

5,866 Persons Reported Missing.

Records of the New York police department show that 1,831 persons outside the city and 4,035 living inside the city were reported missing last year. Nearly all of them were found by the police or returned home of their own accord.

Rev. William L. Imes will preach on "Holiness a Christian Ideal" at the 11 o'clock service at Bethel chapel tomorrow.

CONDITIONS ARE WORSE IN MEXICO IS CAPITOL REPORT

Washington, Jan. 22.—The Mexican situation was quiescent today, practically no despatches being received at the State Department. It is reported, however, that the United States government will address a second note to Carranza pointedly asking him to redouble his efforts to capture the murderers of Americans in Chihuahua. The State Department is speculating over the continued silence of Consul General Silliman, who is a department representative with Carranza. No despatches have been received from him for several days, it is stated. A telegram received today by a Republican Senator indicated that conditions are worse today in Mexico than they were forty-eight hours ago, while the temper of the Senate on the Mexican question has been allowed to cool during the brief recess members of both sides are preparing to meet any issue that might arise when the Senate convenes Monday.

Arraigned before Recorder Hand in the borough court this morning Moore was fined $10 and Ferraro $5. Ferraro paid his fine but Moore was unable to do so and at 11 o'clock this morning he was still in the lockup.

One of Nature's Show Places.

Ogden canyon, a deep cleft through the towering Wasatch mountains, overlooking the Great Salt lake, is one of nature's show places, cut in the solid rock by the river which runs through it, the rushing water, from prehistoric times, carrying quantities of sand and gravel which simply filed out the present wonderful canyon. Ogden river was flowing west along its present course before the lofty Wasatch mountains came into existence. The raising of the mountains went on slowly for ages, so slowly that the river kept its place by cutting down its ever rising bed. In no other way can scientists rationally account for a river rising on one side of the range and flowing directly across it.—Argonaut.

Magnetic Storms.

Contrary to the general belief, magnetic disturbances do not begin at the same moment all over the globe. Instead of that they progress around the earth. In the case of abrupt disturbances, which are usually comparatively minute in their effect on the compass needle, the complete passage around the earth requires from three to four minutes. For the bigger effects or for the greater magnetic storms the rate of progression is slower, so that it would take them half an hour or more to pass around the earth completely.

Festival of Minerva.

The most notable festival at Athens was in honor of Minerva. All classes of citizens on this day marched in procession. The oldest went first, then the young men, the children, the young [illegible] matrons and the people of the lower orders. The most prominent object in the parade was a ship propelled by hidden machinery and bearing at its masthead the sacred banner of the goddess.

Curious Lake.

In the center of Kildine, an island in the German ocean, is a curious lake. The surface of its waters is quite fresh and supports fresh water creatures, but deep down it is as salt as the greatest depths of the sea, and salt water fish live in it.

DON'T GIVE UP.

Discouraged Citizens Will Find Comfort In the Experience of a Plainfield Man.

Experience is the modern instructor.

Profit by the experience of others. It may save your life.

The experience of friends and neighbors.

The testimony of Plainfield people Will bring renewed encouragement.

Here is a case in point:

Albert Naylor, musician, 256 East Second street, Plainfield, says: "Several years ago I suffered from an ache in the small of my back and sharp pains when stooping or lifting. I took Doan's Kidney Pills, as I was told they were good for such trouble and by the time I had finished two boxes I was feeling better in every way. I have often recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to people I have heard complaining of kidney trouble."

Price 50 cents, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Naylor had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

TAXI DRIVER TRIED FOR VIOLATING TRAFFIC LAW

Charles Barry, driver of a local taxicab, was arraigned in police court this morning on a charge of violating the traffic ordinance. Complaint was made against him by Edmund Rushmore, of North Plainfield. It was proven in court that Barry was of good character and that he was the support of his mother and Judge De Meza released him on a suspended sentence, with the warning that his license would be forfeited for another offense.

HOCKEY BEE BEGINS TO BUZZ AT HIGH SCHOOL

If the cold weather lasts long enough, Plainfield High School will probably have a hockey team. A number of boys are organizing a team that will probably be recognized as the team to sport the red and blue. Fitch will probably be the only one who will play that was on the former seven, but in Snyder, Henwood, Apgar, Noonan and several other likely candidates on hand a strong team should result. Noonan will probably look after the managerial end of it until the B. A. A. make an appointment.

POLICE GET TWELVE IN RAID ON NEGRO HOME

Twelve dusky sons and daughters of the South, or at least a dozen Afro-Americans imbued with hilarious Southern ideas of enjoyment, made a little too much fuss when they gathered together this morning to celebrate a holiday or something and as a result the celebration ended with a ride not on the program for the event. Capt. Flynn, Lieut. Higgins and Patrolman Welsh, who were not invited, dropped in at the party while it was at its best, and they persuaded all of the guests to accompany them downtown. The ride from 320 East Fourth street, where the merry throng was assembled, to the corner of Fourth and Sycamore, was made in the patrol wagon. All were charged with disorderly conduct. Those arrested were Walter Horton, Mary Jackson, George Jackson, Patricia Conner, Maggie Jackson, Frank Brown, William Walter, Robert Tate, George Robinson, Andrew Smith and Samuel Turirstol. They will be tried before Judge De Meza, Monday morning.

EDWARD SKINNER'S FUNERAL.

John Y. Broek, of Trinity Reformed church, assisted by members of Queen City Lodge, I. O. O. F., who held the Odd Fellow burial ceremonies. There were numerous flowers, set pieces being contributed by the Metropolitan Insurance Company, with which Mr. Skinner was connected for twenty-five years, and the local Odd Fellows. Burial was in Hillside cemetery, members of the Odd Fellows acting as pallbearers, as follows: George Pearson, Charles Ludgate, Fred Rose, Charles Meyer, Stanley Pearson and Joseph A. Neill.

HUERTA WAS A POOR INDIAN.

With No Advantages He Became the Strong Man of Mexico.

General Victoriano Huerta, who died in El Paso the other day, was eulogized by his friends, who declared that he was the Napoleon of Mexico. His enemies have denounced him as the most unscrupulous dictator Latin America ever knew, as the murderer of President Madero, a traitor to his country, as a man become rich by despoiling his nation's treasury.

But this has been conceded by enemies and friends alike—that he was one of the strongest men that Mexico has seen in recent years.

His rise was all the more startling in view of his early upbringing. Victoriano Huerta was a full blooded Indian. He was born in Colotlan, state of Jalisco, on Dec. 23, 1854. Colotlan was an Indian village, and Huerta's parents were peons of the lowest class. The boy, dressed in a cheap cotton tunic and without shoes or hat, was like thousands of Indian boys in Mexico, playing in the dirt and living chiefly on beans.

However, the village priest taught him to read and write, and it was this fact which gave Huerta his chance to enter the army.

When he was eighteen years old General Donata Guerra passed through Colotlan on his way to quell a small rebellion. He needed the services of a clerk, and Huerta got the job. Thrown into close relations with Guerra the boy told the general that it was his ambition to join the army. Guerra took him to Mexico City and prevailed upon President Diaz to appoint Huerta to the Chapultepec Military academy. In 1876 Huerta was graduated.

For the next thirty years he led the life of an army officer, and after that his history is well known.

AMERICA MANUFACTURING DYES FORMERLY IMPORTED.

Coal Tar Products Made Here as Good as the Foreign Brands.

American dye works are now turning out coal tar colors at the rate of 15,000 tons annually, and a report on the present dyestuff situation just issued by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce of the department of commerce calls attention to the importance of the fact that these colors are being manufactured wholly from American raw material.

Before the war started we manufactured only 3,300 tons of coal tar colors, made mostly from imported intermediaries. The report points out, however, that the total imports of artificial colors before the war were something like 25,000 tons, so that the color using industries even now are not getting near their normal supplies. The necessity for continued efforts on the part of all concerned in the establishment of an American dyestuff industry is apparent.

The manufacture of coal tar crudes in this country has assumed large proportions, states Dr. Norton, the author of the report, but owing to the great demand for such products in the manufacture of explosives the dye works have not had the supplies they needed. Nevertheless, there are now seventeen firms engaged in manufacturing intermediates, and twelve firms are turning out the finished dyes. One of the features of the bureau's report is an up to date list of the firms engaged in these lines.

Dr. Norton insists that the United States is to have a permanent dyestuff industry. The textile and allied industries, he says, are united in the determination that the country shall never again be exposed to such a famine as it has recently experienced. The large organizations of dyestuff users have expressed a willingness to bear the burden of higher prices than prevailed before the war if necessary. Most of the companies engaged in manufacturing coal tar compounds are planning to continue their production along the lines already taken up and to enlarge such production or enter upon the manufacture of additional intermediaries or finished dyes as circumstances warrant.

EXPORT OF MUNITIONS.

Report Submitted to Congress Shows We Have Sold $121,742,937 Worth.

Exportation of arms and munitions of war from the United States to foreign countries during the fifteen months from August, 1914, to October, 1915, totaled $121,742,937, according to the estimate submitted to the senate by the department of commerce in response to a resolution introduced by Senator Stone, chairman of the foreign relations committee.

The figures do not include the exportation of dynamite.

During the fifteen months the value of the exportations were summarized as follows:

Cartridges, $25,475,184; gunpowder, $29,572,903 or 40,221,239 pounds; other explosives, $53,581,225; firearms, $13,413,625.

You can make your task of "buying for the home" either a very irksome one or a very interesting and pleasant one. A habit of ad-study will make it ALWAYS INTERESTING and always fr-V of ECONOMY POSSIBILITIES.

The spot-light of full publicity, turned on a store, reveals and places in that full light a store's defects—if it have defects. For example: If high prices prevail, or lines of goods are not kept up to date, the reader of the store advertisements knows it. It follows that advertising "pays" the store that renders real service—and would not pay the other kind of a store.

ORDERS ARE NOW BEING DEFERRED

Pending Clearance of Railroads and More Certain Delivery of Materials.

FEELING THE MARKET

Notwithstanding Bright Outlook, Prospective Builders Are Cautious Owing to Present Uncertain Conditions.

New York, Jan. 22.—Building materials are emerging from their dull season with a healthy inquiry, but actual orders are being deferred pending clearance of railroads and more certain delivery dates for metal products. According to distributors in the wholesale market, the high price of materials has not interfered with spring delivery orders, but there are some retailers who are convinced that the reason building projects, as shown by plan filings so far this year, make no better comparisons with those ruling in January of last year, is directly traceable to hesitancy on the part of speculative builders.

Francis N. Bowland, president of the Building Material Dealers Association, of New York, and former president of the Building Material Exchange, expressed the thought of dealers when he said:

"The manufacturers of building materials ought not to be deluded by appearances of present building prosperity. It is still in the middle of winter, and while the inquiry is good, the prospective builders for the most part are merely feeling the market. High prices of building materials will be sure to frighten off the speculative builder, and the big operator who contemplates construction is going to be tied up by non-arrival of steel and other metals entering into big building construction. It is all right to excuse the present tendency to inflate market prices of building commodities on the plea that supplies are low, labor is costing more and fuel is costly and has to be laid in now to anticipate possible coal shortages in the spring, but unless the manufacturers heed the advice of wise heads among them, they are going to stifle what building demand does exist, and will end by having their stocks on their hands. We have an operation on Twenty-eighth street that was started last September, but we have not been able to get a pound of steel to the job since then. That is only one instance, but it shows just what is happening in all departments of construction. It is no time to check building. Quite on the other hand, it would be most advantageous all around to meet the situation half way."

On the other hand, there is a stiffness to market prices that seems well justified, according to a brick manufacturer. "We are laying in coal now in anticipation of difficulty of getting it later in the season, when we open up," said a Hudson river manufacturer yesterday. "Suppose a strike does occur in April at the coal mines, where would the price of common brick go with the scanty supply on hand now and the still lower reserves after the building season opens, especially if we were unable to get coal. Coal bought at winter prices costs more than when it is bought far in advance, but it has to be stored, and somebody has to pay the additional cost."

Portland cement exports continue to strengthen, thereby helping to further stiffen domestic prices by further draining the mill supplies. The demand on Lehigh Valley mill capacity for the first twenty days in January is three times as great as it was in January of last year. Two orders for Portland cement for export are now being filled, totaling in all 22,000 barrels. There are inquiries for approximately 3,000,000 barrels now pending.

Plate and window glass have sharply advanced. In some cases the change amounts to between 20 and 30 per cent. upward. Window glass has stiffened on quotations here. Further increases are expected. Linseed oil has gone far above normal prices, being quoted today at 73 and 75 cents a gallon. Structural steel has passed the twenty-cent mark and is now quoted at tidewater on a 2.165c. level. Tin plate is expected to move up to $4. Common brick from the Hudson district is now quoted at $8.50, but the supply here is low, and the Hudson has eight inches of ice above Haverstraw, with little chance of it breaking up for five days at least. Raritan river brick is out of the market, as far as the Sayre & Fisher Co. is concerned, with relation to new business. It is not taking orders until it has caught up with pending contract deliveries. The Staten Island plants are well sold, and no Connecticut brick is available here.

J. P. HOMAN PLANS BIG IMPROVEMENTS

Old Established Business at 29 Somerset Street to Undergo Numerous Changes.

James P. Homan, one of the oldest wagon builders and blacksmiths in this vicinity, has completed plans for a general rearrangement of his shop at 29 Somerset street, the borough. The big space on the first floor of the building is to undergo a general remodeling previous to making it an automobile display room, which will be conducted in conjunction with Mr. Homan's other work. A hardwood floor, new wooden ceiling and an entirely new plate glass front are among the improvements.

In the rear of the present structure there is to be built a brick addition, 29 by 60 feet, one story in height. Mr. Homan will remove his blacksmith department to this new part. It will be fitted up with all up-to-date appliances for general carriage, automobile and blacksmith work. Charles L. Force has the general contract for the improvements and will do the carpenter work. William C. Smith will do the mason work and Den J. Galbraith the plumbing. The work will be commenced within the next few days.

IN THE SUBURBS

The Apgar Construction Company, of Dunellen, has been awarded the contract for building a fine modern house for Henry Smalley on the portion of the Frank O. Nelson farm which he purchased, and where he intends to make his home. The new house will be one of the popular seven room and bath variety. The contract was signed on Tuesday and work will begin right away.

Near New Brunswick, a big manufacturing concern finds its business growing so rapidly, and the problem of housing its employes so pressing, that it has established a real estate bureau and is soliciting co-operation with the neighboring real estate promoters and property owners in building up the section around its plant. It is literally begging for co-operation and asks all persons having facilities to take boarders or lodgers or persons who can provide board without rooms to get in communication with the plant. How long before a similar state of affairs will exist around New Market, Dunellen's factory suburb. Incidentally, what a splendid illustration of the prosperity of America.

The Apgar Construction Company of Dunellen, is now making improvements and repairs to the large store in the Dealaman building, corner North and Washington avenues, soon to be occupied by the Union Pacific Tea Company.

BUILDING TAKES ON NEW LEASE OF LIFE

Inspector T. O. Doane Issues Four Permits During the Past Week.

For the first time since the new year was ushered in business in the office of Inspector T. O. Doane took on a new lease of life during the past week in the way of building applications. A total of four permits was issued representing an outlay of $15,000, making the total for the month of January so far $22,468. Two of these permits were for new buildings and the other two for alteration jobs one of the latter being the improvements to the new home of the Daily Press at 193 North avenue. These will represent an outlay of $2,500. One of the other permits is for the new home of former Councilman Frank L. Holt, to be located on Kensington avenue, and a description of which was given in these columns several weeks ago. Alexander Milne will do the entire work at a cost of $7,000.

The other permit for new work was issued to C. P. & L. C. Whitall for a modern dwelling of Colonial architecture, to be erected on Martine avenue. The building will be of frame construction, will be two and a half stories high and will cost $5,500. The first floor will contain three rooms and reception hall, while four sleeping rooms will occupy the second story. One room will be finished off on the third floor. A modern and up-to-the-minute laundry is to be installed in the basement. A hot water heating system is also to be installed. Marsh & Gette are the architects, while Frank McInerney is the mason contractor and Jeremiah I. Manning the carpenter contractor.

A set of plans was filed by John Goodman, of 1103 West Fifth street, and covers the erection of a 6 by 21 foot, two story frame addition to the residence which Mr. Goodman occupies. C. L. Force has the general contract for this work, which will cost about $200.

IMPROVING RESIDENCE.

George Giddes, Jr., has secured a permit from the Borough Council for an addition to his residence at Watchung avenue and Pearl street. It is to be of brick, 17 by 18 feet in dimensions. John Higgins will do the mason work and Ralph Bullman the carpentering.

IS IT SAFE TO BUILD IN WINTER?

Contractors Say Cold Weather Should Not Hold up Constructive Work.

GIVE THEIR REASONS

With Modern Methods Operations Can Be Carried on in Almost as Great Volume in Freezing Weather as in Summer.

Building contractors throughout the State have been engaged in a controversy during the past few weeks over the pros and cons of doing building work in cold weather, whether or not it is safe and what preventatives should be taken to avoid freezing. The discussion has reached this city and a Daily Press building page representative secured the following interview from a local contractor:

"With modern construction methods, building work is carried on in almost as great volume in the winter months as in summer. It is thoroughly proper that this should be so and there is no reason why such construction should not be of the highest standard in every respect.

"Architects and builders must understand, however, that construction methods must be adapted to weather conditions, and that the methods used in the summer time may produce disastrous results if continued throughout the winter. Certain precautionary measures are necessary to counteract the effects of freezing, and these are usually very simply applied.

"It is a notable fact that accidents in construction due to cold weather are more frequent in the fall months than in the extreme cold of winter. This is no doubt due partly to the careless workmanship arising from the desire to rush work to completion before the arrival of winter. Also, the sudden coming of cold weather has no doubt found the contractor unprepared to meet the new conditions before the damage due to freezing has been done.

"In the late fall, although the weather is not extremely cold, it is usually hovering near the freezing mark, and is always accompanied by great humidity and frosty nights. These atmospheric conditions are such that even though they do not cause actual freezing of cement and mortars they greatly retard their setting. In fact, the material may be chemically dormant for weeks at a time.

"The contractor, if he relies on his summer experience, believes that his materials have had sufficient time to properly harden to support their loads, and upon removal of temporary false work, may have an accident on his hands. He never should take chances in materials of this kind, but should convince himself by actual tests that his materials have developed their full strength.

"Simple precautions will avoid all troubles. The danger of cold weather lies very largely in the freezing of the materials used in the construction. Therefore, the one thing to do is to avoid this freezing by heating the materials, by covering the completed work with insulated materials such as canvas, etc., and by enclosing the building and heating the interior with burning salamandars.

"The point of the matter is—don't let the materials freeze and don't remove centering too soon and there can be no possibility of trouble. If any concrete should have become seriously frozen, by all means remove and replace it, even though it may possibly thaw out and reset. See that the same rigid standards of inspection and workmanship are maintained throughout the cold weather. Under such conditions the building erected in winter will prove of highest quality, sometimes even superior to the summer construction."

ARRANGING SERIES.

John Duffy will go to Elizabeth tonight to arrange for a bowling series between members of the Knights of Columbus of Elizabeth and this city. The series will be between rollers who became acquainted at Keansburg last summer.

COYNE TO ROLL WEBER.

A match between Teddy Coyne, of the New Brunswick Elks' team, and Al Weber, of Elizabeth, will be arranged. One series will be rolled on Bock's Tuxedo alleys, in Elizabeth, and the other on Greenwald's chutes in New Brunswick.

SPICERS AT HOPE.

Only one game will take place this evening in the Hope chapel gymnasium. The Hope second team will play the Spicers.

The Tragedy

When Brother Tommy shines his shoes with very special care
And stands before the glass to choose the tie that he shall wear,
When he discards the little caps that perched above one ear
And says that all the other chaps are wearing hats this year,
When he invests in scarfpins made of imitation pearl
His mother's mortally afraid that Tommy's got a girl.

No more he sneers at light gray spats or coats with swallowtails,
Nor calls the fellows sissycats that clean their finger nails.
He doesn't think it's wasting time to brush their tousled locks.
He doesn't hold that it's a crime for boys to wear silk socks.
And, viewing with extreme alarm his newborn fear of dirt,
His mother seeks the magic charm and finds it—it's a skirt.

And though she bravely makes believe it brings her happiness,
That she no longer has to grieve because he hates to dress,
And though she says that she is glad that he's so trim and neat—
Far more, indeed, than is his dad—when he goes on the street,
Her eyes grow dim, for well she knows that nothing can restore
Her little smudgy boy to her—the way he was before.

EDISON BATTERY IS USED BY ONE EUROPEAN NATION.

Inventor's Representative Defends Apparatus on Submarine E-2.

Thomas A. Edison's personal representative and chief engineer, Dr. Miller Reese Hutchison, has declared that Mr. Edison's submarine safety battery was in use in the war in Europe. Up to that moment it had been supposed that the United States had an option on the exclusive use of the device if the tests to which it was to be subjected proved satisfactory.

The announcement came while Dr. Hutchison was defending the Edison battery in the E-2, in which there was an explosion in the Brooklyn navy yard, against hints and suggestions that the battery had created the hydrogen gas that is supposed to have wrecked the interior of the boat, killed four men and injured ten. As to the use of the Edison battery in the European war, Dr. Hutchison said:

"The Edison cells have been in use on submarines for a long time, although this is not generally known. Mr. Edison is not in the munitions business, and he has not sold any since the war, but before that three submarines of a certain European power were fitted with these batteries. They have not met with any accident.

"One of them has sunk seventeen vessels, and another recently sank a transport filled with troops and the cruiser that was convoying the transport. Two of the United States navy's big floating cranes, one at Hawaii and the other at the Boston navy yard, have used the Edison battery since 1913 without a sign of trouble."

The British submarine E-19 may be one of the three indicated by Mr. Hutchison. In the October campaign against German commerce in the Baltic she was credited with sinking fifteen ships up to the end of that month, and four more were sunk two days later, two of them credited to the same boat. There have been reports from uncensored sources of British submarines doing effective work in the eastern Mediterranean against troopships and transports, and the E-19 may have been sent there.

WAR COST $73,000,000 A DAY

Germany and Her Allies Spend $20,000,000 and Entente Powers the Rest.

After prolonged study of all available statistics Alfred Neymarck, French economist, finds that the daily cost of the war to five of the belligerents has attained $73,000,000, divided as follows:

Germany, including advances to her allies, $20,000,000; France, $16,000,000; Great Britain, $19,000,000; Russia, $13,000,000; Italy, $5,000,000.

Italy's expenses must rise to over $6,000,000 daily, however, for by the end of July she will have spent $3,000,000,000 altogether. The belligerent war loans to the end of last October totaled $24,000,000,000, of which the United States supplied $900,000,000. The allies have borrowed $14,000,000,000 and the central empires $10,000,000,000.

The year's test is officially recognized by the American Red Poll Cattle club, with headquarters at Gotham, Wis.

During the year Beauty produced 20,280 pounds of milk, containing 891 pounds of butter fat.

ARMY OF 200,000 NEEDED IN MEXICO

Experts Figure Intervention Would Cost Huge Sum.

BANDITS LACK AMMUNITION

If War Should Finally Come, Fighting Would Be Different From That In Europe, as Mexicans Would Hide In the Hills and Take Pot Shots at Our Troops.

In spite of the many disastrous changes Mexico has undergone since the overthrow of the Diaz regime, military experts of the United States who are studying the problem insist that the pacification of the country could not be accomplished satisfactorily with fewer than 200,000 men.

Although warfare has impoverished the southern republic, it has brought to the people certain military advantages which can be obtained only through experience. The men who have been engaged in revolutionary activity are veterans in their peculiar kind of warfare. They know the country in which the fighting would be done. They have adapted themselves to the rigors of the field. Their losses in resources are probably more than offset by what they have gained in military experience.

For this reason American army officers who have come in contact with them on the border are of the opinion that the Mexican soldier of today is much more formidable as a fighting unit than he was five years ago or before the revolution began.

Lacking in Ammunition.

In only one respect are they likely to be at a disadvantage. That is the lack of ammunition. The ending of the embargo [illegible] enabled them to secure a [illegible] adequate supply of firearms. [illegible] obsolete in the fighting [illegible] the contending forces [illegible] a military, some of it French [illegible] of a very modern type. The Mexicans [illegible] displayed some ingenuity in manufacturing weapons in the capture [illegible] of the Southern Pacific railroad.

There are also [illegible] well equipped which might be used to furnish a small supply of ammunition.

It is probable, however, that at the present time there is not enough ammunition in the country and not enough could be obtained to carry on defensive operations of any importance in the face of a well equipped invading army.

But officers of the general staff of the army believe that the lack of ammunition in Mexico [illegible] likely to play a decisive part in a campaign in that country as it would, for example, in such warfare as is now being carried on in Europe, for the reason that warfare in Mexico would not consist of the clash of opposing armies, but guerrilla fighting carried on by scattered bands of soldiers to whom the mountains and desert country would afford innumerable hiding places.

Taft Estimates High.

It was estimated by officers of the general staff during the administration of President Taft that the pacification of Mexico would require 500,000 men and $10,000,000 a day for two years. This was probably an extreme estimate.

But army officers today who have given close study to the situation are not disposed to think the task could be accomplished with less than 200,000 men and possibly many more. It is estimated that 200,000 at least would be required to control the entire country. How many more than that would be necessary would depend on the attitude of the Mexicans, whether they would accept the situation and confess defeat or prolong the fighting indefinitely.

In arriving at these figures the military experts of course consider any contingency and assume that it would be necessary to sweep the country from the Rio Grande to the southern border. In preparing for intervention, however, there are various elements to be considered and various plans of action to be decided upon.

The most important question that would confront the United States if it decided to act would be whether it could do so with the acquiescence of General Carranza or whether he as well as Pancho Villa and the other scattered revolutionary leaders are to be counted as opponents. The possibility that Carranza could prevent even his own supporters from taking up arms to repel the "gringoes" is considered doubtful.

Outrages to Start Trouble.

Army officers who have been on the border are of the opinion that the recent outrages in Mexico have been perpetrated by Villa to force intervention and reestablishes himself as the military leader of the country in the outburst of patriotic fervor that such action would evoke.

Carranza has never been the type of fighting man that appeals to the Latin American temperament. Other generals have fought his battles against Villa, and it is not unreasonable to suppose that old scores would be forgotten and that Villa the bandit would be succeeded by Villa the general as the figure around whom the patriotism of Mexico would rally to fight a foreign invader.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, JANUARY 22, 1916.

On Saturdays the editorial columns of the Daily Press are conducted by citizens who are free to express their own views. The contributing editor for today is Hon. William L. Smalley, Mayor of the Borough of North Plainfield.

PREPARDNESS.

Preparedness is but a synonym for preservation. To be prepared means to live, and I am not only speaking of a nation, but a municipality, a community or an individual.

Citizens of the Borough of North Plainfield believe in preparedness. That is, in preparedness for the community and I believe that a large majority of them would approve President Wilson's policy of national preparedness if it were put to a vote in the borough. They have shown that they want to prepare for all things in life by paying for an efficient fire department, by providing for a brave and trustworthy police force and in many other ways. When there is a fire in the Borough the owner of the property ablaze does not call the mayor and report that it is time to organize a fire department as his home is being burned. He simply turns in an alarm and the ever-ready department, prepared for such work, turns out equipped to save property and lives. If there is a riot in our section those in danger do not call to request that we arm and drill a few policemen to protect them. They call police headquarters and soon one or two policemen, equipped to cope with the situation, have quieted the disturbance.

That is preparedness for a community. Preparedness for an individual means education, health preservation and the equipping of brain and body for conflict with the world.

Preparedness for a nation means preparedness for war, for only by preparing for war can we insure peace. Might does not make right, but without might right cannot triumph, at least not in this advanced age of rivalry for wealth and power. We have but to look at Europe for a few moments; to read the history that has been written within the past nineteen months, to learn the lesson of preparedness. It is written before our eyes in letters of blood. Belgium and Montenegro did not seek war. They fought just as hard to preserve their people in peace as we are doing, but they fought in vain. Greece has made a wonderful fight for her neutrality but she, too, will soon be ravaged by the armies of belligerent nations, even if her own soldiers are not drawn into the conflict. Certainly there is a lesson for the United States. These little countries could not have stayed the advance of the Men of Mars had they been able to muster every man as a soldier, but we can learn from them that no country is safe when it stands in the way of a race of men imbued with an insatiate greed for power, and we can prepare so that we will not be the next to suffer.

A soldier cannot be made in a day, neither can he be equipped in a week. From a military standpoint the United States is pitifully weak. A short time ago it was officially announced that the Serbian army had been "exterminated." It had been completely destroyed by the Germans and Austrians. Only a mere 100,000 men were left. 100,000 men! If that is "extermination" then the United States army has been dead since the Spanish-American war. That is far beyond the present strength of our trained forces. While we share the sorrow of little Serbia over the loss of her army let us frankly admit that the half-starved, poorly-equipped little band of officially "exterminated" soldiers presents a more formidable military front than that of the entire United States Army. It is a humiliating thought, but an honest one.

We are not a nation of cowards. We love peace, but we want only on honorable peace, a peace that is American, so why not arm our men and train them in the ways of war that we may have peace always.

W. L. SMALLEY.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Proctor's Theatre is enjoying more patronage and prosperity than in several years, and this is attributed mainly to the excellent entertainments. The program of Triangle plays, the best phpoto-plays made, together with the vaudeville bills furnishes an afternoon's or evening's amusement that is both refined and entertaining. The Triangle plays booked for the first half of the week include two strong offerings. Orrin Johnson, one of the greatest of "legitimate" stars, appears with the assistance of Seena Owen, in "The Penitents," the second of D. W. Griffith's historical dramas, which deals with the history of Mexico in the seventeenth century. Ford Sterling, that popular Keystone comedian, dons a new disguise and appears as a negro footman in "The Hunt," the latest product of the Keystone studios, and a corking good comedy. You cannot help but laugh at Sterling's antics. The vaudeville presented Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday is of a high class type and includes one of the most gorgeous productions in vaudeville, namely, The Five Immigrants, who present a charming operatic extravaganza with the aid of exquisite scenic and lighting effects. Others who contribute to the entertainment are Lucille Savoy and Company, a choice offering introducing exquisite posing numbers, and also some delightful singing. This act carries a special set of scenery and the lighting effects are simply wonderful. Harry Meehan is one of those congenial chaps who has that breezy way about him that is contagious, and his offering of up-to-date jokes and parodies will be greeted with delight. Ollie Hollis is a clever entertainer who does a variety of turns and does them well. On Wednesday night a special comedy stunt has been arranged for during the big bazaar and there will be plenty of gifts and lots of fun for all the patrons.

PEDDIE INSTITUTE GOSPEL TEAM WILL VISIT HERE

An unusual service is planned for tomorrow morning at the Park Avenue Baptist church. The "Flying Squadron," of Peddie Institute, will be present and conduct the service. This is a group of enthusiastic students led by the student pastor, Rev. W. A. Spinney. About a year ago there was a revival in the school that caused every boy to declare himself positively for Christ.

The enthusiasm settled into the organization that goes out to hold such services as is planned here. There are about a half dozen in the party and the service consists in short addresses by the boys and some musical numbers. Dr. Spinney will also make a short address. Those who are present will surely enjoy this inspiring visitation. In the evening the pastor, Dr. Hudson, will preach a sermon to men on the subject, "When Manhood Is Master."

Bacon

Bacon is what effective work is said to bring home the.

Also it is what everybody is anxious to save.

Bacon is sliced from either the port or bow sides of a common hog.

Some cooks know how to cook it, but others are in the majority.

The average hotel cook who went to hotel-cooking because he had failed at everything else, knows two ways to cook bacon: One way leaves it so you can crumble it between your thumb and finger and never get a grease spot. The other way just opens its pores fairly, and leaves the bacon a nice, greasy blonde.

As nobody wants it either way, the bacon is cooked purely as a piece of scenery beside the guests' plates.

Bacon is one part of the hog that, when properly prepared, may be eaten either with impunity or eggs, three hundred and sixty-some mornings in the year.

The cooks in the corn belt of Iowa, who work nights at the restaurant near the junction, cut the bacon themselves, and the slices are half an inch thick.

As an article of food they would be fine to tie over a black eye after a fight.

Any man who could eat one of those rashers is either drunk or a wilful liar.

Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

A Doctor's Handicap

THE FAMILY DOCTOR comes in for his share of abuse from the public rather conspicuously these days of specialization, and though he may deserve much of the criticism heaped upon him, assuredly he does not deserve it all.

Unfortunately the average patient expects the family physician to divine much that the specialist learns through many routine laboratory tests. Somehow a patient is willing to have any sort of examination or test the specialist suggests, regardless of expense; not so when the family doctor requires such help. Unless the latter can satisfy the patient that the test is likely to disclose important facts bearing upon the diagnosis and treatment of the condition, it is scarcely tactful to request the patient to have the test made. We have cited instances in this column; any family physician could quote similar instances.

Some one asked us recently to define an "internist." It was a difficult query to answer. An internist is a general practitioner of medicine who can and does persuade all of his patients to undergo whatever scientific tests or examinations he may deem helpful in the diagnosis of the case. Often enough the internist, with the aid of his corps of laboratory workers and special assistants, hits upon a diagnosis which has naturally baffled the family doctor. In that event the internist is hailed as a great physician. Had the family doctor been permitted to put the same patient to the expense necessary for such tests as the internist deemed indispensable—well, if this were the rule of practice, we don't think there would be any internists.

Specialism in medicine is a great blessing. But at the same time the modern fashion of running around to this and that specialist is doing harm. A good family doctor, one worthy of a patient's confidence, will generally suggest a specialist when he thinks a specialist's services necessary. The patient, or rather the invalid who picks his own specialist often picks a lemon—if we may be permitted the expression. As a matter of fact the better specialists, not the mercenary ones, do not welcome such patients; they depend upon the cases referred to them by the family doctor for advice or treatment. And when the remarkable financial success of the advertising quack specialist (the all-round specialist in whatever you think ails you) is considered it is evident, we think, that the family doctor is the best judge of a specialist's ability.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Apoplexy Versus Paralysis

Kindly explain the difference between apoplexy and a stroke of paralysis.

Answer—Apoplexy means hemorrhage into the substance of an organ, usually the brain. A stroke of paralysis is most commonly caused by cerebral apoplexy. Nerve centers in the brain are pressed upon by the blood clot, producing paralysis in certain muscle groups supplied from the damaged centers.

CONNECTICUT

CONNECTICUT IS A NARROW strip of land along Long Island Sound which is used as a right of way by several lines of railroad and automobile speedways leading into New York. It is a sort of back porch to New York City, in fact, and its name is a corruption of the two words "Connect" and "Ticket," the two principal topics of conversation among a large majority of the citizens.

Connecticut is a pleasant state filled with pleasant towns which are anywhere from thirty minutes to 150 years away from New York. Its population in the daytime is about 500,000, but this swells to over a million at night, providing everyone catches the last train home. Owing to the fact that Broadway is within easy walking distance, almost all the big theatrical managers try their new plays on Connecticut audiences. If the State ever becomes unpopular it will be because of the plays which she did not discourage.

The chief products of Connecticut are firearms, pocket knives and college graduates. Connecticut is one of the most peaceable States in the Union, never having been known to turn a rascal out, but it furnishes the weapons by means of which the quarrels of the whole country are carried on. No western or southern quarrel is considered a success unless it is eked out by a nickel-plated undertaker's friend from Connecticut.

Connecticut is chiefly famous as the seat of Yale University, a magnificent institution of learning which is only scored upon about once in every three years. Yale is situated at New Haven except after a football victory, when it overflows into three States. It contains more than 2,500 students, each one of whom believes that the rest of the country has been settled in order to furnish an admiring audience for his university. New York is full of captains of finance who hope in time to become famous by having a son on the Yale football team.

Yale is a very wealthy school and if its old graduates continue to die off and leave their money to the college at the present rate, each student will eventually have an individual dormitory. Its students are very democratic, the captain of a university team being often seen with his arm over the shoulders of some common senator's son.

Connecticut has never produced a president, but it educated the present incumbent. Its capital is Hartford, a handsome city which shudders every time a fire alarm is sounded anywhere in the United States. It is the fire insurance center of the country and there have been no automobiles bought in the town since the San Francisco earthquake.

Views Of The Press

Dr. Washington's Successor

THE NEW PRESIDENT of Tuskegee College, which was brought to so high a state of usefulness under the leadership of the late Booker T. Washington, Major R. B. Moton, comes from the institution where Booker Washington was educated, Hampton, and though he was not under the instruction of that eminent educator, General Armstrong, there is reason to believe that he leaves Hampton well fitted to be president of Tuskegee, though it is too much to hope that for some time to come he will fully fill the place of Dr. Washington.

Major Moton will not only have the good wishes of his own race, but those of the entire Southern people and all people of the north who know of the great value of the college built up by Booker T. Washington. He can hardly hope to improve upon the policies, so wisely chosen and splendidly carried out, of the great leader and educator whom he succeeds.

Washington had come up from slavery, as the new president did not, and he peculiarly knew his people and their needs, and how important it was to them, to the people of the South and the whole country that they be led in such directions as would make them most useful to themselves. He did not imbue them with the belief that the presidency was within their reach, that they were fitted for supreme court, other judges and high statesmanship and that it was wise for them to seek election to state and the national legislature.

His whole effort was to impress upon their minds to do those things which they could do and do them as well as it was in their power to do them. By carrying out this policy he won the respect of the Southern people and he has conferred a greater blessing upon his race than any individual, other than Lincoln, ever has conferred.

May his successor be equally fortunate in the great undertaking.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

THE MAN OF WHOM WE NEVER HEAR

People's Legal Friend

A Question Of Handwriting

In the trial of a certain Ellison for felonious assault upon William Henriques, who had brought Mr. Ellison's attentions to his daughter, Mrs. Lila Noeme, to a sudden close by forbidding him his house, the authenticity of some letters, alleged to have been written by Mrs. Noeme to Mr. Ellison, was brought in question. The lady herself had strenuously denied that the alleged compromising documents had ever been written by her.

Counsel for Ellison had evidently framed his whole cross-examination of Mrs. Noeme upon these letters, and made a final effort to introduce them in evidence by calling Mr. Ames, a well-known expert in handwriting. He deposed to have closely studied the letter in question, in conjunction with an admittedly genuine specimen of the lady's handwriting, and gave it as his opinion that they were all written by the same hand. Ellison's counsel then offered the letters in evidence, and was about to read them to the jury when the assistant district attorney asked permission to put a few questions.

District Attorney—"Mr. Ames, as I understand you, you were given only one sample of the lady's genuine handwriting, and you base your opinion upon that single exhibit: is that correct?"

Witness—"Yes, sir, there was only one letter given me, but it was quite a long one, and afforded me great opportunity for comparison."

D. A.—"Would it not assist you if you were given a number of her letters with which to make a comparison?"

Witness—"Oh, yes, the more samples of genuine handwriting, the more valuable my conclusion would become."

D. A. (taking from among a bundle of papers a letter, folding down the signature and handing it to the witness)—"Would you mind taking this one and comparing it with the others and then tell us if that is in the same handwriting?"

Witness (after examining letter)—"Yes, it is the same."

D. A.—"Is it not a fact, sir, that the same individual may write a variety of hands upon different occasions and with different pens?"

Witness—"Yes, sir, they might vary somewhat."

D. A. (taking a second letter and folding over the signature in the same manner)—"Won't you kindly take this letter, also, and compare it with the others you have?"

Witness (examining letter)—"It is the same penmanship."

And a third letter was given the same verdict. "Of course," added the witness hastily, "I am not swearing to a fact; only to an opinion."

D. A. (good-naturedly)—"Of course I understand; but it is your honest opinion, as an expert, that these three letters are all in the same handwriting?"

Witness—"I say it is my honest opinion."

D. A.—"Now, sir, won't you please turn down the edge where I folded over the signature to the first letter I handed you, and read that signature aloud to the jury?"

Witness (unfolding the letter and reading triumphantly)—"Lila Noeme."

D. A.—"Please unfold the second and read the signature."

Witness (reading) — "William Henriques."

D. A.—"Now the third, please."

Witness (hesitating and reading with much embarrassment)—"Frank Ellison!" (As a matter of fact father and daughter wrote very much alike, and with surprising similarity to Mr. Ellison. It was this circumstance that led to the use of the letters in the cross-examination.)

Edge

The story is told of a great Musician who once stated that if he missed his Practice for but a single day, He could notice the difference, and if he missed it two days, his Friends could notice it, but if he missed it three days, his Public would immediately notice it.

Edge always Tells.

Those who know that their entire Success depends upon their being kept constantly on Edge, gladly see the benefits in advance of pushing aside the agencies that seek to steal their Rewards from them. The Athlete knows that he must live a clean, careful life in order to be kept on Edge. Treat your Body with respect and consideration and keep it on Edge at all times and it will in turn magnificently back every effort of your Brain and keep out the Clods from your Nerve centres.

Edge always Tells.

The student who daily does not do his best but leaves to a later date the overtaxing of his Brain and trusts natural Cleverness to carry him through his final Examinations, feels the destroying effect of such a method later on when he is thrust into the battles of real Life. He is the man who will then be constantly caught "off Edge."

Efficient, conscientious Service performed regularly and persistently gives Edge and Power to any worker, be he in a humble or exalted position. Edge is the test of honest Plodding. Edge is Fitness, it is the feeling of Evenness and Sureness that permeates the hourly experience of the worker who "cares" about Winning—each and every day. For he knows, as every such an one knows, that—

Edge always Tells.

The Sight Almost Dazzled Him.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Concealed In a Cloud, Odysseus Explored a King's Palace.

"PLEASE try to understand," daddy told his children, "how delightful Odysseus found it after suffering the cruelty of giants, sea nymphs, storms and shipwreck on his way home to Ithaca when Minerva led him to the palace of the good king of Corfu. Wrapped in a cloud, so nobody saw him, he spent some happy hours exploring the king's palace before he let the strangers know who he was."

"Tell us what he saw in the palace, daddy?" asked Jack.

"As Odysseus stood in the courtyard and looked at the home of the gentle princess who had given him clothes to travel in, the sight almost dazzled him with its splendor. Through the open palace door brass walls stretched far into gold ones. All doors were gold or silver, beautifully carved, and beside the front door stood a row of gold and silver dogs guarding the entrance. Along the sides of the entrance hall stood wonderful marble seats covered with finest rugs that the fifty slave girls belonging to the palace had woven by hand. For the maidens of Corfu were almost as famous for their beautiful handiwork as the men were for their skill in making ships. As Odysseus looked about he saw others of the fifty maidens, some daintily dusting the palace, others grinding corn for bread and more winding purple wool or making beautiful cloths on the looms, for tunics."

"They were the same girls who did the laundry," Jack remarked.

"Beyond the courtyard stretched a lovely garden four acres big. After cruel waves, just think how Odysseus enjoyed strolling among beautiful pomegranate trees, resting under soft leaved olives and nibbling the apples, figs and pears that lay on the kind earth. Beyond the orchard he could see the vineyard, some vines all bloom and some purple with great bunches of ripe grapes. Alongside were beautiful brown legged boys treading the wine presses, for this was the way ancients squeezed the juice out of grapes for wine. And all around the garden walls and in gorgeous patches of bloom grew flowers of all hues and tropical kinds. Then right in the middle of the garden Odysseus came upon two splendid fountains. One flowed through stone channels all over the place, watering the beautiful trees and flowers, and the other ran out through the courtyard into the street, so that young Greek girls and little boys might come with jugs and get all the water their mothers needed to cook them food."

"What a fairy garden!" cried Evelyn. "Tell us more, daddy!"

"I want to hear how Odysseus met the princess again!" shouted Jack.

But daddy gave the children a bedtime hug instead.

Marrying for Money

BY MRS EVA LEONARD

In Which the Prospective Bride's Views of Love and Marriage Are Discussed.

"Ortrude Blakely is over at the new house nearly every minute after school," said Nell Morton. "You sit here by the window and you will see her pass in a minute." She placed a chair for Olive.

"I am seeing a great deal of her lately. She runs in here nearly every day, either going or coming."

"How do you like her by this time?" asked Olive.

"She is very interesting because she is so utterly different from anyone I have ever known." Nell brought her sewing and sat down by Olive's side.

"In what way?" asked her friend.

"Her utter frankness, for one thing. For instance, she seems to take it for granted that I will know she is not marrying for love."

"Why, how strange!" interrupted Olive.

"She said the other day: 'I do not believe there are many love marriages. In nearly all the marriages I know anything about, one does the loving and the other consents to be loved. I decided that I would prefer to be the one who consented to be loved.'"

"She certainly has the grace of honesty," remarked Olive. "Is that she coming down the road?"

"Yes. She is good looking, isn't she?"

Olive went out on the porch to see if the wind was blowing on the baby, and at the same time get a good look at the new neighbor.

"She is too haughty to be good looking," was her comment when she sat down again. "She is a handsome woman, though."

"It will be quite exciting to see how the affair turns out. I predict a stormy passage." Nell fell to work at her sewing.

"Poor, blind girl!" said Olive compassionately.

"Blind! What do you mean?" asked Nell.

"Blind to her own best interests; blind to the wreckage that is likely to strew her path."

"Oh, she is very bright; she may be able to make the marriage a success," said Nell cheerfully.

"It takes great grace of spirit to make such an ill-assorted marriage a success. The attitude of the children is bound to be hostile, and if the tilt of her head is any indication of her attitude of mind, she is not likely to be conciliatory." Olive looked thoughtful.

"She is having some lovely furniture sent down from Kansas City. There is none half as good in town. Speaking about it, she said: 'The children will want to keep their mother's furniture. They would not like to have me use it.'"

"Did she mean that?" asked Olive.

"No; she smiled one of her sarcastic little smiles when she said it," replied Nell.

"Do you know when they are to be married?" asked Olive.

"Some time in June. She plans to be married in her new home."

"Has she no home of her own to be married in?" Olive looked up in surprise.

"No, poor girl, she has never had a home since she can remember, she says."

"We can see where the temptation came in to have a home of her very own."

"Well, the only thing we can do is to welcome her to the neighborhood and show our good will in every way possible. The time may come when we can do something to help her."

"I must go home now and get supper started," Olive said, gathering up her work.

(To be continued.)

AND THE WORST IS YET TO CO ME--

Don't you think, judging by the interesting store advertisements printed today, that a visit to some of the stores just now might be interesting as well as profitable to you?

Directions for Cooking Poultry

The following suggestions are given to this column by an expert poultry dresser. By reading them carefully and following them out when she comes to roast or broil or fricasse a fowl, even a novice will be able to put on the table a well-cooked, tender and juicy bird, provided she has a well-nourished bird at the start.

To Broil a Chicken.

To broil over a clear, smokeless bed of coals one should keep in mind that the first thing to do is to sear the flesh in such a way that the juices may be sealed in the flesh. If the bird is warmed up gradually the juices will be drawn out, leaving the bird tough. It should be held close to the coals, flesh side facing the coals, for the first five minutes. This will seal in the juices.

If, however, the cook continues to hold the bird close to the coals for long, the long continued temperature will harden it. So at the end of about five minutes the bird should be held further away. It should then be turned every few minutes until it is well browned and cooked through.

To Roast Chicken or Turkey.

A chicken or turkey to be roasted should be put into an oven having a temperature of about 400 degrees. In order to secure this, the gas should be turned on for ten or twelve minutes before the bird is put into it. Being thrust into this high temperature seals over the surface of the flesh so that all juices and flavors are kept in.

This authority advocates having the flesh of the bird pierced in twenty or thirty places with a trussing needle or other sharp instrument. One might at first thought say, "Why this enables the juices to quickly evaporate." An opposite effect, however, is the result. The quick heat at once sears over these perforations and penetrates into the flesh, so that a bird treated in this manner will be cooked in from fifteen to twenty-five minutes less than as if the skin were not pierced. The temperature of the oven must be lowered after the first ten or fifteen minutes—the time depending somewhat upon the size of the bird. It should be dropped to about 250 degrees, and the bird should then be left to cook at this temperature until tender. The basting liquor will will trickle down through the peforations and make the flesh juicy. Strips of bacon or fat salt pork can be laid across the breast and thighs of the bird and tied on or made secure with skewers. The fat from these will also trickle down through the flesh and give it tastiness. An oiled or buttered paper should be laid over the bird and let remain until about ten minutes before the bird is taken from the oven. Then the paper can be taken off, so that the bird may brown.

For Preserving a Chicken.

A chicken to be boiled should not have flesh pierced. It should have the sinews drawn as for roasting and the kidney should be carefully removed. Truss the bird as for roasting, plung it into smartly boiling water and let it remain for ten minutes; then lower the temperature of the water to about 170 degrees. If necessary to probe the bird in order to tell whether it is cooked, pierce the leg rather than the breast meat.

If for any reason one finds it is necessary to keep a bird a day or so after it is dressed and trussed, put a crushed onion inside of the bird. This will be very effective in keeping it in good condition.

THE CARE OF BOOKS.

Books, it is said, are spoiled by being criss-crossed on convenient desks and stands. Valuable volumes should be kept in racks.

One of the best of library tables is a table on top and provided with shelves beneath so arranged that when a book is put temporarily aside it need not be laid flat on its side. On top of this table there is another receptacle for books, a small revolving stand, which is designed to hold small dictionaries of foreign languages and other reference books. This is a case of fine, simply polished, hardwood and is especially adapted to a man's library.

For reading desks of busy authors the morocco-bound book blocks are at once useful and ornamental, though there is something newer and rather more decorative in the shape of a painted or engraved leather revolving stand, which, by its brass handle, can be moved about the room at the convenience of the reader, and screwed into the arm of a Morris reading chair.

SLEEP AIDS HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Sleep has a most important bearing upon the beauty of the skin and also upon the figure. Properly indulged in, sleep may be said to be nature's beautifier, and the woman who takes care that she rests each night under the best conditions possible will have very little use for cosmetics, hair dyes, or cold creams.

Sleep is undoubtedly the best nerve, skin and eye tonic, and without it beauty can scarcely exist. Keep to systematic hours as much as possible, and do not snatch a nap in bed in the morning, in order to make up for lost hours over night.

Too little sleep does not sufficiently repair the strain of the waking hours, while, on the other hand, too much sleep is also bad, as it depresses the vitality, and makes one feel heavy and dull.

To obtain good beauty sleep, all overindulgence must be avoided, whether in exercise, in work, or in amusement.

USES FOR OLD STOCKINGS.

Cut in strips and put in mop handle old stockings make a very good homemade dry mop.

For on oven cloth it takes two pairs of good size; cut the feet off and cut the leg open, stitch the legs together lengthwise, that double over and turn in edge and stitch, catch a piece of tape in the corner for a loop to hang up by. Of course, the very thin stockings would take more.

They are also handy to polish the stove with and wipe the nickle.

That First Year

"And so they were married, and lived happily forever afterwards!"

Probably every girl who marries the man of her choice does so with the echo of that dear old fairy-tale ending ringing in her ears. Happy forever afterwards? Of course they were! Of course she will be! Possibly because of such vastly high expectations, and the careless thoughtlessness they engender, quite often—alas!—the bride discovers she is nothing of the kind!

Oh, that first year of life together with its inevitable disillusions, disappointments and irritations! When she learns that she hasn't married the mixture of saint and hero she dreamed, but only a very ordinary human being; and he discovers the girl he has married is a much more difficult to understand little person than the girl he wooed!

Like the fairy-story, they will dwell happily together forever afterwards if they only exercise a very little patience and common sense.

"Bear and forbear," "Forgive and forget"—these two mottoes, diligently lived up to will make any marriage a success.

CONSIDER YOUR HEALTH.

Health is a capital for us all, and especially for the woman who works. However much talent and initiative you have, you will be handicapped in your work unless you have your share of good health. If you have not health it is your business to expend every minute of your surplus time acquiring it.

If you have been fortunate in having the right sort of mother she strove to build this rich heritage for you from the time you were a baby, and it has grown until you are rich with this possession. But if she did not give enough thought to this vital subject it is your duty to seize the broken threads and to mend them.

AN INEXPENSIVE PILLOW.

Take a square of dotted muslin with the large dots and work them alternately with pink and green. Make a nile green cloth back and ruffle or nile green covered with a dotted muslin ruffle featherstitched with nile green silkaline. This makes a very pretty pillow.

RENOVATING GILT FRAMES.

Take sufficient flour of sulphur to impart a golden tinge to a pint of water, and in this mixture put four or five bruised onions. When thoroughly boiled the liquid should be strained and when cold applied with a soft brush to the gilding which requires treatment. This is a simple method by which excellent results may be obtained.

WINTER GOLF CLUB FORMALLY OPENED

First Playing Was Done Last Night at the Indoor Course.

MEMBERS ENJOY SPORT

Work of Putting Course in Shape Finished Last Evening—Two Driving Courts and a Putting Green for Winter Practice.

The formal opening of the Winter Golf Club, which has been organized by thirty-two members of the Plainfield Country Club, took place last night, many golfers playing the indoor game. The members will doubtless turn out in large numbers this afternoon and tomorrow.

It was originally planned to start a couple of weeks ago, but an unexpected delay in securing the nets made it impossible to put things in shape until yesterday. The work of hanging the nets and arranging the other fixtures was not finished until after 6 p. m.

A short business meeting was held last night. No officers of the club have been elected, the idea simply being to provide a place for the thirty-two interested members to practice during the winter season. These men own the paraphernalia, and plan to make the organization a permanent one.

The club is located in the gymnasium of Max Maximoff Maximus, who conducts a school of physical training on the site formerly occupied by the Woodbrook Farms. Mr. Maximus has donated the use of part of his gymnasium to the golf men, but the golfing will in no way interfere with his regular work. This location for the club is an ideal one. Besides being on the main highway—Park avenue—it is but one block from the trolley.

The club will be open to members every day from 3:30 p. m. to midnight, and on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m., and from 3:30 p. m. to midnight. The club will be open to women of members' families from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m., excepting Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

There are two courses, and a putting green. Mats are used for tees. At the end of the driving courts are five round pieces of canvas, marked to represent different distances made on each shot. The top one is 75 yards, the lowest 200, and the others, 100, 150 and 175 yards. A player aims for the circle representing the number of yards he is from the green of the hole being played, and having made the distance, goes to the putting green. The putting space is about 30 by 20 feet, and has a sand surface, similar to many outdoor greens in the South. There are three cups, a certain one being played for on each hole. The putting green is purposely made uneven in spots, so that the player will have to figure on the topography, the same as on any rolling green.

All the members who have seen the course are delighted with it. There is much more room than players generally enjoy for the indoor game.

The game is an exacting test for direction, and is a valuable developer of a good swing. It is for this, and for the diversion afforded, that the club has been organized. The circles representing the shortest distances are higher than the other, to represent the pitch shot used for approaching, the 175 and 200-yard "bull's eyes" being of the height equivalent to a lower, longer ball gained by a full swing from the tee.

Among those who have joined the club are T. S. Wheeler, George L. Babcock, Dr. F. C. Ard, L. H. Van Buren, Albert MacDonald, Howard A. Colby, W. G. Cooke, Frederick W. Wallace, J. B. Stevens, Henry L. De Forest, A. M. Collens, H. G. Phillips, H. A. Robinson, Wilbur H. Rogers, F. C. Osborn, S. H. Patterson, Dr. B. Van D. Hedges, Sherman B. Joost, W. W. Coriell, W. B. Tyler, J. F. Middledith, George P. Mellick, W. H. Williams, Walter L. Righter, Howard H. Craig, Harry Williams, J. H. Brewster, Jr., H. S. Brown and C. B. Lawrence, Jr.

SOFHS EARN BRACKETS OVER P. H. S. SENIORS

Juniors Are Now Their Chief Rivals for Interclass Basketball Title.

The Sophomores practically eliminated the Seniors from all chance of winning the interclass basketball championship at the Plainfield High School, when they defeated them on the school court by a score of 21 to 12 yesterday afternoon. Superior work in both shooting and team work paved the way for the Sophomore's victory, and now they are getting ready to tackle the Juniors, who are the only team which has beaten them.

The first half gave the second year men a three-point lead and they increased it in the last period on account of good shooting by O'Donnell and Mills. Eggie made half the Senior score. Snyder made the best play of the game when he caged the ball on a shot the length of the court.

The score:

MAGNETO SPARKS FROM THE PLAINFIELD MOTORCYCLISTS

P. Schick, who made a "rep" for himself last fall by taking a barn door off its hinges with his motorcycle, has put his bucking gas machine away until spring.

J. Dickhudt (the Frying Dutchman) threatens to take his magneto apart again. The last time this happened it took all the mechanics in South Plainfield to get it together again. Jule had it together, but when he had the job done there were half a dozen parts left.

Gus Johnson has ordered a storage battery and case. He says Elmer has got to go some to beat him when he get attached.

E. Mantz, New Brunswick agent for Harleys, rode in last night on a flat tire. Rain, shine, air or not—he rides just the same.

Bill Higgins will soon be busy with some club work. Bill is vice-president, and always lets his work pile up until the boys take him away from the movies by force.

E. A. Windsor, of Dunellen, has been taking the Van Benschoten brothers to work on his Harley. Some load—three riders on a machine.

One of the best-looking machines in the city belongs to Gus Johnson. As soon as he sees a speck on it, he gets busy right away with his little can of polish. The machine is a credit to its owner.

W. J. Black and Mrs. Black intend to ride tandem this year. They bought a new machine last week.

J. McInness, of this city, rides his new 1916 Harley to Dunellen where he is employed. Jim had the pleasure of being pinched recently in New York city for speeding, while on his way back from New Haven. The Judge looked at Jim and said $25. That finished the career of one speeder.

President H. Albert reports that he recovered his motorcycle from the wilds of Whitehouse, and found the roads in very good condition, and the motor in better shape than when he left it there. Herb enjoys himself everyday at Hall's Printing Works, in Dunellen, where he has his hands full with the motorcycle bugs who inhabit that spot.

A. Herrlich says he lost the price of a new motorcycle when the windstorm shortly after Christmas blew down a building he was working on in Warrenville.

Yale showed more class in its game yesterday afternoon when it defeated Columbia 19 to 4 than any other team in the Plainfield High School college basketball league. MAY ALSO BE GIRLS' GAME WHEN CO. M APPEARS HERE

Company M, of Somerville, will appear at the Plainfield High School, Tuesday evening, as opponents of the Recreation Five. This game will be one of the season's best, as the soldier boys are regarded as one of the crack teams of the State. Although they hung it on the Plainfield lads earlier in the season, a different story will be told this time if the predictions of Captain Ricketts come true. Capt. Rick has given his men several hard workouts since the last defeat, and promises to give one of the best exhibitions of basketball ever seen in the city. A girls' game will probably be played also, and dancing will be another feature of the evening.

FITZ SEES CORBETT ACT.

Bob Fitzsimmons sat in a box last night at a newark theatre where Jim Corbett is delivering a monologue this week. Jim told about the solar plexus blow with which Fitz knocked him out in their world's championship fight in 1897.

Makes Five Baskets in Last Four Minutes of Season's Most Creditable Win.

"JINX" GOAL SOLVED

Both Teams Make More Points Playing for Westfield's Historic "Bad" Basket Than They do on the Regular Goal.

Five points behind, with only four minutes to play, the North Plainfield High School boys made a brilliant spurt which enabled them to claim a 33-28 victory at Westfield High School last evening. The local team played the fastest and hardest basketball of the season, the entire team being imbued with life and confidence, an asset which aided materially in the crucial test of the last few minutes.

The contest was a notable and well-deserved win for the locals, as they were recently defeated by the same contingent, in Saengerbund Hall, by the score of 34-26. The fracas last night was waged on the old High School court, which has always been such a decided disadvantage to visiting teams, due to the narrow margin between the ceiling and the basket at one end.

The N. P. H. S. team chose the poorer basket in the first period and ran up eighteen points. The visitors began with a rush, and outplayed their rivals during the entire twenty minutes. Eight field goals and two fouls were collected by the North Plainfield faction, while the Westfielders counted five two-pointers and three fouls. A peculiarity of the contest was that both teams scored more points on the jinx basket than the good one.

The second period started with the homesters five points in the rear. A basket by Davies and Stevens in the first few minutes of play brought the score within one point of their rivals. Both sides then indulged in some shooting until the last four minutes, when the Blue and White contestants were leading by five points. In the next minute of play three successive baskets by McDonough, Townley and Dawe gave the Canadian Five a one-point lead. Time was then taken out, when a W. H. S. player was injured. Two minutes remained, but baskets by McDonough and Dawe decided the winning team.

The scoring of N. P. H. S. was divided between the center and two forwards, both Dawe and McDonough shooting a quartet of field goals, while Dilts also accounted for two points. Davies was instrumental in keeping his team in the running with four field goals.

TABS ON SCORING SPREE AGAINST SAURER PLAYERS

The T. A. B. S. defeated the Saurer All-Stars last night on the West Fourth street court. Kelly, the unmasked marvel, was the main point getter for the Grape Juice Five. The scorekeeper had so many crosses to put down one of his fingers dropped off the first few minutes of play. He being the only one around, no score was kept. But T. A. B. S. won, just the same.

FIVE AMERICANS KILLED IN FRANCE

Kelly of the Foreign Legion Sought Honors on Battlefield.

LAST SEEN IN FOE'S TRENCH

Dispatch From French War Office Says He Is Honorably Missing—Companions Also Praised For Their Bravery on Many Occasions Since They Enlisted With the Allies.

Kelly of the Foreign legion is dead. "Russell Kelly, 45 Broadway, New York, U. S. A.," is the way his name went into the rolls of his regiment in France, but "Kelly of the Foreign legion" is the way it will be written in the roll of heroes when the list is handed down to posterity in the story of the European war.

Kelly grinned and said he would cheat the Germans when he was told that the order had gone out to execute every member of the Foreign legion captured in battle. And he did cheat them. He escaped the ignominious death threatened at the hands of a firing squad to find a more glorious one on the field of battle.

Where Kelly of the Foreign legion met death and how only those who were with him on his final charge can tell. But his father, James E. Kelly, possesses a treasured message from the French war office that he points to as sufficient evidence that his boy died as an American should.

"Your son is honorably missing. Was seen in German trench with bullet in shoulder," the message reads.

The meager dispatch contains additional facts that will give little satisfaction to the Americans whose eyes have scanned the cables for news of other Americans in the legion. It tells of the death of Kelly's four American associates, Hermon Edwin Hall of Chicago, John Earle Pike of Wooster, O., and Kenneth Weeks and Henry Farnsworth of Boston.

Reported Dead Once Before.

The names first appeared among the casualties at Givenchy, but later it was reported that Kelly and possibly the other four had recovered and again had taken their places in the trenches. The later report, however, may mean that this was an error or that they fell together in a later encounter.

Kelly, who had been in the lines of the allies "somewhere in France" for several months, was reported missing last summer. James Kelly, on learning of the disappearance of his adventurous son, started the machinery of the state department at Washington on a search for him in German prisons. Simultaneous with the original report came the statement that Germany had ordered all members of the Foreign legion shot wherever they might be captured. The technical offense of the members of the legion was that they were not citizens of the country for which they were fighting.

"But Russell will beat that all right," confidently asserted the father. "When I first learned of the difficulties that the legionaires were likely to get into I wrote him explicit directions not to claim American citizenship if taken prisoner. All I told him to do was to claim the right of communicating with Ambassador Gerard. His answer to my letter was characteristic. It was, 'Will follow your instructions in case of capture.'"

However, news reached Mr. Russell that there was no record of the imprisonment of his son in a German camp. The news was crushing. It had seemed possible that he might have concealed his identity for weeks, but seven months—the father's almost unlimited fund of hope was lost.

Kelly wrote to his father that he was seeing hotter work than Ty Cobb ever had seen in hitting the grit. The twenty-two-year-old boy cheerfully announced that he was out for glory. And now Kelly of the Foreign legion has reached the other end of the path that leads to glory.

Kenneth Weeks of Cambridge, Mass., whose death in France is reported, was twenty-six years old and had written five volumes of short stories, besides several plays. He went to Paris five years ago to study at the Beaux Arts. Devoted to France, he enlisted at the outbreak of the war and spent the first winter in the trenches. He was chosen as bomb thrower for his squad and took in the offensive of May 4. He was mentioned in despatches for bravery. He was regarded as a writer of much promise.

Henry W. Farnsworth, a Harvard graduate and a member of an old Boston family, was twenty-five years old and had been out of college but a few years. When the war started he had just begun work in the office of his father. Before relatives could object he had packed his trunk and was on the way to Europe.

Farnsworth wanted to be right in the midst of the fighting and refused to become a war correspondent, preferring to join the Foreign legion. His company, according to letters he wrote home, was in many desperate engagements in northern France.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Jack Singer's Behman Show, which is announced as the attraction at the Plainfield Theatre for Tuesday and Wednesday, matinee and night, January 25-26, comes to this city direct from a sixteen weeks' engagement on Broadway in New York at the Columbia Theatre, where it broke all records. The attraction was proclaimed by the press and public as being a better musical revue at $1 than a host of other attractions which were then being presented and which the box offices were getting $2 for. There will be no change in the performance that is to be given here, as the management of the Plainfield Theatre gives every assurance that the company has remained intact since it left New York. It will be the same production, the same stars, including Lew Kelly, and the same big chorus as it was on Broadway. There will be a one act burlesque presented, which is entitled "The Dope Legacy," and in addition there will also be a "Passing Revue," during which impressions of all of the prominent stage stars of today will be presented by various members of the company. The concluding feature of the performance will be a travesty on Bronson Howard's war drama, "Shenandoah." In addition to Mr. Kelly the cast includes Lon Hascall, Eileen Sheridan, Martelle, Harry Van, James Ten Brooke, Ameta Pynes and others.

BURNED LETTERS IN A MAIL BOX

Smoke Coming Through Opening Led to Discovery of Unusual Crime.

NO ARREST IS MADE

Patrolman Wicht Has Good Clue, However, and Postal Authorities Are Busy—Five Letters Were Destroyed by Match.

Five letters, one of them containing a five dollar bill, were destroyed yesterday afternoon in a mail box at the corner of Plainfield avenue and West Third street by sofeone who dropped a burning match into the box.

Patrolman Wicht, who discovered the crime and reported it to the postoffice, has not yet arrested the perpetrator, but he has a good clue on which to work and hopes to make an arrest late this afternoon. Postal authorities are also making an investigation and if the man who dropped the match into the box is apprehended he will be prosecuted by the United States government.

The act could not have been anything but malicious, according to the police and the postoffice authorities, and no possible motive can be advanced except a wanton desire to destroy. The match was dropped into the box through the letter slot, the only possible way, and it was necessary to use great care in having it strike the letters without the flame being extinguished.

The attention of Patrolman Wicht was called to the box by a young man and young woman named Anderson, who live across the street. They saw smoke coming from it. It was still smoking when he investigated and he notified Postmaster Hoagland, who came at once. The fire was discovered at 5:35 yesterday afternoon. The match was probably dropped in about 5:20. Mr. Hoagland opened the box and found five letters, all badly damaged and one so badly burned that it was impossible to make out but a single name. That was "L. E. Chagowan," and the postal authorities want to find the sender of the letter so that it can be rewrititen. In one letter was found a $5 bill, almost wholly destroyed.

The two Anderson children told the patrolman that a man stood by the side of the box smoking a cigar a few minutes before smoke was seen coming from it. They were unable to describe him but Officer Wicht will find him this afternoon, having secured a fact which he believes will establish the identity of the smoker. He will be accused of the crime unless he can establish a strong alibi.

A penalty for an offense of this kind, according to Federal authorities, is a fine of $1,000, or three years in the penitentiary.

O. T. Waring, of Park avenue, who on Friday last observed the seventy-sixth anniversary of his birthday, has had a remarkably active career, and today is devoting a great deal of time to his many business interests. His birthday was marked by a family dinner party on Friday evening, when all of his children but one son, Richard Waring, who is in Texas, was present. EUGENE WOOD DIES AT LOCAL HOSPITAL

Veteran Driver of Gazelle Engine Co. Succumbs After Four Weeks' Illness.

Eugene Wood, a resident of this city for many years and one who was widely known, died in Muhlenberg Hospital Saturday afternoon following a four weeks' illness. He had been a sufferer for a long time with asthma which developed complications. His condition became serious shortly after he was admitted into the hospital and he was unconscious most of the time all last week.

Mr. Wood was born in New York city fifty-eight years ago and resided there until his parents moved to this city about thirty years ago. He was engaged in the carriage making trade while in the metropolis but on coming here worked as a driver. When the Plainfield Council first installed horses in the fire department about twenty-five years ago, Mr. Wood was one of the first regular drivers employed. He was assigned to Gazelle Engine Company on West Second street, where his brother, Robert Wood, and Michael Seader were also stationed as drivers taking care of the hose wagon and Zephyr hook and ladder truck. All three men mentioned remained in the service until the paid department was inaugurated at which time Eugene Wood resigned. In recent years he had worked both as a driver and as a gardener.

"Gene" Wood, as he was always called, was of a happy, social disposition and at one time he was known to practically everybody in the city and the borough. In his latter days he was an enthusiastic worker at the Rescue Mission where he frequently took part in the gatherings. Beside his brother, Robert Wood, who lives on Washington avenue, the borough, he leaves one sister, Mrs. William J. Nelson, of this city. The funeral will be held in the Park Avenue Baptist church tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and interment will be in Hillside cemetery. Rev. E. C. Conover will have charge of the service.

FINED $8 FOR SHOOTING AND STRIKING A WOMAN

Fortunate Ventriglia, the Italian who shot and seriously wounded Mary Cambaiano while celebrating the coming of the new year, was fined $8 by Judge William De Meza in police court this morning. The Italian was charged with being disorderly. He entered a plea of guilty, but asked for clemency on the ground that he thought the custom was common here. He said he was awakened at midnight by a fellow boarder who told him to get his pistol and help celebrate. It was proven that he was of good character and had never been in trouble before, so Judge De Meza made the fine as light as possible.

FOUND $700 IN SOMERSET STREET

Negro Picked up Big Roll of Yellow Bills And Ran Away.

OWNER NOT LOCATED

Two Young Girls Who Saw Strange Incident Report Matter to Police—Chief Weiss Believes Party of Motorists Dropped Money.

An unknown negro Sunday morning picked up a large roll of bills in the middle of Somerset street and those who saw him count the money heard him explain that he had found $700. The negro got away before authorities could get their hands on him, and so far the loss of the money has not been officially reported.

Shortly before noon yesterday two young girls who are employed by A. J. Brunson saw a large roll of bills lying in the middle of Somerset street, near the corner of Race street. Before they could reach the money a negro had pounced upon it. The roll was held together by a rubber band and all the bills seen by the girls were yellow. They could not be certain about the amount, but a young man standing near heard the negro say the roll contained $700. The negro ran down Somerset street as soon as he realized his find and has not been seen since. Mr. Brunson reported the incident to Chief Weiss, of the borough police. The chief thinks that the money was lost from a passing automobile.

It is considered strange that the loss of such a sum of money has not been reported to the police. At an early hour this afternoon Chief Weiss had received no report from the owner of the money, and no one had asked the Plainfield police to assist them in a search. If the roll was dropped by a party of motorists, as Chief Weiss believes, it may be several days before the name of the owner becomes known, as he may not know where he lost his bills.

By that time there will be little chance of finding the negro, because he has every opportunity to escape. If he is apprehended before he gits rid of the money it can be taken from him, of course, if the owner can be found, and a charge of larceny may be made against him, as he is liable for having taken the money without making some effort to find the owner, but if he leaves Plainfield he will be hard to locate. The two girls were not able to give a complete description of the negro, and no clue to his identity has been discovered. He will not be hard to locate if he stays at home and spends it here.

MANY MOURNERS ATTEND MAX MUNGER'S FUNERAL

With a large gathering of relatives and friends in attendance, many of the latter being business associates from New York and Philadelphia, the funeral of Max Munger, whose death occurred Friday morning, was held yesterday afternoon at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Raymond Munger, of Washington avenue, the borough. The service, which was exceedingly simple, because of the great shock to the bereaved family was in charge of Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue church. Beside Scriptural passages, the pastor read two of Mr. Munger's favorite hymn's. Floral pieces numbering over one hundred, many of them magnificent set pieces, were mute evidences of the sympathy and sorrow held by the popular young man's friends.

Following the service private burial was made in Hillside cemetery the following acting as pall bearers: Dr. George W. Endicott, Elliott T. Barrows, Edward H. Ladd, Jr., James W. DeGraff, M. S. Ackerman, Albert A. Tilney, Robert Rushmore and Joseph W. Shellabarger.

BOYS COMMITTED SEVEN ROBBERIES

Mere Youths Burglarized Newark Stores and Then Came Here.

South Plainfield, Jan. 24.—Sandford Seely and George Andrews, of Newark, aged fifteen and seventeen years, respectively, were taken into custody by local Railroad Detective Ray Finney, being wanted on a charge of committing seven robberies in Newark. Both youths had successfully eluded the police of Newark for the past few weeks, while only last week they robbed a jewelry store in the heart of Newark. When questioned as to why they left Newark after having so much success in their profession they replied that they knew the police were trailing them and they thought that it would be a little safer to operate among the farmers. Each carried a .32 calibre revolver, fifty rounds of ammunition, a flashlight, while Sheely also had a pair of steel knuckles. Evidently both were ardent believers in preparedness. The boys also carried a hand bag in which they carried their loot, which consisted of four gold watches, several rings, and various trinkets and about twenty dollars in money. Finney turned both boys and the loot over to the police at that place.

NEGROES FINED FOR BIG "PARTY"

Eleven Arrested in Raid Saturday Contribute to the City Fund.

All of the negroes arrested in the raid on the West Fourth street disorderly house Saturday morning were fined by Judge William DeMeza, when tried Saturday afternoon, except Gus Tunstill, the musician, who had been hired for the event, and who was not paid. In lieu of the promised $2 for music he was let off with a suspended sentence. Maggie Jackson, who lived in the house, and who was acting as "hostess," was given a fine of $20. It was brought out in court that the woman was being supported by the borough of North Plainfield. She is receiving her coal and $1.50 a week from the borough for her support. Those fined $5 or twenty days were: Walter Horton, George Jackson, Fred Connit, Frank Brown, Mary Jackson, William Walter, Robert Tate and Andrew Smith. George Robinson was fined $3. Most all the fines have been paid.

It developed during the trial that the big celebration had been in progress since Friday evening, although Captain Flynn, Lieutenant Higgins and Patrolman Welsh did not arrive until Saturday morning. Captain Flynn learned of the party at the Jackson home through the mother of the Walter boy. He had not come home during the night, and she asked that a search be made for him. When the captain found him there were so many friends that needed to accompany him to the station that a call was sent in for the patrol wagon. Instead of bringing the wagon Lieutenant Higgins answered in the automobile of Clarence Mundy, and the negroes enjoyed a ride in a touring car.

TAXI AND TROLLEY CAR COLLIDE AT DUNELLEN

One of H. E. Nelson's taxis and the 7:45 trolley to Plainfield were in collision Saturday evening. The taxi, in charge of Chauffeur Hennesy, was standing in front of Kuffenburg's bakery waiting for a fare when the trolley, which was proceeding slowly, struck the left rear mudguard a glacing blow and knocked the axle cap off the rear wheel. The car was turned around in such a manner as to bend the turston rods.

The motorman blamed Chauffeur Hennesy for the accident, claiming that the rear light of the taxi was out. Hennesy, on the other hand, says that the light was not out and that the motorman was aware of the closeness of the taxi to the rails and should have stopped instead of trying to get by.

ADMIRAL AT ODDS WITH NAVY HEADS

Vice Admiral Henry T. Mayo (top) and Admiral Frank F. Fletcher.

Admiral Frank F. Fletcher, commanding the Atlantic fleet, will turn over his command to Vice Admiral Henry T. Mayo because of differences that have developed between Admiral Fletcher and Rear Admiral A. M. Knight, head of the army war college, at Newport. The trouble arose over the decision in the recent naval "war game" and came to a head when the war college sent charges to Secretary of the Navy Daniels that during the "war game" Admiral Fletcher had "violated the fundamentals of strategy."

A Galley o' Fun!

FROM A FUTURE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

The House being in Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union, and having under consideration the bill (H R 987654321) to grant a pension of $40 a week to every native-born or naturalized citizen who would have fought in the aWr of the Revolution if he had been there——

Mr. Porknell said:

Mr. Chairman: In offering this measure I believe that I have put into tangible form the sentiment of every loyal, patriotic, red-blooded American citizen. (Applause.)

Mr. Grampus—Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. Porknell—Certainly.

Mr. Grampus—I should like to ask whether the gentleman in offering this measure intended the pension to be $40 a week instead of $40 a month? (Faint Applause.)

Mr. Porknell—I answer the gentleman with pleasure. The bill is as it should be, $40 a week. (Great applause.) May I ask the gentleman in return whether he would limit to a paltry $480 a year the return which this great nation should make to those heroes who would have given their lives freely for it in the very hour of his birth? Does he believe we should deprive them of that which every nation owes its gallant defenders because a mere accident of fate has decreed that they were not to be at Bunker Hill, at Valley Forge, at Yorktown? (Renewed applause.) I ask, rather, should we not recompense them the more liberally for the magnificent spirit with which they would have rushed to meet the oppressor because their willingness so to do is voiced without the artificial stimulus of the need itself? Nay, since the gentleman questions the amount, I say here that $40 a day would be none too much were it not that we would seem to offer no cold and artificial incentive to that priceless heritage of patriotism which is our boast as a nation. (Prolonged applause.) Churlish the nation that would limit its tribute to its heroes by the fortunes of time and chance rather than by the great underlying spirit of it. Ingratitude, thy name is reason! Let us have none of it here when considering the nation's obligations to its own people! (Renewed applause.)

The question was taken, and the Committee unanimously recommended the measure to the House amid singing and cheering from both sides

A BASE MOTIVE.

Von Blumer—I didn't come down to this hotel over Sunday to spend the night dancing, or the day in playing golf, or the intervail in talking to a lot of idiots.

Mrs. Von Blumer (indignantly)—No; of course not! The only thing you care about is getting rested.

A FATAL OMISSION.

"This," said the editor, "describes the invention in graphic style, but you haven't made it complete."

"No," said the reporter.

"No. You haven't said that it is destined to revolutionize the industry."

ONE VIEW OF HER.

Business Caller (looking at photograph)—This is a picture of Mrs Peckington, I suppose?

Peckington—Yes; that's her when she is—er—getting her picture taken.

A COMPLIMENT.

She—Ah! We can't tell what the future has in store for us!

Her Husband—Well, don't worry, dear! Whatever it is, you'll get it at a bargain.

IN OLYMPUS.

Diana—Well, you are a wonder! Where did you acquire all that stock of scientific information?

Minerva—Oh! I read the Sunday papers.

"THERE STANDS JAKE" DOWN ON FRONT STREET

"There stands Jake," remarked a pedestrian early this morning while passing the corner of Front street and Plainfield avenue, and there stood Jake, unable to "come" or go or do anything else. Jake, known to the directory man as Jake Modedezky, lost a wheel off his jitney. It is just an ordinary jitney, and it was only an ordinary accident that happened to it, but Jake was inconvenienced in more ways than one. In addition to having his business stopped, his income temporary cut off and facing the expense of a new wheel, he was forced to have his sign changed in front of his peace ark. He had a sign which read, "Here Comes Jake." Now it reads, as the remark of the passing pedestrian would indicate, "There Stands Jake." He promises to get to going again today.

HIT BY JITNEY BUS.

It was said at the institution today that his hurts were mostly bruises, and he would be discharged in a day or two. Finerty was crossing the street at the corner mentianed when the bus bore down upon him. The vehicle is said to have been owned by A. Cohen.

BOY NAMED ROCKAFELLER WAS ONE WHO DIDN'T

Throwing rocks at the owner of a wagon because he would not let them ride caused five boys, their ages ranging from eight to twelve, to be brought into court this morning. They were arrested by Patrolman Wicht on complaint of the driver of a delivery wagon, who said that they threw rocks at him Saturday afternoon. It was shown that two of the boys had not been parties to the rock-throwing and to prove that there is nothing in a name one of them was Terry Rockafeller. He was too good a boy to "rock a feller," he said, and Judge DeMeza turned him loose. All of the boys were turned loose on their promise to be good in the future.

REV. C. S. GILLESPIE PREACHES TO MEN

"What Is a Man Worth" Subject of Sermon at Grace M. E. Church.

Representatives of the Knights of the Golden Eagle, Jr. O. U. A. M., North Plainfield Republican Club, and and North Plainfield Domino Club and a number of postoffice employes attended the revival meeting in Grace M. E. church last night, the service being arranged by Rev. C. S. Gillespie for men only.

The music was in charge of Robert Boyd, the singing evangelist, and this was a feature. The choir comprised fifty men, thirty-five of whom are members of the Men's Bible Class of the church. There was also a quartet comprising Joel O'Lear, Thomas Wallis, V. P. Heath and Peter Mager. Mr. Boyd sang a solo during the service.

"What Is a Man Worth?" was the the subject of a stirring discourse by Mr. Gillespie. In part, he said:

"The strength of any nation is in her manhood. Not from the standpoint of national defense, where they serve as soldiers, but in the life and character of the men who give value to the nation. For it is the nation's manhood that furnishes her with her ideals and her ambitions in right directions.

"The most manly thing on earth for a man to do is to stand out square for God. You say religion is a thing for women and children. I say you are not a Christian if you stay away from God, not because it is a weak thing to be a Christian, but because it is such a strong thing that a man with a wishbone for a backbone can't do it. If you are not a Christian it is because you have not manhood enough to be.

"The men who have done the most to make the world better have been Christians. They have lived true. They have kept themselves pure. And any man worthy of the name will defend the honor of every young woman he meets and will treat her as he would desire to have his own sister treated."

ARRESTED FOR JUST LOOKING FOR GAME

Negro Got in Wrong Basement, But Didn't Want Chickens

That a man should not reform unless he intends to keep in the straight and narrow path was proven by the case of Frank Jordon, colored, who was tried in police court this morning. Frank was charged with disorderly conduct, which like charity, may convert a multitude of sins. The complaint against him was that he had been found in the basement of the home of Abraham Deutsch, at 513 West Third street, at 11:30 Saturday night. Jordon was not looking for something to steal, as was first thought, but for a crap game. He formerly sat in with the "boys" on West Third street in some of the games of chance and was looking for a game, but he had not been around for some time and he made a mistake in the location.

"Wasn't you looking for that man's chickens?" Judge De Meza asked the negro.

"I don't want his chickens," the negro said earnestly. "He don't feed 'em. They ain't fat enough to tempt me."

Frank promised the judge he would abstain from shooting craps and avoid the company of crap shooters for a full year, for which he received a suspended sentence.

POLICE SEEK MAN WHO IS NOT LOST

Arthur Morris Alarms Parents by Disappearance, But Comes Back.

A spirited search for Arthur Morris, a young man who lives with his parents at 1250 Grove street, conducted by the police through Sunday afternoon and night ended shotly before noon today when Chief Kiely received word that Morris was calmly attending to his duties as conductor on a Rahway car. The young man was probably unaware of the trouble being taken to find him.

His disappearance was reported to the police yesterday afternoon by his father, William Morris. He said the boy had boarded a 1:30 car Sunday morning after finishing his work and had alighted at Emerson avenue, ostensibly to go home. He did not come home Saturday night nor Sunday and the police were asked to conduct a search for him. No word was heard from him this morning and the search was continued until a telephone call to the chief told of the appearance of Morris at the car barns at the regular hour today.

HOME BURNS, NOBODY THINKS OF FIRE ALARM

The four-room bungalow owned by Charles Larson, of Mc Lean terrace South Plainfield, was completely burned to the ground Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock. A few pieces of furniture was saved, but the furniture of the bed-rooms and valuable articles and relics were completely destroyed. The blaze is believed to have been caused by a defective chimney. The house is situated about a mile and a half from South Plainfield and the members of the family become so excited that they did not think of sending in an alarm for the local fire department. A few neighbors formed a bucket brigade, but were not successful in checking the blaze which had gained much headway in about twenty minutes. The house is said to be partly covered by insurance, while there was no insurance on the furniture. Loss is estimated at about $2,500.
